Brothers Four Have Not Had Time to Finish Education

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television — perhaps specifically the first Sing Along With Mitch show two seasons ago—is responsible for the loss of an electrical engineer, a diplomat, a physician and a broadcasting executive.

Those were the professions toward which members of a singing group called The Brothers Four were heading when the lightning of success struck.

The four, all from the Seattle area, were fraternity brothers, seniors at the University of Washington. John Paine, Bob Flick, Dick Foley and Mike Kirkland had made a record-ing. Greenfield, which caught work and vice-president Terher on. Then came the Sing Along date.

Occasional TV appearances have been vital to their success, the boys say. They have done five to the rise and fall of the guest shots on all the top net-work shows. As a result record sales have increased, they can stable won eight racers at Lan-demand more money, turn down rel and the price jumped to join they don t like, and have $1,50. become financially secure in two years' time.

The disadvantage, are that hone has found time to finish his college education. In the last eight days they have played college dates in eight different places, ranging from Florida to Michigan.

The Tracks

BALTIMORE (AP)—The opinions of Saturday's $75,000 Pimlico Futurity may be fek on Wall Street.

The first publicly-owned horse corporation, Turf and Paddock Stable, was the idea of a couple of young Miami me-Dick Kumble, 27, and How-Teaber, 29, drew salaries Kumble, vice president, handles the paper-trains the horses.

The Turf and Paddock stables consists of 17 horses.

Naturally, the stock is sensi-tive to the rise and fall of the horses. Not long ago, it was quoted at 50 cents a share. The price jumped to $1.50.

The idea for the corporation, which has 500 shareholders own-67,000 shares, came for Kum-ble last spring while he was at-tending racing editor of the Mi-ami News.

"We incorporated June 21 in Delaware," he recals. "Five horses and all our equipment went into the deal.

"We offered 100,000 shares at $3 a share, but cut the sale off at 67,000."

Kumble and Teaber draw sal-aries of $6,000 and split purse winnings go into the corpora-tion.

Joyce Davidson Claims CBC Not After Stars

NEW YORK (CP) — Former Canadian TV star Joyce Davidson told a U.S. audience Tuesday night that the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation de-nies its performers to become stars.

Miss Davidson, assistant to host Mike Wallace on the late-TV show PM East, said she left the CBC because she had gone as far as she could go on Canadian TV.

She made the comments dur-ing an interview Wallace was conducting with David Walker, program organizer of public af-fairs for the CBC. Walker ap-peared on PM East primarily to explain the workings of the CBC.

Asked by Wallace whether the CBC had developed any big-name stars, Walker said Cana-dian TV does not like stars—but not of the "glamor" type.

The CBC, he said, is more like a repertory theatre, in which everyone plays a minor role.

But Miss Davidson inter-rupted to say "The CBC defies one to become a star." Walker replied that Joyce herself had become a star in Canadian TV and that this gave her the opportunity to move into U.S. television.

Then Wallace asked Joyce why she came to the U.S. "To tell you quite honestly," she said, "I had gone as far as I could go."

Man of Thousand Voices, M. Blanc, Lucky to Be Alive

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I know it is a miracle that I am still alive. That's why I thank God every day for His help."

A serious Mel Blanc—Man of a Thousand Voices—was talking about the crash that by all rights should have taken his life. His car was struck head-on by another car on Sunset Boulevard last January.

One of the firemen who cut Mel out of the wreckage said later: "We should have just put a sack . . ."

Nearing recovery at his home, Mel said, "When I asked my doctor what bones I had broken, he told me: 'If someone tells you he broke a bone, you can say you broke the same one—unless it's a left arm.'"

Blanc pointed to his right leg, still in a plaster cast. "This is the only one I have to bother—breaks from the knee to the foot. One of them surgery com-pound, and that's what slowed me down.

SOMEHOW SEWN TOGETHER

"The knee cap was torn off my left leg, but somehow it was sewn back on. The other breaks included most of my ribs, six vertebrae, both sides of the pelvis and three skull fractures."

Mel remembers nothing from the time he saw the oncoming car until he regained consciou-sness 31 days later. What did he think about first?

"My voice," he said. "I re-alized my mouth and throat were undamaged and I could talk. I thanked God for that."

His son rigged up a record-ing studio at home so Mel could make scratch tracks—preliminary recording, to aid animators — for the two cartoon shows he does on TV. He's the voice of Bugs Bunny and plays Barney Rubble on The Flintstones.

Now he is able to get around in a wheelchair and has made some recordings in the studio. Next week he'll make his grand return to Jack Benny's show, taping the Christmas Eve tele-cast.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Thursday, November 16, 1961

General Tendencies: You can easily tune in on whatever is best for you at this time and you are also able to show others just how far you are willing to go with them in order to get your joint interests on a very desirable and satisfactory down-to-earth basis. Combine intuitive perception with specific working plans now. Get money and emotional conditions bettered, improved now.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Make it a point to contact those who are most expert in your own line of endeavor. Get invaluable ideas and suggestions from them. In the evening it is important that you convince loved one of your deepest devotion. Be good.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) This is an ideal day to get in touch with any associates with whom you have had a misunderstanding and clear matters up quickly and intelligently. Then be sure you come through with any promises to those who are your equals.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) It is important that you work most conscientiously now, whether it has to do with job, business or tasks about the house, etc. Efficiency is the keynote for advancement and greater happiness in the future. Labor methodically.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 23) — If you show a smiling and happy exterior to those about you, this will be helpful to them and bring you greater co-operation as well. Take a drive somewhere in p.m. for pleasure or take in some fine play, musicale in town. Have fun.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Devote most of your time and thought to the interest of kin during the day and evening, naturally, neglecting whatever is of vital importance in the outside world as well. Be sure you buy little gifts for family. Be kind.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Planets are with you in any important sales or purchases you want to swing today. Also, be sure you buy whatever gadgets are needed to make your business or home run more smoothly. A day for progress—don't waste a second!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)— Finances and how to increase abundance should be uppermost in your mind today. Get busy early and remember that money brings success from sorrow and is a blessing when properly gotten and used.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Impress others with your ability to co-operate so that corporate plans may be made successful. For greatest benefits, it behooves you to be more altruistic. In fact, service to others should rule the day. Be gay, carefree.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Important you concentrate on the future wisely and thoughtfully. Be sure to step out tonight to whatever it is that most appeals to you of a constructive and cultural nature. Social betterment brings increasing success.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Now is the time to get in touch with dynamic associates and comrades who operate more cleverly than you and get the support you need for constructive plans you have in mind. P.M. don't gamble with private longings — use direct approach.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Financial matters should occupy your every thought now, so be sure you impress others with your business-like ways and show you have your feet on the ground. Don't waste a moment of this precious day be truly productive.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) If you are friendly with everyone, you find that they are willing to co-operate and give you the support you need and have not been able to get in the past. Evening is then fine for sociability and having fun with friends.

If your child is born today—he, or she, will be one of those unusual people who can readily combine the practical with the creative for a most happy overall result. So, be very sure you give as fine a combined course of education as possible, as well as early spiritual training and sports. Then the success here can be quite phenomenal, whether a male or a female. Be understanding parents.

WOMAN KILLED

FORT ERIE (CP)—Mary C. Gray, 70, Fort Erie, was killed Tuesday night when her car struck a tree. It was Fort Erie's traffic fatality in eight years and 14 days.

AFTERMATH OF BUS CRASH — Wreckage of Greyhound bus leans against tree into which it smashed after veering from a rain-slick highway three miles north of Platt-burg Tuesday. Twenty-three persons were injured, one seriously. The bus was en route from New York City to Montreal. Most of the passengers were Canadians.

Paper Started by Teen-Agers Looking for Something to Do Now Doing Thriving Business

By WILLIAM HARTLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — A newspaper started seven years ago at Montreal by four teen-agers looking for something to do has developed into a self-supporting enterprise which pays a major part in providing entertainment for children of all ages in downtown Montreal.

The Clark Street Sun, originally a hand-written one-page sheet, now has grown to 24 to 36 pages and has a healthy list of subscribers stretching from the local cop on the beat to Ed Sullivan and Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

"Things didn't go too well when we first started the sun," says 18 - year - old Sid Stevens, a founder and current managing editor of the Sun. "We did it mainly for something to do—so we could keep off the streets—and because we might be able to help fight the juvenile delinquency that has always been strong in this area.

"We also thought we might be able to make a little money for hockey equipment out of it. We printed the first issues by hand and took them from door to door but for the first couple of years it was pretty tough getting advertisers."

The turning point came when a Montreal newspaper did a feature on the Sun. It got only prompted merchants to reconsider the commercial values of advertising in the fledgling paper but also brought about the appearance of a mimeograph machine from an impressed well-wisher.

"It was the article that really got things rolling," says Stevens. "Then there were other things too. The police juvenile bureau started to send stories our way and that helped a lot. We didn't have much to do with the school boards, though. They weren't against us, but they weren't for us either. We often use school premises for our activities, but we rent them like anyone else.

These activities, all paid for by the paper's advertising revenues, have blossomed far beyond the original modest aim of one hockey team.

The Sun now sponsors a variety of sports activities, including baseball, football, basketball and hockey teams, and a gymnastics and swimming team for boys and girls of all ages.

The teams play in a number of Montreal leagues and have travelled to other cities for games. This year they hope to send a hockey team to Europe.

In addition, the paper has organized a boxing club and bicycle safety contests which have earned the praise of police and safety officials.

The police department recently loaned official police press passes to the entire staff.

"I think we've accomplished quite a bit," says Stevens. "The police have even released some boys into our care on probation. Out of about 15 such cases I'd say we've been successful with at least nine.

"We get them jobs and involve them in other activities that they don't have time to get in trouble.

"It's a busy but enough to do; I don't see how he can be a juvenile delinquent."

Demorestville

DEMORESTVILLE — Dianne Gorsline spent the weekend with her grandmother, Mrs. C. Peck.

Quebec Election Reform To Be No Half-Way Measure

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government plans to carry out election reforms which will draw widespread attention.

The most radical of these are limitation of expenses by parties and candidates, payment of basic expenses of candidates by the state, and a new balloting system perhaps using automatic voting machines.

As one election expert put it: "You can't limit the election expenses unless you limit what parties or candidates may do during an election campaign."

What the expert meant was that the law can limit a candidate to spending a fixed amount but it cannot do anything to stop his friends or associates from spending money as freely as they wish.

Rawdon

RAWDON — On Friday evening, November 10th, 11 ladies from Mount Pleasant-Rawdon and one visitor attended the 60th anniversary at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society at West Rawdongton. The tour guides who accompanied Mount Pleasant were: Mrs. Herbert Smith; Mrs. Milford Wrightmer; Mrs. Raymond McConnell and Mrs. Percy Macdonald.

Others in attendance were Mrs. Roy Thresher; Mrs. Gordon Lilley; Mrs. Dorcas Sharpe; Mrs. Lena Beattie and Mrs. Tremblay spent the weekend with her mother, Mrs. Carolyn Mercon.

Mr. William Telford of Peterborough spent sometime last week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver.

A few young people from Mount Pleasant and Rawdon attended a birthday party on Wednesday evening in honor of Larry McMaster, of Ivanhoe.

Mrs. Gertrude Caverley, of Marmora is visiting with her Mr. and Mrs. John Hay and family.

Mrs. Milton Reid, Oak Hills was a recent guest of Mrs. Ted Lesage.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl McAdam spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. Donald Sharp, Campbellford.

Mrs. A. Greenley visited her sister Mrs. Donald Knight, Mr. Knight and family on Sunday weekend.

Mrs. Loreta Post, Mrs. C. McBride and Mrs. Gwen Lecheeo, Belleville spent a day recently with Mr. and Mrs. Blake Sharp and Bert.

Mrs. Herbert Smith arranged a lovely setting at Mount Pleasant United Church on Sunday morning for the Remembrance Service from Tuesday's Armistice Day. Two World Wars were used as the central theme and on either side memorial offerings of chrysanthemums and potted ferns. White candles in hurricane lamps and a picturesque scene of "In Flanders Fields". The pastor the Rev. Mr. Fowler gave a fine message in keeping with the theme.

Tweed

TWEED — Members of the Royal Canadian Legion and the Ladies' Auxiliary, Branch 428, paraded to the Cenotaph on Saturday morning to pay homage to those who gave their lives that others might be free. Members of the Legion paraded to St. Carthage's Roman Catholic Church on Sunday morning for church service.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Ostman of town have purchased the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Montgomery and expect to move in in the spring.

Mrs. E. J. Gouneys of town has purchased the home of Mr. Charles Dowdell, Sulphide.

Mrs. Simon Merow of town underwent an operation in the Belleville General Hospital. Her many friends will be glad to know she is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McConnachie and family of Tweed spent Sunday in Peterborough at the home of Mr. McConnachie's mother, Mrs. Frank McConnachie, on the occasion of her 84th birthday. Twenty-five members of the family sat down to a turkey supper.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Arnold of Toronto are visiting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. G. Allen.

Mr. Russell Whitfield attended the Civil Service convention at the King Edward Hotel in Toronto from Tuesday to Friday. Mr. Whitfield is employed by the Department of Lands and Forests.

Pte. Appreaicus Garry Higgins from Vimy Barracks, Barrifield, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Higgins.

Mr. and Mrs. William Austin of Port Hope spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Austin of Tweed.

Mrs. Nelson Lyons of Fernleigh is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Winter.

Quebec Election Reform To Be No Half-Way Measure

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government plans to carry out election reforms which will draw widespread attention.

The most radical of these are limitation of expenses by parties and candidates, payment of basic expenses of candidates by the state, and a new balloting system perhaps using automatic voting machines.

As one election expert put it: "You can't limit the election expenses unless you limit what parties or candidates may do during an election campaign."

What the expert meant was that the law can limit a candidate to spending a fixed amount but it cannot do anything to stop his friends or associates from spending money as freely as they wish.

MT. BARNEY

The way to overcome this difficulty is to limit the number of banners a candidate may put up during a campaign, the volume of advertising he may purchased in his favor and so on.

A measure to control radically change the election atmosphere in Quebec, where almost anything goes.

It also would reduce the effectiveness of political party war chests, if candidates are restricted as to the kind and volume of propaganda they may use, the effect will be to even the financial balance. Every party has against the well-heeled political machine.

Just how tight these limits on expenses will be nobody knows but there is no doubt here the government intends to make them as limiting as possible.

State payment of basic expenses by candidates is another reform which is designed to shake parties loose from the grip of political machines.

IS FOR EVERY ONE

Mr. Lesage has described this measure as one which would make it theoretically possible for any citizen, not only for the rich but for every one.

This should not be interpreted to mean that any man or woman in Quebec may be a candidate and expect to be paid for his trouble.

Nevertheless these expenses will be met by the government under certain specified conditions and one of them is likely to be that a candidate must get a determined proportion of the popular vote.

For example, such a precaution will be an extension of the old principle under which a candidate loses his $200 deposit unless he gets half the votes of the winning candidate.

AREA CHANGES

Besides its timber, the ancient City of Ferrol, Province of Gloucester, England, now is noted for coal and iron mines.

Canada Cement Co. Workers Strike

First Walkout In History Of Point Anne

Conciliation Bd. Report Is Rejected by Union

For the first time since the plant was established back in 1908, employees of Canada Cement Company at Point Anne took strike action this morning in support of demands for a salary increase.

Other company employees at Woodstock, and Port Colborne in Ontario and also at Exshaw, Alta., likewise walked off their jobs.

The company plant at Hull, Quebec, was still operating at 11 o'clock this morning, the union members said they expected this plant would be closed later in the day.

Point Anne workers are members of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers, who have a contract with the other Canada Cement Company employees in Canada.

Although there had been talks of strike action early next week, the walkout at Point Anne this morning came as a surprise to both company officials and to most of the employees.

GET MONTREAL CALL

At 9.30 union officials at Point Anne received a telephone call from Montreal stating that strike action had been taken against the company in that city.

"There was nothing we could do but follow suit," stated Arthur Whitehead, publicity chairman for Local 219 of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers at Point Anne. Point Anne plant workers struck at 10 o'clock.

Negotiations for a new labor contract between the Union and the cement company have been underway for several months. Last month a conciliation board under the chairmanship of Harry W. Arthurs, Kingston, recommended a two-year contract with wages from July 1st, 1961, with five cents per hour wage increase retroactive to September 1st of this year and another five cent per-hour increase on July 1st, 1962.

SENIORITY RIGHTS

Inclusion of a management rights clause, and time off with pay to allow attendance at the funeral of a father-in-law or mother-in-law was also recommended.

Of particular interest to employees was a company request for termination of seniority after one year's layoff. Judge Schwenger recognized this request, but suggested further consideration before its inclusion in a new contract.

Mr. A. D. Reynolds, spokesman for the company, said that the plant would be closed down for the duration of the strike.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: An intensifying storm moving near Chicago will move northeastward across the Great Lakes area during the next 24 hours, bringing rain to Southern and Northeastern Ontario. Amounts are likely to range up to one inch through Central Ontario. In Northwestern Ontario the storm will bring a heavy fall of snow. Cloudy, windy and colder weather with showers changing to snowflurries is forecast for Southern Ontario Friday.

PRIME MINISTER TAKES TRAIN IN WINNIPEG TRIP

Same Course Taken In 1958 Campaign

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker left on a predominantly sentimental journey by train Wednesday night for Winnipeg, where under similar circumstances he opened the 1958 election campaign.

But he left reporters with the impression that the present trip hasn't quite the same significance.

Mr. Diefenbaker's original intention was to fly to Winnipeg Friday to address a provincial convention of the Progressive Conservative party and attend a meeting of the national party executive on Saturday.

He switched his travel plans at the last minute, however, and decided to go by train. Added interest was given to speculation about the switch when it was learned he would travel on the government's old Car 100, the private car he used in the 1958 campaign.

He said the 27 - hour train trip would give him an opportunity, free of interruptions, to work on his speech to the convention. Some political sources said it will be a broadcast address for the Conservative election campaign in Western Canada, whenever it starts.

The prime minister, however, said no special significance should be read into the travel arrangements insofar as election speculation is concerned.

RECALLS 1958

It was in Winnipeg, after a similar trip by train from Ottawa in February, 1958, that he formally opened the national Conservative election campaign which resulted in the party's landslide victory on March 31 that year.

The party executive's main function is to see that the party's vote - getting machinery is in high gear and that there is proper liaison between party candidates, their workers and the party leadership on questions of platform policy.

So far, the government has set no date for the next general election, but Ottawa is been a hive of rumors for months. General opinion is that the next election will be held next summer, but the decision is made by the prime minister himself whenever he thinks the political winds most favorable.

HALLOWE'EN CANDY LOADED WITH POISON

Receive Analysis At Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Candy passed out to trick-or-treating youngsters on Hallowe'en was loaded with rat poison, the attorney-general's department report showed today.

Police said the soft, orange candy was turned over to Dr. Ross Allen, city medical officer, the day after Hallowe'en.

The mother of an 11-year-old boy said her son found it in his bag that morning following a night of collecting. He found the candy was bitter and investigation showed it had been sliced open and the inside spread with a pale powder.

Dr. Allen turned the candy over to Police Chief Jack Shrubb, who sent it to the attorney-general's crime laboratory.

The report, issued today, showed the candy had been spread with alphanaphthylthiourea, a type of rat poison.

The amount on the candy was described as not lethal and the report said the average adult would have to eat about half a pound of the paste to die from it.

Alphanaphthylthiourea kills rats by causing fluid to build up in their lungs as a form of non-bacteriological pneumonia. It may be bought without being signed for.

There were no other reports of doctored candy.

British House Faces Hot Debate On Immigration Control Measure

LONDON (Reuters) — Parliament today headed into an expected major battle over the government's controversial Commonwealth immigration control bill.

The bill would enable the government to control immigration from British Commonwealth countries for the first time. Conservatives have prepared an amendment declaring the measure should be widely regarded as introducing a code of law into our legislation."

The proposed amendment also said the House should reject the bill as one which "removes from Commonwealth citizens the long-standing right of free entry into Britain."

If passed, the bill was expected to have its main effect in the case of immigrants from the British West Indies and Indians and Pakistanis.

Two newspapers suggested that the government drop the bill.

The Independent Edinburgh Scotsman, says in an editorial that while the bill was not racial in intent the government's race did not justify it.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian said the measure would be regarded as introducing a color bar into our legislation."

West May Trade With Reds Unless U.S. Reduces Tariffs

WASHINGTON (CP)—A congressional subcommittee advised Wednesday that members of the Western alliance may make a big scramble for Communist markets unless the United States exerts leadership next year.

A special report by consultant Samuel Pisar, who worked with President Kennedy's special campaign team, said Russia and her satellites have already made headway in building up trade with large segment of the NATO alliance and with Japan.

Three New U.S. Satellites Now Circling the Earth

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Three new United States satellites circled the earth today seeking data for navigation and spy-in-the-sky space systems.

The trio soared aloft Wednesday in one of the most productive days for the United States in the space age.

Two of the satellites were in the nose of a Thor-Able-Star rocket fired from Cape Canaveral Wednesday night. One is the 100-pound Transit 4-B, partially powered by a nuclear generator. The other is a 265-pound "d u m m y" package which is intended to stretch out more than 100 feet in two weeks in a satellite stabilization experiment.

Earlier, the 35th rocket in the Discoverer series flung a satellite into orbit from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., in another try at developing means of recovering capsules from space.

Within a few days, the Discoverer is scheduled to eject a capsule with Hawaii - based planes will attempt to snare as it parachutes to earth. Eight such capsules have been recovered in previous tests, forcing the technique is essential for recovering data from the Midas missile detector and Samos reconnaissance satellite.

The successes raised the total of successful U.S. satellites to 30, Russia has orbited 13.

CANADA STUDIES PLAN TO BREAK ARMS DEADLOCK

U.S., Russia Both Ask Talks Resume

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada is pondering a disarmament procedure aimed at breaking the deadlock between the United States and the Soviet Union, External Affairs Minister Howard Green said Wednesday.

Green spoke to correspondents after the 20-nation group again locked horns on the sort of disarmament negotiating body there must be. Such talk, however, they want to embark quickly on consideration of disarmament negotiations.

Opening debate on disarmament in the United Nations political committee, the two big countries tried with avowals of disarmament and collided bitterly on the approach to the problem.

These oft - repeated positions led to leave many UN members in confusion. A typical Afro-Asian attitude—they have heard it all before. Green's proposal was apparently aimed at catching a possible new path of disarmament progress.

MAY PROPOSE CHANGE

Green told his press conference that Canada is wrestling with the idea of proposing a limited disarmament conference to succeed the 10-member East-West body that came to grief in Geneva in 1960.

The Canadian foreign chief will confer with Western delegations to the Russian-demanded 20-nation disarmament negotiations but proposed the addition of African, Asian and Latin American countries to the committee, making a total of 17.

This was a radical departure from last year when proposals advocated only the addition of a neutral chairman, vice-chairman and rapporteur to the committee—none with the status of negotiators.

Green, who returned to Ottawa Wednesday night for a one-day UN stay, made this outline of his proposed group:

The chairman would be the chairman of the 105 - member UN disarmament commission—Louis Padilla Nervo of Mexico—and it would operate as a subcommittee of the commission. It would include two members from Latin America, two from Africa and two from Asia, with Canada as chairman.

It would operate as a subcommittee of the commission. Although Green didn't say so, this would be the first time that the Soviet bloc—only 10 out of a

New York Museum Pays 2 Million For Rembrandt, Believed Record

NEW YORK (AP) — Rembrandt's masterpiece, Aristotle Contemplating the Bust of Homer, shortly will go on exhibition at New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, which Wednesday night said it is for $2,300,000 — the highest known price for a single painting.

The artist got 500 florins for it, the modern equivalent for that being $5,000.

The National Gallery in Washington, which bought the canvas for auction prices for the second time in the evening, will display Europe's most famous beautiful Lo Lisseuse, a picture the Louvre purchased for a price was $375,000.

It was a record-topping night at the Parke - Bernet Galleries as 24 old masters brought $4,-000,000. They were from the collection of Alfred W. Erickson, public advertising man, who died in 1960, and his widow Anna, who died last February. The Ericksons had a passion for hour.

There is no way of proving or disproving how much one painting might have brought in a private transaction at some point in history. But even guesses and rumors seldom have gone above $1,000,000 to $1,500,000.

It never has been denied that when the late Andrew Mellon—

UN Supply Team Seized By Mutineers at Kindu

CP from Reuters-AP

LEOPOLDVILLE — Congolese soldiers have shot 13 Italian captives in Kivu province, backed up some of their bodies and thrown them into a river, the UN announced today.

The Italians, airmen serving with the UN in the Congo, were executed at Kindu Saturday after they flew in with a group of scout cars for a garrison of 3,000 Malayan UN soldiers besieged by mutinous troops of the central Congolese government.

UN spokesman George Smith said the UN was demanding that the central government punish those responsible and making other preparations to deal with the situation.

Smith declined to comment on plans for merging the Italian UN troops under control but reliable sources said the whole area probably would be sealed off and the Congolese soldiers disarmed.

Smith said Malayan reconnaissance planes on their way to Kindu to aid the 200 Italians there, who were surrounded by 700 Congolese troops held Gen. Victor Lundula persuaded the mutineers to withdraw Wednesday.

Between 1,200 and 1,500 Congolese troops are in Kivu. They were flown there recently from Stanleyville, the Oriental province stronghold of Vice-Premier Antoine Gizenga, who is arranged from the central government.

However, news agency said Gizenga was believed to have flown to Cairo in Egypt and incited them against the Leopoldville administration in a last desperate effort to establish his control in Kivu province.

Smith said reliable witnesses reported the Italians were accused by Belgian officers of troopers when they arrived aboard an Italian air force C-119 loaded with the scout cars. According to eyewitnesses, Smith said, the Italians were arrested when they landed and taken to the barracks area of the town. They were shot in front of a crowd in the town's prison, then some of their bodies were dismembered and

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—U Thant today was faced with the same sort of Congolese problem that killed his predecessor, United Nations Secretary - General Dar Hammarskjold.

The acting secretary - general from Burma — on the job less than two weeks—was firm in the Hammarskjold tradition by ordering the UN Congo force Wednesday to squelch by "every means possible" a mutiny by Congolese soldiers.

Reports from the Congo indicate that this mutiny is behind, inspired in contrast with the rightist secession of Katanga province that resulted in the death of Hammarskjold in a plane crash Sept. 18.

U Thant was expected to receive a personal report late today from two of his chief lieutenants, Conor Cruise O'Brien, chief UN representative in Katanga, and Gen. Sean Mc-Knight, Irish commander in The Congo, both flying U Thant to Leopoldville to confer with them to UN headquarters in New York by the purpose.

Affair in Minister

Meanwhile, a meeting of the 11-member UN Security Council was scheduled for today Wednesday, Foreign Minister Paul-Henry Spaak of Belgium, former ruler of The Congo, promised that not a "weak, solitary" Belgian will fall into captivity in Katanga by Friday. But nothing more than that. Spaak told the Security Council debate about the new contract in the Congo.

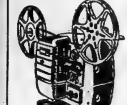
Howard Green of Canada, speaking with correspondents, commented directly only on the Katanga situation and stressed he didn't favor the UN Congo force joining in offensive against that territory.

Green emphasized he opposed the necessity of getting white mercenaries out of Katanga and said Canada is in favor of strengthening the UN in this respect — the topic now being discussed in the Security Council.

When reporters suggested that the situation for the UN in The Congo appeared shaky, Green said: "I don't remember ever since its inception in July last year whether after the area received independence from Belgium.



KAISER DANGER

Green said in answer to questions that the new mutiny—apparently inspired by followers of Antoine Gizenga, political heir of slain Congolese premier Patrice Lumumba — raised the danger of a three-way split in The Congo. Gizenga's territorial base largely the UN is pledged to defend.

"We're on a peace - keeping operation, not a war - making operation," said Green of the Congo force, which Canada has some 250 non - combat signalmen helping in a total strength of around 18,000.

Green said he was shocked by a UN report on Lumumba's death issued Tuesday, describing the circumstances in which the first Congolese premier was allegedly executed while being flown to Katanga with knowledge of Katanga's President Moise Tshombe and his aides.

All this has fallen on the head of U Thant before he has hardly started his job to settle into his new position. The Soviet Union, which has disputed the UN role in The Congo and along with many other countries refused to pay costs, can be expected to ride him in favor of Gizenga.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Eighth Birthday Party

A capacity audience again filled the Recreation Rooms on Pinnacle St. to overflowing, for the 8th annual Birthday Party of the Belleville Senior Citizens Club. If the club membership continues to grow at present rate, it is feared by some members it may be necessary to approach the City Council to provide increased accommodation.

The meeting was opened by the president, Charles L. Ryan with the national anthem and the singing of the theme song. The president read a letter from the secretary of the Trenton club, extending sincere thanks for the splendid entertainment they enjoyed when they visited the Belleville club on Nov. 1st, and also a letter from the Belleville Theatre Guild extending invitations to the club members.

The president then exhibited to the members two very beautiful pictures, one of Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, Her Gracious Majesty, Queen Elizabeth the second, which Kamsgas division had presented to the club by the Independent Order of Foresters of Ontario, as a very hearty vote of thanks passed extending to the I.O.D.E. the appreciation of the membership for this gift for this very generous gesture of good will. The pictures will be hung in a prominent location, to be viewed with pleasure and due respect by all organizations using the recreation rooms.

Plans were fully discussed and arrangements made for introducing a Senior Citizens float to be entered in the annual Santa Claus Parade.

Two guests were present on this anniversary occasion in the persons of Mr. H. Fogal of Brantford, president of the United Senior Citizens of Ontario, and Mr. L. Allan of Toronto, Vice President, accompanied by their wives.

ANES ONTARIO

These gentlemen addressed the club, fully explaining the aims and objectives of their organization, particularly in the fields of increased benefits from the Province of Ontario Provincial Governments to all senior citizens, such as improved housing accommodation, medical plans and pensions, and hoped that the local club would give consideration to making application to become associated with the provincial body.

The balance of the evening was devoted to the playing of the much enjoyed euchre, under direction of Jas. Doyle and Jack Wilson.

The winners were as follows, ladies first, Mrs. H. Taylor, Belleville; second, Mrs. Ford, Belleville; third, Mrs. Simpson and fourth, Mrs. Mr. A. Jay. The winner of the door draw was Mrs. L. Fox.

The president brought forward a large birthday cake, donated by Mr. Lloyd (Red) Doran, which was received and cut by Mrs. H. Taylor, chairman of refreshment committee, and her group and served with the usual other refreshments, and enjoyed by all.

The meeting adjourned in the usual manner.

Health Board Holds Final Meeting of Yaar

TRENTON — Wednesday afternoon, the Health Board held the season for the Trenton Board of Health was held in the municipal building room with chairman H. S. Pace, and members Mrs. Marjorie Lockard and Dr. E. W. Dow, MOH, present. O. W. Larry acted in the capacity of secretary. Engineer Eric Aldersey also sat in on the meeting.

Mr. Pace thanked the board members for their co-operation during 1961. Mr. Pace has served as chairman of the board for the past eight years.

It was decided that a $750 payment to the Rustscal Ambulance Service be made. This covers the period from April 17 to June 30 of this year, and represents a portion of the subsidy which the board will pay for the year. Mr. Larry said that the ambulance service had been "quite satisfactory."

In his report to the board, Mr. Pace said that the milk sample for the month of June for the month of October, had been the best recorded in considerable length of time. He said that the report on the various samples taken had not been "up to par". He said that he had advised the dairymen however that he must have his premises fumigated properly, and that he had been remiss in being attended to.

Mr. Pace said that, during the month, properties had had plumbing installed, "under compulsion," and flooring had been started on another property on Wednesday.

Two cases, deemed "unfit for human habitation", were reported, the residence of one house, on Dominion Street has been partially taken down. Mr. Pace said that the owner was willing to give the lumber to anyone, who would complete the demolition job.

DISCUSS DITCH

An open ditch at the rear of the Elmwood and Parkside additions on Byron Street, was discussed at length.

Mr. Aldersey said that there was water lying in the ditch and that although he had workmen open the ditch at one end, the problem could become acute in the spring when the water might rise to three feet and with the ditch filled in, there might be in serious danger of drowning if the ditch were filled in. Under present conditions, but that he wondered just who would be responsible for placing pipes for the water and the filling in of the ditch. He said that most of the ditch was on the property of individual owners. Mr. Pace suggested that the ditch might be considered a storm sewer, and Mr. Aldersey said that the ditch might be considered a storm sewer, and the land would be considered a problem for the heath board.

A motion will be forwarded to town council, asking that the "responsible parties" be asked to drain the water by means of a pipe, and that the ditch be filled in, as it constitutes a menace to health. It was suggested that the town solicitor could find out just who the "responsible parties" were.

After the board members were told by Mr. Pace that a terrace on the Dundas street front was for sale, a motion, asking that town council buy some of the $7,000 allocated to park development program in 1961, and that future outlays be to acquire Lot 30, on the north side of Bayview Street, with a house numbers 405 to 411. The terrace, which is in a dilapidated condition, according to the board chairman, could then be torn down and the land designated as "green belt."

SHOULD USE MACHINE

Mr. Pane told the board members that he had been studying the details whereby a street cleaning, such as he has owned by the town, is used to clear the streets of leaves. He suggested that in 1962 the town could enquire further into the matter. Mr. Pane said that he had received numerous complaints this fall about town residents burning leaves and that it seemed that people went out of their way to burn them on Sunday and Monday, days which were supposed to be free from leaf burning.

Miss Gothard said that sidewalks and pavements in towns were being strewn with broken glass as a result of children breaking pop bottles.

Mr. Pane reported that he had written to the Emergency

Brighton Woman Killed in Crash At Smithfield

TRENTON — A Brighton woman is dead and her husband is in Trenton hospital with serious injuries as the result of a collision involving a car and a freight train near Smithfield, west of Trenton, last night.

Provincial police at Brighton say that Mrs. Augusta Bammert, 35, of R.R. 2, Brighton, died moments after the crash. Driver of the car, Benedict Bammert, 37, was rushed by ambulance to Trenton hospital. Authorities at the hospital say today that his condition is "fair."

Mr. Bammert sustained a broken right arm and cuts to his scalp.

Mrs. Bammert leaves two small children.

Police say that the Bammert car was travelling north on the Old Barrack Road when the accident occurred. Train was a CNR freight, travelling was Engineer was MacKenzie Bonter of Belleville, and Fireman Lockhart Alfred Becker of New Toronto.

An inquest into the cause of the accident has been called.

Mr. and Mrs. Bammert lived with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Frank, who are of Polish English.

A brother in Toronto was sent for by telephone, but his sister had been injured and police asked reporters to withhold names of victims of fatality until his arrival in Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Frank were also told at first, through an interpreter, that their daughter had been injured. Later, when Mrs. Bammert's parents arrived, their parents were told of their daughter's death.

Muscular Dystrophy Campaign Underway

TRENTON — Members of the Trenton fire department have embarked upon their annual drive to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Campaign.

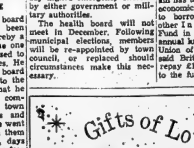
Special "money" boxes have been placed in all the large stores in town and the public is asked to drop change into these containers. Money collected from the campaign is used to further research into the cause and possible cure for this disease.



In the past, the local fire men have donated a wheel chair and a special hoist to a Trenton boy, a victim of muscular dystrophy.

Mrs. Jean Seville has been appointed chairman for a muscular dystrophy tag day, which will be held in Trenton on Sunday, November 25. Grade seven students from St. Peter's school will sell tags in the downtown area.

Dr. Dow said that he approved of the idea that authorities in the community compile a list of responsible persons in a city who could be called upon to do specific jobs in the event of a disaster or emergency.

Miss Gothard remarked that the mayor and comptroller O. W. Larry had been given no definite directive regarding last Monday night's emergency exercise by either government or military authorities.

The health board will not meet in December. Following municipal elections, members will be re-appointed by town council, unless unusual circumstances make this necessary.

TRENTON — Inspector R. J. Rutherford of the Trenton police department said today that a 35-year-old man had been picked up and was being held in connection with an assault, involving a 17-year-old Trenton district girl.

The alleged incident took place in west end Trenton around 8.15 p.m. Wednesday night.

He said that charges were pending.

The young girl told police on the way to visit friends when she was attacked.

Police Rescue Cat

TRENTON—One night this week, Front Street small fry were more than a little perturbed by the lofted meows of a member of the feline species, who had climbed to the top branches of a large tree and had seemingly forgotten which end was up.

Firemen were called, but discovered that the cat, a pet of the Canadian Pacific Railway employee, was in Murray township.

Miss Gothard also accompanied the fire department aboard the S. S. Mordorff, and attended a bon voyage party for Captain John Barnes, RD, RNR. This is the last voyage of the season for the ship, which was London-bound.

consistencies in American policy, the United States was being isolated from other members of the Atlantic alliance, many of whom were doing a big trade with the Communists.

Mrs. Fred Hamilton, MP, had to persuade the Western allies to refuse to ship arms or shipments to the Reds not only of military goods but major industrial goods as well.

EXPORTS RISE

Total exports from the free world to the Communist bloc rose to $4,420,000,000 in 1960 from $3,500,000,000 in 1948. Communist countries, free world imports rose to $4,720,000,000 in 1960 from $2,000,000,000 in 1948.

In 1950, shipments by NATO countries and Japan to the Communists totalled $1,874,000,000, while imports from the Communists came to $1,961,000,000. Among the big NATO exports to the Communists were railway equipment, chemicals, precision tickets, machinery, bearings, engines.

Canada's trade was relatively small, Her 1959 exports to the Communists totalled $39,150,000 — made up just seven-tenths of one per cent of her overall exports. The Canadian imports from the Reds totalled $17,434,000—three-tenths of one per cent of total Canadian imports.

TURNS CORNER

LONDON (CP) — Selwyn Lloyd, chancellor of the exchequer, said Wednesday Britain has turned the corner of the economic crisis which forced it to borrow $1,500,000,000 from the International Monetary Fund in July. Speaking at the annual luncheon of the National Union of Manufacturers, Lloyd said Britain has been able to repay £100,000,000 ($280,000,000) to the fund.

Hastings County Has Top Livestock Judge

Hastings County's livestock judging team, coached by Larry Strand, Marmora; Owen Ketcheson, Moira, and Robert Keene of Madoc, placed second out of 23 teams in the inter-county livestock judging competition at the Winter Fair. Each contestant was required to judge and give oral reasons on three classes of dairy cattle, three classes of beef cattle, three classes of swine...and one class of sheep.

Larry Bertrand, Marmora, and member of the Marmora 4-H Calf and Tractor Clubs, emerged with the highest score in the competition of 69 contestants from all over Ontario; for this Larry wins the F. A. Summerville Memorial Trophy.

The Hastings trio, coached by the agricultural representative, Sidney MacDonald, and assistant agricultural representative, Gibson Patterson also came close to winning the dairy trophy presented by the Ontario Veterinary Association.

GAS CAUSES BLAST

TORONTO (CP) — The front end of a passing car exploded Wednesday, breaking the windows of three nearby houses. Local Legion Presents Bursary Cheque

The regular monthly meeting of Branch 99 Royal Canadian Legion was held on Tuesday evening in the Legion Hall on Pinnacle St. with 1st vice-president, Les Begoy, in the chair.

One new member was initiated into membership of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Mr. Charles Huffman was present at the meeting to receive a cheque on behalf of his son, Donald Huffman. The cheque represented the bursary awarded to a student of Quinte Secondary School by the branch, on the recipient is now studying in New Brunswick, he was not able to be present at the Quinte Secondary School commencement.

WAYS, MEANS COMMITTEE

It was decided to form up a Ways and Means Committee consisting of the president and first and second vice-presidents. The duties of this committee will be to devise ways and means of raising the necessary funds to meet the financial needs of the branch.

A past presidents night will be held soon as the new extension is complete. This will be a social occasion at which the past presidents of the branch will be the guests of honor.

Sergeant-at-arms committee chairman Len Taylor reported that construction of the new building extension should be completed early in January. He stated at that there were still some of the 8 per cent debentures remaining available, and urged all members to assist in getting the bond sold as soon as possible.

POPPY SALES TAX

A resolution was endorsed deploring the fact that the sale of poppy emblems was subject to the Provincial Sales Tax and requesting the Ontario Provincial Command of the Royal Canadian Legion to make strong representations to the government of Ontario to have poppy emblems declared exempt from Provincial Sales Tax.

Nominations for the various positions on the executive were held with the election of officers for the 1962 executive being held at the December meeting.

Dogs Attacked By Rabid Fox, One Is Killed

One dog was killed and another has been quarantined as the result of a rabid fox attack necessary morning at Point Anne by a fox believed to have been mad.

The fox was shot as it attacked the second dog and has been sent away for examination. A report is expected back by early next week.

Police Chief Jim Logue of Point Anne said a dog owned by Neil Branigan was attacked by the fox about 10.30 Wednesday morning. A hunt for the fox was started immediately but the animal was not located until during the noon hour when it attacked another dog owned by Mrs. Charlie Sedore.

Charlie Lloyd, who had joined in the hunt for the fox, happened to be in the area when the second dog was attacked by the fox and killed. Mrs. Sedore's dog died after being attacked.

Wednesday afternoon Chief Logue warned that children in the Point Anne area should keep out of the woods in case a second fox was in the area. He said any children travelling through the woods on their way to and from school were in danger of being bitten if another fox was in the area.

Chief Logue said this was the first instance of a suspected rabid animal attacking another in the Point Anne area.

Industrial Workers Asked To Increase Blood Donations

Increased blood donations by industrial workers in the area are sought by the Belleville Red Cross in the hope of closing the gap between the amount of blood used in the city and the amount being donated at the Red Cross blood donor clinics.

Mr. Archie Lewis, spokesman for the Red Cross blood donor clinic, recently told the Belleville Chamber of Commerce that in a given period 1,000 pints of blood were used in transfusions "at the Belleville General Hospital, while at the same period only 1,060 pints were donated.

In a program aimed at increasing blood donations, the Red Cross has asked industrial plants to allow time off at no pay for their employees to enable them to attend blood donor clinics.

Already, according to Mr. Lewis, approximately eight local industries, including some of the largest in the area, have agreed to participate in the program.

BONDUCAS MIXED CASH

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Red Cross Society said Wednesday it has received word that cash donations are urgently needed to rebuild and repair houses in hurricane-devastated Bolino, capital of British Honduras.

Lighted Christmas Bells Will Decorate Front Street

Portending the rapid approach of the Yuletide season, Christmas bell decorations are being erected in the downtown section of Belleville — thanks to the Retail Merchants section of the Board of Trade Committee.

The new Christmas decorations which will replace the colored lights already in use during the festive season, started going up early this week and by the weekend are expected to be in place in readiness for lighting.

The Christmas bells are of fibreglass hung over the centre of the street with aluminum foil garlands. The bells will be lighted at night while colored light, which have been used in previous years, will add color to the decorations.

The new decorations purchased by the retail merchants this year are but one-half of the bells intended to be purchased. It is hoped the full complement of bells will be acquired next year.

"The decorations we bought this year are the start of a program expected to extend over two or three years," stated Harold Parrow, treasurer of the Retail Merchants section of the Chamber.

Mr. Parrow said the Christmas bell decorations were the first of their type to be used in Eastern Ontario.

Brig. Eric Snow Inspects St. John Ambulance Corps

The annual inspection of the St. John Ambulance Corps was held Wednesday evening in the Belleville armouries at which time it was inspected by Brigadier Eric Snow accompanied by Provincial Chief officer, Mrs. C. D. Ashley.

The 13 members of Branch 330 put through a rigorous marching drill with the assistance of the Belleville buglings and Prince Edward Regiment Band, which was also inspected by Brigadier Snow.

The demonstration which followed the inspection by the guests, revolved around an accident which happened in the presence of the corps and one of the members of the St. John Corps.

A group of six boys had been building a model airplane and were spraying it with a lacquer bomb. One of the boys decided to bend some of the wood with the heater and went up stairs to get it.

While he was getting the hot water, another of the boys downstairs in the basement, thinking he was playing around, "They had been spraying the plane with lacquer) an explosion took place and the boy who was returning to the basement with the hot water. He was very badly burned about his right leg and foot. One boy was also badly burned by pieces of flying glass, another received a badly broken wrist when he fell against the wall, and the others were badly shook up by the blast and bruised from being knocked against the wall also.

The six boys, brought to the armories in a station wagon, were rescued by the St. John Ambulance workers and laid out on blankets on the floor where they were very quickly and efficiently attended. Bandages and splints were applied within minutes.

Those who were present were highly impressed with the work of this very efficient team. The bandages were later removed to provide a closer look.

A conversation overheard between two little girls, seemed very serious. One said "I can't look at it anymore". The other replied, "I have a stomach ache from looking at all that blood."

Brigadier Snow commended the members of the team on their splendid performance and expressed his appreciation for the assistance of the regiment band.

Anaesthetist Gives Third Lecture in Nursing Education

The third of five lectures in the fall series of Nursing Education was held last night at Belleville General Hospital. Education Hall was evening with a lightening address on "Anaesthetic Fatalities," was clearly presented by Dr. Russell Bateman, specialist in anaesthesia.

Miss Margaret Hall, president of the Belleville Community Nursing Registry, welcomed all and the speaker was then introduced by Mrs. Kathryn Crowe.

The large audience listened with interest as Dr. Bateman enlarged upon the subject of anaesthetic deaths, and how they could be prevented. Among the speaker's points during the operation and following the operation. Each point was clearly illustrated by actual incidences which have occurred in various hospitals across the country.

He stated that fatalities, however, are becoming less with increased understanding and improved anaesthetic methods. A reminder of what to do if a mistake is made, one cannot always blame any one person because both the doctors and the nurses must co-operate in feeling responsible for every single patient closely. The nurse should not hesitate to speak up if she becomes aware of any faulty procedure or order given.

Dr. Bateman stressed the fact that if atomic warfare comes, no one knows who will be killed, and no one will have to take over caring for the injured. He said any children travelling through the woods on their way to and from school were in danger of being bitten if another fox was in the area.

Chief Logue said this was the first instance of a suspected rabid animal attacking another in the Point Anne area.

Four Charges Are Dismissed In City Court

Rudolph Stewart Marsters of Trenton, pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing an automobile, the property of Carl Morton in Trenton, and elected to be tried by magistrate. He appeared in county magistrate's court before Magistrate J. F. Wills this morning. He was found not guilty on charge after evidence in the case was heard and three other charges, criminal negligence, driving while suspended and careless driving, were dismissed due to non-sufficient evidence.

Constable R. C. Lewis of the Ontario Provincial Police, said that he proceeded to the Bell-Trent restaurant on Highway No. 2, on the result of information which he received. He on arriving at the scene he said he found four cars which were damaged considerably. He said he found an injured person lying under the front bumper of one of the vehicles involved, who was identified as being Rudolph Marsters.

Const. Lewis said he found Marsters in possession of his wallet along with a notice from the authorities in the province to the effect his license had been suspended, and would remain in effect on August 24. The conviction was on July 11 for failing to report an accident.

Three witnesses were called by the crown, one being the driver of the car which was alleged to have done the damage.

Crown Attorney John Pringle said he was not asking anything and it was possible that somebody else could have been driving the car. He said the evidence had been found lying on the ground on the scene of the accident at the vehicle. He said there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction in the case, but introducing no evidence on the other three charged.

Shrine Club Members Hosts To Their Sons

The first annual Shriners' father and son banquet was held Wednesday evening at the Belleville Shrine Club, with about 80 fathers, sons, footballers and guests in attendance.

Following a short games period the host fathers and their guests enjoyed a sumptuous turkey dinner with all the trimmings, served by Stewardess Mrs. George Hogan and her helpers. The toast to the Queen was then responded by Bill Dawson, Jr.

President Jack Allin called on Shrine Central Boy Leader Introduce Elmer Hardy, representing the Carling Conservation Club who provided the very very interesting films on fishing and hunting. Everyone improved to be very interesting to the members and guests.

Also present was Chief Conservation Officer at Tweed Gerry Egan who spoke on hunting and fishing regulations and practices.

Following a draw for prizes for the young guests a social period was enjoyed by all. Norm Geeves expressed thanks to the members present the Sportsmen's Association of the mobile Camel which will be a part of the entourage to remember the Shrine Circus in Belleville in March.

Press reports said the government was likely to explain that it would be impossible to subject Irish residents to a rigid quota system. Citizens of the Irish Republic, it was said, could slip across the border into Northern Ireland.

"The difficulty of 'disentangling' citizens of the Republic of Ireland arises with all legislation," a Daily Telegraph story said. "The only answer, for example, why they are allowed to vote in British elections."

Smith said the UN was sending a letter to the central Congolese government today giving specific proposals on how to handle the situation. He said the matter of course these include a thorough investigation and punishment of those responsible for this barbaric crime."

HAS BACKING

He said the proposed actions had Acting Secretary-General U Thant's strongest support and will be presented to Parliament, exposition and vigor."

Smith disclosed that it had been suggested that the Congolese one hour to hand over the Belgian fliers to the UN. He said if this failed the UN would have used his newly - acquired jet planes against them.

The 700 mutineers, who had surrounded the 700 Belgians at the airport, eventually were persuaded to retire Wednesday but then began rounding up the UN officers' mess about a mile away.

UN representatives who returned to Leopoldville from Kindu Wednesday night reported "fruitless efforts to get satisfaction from the Congolese command, the civilian authorities or anyone else who might be supposed to be in a position of authority."

TAKE ALL STEPS

U Thant Wednesday gave UN troops authority to take all steps to restore law and order at Kindu and also at Albertville in northern Katanga.

Reports from Albertville said Baluba tribesmen armed with spears, bows and arrows have been joined by troops of the Congo central government in reconciling the town. All but about 30 of the 1,200 Europeans there have fled.

Members of the Baluba tribe —opposed to the secessionist regime of President Moise Tshombe — grabbed power in Albertville last week. Then central government troops arrived there Tuesday.

Smith reported Wednesday that seven hours after Congolese troops entered Albertville their behavior "was not impossible." He said they looted stores about 200 yards from the hotel where he and other UN delegates were billeted and Katangans pointed out to them by members of the pro-Tshombe organization.

The UN instructed its Indian contingent in Albertville, numbering about 150 soldiers, to "defend themselves and their bases."

(During a stopover in London McKeown said much of Tshombe's actions are opposed to any settlement.)

Cannot Plan Your Life

Leslie Frost, retired premier of Ontario, was interviewed by a reporter at Toronto Monday, as he tidied up odds and ends of business before going deer hunting.

Mr. Frost made one very profound statement, and the courage to generalize from his own particular experience.

To prove his point, he related how he had talked to George Drew, when Drew was premier and he (Frost) was provincial treasurer, and how Drew had "consented to let me go if I stayed through the next election." Frost stayed and suddenly Drew had gone and Frost was premier.

Almost every man of Mr. Drew's age will have had an experience like this, some unexpected and unforeseeable development which altered the course of his life in some manner, in respect to his work, or his domestic life, or his hobbles or interests.

Many of them, though, are tempted to regard their experience as unusual. It takes a man of Mr. Frost's courage to take a personal experience and turn it into a general rule, to recognize that the unexpected is not unique but commonplace.

In declaring that "you just can't plan your ure," Mr. Frost was swimming against the tide of opinion in these days, when everybody, from the senior citizen with retirement problems to the youngster just entering high school, is being urged to plan, plan, plan.

This does not mean that planning is useless, or even that one can afford to plan half-heartedly. The reverse is true. The ability to take advantage of the unexpected often depends upon having made careful plans.

But that man is the exception, rather than the rule, who finds his life flows smoothly and uninterrupted along the course which he has planned for it.

Most of us run into the unexpected. For few does this unexpected development bring the opportunities which suddenly confronted Mr. Frost when Drew left provincial politics for the federal arena. Nonetheless, in the more limited field of personal experiences, many a man or woman has found the future as different from his or her expectations as has Mr. Frost.

Some will deplore this. But most of us, we would hazard a guess, find life's major attraction to be its unpredictability.

Roadblock to Progress

Progress, it's wonderful,
Until it hits a roadblock.

Such an example is the dilemma of the air traveller, who spends as much time to get from the airport downtown as he did to make a flight of several hundred miles.

Now, according to a Canadian Press story from Brockville, the telephone has run into the same kind of obstacle.

Percy Markell, emergency measures co-ordinator for the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville, says that last year it took him ten minutes to alert all sections of the United Counties during a mock atomic attack. Months during the Tooley exercises, Mr. Markell found the same task required 65 minutes. The reason? According to Mr. Markell "so many telephone lines have changed over to dial systems."

We admit a bit of scepticism about this explanation as the present-day development of the dial system. But if the day ever comes when all long distance calls are dialed, then the results could be precisely what Mr. Markell says he experienced.

Any person who has had to make a long series of telephone calls to specific people in a variety of communities knows how much depends on the operator. Suppose one is rounding up election results. If the operator on duty regards it as merely another chore, there's a long hard evening ahead. But get a co-operative operator, one who enters into the spirit of the task and becomes just as anxious as you are to get in returns in a hurry, and you are in clover. Just rhyme off a list of the required numbers and sit back. Within a minute she has the first number and you no sooner hang up than the phone rings, the operator cheerily announcing another party is on the line. A good operator will quickly survey your list of calls and figure out which lines are likely to be busiest. These she will call first, fill in with an easy-to-get number if the line is busy, call the heavy-traffic line again, provide another fill-in and keep this up until all the calls are complete. If one had to dial these numbers, we can easily believe that a ten-minute task with the aid of a good operator could stretch out into 65 minutes, or more.

Say what you like, no machine will ever be the equal of a smart girl—in lots of ways!

Cannot Use Red Methods

Christian Science Monitor

The most precious values known to men continue to be in danger.

These are, in essence, the right to work out one's own destiny, under God, in a society set free that individual is of primary importance.

These values are protected by constitutional government. Individual opportunity is sought in the framework of the good of all.

Communism also reaches deep within nations, striving to subvert, mesmerize, control.

After 16 postwar years in which the United States has striven to seal off communism on the one hand, and aid, recovering or growing nations on the other, it is no wonder that many Americans feel frustrated and alarmed as communism seems to be stronger than ever.

* * *

In such uncertain, disturbing times some Americans have felt that the greatest danger to the nation comes from inside.

Only too often ardent and laudable patriotism has been disgracefully captured upon and abused by a wide range of demagogueists who make money and status by mongering hate and fear.

The reckless charges of such propagandists would have the effect of driving every American from loyal American.

It is important that people be immunized from this sinister assault being made upon the vastly and constructive good deed, upon the loyalty of their thinking.

The charges circulated by leaflet and fly-sheet can be readily exposed as the vile distortions, though as usual there is some measure of truth. Their true facts upon which a false interpretation has been placed.

* * *

The best answer to communism, the best way to combat and defeat any efforts to subvert American society is a positive, dynamic and an active program.

For long years, The Christian Science Monitor's position has been unequivocal.

This newspaper rejects and abhors communism in any form.

This newspaper also opposes many practices, political or economic changes which seem sometimes inaccurately equated with communism, but which might lead to a social system, or be excessively controlled government.

This newspaper does not support what is called "creeping socialism" if that means world government.

It does support co-operation by sovereign nations to seek peace and security.

Such co-operation now exists in the United Nations, the growing place of sovereign nations, with its many disappointments and defects.

This newspaper strives to fight communism by every weapon of integrity and truth.

This newspaper believes communism must be scrutinized and honestly identified.

It must not be confused with whatever form of human thinking one happens to disagree with.

* * *

We have no doubt that authentic Communists have infiltrated some American institutions.

We have a feeling that most of them are self-concealed, not just the obvious soft thinkers.

They can be rooted out through the vigorous work of qualified and responsible offices.

We have the abiding conviction that the commitment to threats inside America, and to freedom in the world, can best be fought out by individual is of primary importance.

That means arousing individual citizens to their responsibilities, sanely, vigorously, fearlessly.

Government at every level must work with greater intelligence and integrity.

Economic growth, through the free play of the competitive enterprise system, must provide the employment and expansion which population increase requires.

There are deep spiritual values in an individual-based society.

Loved and demonstrated, these values are an invincible lower of strength. Communism's very falsehood carries with the seeds of ultimate destruction.

Freedom is man's birthright.

Its survival and triumph are inevitable

Gourmets Run Amok

Vancouver Sun

This gourmet business is getting out of hand.

The gourmet, originally a connoisseur of table delicacies, base become a monstrous garbage can, tunnelling into but undiscriminating inferior some of the most delicious concoctions ever devised for the four-color ads in the back pages of the Ladies Home Journal.

The latest gourmet we've run across advocates yanking the bruised centres from your child's Hallowe'en loot and consuming them raw, shredded with sugar and vinegar.

"How about an exotic curry party or tasty lasagna? Your guests won't be able to resist it," advises a degenerate gourmet.

Maybe they won't. We will.

A whole load of gourmets employed on the women's pages of Sunday supplements can still afford a decent meal for a meal. But they seethe it in wine until the kitchen smells like the back room of the viceger works. This is a practice unknown in their French homeland.

Some of the most pathetic soiled gourmets can be found huge in the exotic cookery books, where they are busily dropping shredded coconut into the Irish stew and mashed caviar on the hotcakes. One is engaged in producing chop suey, a dish our Chinese friends inform is was invented by a Scandinavian to get rid of the leftovers in the bottom of the back end of a San Francisco spaghetti factory.

Apparently there is nothing to which a refugee gourmet will not stoop.

For our money, the modern gourmet is definitely wormet.

Lenin Reads To Nobody

Hamilton Spectator

For years, guests in the Metropole Hotel in Moscow have been able to see, in the lobby a picture of Lenin reading his works to Stalin.

It dated from the era when Stalin wanted to impress everybody with the importance of Lenin. It defied the facts: Lenin deeply distrusted Stalin.

Now Stalin's memory is in disgrace. He has been pushed out of the picture. There is only an empty chair. The question is: Will Lenin be left reading his works to this empty chair for evermore, or will someone else be chosen for the role of patient listener?

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THAT BRIGHT-SHINING LIGHT

"When I sit in darkness, the Lord shall be my light."

Thus declared the prophet Micah in a day when things looked dark for ancient Israel. Enemies were threatening the nation from without. Subtle deterioration was taking place in the lives of the people. Darkness appeared to be settling down upon the people who experienced little spiritual light. It was in that hour that Micah declared, "When I sit in darkness, the Lord shall be my light."

There is not a life which does not have its hours, sometimes days, and in some cases years of darkness. There is darkness of doubt. There is darkness of frustration and failure. There is darkness of sorrow. Things and persons are taken away from us, and so precious are these things or persons, or both, that we feel we cannot live without them. Life becomes dark indeed. We sit in darkness. We brood in darkness. Darkness is our meat and drink.

There is a lot of darkness in the physical universe, but there is also a great deal of light. In the spiritual realm there is nothing but light. Find that, and you will find illumination, warmth, encouragement, and good cheer.

There are some troubles which we can take only to the Lord. Remember that Lenin we take them to the Lord we take them to the light. When we sit in darkness the Lord becomes our light.

Forcing entrance through a rear shed door, a lone robber stole the cash drawer from the beverage room at the Crystal Hotel early today and before police could be notified, the safe daring robber had forced open the cash drawer and made away with some $25 in loose change. However, the robber took time to open the refrigerator and help himself to a cool bottle of ale, with which to quench his thirst before taking on the laborious effort of carrying the heavy cash register out of the building.

Strictly Personal

Bachelors Only Ones Who Can Handle Wives

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

An actor is the kind of person who wears dark glasses for privacy — and a fur coat for warmth — and the kind of getup that immediately identifies him as an actor.

The hardest task in the world is to convince a man that one of one's ideals at the same time; the comic think all ideals are illusions, while the sentimentalist regards his illusions as ideals; it is only the rare realist who can give up the one without abandoning the other.

One of the best definitions of the essence of poetry belongs to Robert Frost, who said: "Poetry is the part that gets lost in the translation." (Reading him in English, I have never understood Goethe's greatness; nor can the French fully accept Shakespeare's massive genius.)

A bore returns from his travels simply with more subjects to be boring about; travel may broaden some, but it only makes squares squarer.

Agrowse who believes there is such a thing as a "harmless flirtation" would believe that a kitten is a panther.

In modern parlance, a "people's revolution" is one in which the people who have had nothing to say under a rightist regime have nothing to say under a leftist regime.

What we call "originality" is merely a way of combining ancient simplicities in a new complexity; it is a reconstitution of the old, not a revocation of it.

It is easier to overlook a person after originality seem to think.

It is only when we see ourselves their faults, that just makes us feel noble; what is infinitely harder is to forgive them when accepting — their virtues.

I don't think much civilization is something different than "reason"; but I agree with Holbrook Jackson that "reason" is overrated.

The real death of Frank Fay, who was a magnificent humorist but ar exasperatingly bad actor, reminds me of Fred Allen's comment during one of Fay's frequent comebacks in obscurity: "The last time I saw Frank, he was walking down Fifth Avenue, holding his own hand."

Speaking of comedians, nobody should try to tell a dialect story unless his feelings are friendly toward the group he is lampooning; for nothing is uglier than a dialect when hatred and meanness show through.

Humor is a music he has an ides, usually the idea has him.

The only people who know how to manage children are bachelors, just as the only people who know how to bear children are childless couples.

Baby Selects the Best Time To Be Born, Not the Doctor

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have had two children, the first being born the day before the date the doctor gave me. The second one wasn't born on the given date, so the doctor forced labor.

"I am now going to have my third baby. Will it be born without forcing labor?—Mrs. R."

Most likely, but I can't say positively.

There isn't any way to predict in advance the exact day a baby will be born, and coming within one day, as with your first child, was the result of good calculating — and luck!

There can be a perfectly normal variation of two weeks or so — either way, early or late. In extreme cases, there have been variations of quite a bit more.

Even though labor was forced in one instance this does not mean that it will be forced the next time. After all, the first baby was a day "early," but the next one wasn't.

The date calculated is only an approximate one. It gives you a chance to make general plans in advance.

Forcing, or inducing, labor is a decision which must be made on the basis of the facts in the particular case. It is not something to be done just to make a baby be born on Hallowe'en, or Aunt Lulu's birthday, or some other such date.

Rather, inducing labor is done for health reasons. The size of the baby, as compared to the mother's measurements, is one. If, clearly, the baby has had adequate time to develop and the mother's measurements fit, are rather small, inducing labor is a good way of minimizing the strain on both mother and baby. There are other considerations, too, but they become technical. If any one of them is present, mother and baby is of prime importance. There is no room for capricious 'choice of birth date.'

Yes, this applies equally to babies being born between Christmas Day and New Year," and sometimes this also brings some kos such as baby clothes, baby food and other such stuff.

But it's no excuse for either delaying or hastening a birth. Except when there is clear and firm reason to do otherwise, the best time for a baby to be born is the time the baby selects.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have friends who feed their dog out of the same dishes they eat from. These dishes are all washed together. The couple has colds all winter. Could the cold germs be gotten from the dog dishes?—Mrs. C.R.S."

I doubt whether the dishes have anything to do with the colds. On the other hand, as a general precaution I certainly think dogs should have their own feeding dishes. (Safer for the dogs, too!)

"Dear Dr. Molner: After a recent examination by a urologist, I was told that the red color appearing in my urine could be what is called 'brick dust' rather than blood. Could you explain that?—M.A.R."

Certain crystals can form (phosphates, urates, etc.) that are very small but impart a reddish color at times. The comparative acidity or alkalinity, along with certain kinds of fruits and vegetables in the diet, can determine whether this color appears.

Slept Well During Gale

Financial Times

The story is told of a hired man who was put to work on a small farm in the mid-west. Briefly, he recounted his experiences in the various directions. The farmer hesitated, then called: "I need a man badly but I need more than just another hand. I need someone with a sense of responsibility."

"I've always managed to sleep well at night when the wind blows," the man said. He did not get the job. The farmer, and the farmer did not ask him, but the phrase stuck in his mind. For it is the man who "we'll - see - how-things-work-out" hasn't.

That same night the farmer was awakened by a howling gale. Fearful of the damage which might be caused by the high winds, he dressed quickly and went outside. Surprisingly, everything was secure and in order. The barn door was shut with an extra improved lock. Doubtless, lashing held down tarpaulins over the full hay wagon. But this was not the case. The equipment lying around loose for wind and rain to damage. In his mind's eye he saw the newly hired man was "taking soundly." The farmer remembered: "Ewe - always managed to sleep well when the wind blows!" He knew then what the words meant. A miracle or no miracle, he had found at last a man with a sense of responsibility.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PLEASURE

Pleasure is an art of life.

The art lies in the appraisal of pleasure. The fool takes it out in dissipation and imagines he is having a good time. He always wakes up to learn that he was cultivating himself as a first class robber.

We must put a value upon pleasure and then mould that value into our valuation of life.

What gives pleasure to me may not give pleasure to you. But this fact does not defeat the purpose of pleasure, for pleasure and thus calculate as to how certain pleasures that I have been tried out have resulted in happiness to others. And sometimes we go on a pleasure jag in search of imagined leisure. But only the brave do that and only the strong stay by that method.

We miss much of the richness of life because we depend too much upon the related experiences of others.

I know that many love music and gain great pleasure from it, therefore I do some advertising into music and am made the better and happier.

But I am not to take the word of anyone as to what may or may not please me. I shall try. I shall take risks within reason. I shall find out what the premises mentation of mind with which I am gifted has to offer as a response to the stimulus. Then I shall know. Perhaps I shall uncover a gold mine. Others have done so.

But there remains one fine that is my very own. What gives pleasure to you is not to give pleasure to many. So, when you have been thrilled from some unusual experience, you do not divide it with others.

Perhaps, too, you will be able to unearth a miracle or so to add to the sum total of pleasure in the world. Who knows!

Lines on Life

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Someone has aptly remarked that the radicalism of most people follows a course which resembles the cut line under a newspaper photograph: It reads from "left to right" youthful days to "right" years of progress wanes and we glory in the stability of human conservatism!

Somewhere along the line, however, we lose touch with the reality that growth is a law of nature. Instead of debating positively, cynically exclaiming that "there's nothing new under the sun", we had better acquire some of the hopefulness of our youth. If we do not — we're likely to find that we've run away from life, because we've refused to keep up with the times.

Almost 85 years ago, an editorial in a Boston newspaper took these special pains to comment on a new invention of Alexander Graham Bell:

Joshua Coppersmith, a man about 46 years of age, has been arrested in New York, for attempting to extort funds from wealthy people by exhibiting a device which he says will convey the human voice over wires. Even if it were possible, the thing would be of no practical value! Authorities who apprehended this criminal are to be congratulated, it may never be so, example to other conscienceless schemers who may hope to enrich themselves at the expense of their fellow creatures!"

Looking back we laugh — but if we were to analyze our own thoughts regarding the possibilities inherent in the future, we might find that too often we describe potential personal progress in the same terms. Even if it were possible, it would be of no value". We say this about — the possibility of curing cancer — about deep desires to show those we love that we really care, — improving our attitudes toward those who are of different race or religion — and pious hopes that we might become better parents to our children or better children to our parents.

In so many ways, as we grow older, we give up our hope of improving our lives. To work? work; it can't be done", we murmur, returning easily to "business as usual". Without realizing it, we succeed in debunking ourselves — and all great personal loss.

The times do change, but not for those who do not change with them. They stand still, pining over the "good old days" yet powerless to face this day. For this day, new ideas, new strength and new solutions are shouting.

And he who loses touch with the future possibilities emerging this very moment, has lost more than tomorrow; he has also lost today!

95 Certificates Awarded After Swim Tests

Some 95 cards for six swimming proficiency have been earned during the past instruction session for boys and girls at the local YMCA, physical director Joe Rusby advised this week.

Of this group, 6 passed their beginners' test, 19 the first card tests, 13 the second card tests, 15 the third card tests, 10 the fourth card tests and seven the fifth card tests.

These tests are graduated in their requirements. The beginners' test, for instance, required that a boy or girl jump feet first into deep water, swim 25 feet on the surface, turn and swim back to the starting point.

A first card test, the first level in the intermediate level of swimming instruction at the Y, requires a candidate to tread water for 45 seconds, to float five times in succession, to demonstrat. the back flutter-kick 20 feet, to do a standing dive directly into proud form and to swim for 40 yards.

The fifth card test, the top swimming test in the intermediate course, requires a person to do the following successfully. Perform a head-first surface dive, swim underwater for 10 feet, perform a shallow head-first surface dive and swim underwater for 15 feet, swim 25 yards sidestroke on each side; swim 50 yards on their back, using the frog or reverse scissors kick; dive or jump into the water fully clothed, remove shoes, tread water for 30 seconds, remove clothing and stay afloat for one minute with a minimum of effort and then swim 440 yards without stopping.

Needless to say, those who have successfully passed their fifth card tests are accomplished swimmers who have good endurance, skill and an awareness of water safety and correct swimming and diving techniques.

Those who passed their tests were:

Fifth card: Anne McCorquodale, Cathy McDonald, Sherrill Taylor, Hilary Jaslitsch, Diane Carter, Gail Parks, and Lynn Mountford.

Fourth card: Jo Anne Boyce, Jo Anne Wiggins, Rhonda Hill, Brian Jackson, Bill Thompson, Peter Mills, Doug Mason, Steven Tullock, Jim Noakes 'and Bill Hall.

Father Saw Young Girl In Doorway

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Ernest Hall, whose seven-year - old daughter Sylvia was strangled Monday night in the attic of an abandoned store, said Wednesday he saw a young girl in the store's doorway about 5 p.m. that day.

Sylvia was found hanging by her belt in an alcove of the attic. Crown Attorney C. C. Savage said Wednesday death was due to strangulation, caused either by a sex pervert's attack or by an accident or an attack involving children.

The girl disappeared when she was sent on an errand in late afternoon.

Mr. Fiske said he passed by the building on his way home from work.

"I saw a girl about nine years old stick her head out through one of the doors. As I passed by, she slammed the door shut. It wasn't my Sylvie, though."

Mr. Fiske, who said he did not know the girl, gave the information to police Monday night.

AUTHORIZE REWARDS

City council Wednesday authorized a reward of $2,500. The $500 for the apprehension of the killer or killers, bringing the total reward money to $2,500. The attorney - general's department offered a $2,000 reward earlier Wednesday.

Police questioned a seven-year - old classmate of Sylvia who said she accompanied the slain girl to a store to fetch a newspaper. The classmate said she left Sylvia in front of the store about 4:30 p.m.

A man later identified a pipe, a belt buckle and tool police said he saw her when he passed the store at 5:10 p.m. The time element is believed to be of significance in the investigation of the case.

Tommy Douglas Calls Exercise Bizarre Show

TORONTO (CP)—Tommy Douglas, Canada's civil defence exercise, was a bizarre performance designed to divert attention from the government's lack of civil defence or nuclear weapons policy, T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said Wednesday night.

Mr. Douglas said if the government believes there is danger of a nuclear war it should assist in building public shelters.

He said Prime Minister Diefenbaker had taken the stand that an attack on Berlin would be an attack on Canada.

"This is a dangerous attempts to take this country into war, over whether East Germany or Russia is to stamp passports, then the New Democratic Party will rally the Canadian people behind it in opposition."

Mr. Douglas said neither policies nor isolationism is the road to peace. The UN should be reconstituted with power to impose sanctions against aggressors.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization could be used as a UN police force, he said But economic aid and friendship would go further in establishing peace than all the weapons.

Goods Stolen At Madoc Found In Toronto Car

TORONTO (CP) — Det. D. McLean, 39, was sentenced Wednesday to two years in prison for having burglar tools in possession of stolen goods and theft.

Det. Gerald Stevenson said he found three topcoats and five corduroy sports jackets in the trunk of a car which he checked. The garments had been taken from the railway station at Madoc, about 25 miles north of Belleville.

Doctors' Fees To Be Raised First of Year

TORONTO (CP) — A new schedule of rates to become effective Jan. 1 will rafte doctors fees in Ontario by as much as 30 per cent.

A 75-page booklet was distributed this week by the Ontario Medical Association to doctors and states in its preamble the tariffs it lists "should be used as a guide by the practising physician but the individual physician reserves the right to determine the value of his services in exceptional circumstances."

House calls, formerly $5, will be $6; office calls, formerly $3, increased by 50 cents.

A. K. Gillies, executive secretary of the OMA said the rates are average and that the increase would affect insurance coverage.

He said the OMA "approached the matter with the idea of being fair to the public."

"We feel it is fair."

ANCIENT ICE

Glacial ice believed 2,500 years old was found under mountain rock and soil in Norway in 1961.

FIRST WALKOUT

tendent of Canada Cement Company at Point Anne, today said the company accepted the conciliation board report as a basis of its 1961 collective labor agreement with its Ontario employees.

However, company employees have voted not to accept the conciliation board report. Union members indicated they were especially opposed to the company request for termination of seniority after 12 months' layoff.

FURTHER TALKS

Further talks between union and company officials are scheduled for this weekend in Montreal. Attending the talks will be Don Burshaw, Belleville, president of Local 219, at Point Anne, and at least one other of his union officials.

Mr. Whitehead said union members were opposed to termination of seniority after 12 months layoff and were asking for continuance of a joint agreement covering company employees all across Canada.

Point Anne employees today admitted that the strike would hurt them financially and were hoping for an early settlement of the issues involved.

The cement plant at Point Anne has operated since 1954 without a shutdown as a result of a strike. Company employees have been members of the United Cement Lime and Gypsum Workers' Union.

Peak employment period for the Point Anne plant was over two years ago when there were about 370 workers at the plant.

Two years ago one of the plant kilns was shut down and the resultant layoff together with introduction of automation has reduced the staff to its present 185.

Clouds of steam and smoke continued to roll from the chimney stacks of the big cement company as a skeleton crew remained on duty to tend the kilns. Plant operating however was expected to soon come to a complete standstill.

HITS LAND RENTAL

CHATHAM (CP) — Canning companies have been found to grow the crops they need may seriously affect the operation of individual producers, the Kent Vegetable Growers Association said Wednesday night. It urged the Ontario Vegetable Growers Marketing Board to study the possibility of co - operative processing plants if the canning companies cannot be discouraged from entering the producing field.

British Asked To Help Battle Floods, Famine

NAIROBI (Reuters) — The Kenya government has asked British forces here to help battle floods and famine sweeping through the East African colony.

A special government statement said Wednesday the famine is "a grave emergency endangering human life in the affected areas."

Floods have isolated and stranded thousands of Negroes in remote areas. The Royal Air Force has been asked to help airlift food to stricken districts.

Roads and bridges have been washed away, preventing food supplies from reaching tribes. In one district, the commissioner reported that after heavy overnight rain life had "come to a grinding halt," with six of 23 communities receiving no famine relief for 10 days.

Naval craft are to intensify an anti-malaria assault squadron with food for isolated coastal areas.

In remote parts of the coast province, 10,000 persons were reported stranded and in one area unconfirmed reports said 12 have been drowned.

The floods were triggered by several days of torrential rains, which came after a prolonged famine - threatening drought.

Pearson Favors Canada Joining Common Market

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian participation in an Atlantic Common Market with the United Kingdom and western European nations would create more jobs and improve the chances of peace, Liberal Party Leader Pearson said Wednesday night.

Speaking from his home in a CBC-TV Nation's Business freetime political broadcast, Mr. Pearson said Canada should set an Atlantic Common Market and ultimately a buildup of the great Atlantic free world area as its major goal. "And not just sit back and complain that it can't be done."

He criticized the Conservative government for having rejected a British offer after it took office to work towards an Anglo-Canadian trade union, and said Canada was only standing on the sidelines, throwing roadblocks in the way of a European economic co - operation.

"We complain and whine, we preach, bluff, bully and bluster," he said. "This is creating very bad feeling between our two countries."

He said working towards an Atlantic Common Market was in the forefront of Liberal policy, "a policy planned and designed to break down and remove the obstructions against our trade, and to co - operate with our friends in extending trade generally."

Trent Valley Area WI Holds Last Day of Convention in City

By MRS. M. B. WEESE

Vice-president Mrs. S. R. Beattie of Madoc, presided at the opening session on Wednesday morning. The registration under Mrs. Herbert Mrs. Phillips, rose to an all-time high of 360.

An original and inspiring signpost, led by Mrs. K. Wichard, Madoc, in the bright, cheery atmosphere of "Club Canara," with bronze and green decorations, and display of district and branch banners, put everyone in a happy mood.

A warm welcome was given to Miss Helen McKercher, director of the Home Economic Service and Extension Course who made many suggestions for club work and outlined projects.

Miss Marion Waddell, home economist of Peterborough, was introduced by Mrs. Smith, economist in Prince Edward and each gave full reports.

Miss Jane Gay of Ivanhoe, public relations officer, brings branch activities over radio CFRG, and suggests "get together" with "adult civil schools," "adult classes" and "vocational visits."

Mrs. Don Chisholm gave a report on "Agriculture and Canadian Industries." She suggests: Improve farm equipment, create social contacts, give family better education, visit other industries, and attend Farm Forums. Farm homes are now equipped with modern improvements and have beautiful surroundings. Have agricultural courses in fair, show slides of other farms, make a hobby of growing bulbs and flowers, have social calls and exchange plants and bulbs.

Announcement was made of a new Institute, organized in West Hastings, named "Sidney South." A strong plea for leaders "girls" could be made by Miss McKercher, and a request that all addresses be correctly made when sending in reports.

Mrs. Lymburner announced that the 65th anniversary of the founding of Women's Institutes at Stoney Creek, Ont., by Adelaide Hoodless, was to be celebrated on February 19, 1962, by a banquet of 500 or over to be held in Regency Towers' Hotel, Toronto, with Miss Hazel Smith, the guest speaker.

She also appealed for support of the Hoodless Memorial Home with all voting in favor. Pioneering, with new W.I.'s in N.W.T. met approval.

The question box was opened and discussed by Mrs. Lymburner, after which a trio of Mrs. R. Sills, Mrs. A. Lott and Mrs. D. Sills sang "Whispering Hope" and "Juanita."

Dinner was served and Mrs. Robson expressed appreciation to the CNR Women's Auxiliary for excellent meals, served so beautifully.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Mrs. H. Shearer, Buckhorn, presided for the afternoon session, which highlighted the girls' work, under the leadership of Miss Julia Lane, Miss Marion Waddell and Mrs. M. Smith.

Separate tables, with exhibit 1, "A variety of wool fabrics," by Anne Emerson, and exhibit 2, "A special garden project," by Margaret Stewart, Hilton, and exhibit 3, "Various ways with fruit," by Mary Parker, Actinolisburg, and "Special garden project" by Nikki Greatrex.

A demonstration in the form of a skit, "Cottons May Go Anywhere," was put on by Providence Club of Peterborough.

An interesting report on the Guelph Adult Education Conference was given by Mrs. William Harris of Havelock.

Mrs. Goodfellow, Codrington, presented the resolutions, which were discussed and supported.

The courtesy convener, Mrs. Rex. Rollins, presented the report, and the election of officers and their installation resulted as follows:

Past president, Mrs. Roscoe Reid, Gilmour; Hallowray; president, Mrs. John Reid, 307 Dufferin St., Trenton; first vice-pres., Mrs. S. R. Beatty, Madoc, Ont.; second vice-pres., Mrs. Harry Shearer, Lakefield, RR 1; third vice-pres., Mrs. T. M. Gresham, Elgin St. S., Cobourg; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Percy Ray, Halloway; assistant, Mrs. Allan Wallbridge, Belleville R.R. 7.

Conveners of standing committees are as follows:

Citizenship and education, Mrs. W. Viarris, Havelock RR 3; agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. Ken Wood, Consecon, RR 2; historical research and current events, Mrs. George McCrimmon, Coleridge; home economics and health, Mrs. E. Mimmiss, Cold Springs, Ont.; public relations officer, Mrs. Percy McMullen, Stirling RR 3; resolutions, Mrs. Don Sandercock, Trenton RR 2; standing committee, Mrs. Nesbitt Haggerty, Wooler; auditors, Mrs. Mitchell, Madoc, Mrs. Forrest Rubble, Belleville; board member, Sub-division 3, Mrs. Sharman Yarker, Milford; alternate, Mrs. Clifford Barber, RR 2, Belleville; board member Sub-division No. 6, Mrs. Harry Digweed, Warsaw P.O.; alternate, Mrs. George Rigby, Havelock; additional committee members, Mrs. Clifford Reid, Belleville RR 4; Mrs. Clarence Mann, Peterborough RR 4.

God Save the Queen closed a most successful convention.

Alpha Lambda Plans Black, Gold Ball

At a recent meeting of Alpha Lambda Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, members greatly enjoyed a visit to Bellbrae County Museum, in Belleville. During an enlightening tour, conducted by Mr. G. Boyce, members viewed an extremely interesting display of articles pertaining to the history of Hastings County. A few of the noteworthy items were photographs of Belleville during its lumbering days in 1875 and a first edition of the Intelligencer dated 1837.

Members were pleasantly surprised by the workmanship and preservation of two beautiful blankets made in 1820.

In a separate section of the museum, the Coulcery Collection of Canadian antiques was viewed with much interest.

Mr. Boyce was thanked on behalf of Alpha Lambda, by Mrs. S. Kostaniuk and members proceeded to her home for a short business meeting.

Committees were formed and plans discussed for the annual Black and Gold Ball, to be held at the end of January.

Rebekahs Entertain at Thomasburg

Through all the fog and mist on Monday night Quinteca Rebekah Lodge No. 133 travelled to Thomasburg to assist Thomasburg Rebekah Lodge No. 139 in receiving and entertaining Sister Helen Bowman, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario. The four main officers, Sisters Leah Fiske, N.G., Emma Cronkright, V.G., Frances Dallas, R.S.N.G., and Eva Farrell, chaplain, officiated in their respective chairs.

The president, Sister Helen Bowman, was introduced, presented with a corsage and escorted to a seat of honor on the right of Noble Grand, through the guard of honor consisting of Brothers Wes Farrell, Willard McTaggart, Donald Martin, Cecil Gray, Ronald Fiske and Harry Carter, carrying spears topped with silver and streamers of green and white ribbons.

The president, Sister Helen Bowman, was then presented with a gift from Thomasburg and Quinteca Lodges. Sister Bowman thanked the lodges for the gift, which she said she would treasure, and spoke briefly. She reported per year is "Forward Through Friendship." Sister Bowman also remarked on how nice it was to see the Brothers taking an active part. Lodge and how well they performed their duties at the altar of honor.

ALTAR DEDICATED

Sister Irene McMartin, Noble Grand of Belleville, and the Noble Grand of Stirling, were asked to speak a few words, after which the Knight of the evening, the dedicating of the altar, took place. The officers and part of the degree team from Belleville Quinteca Lodge, formed a circle in the centre of the floor, each carrying a pure white rose with a white ribbon. Through the arch through which Sister Helen Bowman passed for the dedication. The altar was brought to the centre of the cross by the four main officers of Thomasburg Lodge.

A most delicious lunch was served by the Thomasburg Sisters, assisted by the Brothers, who poured the tea and did a satisfactory job.

A social hour was passed. Later the Quintena Sisters and the Stirling Sisters rendered their had a varied assortment of pleasing gifts and this was in charge of Mrs. Ivan Green.

The country store, as the name implies, had an abundant supply of various goods for sale including: canned vegetables and meats; jars of jams, pickles and relishes; cake mixes; pudding powders; and many other grocery items. Adjoining the country store was the white-elephant table where there was a generous supply of miscellaneous articles such as: novelty plaques; salt and pepper shakers; costume jewellery; jig-saw puzzles; bouquets of colorfully painted cattail weed; potted plants, as well as many other items. In charge here were Mrs. F. O'Connor and Mrs. K. P. Smith.

A most exciting table of home-cooking drew many customers. Some of the items which sold rapidly were: delectable lemon meringue and many other pies; chocolate topped cup cakes; muffins and rollin' date squares; honey and orange loaf; cinnamon bread; cranberry nut bread; all sorts of cakes with peaked icings and one with a burnt sugar icing; also fresh homemade bread and buns. The homecooking was convened by Mrs. J. Reid assisted by Mrs. W. Lancaster, Mrs. H. Eaton and Mrs. C. King.

The candy table, decorated with Christmas ornaments and a large candy cane had a grand assortment of homemade sweets packed in cellophane bags, individual tart dishes filled to the brim, and assorted sized boxes, containing divinity fudge; maple cream; light and dark fudges, and this table was in charge of Mrs. G. Day.

VARIETY TABLE

There was a splendid array of homemade articles especially for Christmas giving, at the variety table where Mrs. H. Rose was convener, assisted by Mrs. J. Howes, Mrs. S. Boggs and Mrs. E. Haire. Some of the many items for sale here were: many colorful aprons in pretty floral prints and striped gingham and others in plain broadcloth materials; shoe bags; cushions with gold lattcia covering, others of patchwork design; mitts and; dainty knit and crocheted baby sets; bright red flannel Christmas stockings; fancy hand-covered pillow slips and luncheon cloths. Backgrounding this display were two lovely pastel pink and blue crib quilts in nursery design highlighted by colorful Christmas wreaths made from plastic bags.

The ticket convener for this most delightfully successful event was Mrs. E. Pope, assisted by Mrs. F. Goodfellow and Mrs. W. J. Cooke who were in charge of tickets at the door.

Christ Church E.B.W.A. Holds Delightful 'Holly Tea'

Branches of artificial holly with bright scarlet globes and colorful poinsettia occupied vantage points in Christ Church parish hall yesterday afternoon for the "Holly Tea" and bazaar under the sponsorship of the Evening Branch of the Women's Association of the church. The event was charmingly convened by Mrs. J. Ling and Mrs. A. Summers.

The convener of the decorating was Miss Frances Reid, assisted by Mrs. S. J. Bull and Mrs. A. J. Bennett, and everywhere the eye turned, the theme of holly was evident, along the walls as well as across the platforms. The Christmas note was further carried out with a colorful poinsettia with silver, colored Yule decorations adorning the piano.

ATTRACTIVE TEA ROOM

The tea room was marked by the attractive use of holly, with grey chairs and an entrance sentinelled by a holly white fir tree adorned with holly, centred by a huge poinsettia. The tables, draped with lovely cloths and with snow-white luncheon cloths, centred with various Christmas novelties, presided over by ladies.

The focal point of interest was the tea table, which also presentedly appointed with white damask centred by an artistic arrangement of holly, topped white chrysanthemums interspersed with tuberous covered riches and holly. Flanking this were tri-branched candelabra bearing white and green candles. Gleaming silver tea service and delightfully buttered sandwiches added to this lovely setting.

The tea room convener was Mrs. L. Mason, with Mrs. C. T. Reid and Mrs. W. Edwards assisting. Mrs. Gay, Mrs. A. J. Bongard, Mrs. B. Wells, Mrs. E. H. Ingram and Mrs. H. Mills, ladies replenishing the dainty goodies were Mrs. Ford, Mrs. J. Ling, Mrs. E. T. Bedforth and Mrs. MacInnis.

The fish pond, always a drawing card for the young fry had a varied assortment of pleasing gifts and this was in charge of Mrs. Ivan Green.

The country store, as the name implies, had an abundant supply of various goods for sale including: canned vegetables and meats; jars of jams, pickles and relishes; cake mixes; pudding powders; and many other grocery items. Adjoining the country store was the white-elephant table where there was a generous supply of miscellaneous articles

United LCW Meets at Parsonage

The regular monthly meeting of the United Lutheran Church Women was held last Thursday at the parsonage, 21 Melrose Crescent.

Mrs. Hutchomer opened the meeting and Mrs. Quast presented the budget for the 1961-62 season. It was decided that this budget be approved.

Mrs. Wozab gave her report of the Christian Service committee for the projects of November and December. These projects are to knit mitts, and blocks for an afghan, make up Christmas baskets for the shut-ins and to adopt a needy family, providing them with food and clothing, for a Christmas project, also a plea was made for eye glasses which are to go to "The Eyes for the Needy."

The first meeting for the workshop will be held November 23, both afternoon and evening.

PROGRAM

The offerings committee was charge of the program and devotions. Mrs. K. Brickert opened the devotions with the hymn "We Give Thee but Thine Own," followed by the Scripture lesson, 2 Corinthians 9:7-8.

Mrs. Hutchomer welcomed Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Swant, Mrs. Kollars and Mrs. Smith to the meeting.

Mrs. Grills followed with her report of the leadership workshop held November 1 at Peterborough. The meeting opened with the different committee chairmen giving facilitous reports leaving the rest of the ladies to find errors in the reports, and also how the duties and projects may be improved.

Ideas were also given as to how to put on a successful meeting or congregational fellowship supper with the Latin American theme or Home Mission theme.

The meeting was turned back to the Offerings Committee for the program, which included a reading by Mrs. Quast, on "All That We Have Is From Above, A Gift." How one loves to sing those words. But does one mean them? As a conscientious steward or God's gifts, this takes some hard thinking and self examination. So the question of how much still needs an answer. It is a personal decision one made in prayer.

Mrs. Bartleman also gave an interesting reading "Nora Has No Time". This story tells of how a person can get too involved in church work almost to the point of neglecting her family and jeopardizing her health.

Miss L. Pukanchi gave a rebuttal of this article telling that there are many, who could be classified with Nora of the story .Why does one give the responsibilities of jobs to someone who is already too busy with too many other jobs? The replay is simple? One always depend on such a person to get the job done as found in the old cliche "Ride a Good Horse to Death". If every woman was willing to assume her rightful shire of responsibilities — no more — no less — none would be overburdened. Have you shown willingness to help in the leadership of your organization or are you letting Nora do it?"

Lunch was served by hostesses Mrs. Linderman and Mrs. Beecher.

Weddings

REILLY — PEISTER

The Church of the Nazarene, Trenton, was the scene of a recent pretty autumn wedding when Marcella Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Peister of Brighton, became the bride of Daniel George Reilly of Belleville .The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Reilly of Belleville.

The Rev. Raymond Schermerhorn, brother-in-law of the bride, the Rev. B. H. Cross at the organ and Mrs. Russell Armstrong mums adorned the church. Mr. Keith Lobnes played the wedding music and Mrs. Marvin Mills sang "This Is Our Day" before the ceremony and the "Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown in traditional white, fashioned with lace bodice and a permanent pleated skirt. The gown had long lily-pointed sleeves. The bridal headdress was a tiara of sequins and seed pearls holding a finger-tip veil of tulle illusion.

The bridal flowers were red roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Donald Mountenay, sister of the bride, was matron of honour. She wore a street-length gown of blue silk organza with white accessories. Mrs. Lois Carr, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a street-length gown of silk organza in a becoming shade of pink with white accessories.

Mr. Winston Cress of Belleville was groomsman. Ushers were Messrs. Garnet Lindsay, brother of the bride's brother, Lawrence Peister.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Meadow Beach Motel, Brighton. Mrs. Peister wore a bouclé dress of loden green with beige accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Reilly wore a mauve dress of Arnel, with black accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from Brighton, Trenton, Belleville, Napanee, Wooler, Marmora, New Brunswick, Toronto, Bancroft, Markdale, Uxbridge, Oshawa, Windsor, Frankford and Wellington.

The bridal couple were entertained by their friends before and after their wedding. Miscellaneous showers were given by their friends of the Church of the Nazarene, Trenton, and the Young People of the First Pentecostal Church, Belleville. Mrs. Clarence Peister of Brighton gave a miscellaneous shower when the neighbors gathered to wish the couple every happiness. After their marriage, they were honoured by friends of First Pentecostal Church when Mr. and Mrs. Reilly received two matching cod tables.

Peter Aykroyd To Speak on Ottawa Plans

Next Monday evening the Women's Canadian Club, which meets in Queen Alexandra Public School Street, will have as guest speaker, Peter Aykroyd, B.A. Sc., Eng., who will address the meeting on "Planning Canada's Capital."

Mr. Aykroyd, a graduate engineer of the University of Toronto with post graduate work at Carleton University, has travelled extensively all over Canada, publicizing the work of the National Capital Commission, which is the Federal Government agency responsible for carrying out the "National Capital Plan," in the city of Ottawa, and for 1,000 square miles surrounding it. Many of the measures undertaken are unique in the world. Canadians who have heard Mr. Aykroyd describe the work with which he is associated with find admiration for this dynamic agency. He also directs the work of the historical section of the Capital commission.

ENGINEERING ASSIGNMENTS

Mr. Aykroyd has completed a number of successful engineering assignments throughout Canada, and in British Columbia, Alberta, and Northern Ontario. He was with the Building Department of Toronto for three years as plan examination engineer; and for four years with the National Film Board of Canada as production manager, making documentary films, including the color film of the Royal Journey in 1951 during the tour of H.R.H. Elizabeth.

He is also a member of the Ottawa Branch of the Canadian Public Relations Society; of the Community Planning Association; of the Press Club; of the Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada, and associate of the Highway Research Board, and National Conference on State Parks.

AIDS CHARITY

MONTREAL (CP)—The first antiques auction for a charitable cause here was reported a great success. Sponsored by the women's auxiliary of the Royal Victoria Hospital, the auction disposed of about three dozen genuine antiques donated by private collectors.

Missionary From Africa Addresses WF

The meeting opened with the devotional conducted by Mrs. Harder, her theme being "In Remembrance." Scripture, John 15:9-17 was read by Mrs. D. Plumpton. Theme, prayer, explanation and closed the devotional with a prayer, "On Confidence".

"Thank You" cards were read from Mrs. Douglas Reid, Mrs. Douglas Waite, and from president of Hastings County Home Auxiliary.

Mrs. Townsend spoke on the new organization for the three churches to meet at Centenary on November 30th. The new slate of officers was read and approved. There were 20 members and four visitors present.

Mrs. R. Nokes, Mrs. L. Pearson and Mrs. F. Meems contributed to birthday box.

The Treasurer's table her report from two banquets and turkey supper which were most favorable. The fall bazaar was discussed and plans completed for later this month.

The president thanked the hostess for opening her home.

Mrs. L. Pearson introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Blythe Lehman, who is home on furlough from Africa and gave an account of her work among the African people.

JUBILEE EVENING AUXILIARY

Last Tuesday, the Jubilee Evening Auxiliary of Bridge St. United Church met for a supper meeting. Mrs. Moon, Mrs. Quickert and Mrs. Colclough with their committee served a delicious hot repast.

The president, Mrs. Colden, led in prayer. There were several items of business; a letter requesting good clothing for the Indians on a Reserve in Saskatchewan read by Miss L. McDougall. There was a lengthy discussion about the new Women's Organization.

Mrs. Borden with her group, Miss Daly, Miss Cook and Mrs. Arrowsmith, took part in a discussion on "Getting By Today." "Moral standards are declining. What is the cause? Money leads to corruption." All enjoyed a solo by Miss Helen Cook.

Cooking for Two on a Shoestring

By Mary Moore

(Last of Three Instalments)

This will be the third week I have pounded away on preparing nutritious meals for two who are trying to manage on a shoestring.

This week the menu calls for a Savory Pie — Cheese Onion Pie — and I will give our young cooks a foolproof pastry recipe. They can use this pastry too for dessert pies such as pumpkin or two-crust apple, etc.

ECONOMICAL MENU

NUMBER THREE FOR TWO:

Cheese Onion Pie
(see below)
Creamed Carrot Strips
Apple and Celery Salad on Shredded Greens
Velvety Lemon Whip
(see below)
Tea

THURSDAY

Corned Beef and Cabbage; Potato Pancakes (try the new packaged mix); Celery and Cucumber Sticks; Apple Crunch with Cream; Tea.

SUNDAY

CHEESE ONION PIE:

¼ any of this savory pie is leftover it is excellent cold.

Pastry for One Crust: One and one-quarter cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1/3 cup plus 2 tablespoons shortening, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons ice cold water. With 2 knives or a pastry blender cut the shortening into the flour and salt until crumbs are size of small peas. Drizzle over the cold water, mixing with a fork until all is slightly moist then press into a ball between palms. Roll out to 9½" pie plate on lightly floured board. Fold over to lift and line pie plate, making thick fluted rim.

Filling: Slowly saute 2 cups sliced onions (well packed) in 2 tablespoons margarine until transparent but not brown. Spread evenly over pastry. Beat 2 eggs slightly, slowly pour and stir in 1 cup undiluted milk. Add 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper and 1¼ cups grated cheddar cheese. Carefully pour over onions. Bake at 350 deg. F.for. 45 minutes or until when silver knife is inserted at centre it comes out clean.

VELVETY LEMON WHIP:

Leftover Whip will be welcome, but most hungry couples could eat most of this at one sitting.

Crush 6 graham crackers finely. Sprinkle half in 10 x 6 x 2" dish. Dissolve 1 package lemon-flavored gelatin in 2 cups boiling water. Add ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Cool chill until slightly thickened. Pour 1¼ cups evaporated milk into refrigerator tray. Freeze 1" in from edge of tray. Beat gelatine with rotary beater until double in volume. Then beat evaporated milk until stiff. Fold into gelatine; spoon onto crumbs in pan. Sprinkle with remaining crumbs. Chill.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

THE IDEAL HOUSEGUEST

If there's anything that distresses a hostess, it's the weekend guest who insists on "helping" when, though her helping hand is new at the game and seems to be made up of five luckless thumbs.

You know the type: she'll insist on setting as a second cook at least, it shows! A member of the family, and can exercise a bit of authority without giving the impression he's trying to muscle-in on the host's territory. In this respect, he can prove to be a good mixer in more ways than one.

Equally welcome is the house guest who can cheerfully occupy herself at certain times during the week-end when the host and hostess have chores to attend to. The guest who knows when a mixer bread is buttered on also makes up her own bed in the morning and straightens up the room she used for the night. This includes emptying ash-trays and bringing used towels and linen to the laundry room so the hostess won't have to make an extra trip upstairs later to fetch them.

Guests can really be a help around the house. The important thing is to know which jobs the hostess would like to have done and which she'd rather do herself. A considerate guest never only ask to find out.

Successful Living

Teased About Plot

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—When my sister's husband died, my sister and her daughter were driven from one cemetery to another by the cemetery salesman looking for a suitable plot. They came home very worn out and with eyes all red, and sick. I felt terrible when I saw what they went through.

So about two years ago I bought four plots in a nice spot. They cost me plenty. My husband asked me why I bought them and I said, well, everyone dies some time and it's nice to know one has a place to lie.

Now I'm wondering if I did the right thing. I heard my husband tell a friend jokingly that I bought his plot and him alive. Then my son said, Mother, I won't need a plot; the Masons will bury me. My daughter-in-law told me she donated her body somewhere. Even my little granddaughter said Granny, I'm getting cremated.

I never said who was to be buried in the plots. No one seems to realize I bought one for myself to save them grief. Should I sell all or keep one for myself? I'm beginning to feel they resent what I thought was a kindness.—MRS. S. W.

* * *

DEAR MRS. S. W.:—Shame on them! Some people get their greatest fun out of laughing at others. We agree with "Make your will and live!" so why not "Buy your burial plot and live?

Your only mistake was in not making the purchase a family affair. I think if the plots had been the result of a consultation, with at least your husband in on it, his attitude would be different.

Call a conference now. State your intention of getting rid of the plot and take a vote. There may be a right-about-face.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—Regarding your letter from Bunny in which she asks if you can suggest a book she could read or something else she could do.

There is a book which has helped approximately 500,000 people in 76 countries and this book is Alcoholics Anonymous. By coincidence we have a young man in our group, about 30, and single, and in similar circumstances, receive his medallion for one year of sobriety last Saturday night.

You suggest counselling, and the writer, who had the same trouble, received this from the years 1953 to 1958 in four hospitals, and from numerous other doctors, psychiatrists and clergymen. It was not until going to AA for help in January 1959, that I was able to recover from the disease of alcoholism.—SOBER NOW.

* * *

DEAR SOBER NOW:—Thank you. Your experience will help others.

Alcoholics Anonymous is a tremendous organization doing a tremendous job. The professional workers in Alcoholism Clinics work hand-in-hand with AA, as the morale-building, spine-stiffening effect of associating with this group can work miracles for victims of alcoholism.

The book, "Alcoholics Anonymous," is a 572-page text which is now in its second edition, published by the Cornwall Press Inc., Cornwall, New York. It gives the history, beliefs and traditions of "A.A.", with some illustrations of how their philosophy works. Most libraries in Canada have it.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—My problem is not a very drastic one, but I'm wondering what colors to wear, and what combination of color.

I'm five feet, and have brown hair, brown eyes. I just don't seem to find a color, and when I do I grow tired of it.—LIZ.

* * *

DEAR LIZ.—My fashion consultant says brown eyes and hair call for all shades of brown, orange, yellow. Also good greens, turquoise blue, and clear red tones. Not grey, not black; not soft blues.

Bright shades, not pastels, are the ticket. Avoid getting bored with any one color by having a variety.

(Human problems can be solved. Send yours to Doris Clark and she will point a way out for you).

Women's Institute

FOXBORO W.I.

The Foxboro Women's Institute held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. B. Hollinger with Mrs. Bamber in charge.

After the usual opening Mrs. Waller read the motto, "Make a good use of today, tomorrow will be history," prepared by Mrs. G. Gay. This was a most interesting paper which showed much thought had gone into its preparation.

Correspondence was read including thank-you letters from Mr. and Mrs. C. Young; Mr. and Mrs. D. Palmer; Mrs. F. E. Follwell, on behalf of Mrs. Brough; Mrs McLean on behalf of the County Home Auxiliary; Mr. S. McDonald and the resolutions to be brought up at the Trent Valley Area convention on November 14 and 15. Mrs. Mann, Mrs. Bamber and Mrs. Johnston are to go to the convention.

During the business it was decided to hold a euchre party at the school this week and to give $25 to the Retarded Children's School toward the projector. It was also decided to give gifts to the local shut-ins; the county home, as last year, with Mrs. Kilpatrick and Mrs. G. Gay in charge of the latter project, and a gift exchange among the W.I. members at the next meeting.

The program, in charge of Mrs. J. Reynolds, Mrs. G. Cooper and Mrs. W. L. Thompson, began with a song "Dear John," by Mrs. Rombough and Mrs. M. Waller, Mrs Thompson read "In Flanders Fields" by Lt.-Col. McRae. The accompanying commentary, "For Peace," by Rev. Sir H. W. Baker, was read by Mrs. W. L. Johnston and the "Colors of Its Flag," written by F. Scott, by Mrs. J. Ewing; "A Valiant Heart," read by Mrs. L. Lewis and "Recipe for Happiness," by Mrs. A. Calvert.

"Walk On with Faith In Your Heart" was sung as a solo by Mrs. W. Rombough, a most fitting song to close such a program.

After the meeting closed a social hour was enjoyed, also delicious lunch served by the hostess and lunch committee.

Young Couple Feted by Many Friends

2ND OF SIDNEY — On Saturday evening a pleasant time was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reid in honor of their daughter, Marilyn's recent wedding to Ronald Backer of Toronto, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Backer of London.

Around 85 friends and relatives gathered to meet the happy couple. They were present from Toronto, Prescott and Hilton.

Mr. Ben McMurter was master of ceremonies for the evening and Mrs Harold Dickens read the address wishing them a long and happy life together and asking them to accept the gifts as a tremendous of the respect in which they are regarded in the neighborhood. They received many lovely gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Backer thanked all for their kindness to them at this time.

Lunch was then enjoyed.

Bay of Quinte WI Enjoys Bus Trip

2nd SIDNEY — On Thursday, November 9th, the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute members enjoyed a chartered bus trip to Toronto, starting from the home of Mrs. Morris Sickle, 2nd concession of Sidney. Some of the members were unable to go on the trip, as one from a neighbor Institute went along as well as others to make up a bus load of 37.

The Institute intended having their November meeting on the bus, but owing to the difficulty in hearing, the November meeting will be dispensed with, and the December meeting will be a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. John Reid.

As the outskirts of Toronto were reached the driver drew the attention of the members to the tremendous expansion of this city in the past year, with many houses under construction. Members were taken to the Imperial Oil Company building on St. Clair Avenue West where they were taken on a guided tour. First, they were shown two movies which told the story of oil from the beginning of time till the present. The building is beautiful with gold colored mosaic tile floors and marble walls and here are situated the headquarters staff who guide and co-ordinate research for oil, they ranges from Cabot Trail to the Alaska Highway. Everyone was interested in the observation deck, which is 720 feet above sea level, where one can view the city from north, south, east and west. The diamond attention to the various points of interest. On top of the building there is a place for the landing of helicopters and this is the highest look-out point in the city.

Here the members proceeded to Casa Loma, but owing to their being no guided tours on Thursdays, they spent the remainder of the afternoon, until 6.45 p.m. shopping in the downtown stores and from there; to Maple Leaf Gardens to view the Ice Capades, highlight of the trip.

Everyone enjoyed to the full this long to be remembered trip, even though arrival home was in the wee small hours of the morning

DISTRICT WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

EVENING AUXILIARY

WOOLER — The November meeting of the United Church Evening Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. Earl Brooks on Tuesday, November 7th, with a good attendance.

The vice-president, Mrs. Wilbur McColl, was in charge of the meeting and the minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. R. Palmer. Business then followed and it was decided to entertain the husbands at the December meeting. Mrs. G. D. Fox gave the treasurer's report which showed a balance on hand after the recent rummage sale.

Mrs. Cy Neyvatte was in charge of the worship, assisted by her group. The chapter from the Study Book, "Signals For the 60's," was most interesting.

A special thanks was extended to Mrs Brooks, not only for opening her home, but also for the lovely luncheon she prepared and served.

Many Attend Bible Teaching Demonstration at Tabernacle

Enthusiasm and inspiration were the order of the day on Tuesday evening at Tabernacle United Church in Belleville.

An over-flow crowd completely filled the large Christian Education auditorium and taxed the seating accommodation to its limit to witness a demonstration evening by the leaders of the United Church Training Centre for lay workers named "Five Oaks." This centre is situated near Paris, Ontario, and has been helping lay workers for some years to learn more of their vocations and consider themselves in the light of Christian commitment.

The team of leaders consisted of the Rev. Beverly Oaten, the director of Five Oaks; the Rev. Ted Leighfield, assistant director, and Miss Irene Potts, registrar.

The program was sponsored by the Belleville Presbytery Sunday School Teachers' Association, which was organized in October, 1959, after a group of Sunday School workers had attended one of the weekend conferences at Five Oaks.

Each person was presented with a name card as they arrived and after being welcomed by the president of the association, Mr. Oaten led the group in a spirited discussion in the Five Oaks traditional style on three topics, namely, "What is the Bible," "What is the Purpose of the Bible" and "What the Bible is Not."

Mr. Leighfield presented a brief history of the Bible and led a discussion on Bible study which developed enthusiastic study of the particular section chosen, which was the first chapters of Genesis.

Miss White described opportunities for conferences which were planned at Five Oaks for the future, and awakened considerable interest in attendance.

TEACHING TECHNIQUES

The whole of the evening was a vital demonstration of leading and teaching techniques which any one of those present might well copy. Those who had formerly attended any conference at Five Oaks were reminded of the atmosphere of informality and yet dedicated Christian leadership which prevails at Five Oaks, and was evident at this meeting, and those who were experiencing their first contact with this dynamic segment of the United Church education program felt that the evening was well spent.

The Rev. Morgan MacFarlane of Tabernacle United Church, dedicated the offering and pronounced the benediction.

The evening was concluded with a lunch provided by two of the churches, members of the association.

St. Andrew's Guild Holds Christmas Tea

WELLINGTON — Wellington Town Hall was a picturesque setting for St. Andrew's guild annual Christmas bazaar and tea, on Thursday afternoon. Christmas decorations around the hall were appropriate decor.

The quartette tea tables were all covered with pretty white cloths and centred with 'mums.

Mrs. B. A. Evans, president of the guild welcomed the many guests at the door, while Mrs. J. Rogers received the fees.

The domestic table, as usual, was laden with all kinds of good things to eat, lovely angel food cakes, layer cakes, tarts, pies, cookies, squares which were all sold rapidly. Those in charge of this table were: Mrs. W. A. Davern, Mrs. King and Mrs. Russell.

The Touch and Take table had an abundance of parcels. This was in charge of Mrs. G. Upton and Mrs. S. Tripp and Mrs. H. Pritchard.

A long table filled with many lovely aprons, novelties, embroidery, crochet and knitted articles were in charge of: Mrs. W. F. Thompson, Mrs. L. Boyle and Mrs. S. Broadbridge.

Mrs. Adams sold boxes of Christmas cards and wrappings.

Mrs. B. Burley was kept busy after school, at the fish pond. She was assisted by her daughter, Brenda during the rush.

Assisting in the kitchen were: Mrs. G. Channels, Mrs. G. Middleton, Mrs. R. Bailey.

Serving the delicious refreshments were, Mrs. C. Lane, Mrs. D. Boyle, Mrs. D. Herrington, Mrs. J. B Lavender, Mrs. D. Morden and others.

The door prize, a lovely cryzanthemum was won by Mrs. E. Robinson and a basket of groceries by Mrs. J. Denard.

The ladies wish to thank everyone who helped in any way to make this affair such a success.

Women's Activities

ROSE HALL W.A.

ROSE HILL SOUTH — The Rose Hall W.A. was held last Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Richard Foster, with an attendance of 18. Mrs. W. Conley presided and read from Psalm 42. The topic was "Remembrance Day."

A two-minute silence was followed by a reading, "Memory of the Canadian Soldier Ever Remains Green," closing with a poem "God Give Us Peace." Should be invoked.

Mrs. L. Wight read the minutes which were approved. Mrs. L. Channell reported on finances. The "thank-you" notes from the Rev M. Robbins, Mr. N. Tice and family, Mrs. McLean, Mr. Merton Keilar, Sharon and Dennis Conley, Mrs. Wannamaker, Roger Wight, were read by Mrs. Gordon Jackson.

GIFT PRESENTED

Mrs. F. Jackson was presented with a gift by Mrs. Conley from the Association, and gave a suitable reply.

An executive meeting will be held on November 21 at the home of Mrs. Ross Pierson.

The Rev. M. Truax spoke briefly and offered prayer. Mrs. R. Foster read the devotional Scripture from Matthew and gave a reading, "Mothers."

Mrs. L. Channell read "Home Life In Africa."

Young Couple Honored by Neighborettes

WELLINGTON — On Tuesday evening of last week the "Neighborettes" of Consecon Street met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Morrons in honor of Mr. and Mrs. B. McKenzie of Toronto, recent newlyweds. There were about 20 present. The evening was spent socially and several bingo games were played with prizes going to: Mrs. Bill Blackman; Mr. W. Burrus, Mrs C. Tripp; Mrs. Bill McKenzie and Mrs. Anne Herrington.

Mrs. Burrus read an appropriate address to the honored guests and presented them with a portable mixer. Both Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie voiced their appreciation for the lovely gift from their old neighbors.

Delicious refreshments served by the ladies were enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Maud Carson, aunt of the honored guests was a guest of honor.

MISSION BAND

WOOLER — The Wooler Mission Band met in the United Church parlors on Sunday morning, November 12, with a large attendance. Mrs. N. Crosby and Mrs. J Putman were in charge.

The meeting opened with the Purpose repeated in unison, followed by the song, "God Loves All of His Children." There were 26 children present. The offering was taken by Doreen Richards. The children enjoyed the story, "Hole In the Heel," and the November World Friends were distributed. Members' pins were presented to Connie and Sandra Fox, Doreen and Gaye Richards.

St. Joseph's CWL Plans Yuletide Tree

The November meeting of St. Joseph's Parish Council of the C.W.L. was well attended with Mrs. V. Muldoon presiding. The director, Rev. J. J. Buckley, opened the meeting.

A special thank-you was tendered the ladies who participated in the collection taken up on the occasion of the birthday of His Holiness Pope John XXIII. They were Mesdames: Kelly, Collyer, Johnston, Sabourn, Belrose, Carr-Braint, Dustin, Black, Murphy, Boyle, Beebler and Sweet.

Mrs. Muldoon spoke of the sudden death of Mrs. Dorothy Halloran the recording secretary of the Council. A decade of the Rosary was offered for the reapose of her soul.

Mrs. W. Reid corresponding secretary gave her report and the members were urged to notify Mrs. Reid of any person to whom a remembrance should be sent.

MAGAZINE MEMBERS

Mrs. G. Murphy had recorded 216 paid up members and 67 memberships for the Canadian League magazine.

Mrs. E. Hibbig and Mrs. Muldoon attended a workshop held at the Library. The topics under discussion were both timely and interesting. These workshops will be held once a month and anyone who could attend would find it a most enjoyable and worthwhile evening. It was suggested that one of the meetings during Lent be in the form of a workshop.

Mrs. H. Carr-Braint will visit the County Home during the week of December 11th.

Mrs. B. Belrose brought to the attention of the Council one of the recommendations of the 41st annual national convention held in Toronto — that C.W.L. members become active in the review of TV and movies.

Reports were given on the annual "Fall Bazaar", Mrs. T. Murphy, convener and Mrs. T. Kelly, co-convener, thanked all who helped to make the bazaar an outstanding success.

Mrs. V. Muldoon spoke on the regional meeting held in Tweed on November 5th at which St. Joseph's Council was well represented.

A Mass for deceased members of the League will be said on Saturday, November 25th.

CHRISTMAS TREE

Plans were made for the December meeting. The "Christmas Tree" and exchange of gifts will be looked after by

SALEM W.A.

MINTO — The November meeting of Salem W.A. was held in the church hall on Thursday afternoon with a splendid attendance of members and visitors.

A quilt was quilted and at 2 p.m. the president opened the meeting. Mrs. Beagle read an appropriate poem and a short memorial service was held for the late Mrs. Johnston, who had been a worthy member in the interests of the W.A.

The president welcomed all, making special mention of Mrs. Kellar, a new resident.

Mrs. Orval Jackson reported for the visiting committee, making seven calls. The treasurer gave her report. Roll call for December to be an exchange of gifts.

Mrs. Everett Sine and Mrs. Cecil Carter were appointed visiting committee for November. Business was discussed.

Mrs. Murney Johnston expressed thanks for flowers and cards and all kindnesses shown to the family during the illness and death of Mrs. Johnston. Mrs. Orval Jackson and Mrs. V. Hagerman were appointed nominating committee for 1962. It was decided to hold a quilting at the home of Mrs. Jackson in two weeks also that the W.A. purchase two and one-half dozen more chairs for the hall. Mrs. Tom Clements moved that $25 be paid the M. and M. Fund.

Mrs. Lebow took charge of the program, based on "Remembrance Day." Hymn 662 was sung; Mrs. Everett Sine read the Scripture; Mrs. Lebow gave the meditation and prayer; readings were given by Mrs. L. Tanner, Mrs. Albert Twiddy, Mrs. Lorne Hagerman and Mrs. M. Wickens.

Mrs. Ross Clements gave the topic, "God Is In the Field." Mrs. Everett Sine read the poem, "Lest We Forget."

Mrs. J. P. Hagerman expressed thanks to the hostess and all who had taken part in the program.

Mrs. W. Meagher and Mrs. F. Maund. A play, under the direction of Mrs. Spence, will also be presented.

A discussion took place on a dessert bridge which the Council will hold during the third week in January. A committee will be formed to make the final arrangements.

Father Buckley addressed the meeting. He spoke on the opening of the new St. Joseph's Church and the conversion of the present church to a parish hall.

'Timber' In Retrospect

Editor's Note: The following article, which we feel will be of interest to most of our readers was written by Forest Ranger J. Henry Taylor of the Bancroft Chief Ranger Division.

Mr. Taylor has been long associated with the Department, having worked as a seasonal Forest Ranger from the mid-1920's until his continuous employment commenced in 1942.

Several other articles written by Mr. Taylor have appeared in Sylva magazine but as its publication has been discontinued this article will be published in four consecutive instalments starting with this issue.

BY HENRY TAYLOR
Forest Ranger

About the year 1800 my grandfather, Joseph Stringer, came up the Madawaska, York and Little Mississippi Rivers in a birch-bark canoe to settle near a lake which lay two miles west of the Little Mississippi River. He was accompanied by James Wilson from the settlement of Burnstown near Renfrew, Ont. This James Wilson is a grand-uncle of Mac Wilson, supervisor of Forest Protection in the Tweed District. At that time the area to which they came was unsurveyed, until in 1805 a licenced land surveyor, Fraser Aylesworth, surveyed it and named the Township Carlow.

This township lies in the northern part of Hastings County and Mr. Aylesworth gave his name to the lake near which Stringer and Wilson had settled. They were amongst the first white settlers there and in time, Stringer became the first postmaster of Boulter and Wilson the first reeve of the township. To attend county council in Belleville, Wilson travelled on horseback down the Mayo-Cashel road, a distance of 75 miles.

At that time the area was covered with virgin forests of hard maple, beech, yellow birch, white pine, spruce, balsam, tamarack and cedar. The latter was found in the swampy sections. There wasn't a stick of dry wood to start a fire, so my grandfather dried the chips and score blocks of the green white pine square timber for kindling. There were no poplar trees, for about that time a neighbor of grandfather brought in a poplar sapling and planted it for a shade tree. The people used to go on Sundays to see the strange tree. The change which one hundred years has brought is evident by the fact that 75 per cent of the material that is scaled now in the north-west part of the Tweed district is poplar sawlogs and pulpwood.

At that time there were two lumber companies operating in the area. The Conroy Lumber Company held all the watersheds of the York Branch River from its mouth, where it emptied into the Madawaska River to its source near the southern boundary of the Algonquin Provincial Park, an area approximately six hundred square miles. The other company was operated by Hilliard and Dixon. Their holdings was all the watershed of the Little Mississippi River from its mouth where it empties into the York Branch River to its source at the head of Weslemkoon Lake, an area of approximately 500 square miles. My grandfather made square timber for both of these companies for years after he settled at Fraser Lake. He accompanied the rafts of square timber down the Little Mississippi, York, Madawaska, Ottawa and St. Lawrence River to Quebec. There he re-brewed the timbers to remove the stone bruises, a job only expert hewers were assigned. The square timbers were then loaded into the old wind-jammer ships for the English market.

To be continued next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips motored to Toronto and back on Wednesday, taking in the Royal Winter Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Sprackett and boys of Belleville, visited Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Thompson over the weekend.

Except for banters, very few people are moving around St. Ola.

Miss Brenda Ham spent Saturday and Sunday at home, returning to Oshawa on Sunday evening.

Mr. Donny Tripp spent Saturday and Sunday at home.

Mrs. Fred Connely of Cumbermere, and Mr. and Mrs. L. Belisle and daughter Susan, of Toronto, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McAllister and two children of Prescott, were weekend visitors with the Rev. K. and Mrs. McAllister.

On Sunday evening the Rev. Mr. McAllister conducted a special "Remembrance Day" service. His subject was "Soldiers of Peace." The Scripture lesson was from Luke 10: 25-37, the story of the good Samaritan. Mr. McAllister also read 1st Corinthians 13, Paul's great eulogy of the love of God shown in the kindly everyday acts to those in need.

Universities Disappointed Demands for Federal Aid Not Getting Govt. Attention

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Conference of Canadian Universities and Colleges ended a 24-day gathering here Wednesday disappointed that its long-standing demands for larger federal assistance are receiving "sympathetic consideration" rather than immediate action.

The answer of delegates to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's suggestion that the provinces bear a larger share of education costs was that regardless of what the provinces pay federal help is sadly lacking.

Dr. G. C. Andrew, deputy to the president of the University of British Columbia, said Mr. Diefenbaker's address to the conference Tuesday night "wasn't too fruitful."

The 200 delegates had expected he would announce an increase in federal university grants to $2.50 from the present $1.50 per capita of provincial population.

Instead the prime minister said he would go on by conferences to bear a bigger share of the cost involved in the expansion which is expected to triple university enrolment in the next 10 years.

RENEW APPEAL

The university leaders closed their 24-day session with a renewed appeal for the per-capita increase and asked for $500 for every student registered in arts, science, dentistry and graduate schools.

They also doubled, the amount they requested for capital and science teaching and research facilities. Previously they asked in a brief last year for $25,000,000 to be granted over the following five years. They now seek $50,000,000 over the same period.

Along with a list of resolutions designed to increase revenue and done by the end of the broaden academic facilities for universities and their students, the conference heard warnings that the crisis in education "is not a fad that five years ago still is acute.

"The crisis still exists and deepens, and . . . there is every indication that it will grow more acute during the next decade."

Steps proposed to combat the situation included: Greater support for smaller colleges and universities by all levels of government; increased Canada Council fellowships; more funds from private and personal donors to raise the value of existing endowed programs; expanded aid to overseas students; development of more extension facilities and of languages, history and philosophy.

Pressure Is On To Free Fasting Algerian Rebels

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle today faced mounting pressure from abroad to release three fasting Algerian nationalist leaders who intend to continue their hunger strike until set free.

Three Moroccan ministers sent by King Hassan to plead with de Gaulle for the release of Mohammed Ben Bella, vice-premier of the Algerian rebel government, and two political leaders announced Wednesday night that they were delaying their departure for home.

The announcement raised speculation that de Gaulle might be showing signs of freeing the three rebel leaders to avoid making them martyrs in Algeria's fight for independence.

Ben Bella and his fellow prisoners, Hussein Ait Ahmed and Mohammed Khider, were transferred under heavy guard from the Chateau de Turquant in the Loire Valley to Garches Hospital near Paris Monday night when French officials became concerned about their health.

The three started their fast Nov. 2, along with about 3,900 other Algerian prisoners in France who are on a hunger strike demanding better prison conditions.

EAST FOR FREEDOM

Algerian spokesmen had indicated earlier that Ben Bella and his two ministers were demonstrating solidarity with all Algerians imprisoned by the French. But their departure made it clear Wednesday that the three are fasting for their freedom. Ben Bella is determined to go on "to the end," his lawyer said.

The Moroccan ministers arrived Tuesday and talked with de Gaulle and Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville. They conferred again with Couve de Murville Wednesday and, after a hospital visit with the fasting Algerians, paid him a second visit Wednesday night.

In New York, meanwhile, the UN General Assembly by a 62-to-0 vote appealed to France to "redress the legitimate grievances of the Algerian prisoners in recognizing their status as political prisoners, with a view to making possible the immediate termination of the hunger strike."

France had declared in advance that it could not recognize any such resolution as the assembly and was not present for the voting. Thirty-one nations abstained on the resolution submitted on an emergency basis by 34 Asian and African countries.

De Gaulle has said that Ben Bella and his companions will not be released until a cease-fire is signed ending the fighting in Algeria, now in its eighth year. The Tunis-based Algerian government has in turn vowed it will not resume peace talks with the French until the three are set free.

Lawrence's Book Case Argued in Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Does D. H. Lawrence's controversial novel Lady Chatterley's Lover sanitize genuine love and proclaim it holy or is it an obscene work exploiting sex?

Prof. Frank Scott, dean of the law faculty of Montreal's McGill University, told the Supreme Court of Canada Wednesday that the novel is a story of the greatness and beauty of physical love "now and then and a woman.

"There was no more undue exploitation of sex in the book than there is in the nude figures painted by Michelangelo in the Sistine Chapel in Vatican City," he said.

However, Claude Wagner, counsel for the attorney - general's department, told a full bench of nine judges that the book not only is obscene "but it develops no moral teaching whatsoever."

It was a "camouflage of obscenity under the guise of literature" and was rampant with "promiscuity and adultery."

OPPOSE EACH OTHER

Prof. Scott and Mr. Wagner appeared before the court Wednesday as opposing counsel in an appeal by three Montreal newsstand dealers against Quebec court decisions that the book represents a undue exploitation of sex. The court reserved judgment.

Judge T. A. Fontaine of Montreal ruled in June, 1960, that the novel is obscene under the Criminal Code. He ordered that a copies on sale in Montreal be confiscated and his decision was upheld by the Quebec Appeal Court.

The ruling of the Quebec Appeal Court applies only in the province of Quebec. However, the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada will apply to the entire country as it will be a judgment on a point of criminal law.

This is the first time that the Supreme Court has been given the task of deciding whether a publication comes under a section of the Criminal Code enacted in 1950.

Three Serving Life Terms Did Not Commit Act

DETROIT (CP) — Detroit police said Wednesday that a statement by a Saskatchewan River Rouge man indicates that three men serving life terms for the murder of a Detroit druggist committed the crime.

The druggist, David Lipton, was killed last year in a robbery. Three men were convicted of the shooting were Lindberg Wells, 24, Saskatchewan Indian; 21, and Ephraim Clark, 36, all of Detroit.

Assistant Prosecutor Max Silverman said Gene Adams, 21, has made a statement to police and named one of five others implicated in the holdup as the one who had done the shooting.

But even if the other three men get a new trial, Bill Hall would have to stand trial for the 30-year sentence for larceny.

SEEKS NEW TRIAL

Hall is asking for a new trial for the trio filed by Silverman will be heard Saturday.

Hall claims Silverman cited that confessions in the case were voluntary when he made by Adams, now in jail in connection with another robbery, Edward Lash, 46, of River Rouge, being held for investigation of the murder of Wells and. Adam's girlfriend, Delphine Coleman, 17, of Detroit, also held as a witness in the Lipton case.

Wells and Adams, arrested last week, has admitted 20 robberies including one in which a gas station attendant was shot. Ballistics tests showed that the bullet that wounded the attendant was fired from the same gun which killed Lipton.

Police said Adams admitted he was one of three men who killed Lipton's drug store Nov. 13, 1960.

Sentenced Wednesday night, Bandaranaike

Trials Designed to Protect Canadian Soldiers Against Terrible Heat of A-Blast

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian army is conducting trials of a modern - day chain mail designed to protect soldiers against the heat.

Soldiers are wearing the flexible material over their regular uniforms to see how cumbersome or awkward it might prove under battlefield conditions.

The material was developed by scientists of the Defence Research Chemical Laboratories at nearby Shirley Bay. When it is exposed to intense heat it gives off a puff of smoke which shields the fabric underneath—that is, the soldier's uniform—from the heat rays.

Without the protection of the material, the heat would burn a hole right through the khaki and incinerate the wearer in a trice.

The material produces a puff of smoke within a fraction of a second when subjected to a heat of 30 calories a square centimetre. This is the intensity of heat which would be expected from a nuclear detonation as a distance at which radiation would not be lethal.

As a comparison, a first-degree burn on the body is produced by two calories a square centimetre, a third-degree burn by five.

The material developed by the Defence Research Board can be draped over weapons and equipment as well as a personnel to protect against heat.

For $200, the scientists rigged up an old army searchlight so that it focussed the sun's rays to generate temperatures as high as those in an atomic explosion.

The instrument, an ungainly looking contraption, was used to test the resistance of all kinds of materials to intense heat.

The furnace generates temperatures of some 8,000 degrees centigrade. It requires only one-fifth this amount of heat to burn up a piece of asbestos in the furnace in a fraction of a second. An iron bar melts in such heat and a rock is vaporized.

The scientists said the same results were obtained from only $500 contraption as would have been if they had acquired and detonated an atomic bomb.

Adenauer May Not Be Able To Resist U.S. Pressure

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The full force of the blow the West German voters dealt Konrad Adenauer in the September elections likely will become evident when the federal chancellor meets with President Kennedy next week.

Reduced from a strongman with unlimited negotiating power to that of coalition leader with limited power, Adenauer may find it difficult to resist Washington pressures to end pursuit of dreams of German reunification.

The view among some Washington authorities is that once they can get some improvement since External Affairs Minister Green said in September that the world was hovering on the brink of nuclear war, the way may be opened to press President de Gaulle into a similar acceptance.

Once the Western powers become united on this issue, East-West negotiations may get under way with a view to finding face-saving compromise that could safeguard the freedom of West Berlin—though this may require some sort of Western recognition of the East German regime.

When Adenauer first met Kennedy last April, they agreed the German and Berlin issues could be resolved only through self-determination of the German people. But there was no question of self - determination when the wall went up in East Berlin on Aug. 13.

Kennedy was urged then by some of his closest military advisers to smash the wall, but he sided with the view that to do so would invite war. He allowed the wall to stand.

On the one hand Kennedy is confronted by Britain's plea for negotiations, Englishmen who go to Moscow even if this means some concessions on Berlin. In Britain's view, the West has obtained there should be no negotiations until the Communists show a more peaceful attitude.

But the German elections vastly reduced the political power of de Gaulle's main supporters in the lower house.

"As German strongman Adenauer might have forced Kennedy to keep up the old insistence that there can be no deal in Germany without resolution of the coalition leader nearing the end of his career, Adenauer is vulnerable to compromise and acceptance of political realism.

Pearson Says West Must Remain Steady

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson said Wednesday night that world affairs are still serious though they can be said to have improved since External Affairs Minister Green said in September that the world was hovering on the brink of nuclear war.

Mr. Pearson, in an interview, was elaborating on a speech he made Tuesday night to a Montreal church group.

He said the main point in his speech was the importance of the West remaining steady.

"We shouldn't get panicky when things look black, and then hang it, improve. We shouldn't get too elated. The quality needed most at this time is steadiness and strength."

PLANS IDENTITY CARDS

COLOMBO (Reuters) — The Ceylon government plans to issue residents with identity cards bearing their photographs and fingerprints as part of a program to combat illicit immigration, Prime Minister S.W.R.D. Bandaranaike announced Wednesday night.

War of Nerves Heating Up as Deadline Near

By LOUIS G. PANOS

WASHINGTON (AP) — A war of nerves is heating up as Sunday's deadline approaches for the Communist party of the United States to register with the government.

The Nov. 19 deadline is based on the Supreme Court's Oct. 9 refusal to reconsider its decision upholding provisions of the Subversive Activities Control Act.

But a U.S. justice department spokesman said Wednesday the government will withhold action for the time being.

Delayed for a decade by a memorable court contest, the showdown has been developing since passage of the Internal Security Act of 1950.

This requires foreign - controlled organizations to give the justice department full details of their structure and operations — names and aliases of officers and members, sources of income, recipients and purposes of money spent and location of printing presses.

WILL GO TO JAIL

Top Communist officers have vowed they will go to jail rather than make such disclosures.

The Worker, a Communist newspaper, said Tuesday that under terms of what it called "the most fantastic law ever enacted" the leaders of the Communist party are to register beginning Nov. 19 "as subversive agencies of a foreign power".

"Of course, neither the Communist party nor any of its leaders will lend their signatures to such a lie," The Worker said.

Attorney General Robert Kennedy has said "we will prosecute" unless the leaders comply.

Justice department officials, noting the Communist declarations of intent already have begun mapping plans to prosecute. But they leave unanswered one big question—when?

Because the maximum penalty for not registering is $10,000 for each day of violation after the deadline, the government could deal the party a heavy financial blow by delaying action and increasing the potential penalty mounts.

Hees Claims Liberals to Fall Between 2 Stools

HAMILTON (CP) — The Liberals are destined to "fall between two stools" leaving the Conservatives and the New Democratic Party in the field, Trade Minister Hees said at McMaster University Wednesday night.

He agreed with Alan Berk, a McMaster student, that the collapse of the Liberal party in Great Britain followed the First World War was produced by a three-party situation similar to the one in Canada today.

"The socialists in Canada have been squeezed through a thick and thin," he said.

"The Liberals are all over the place—a little laissez-faire one day and socialist measures the next.

"The Liberals have been trying to straddle two stools at once and they are going to end up falling between them," he said.

Drug Cost Hearing Brings Sharp Exchange Between Chairman, NDP Member

TORONTO (CP) — Transport Minister Rowntree and Kenneth Bryden, New Democratic Party member, clashed angrily Wednesday in a legislative select committee meeting after Mr. Bryden contended the druggists seldom base their assessment of a drug manufacturer on real merit.

Sitting as chairman of the Ontario legislative select committee on drug costs, Mr. Rowntree protested when Mr. Bryden, member for Woodbine, said that "insults and innuendo" are the basis for many decisions in the druggists's choice of drugs.

The minister accused Mr. Bryden of calling "persecution" a witness before the committee and of putting druggists to the wall.

"I wouldn't try to persecute anyone," said Mr. Bryden, his face flushed, "and I suggest you not use your position as chairman to try to intimidate me."

ASK RE BASIS

The discussion arose from remarks by John Wilson (PC—London South) about the basis used by drug suppliers for judging the merits of competing drugs when filling orders on prescriptions.

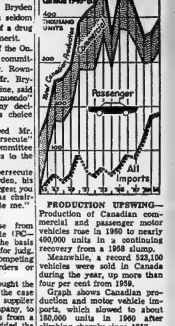
Mr. White said he thought the committee would ask the case of a wholesale drug supplier in Don Mills, Canada Company, to fill an order with drugs from a manufacturer who provided the biggest discount at the time of sale.

Mr. Bryden's comments at this point provoked the angry exchange.

One of the largest drug manufacturers in Canada was described Wednesday by the co-operative of retail druggists in Ontario.

MENTIONS NAME

The name of Eli Lilly and Company (Canada) Limited was brought out by C. Ross Hargrave of Toronto, associate general manager of the co-operative company, a co-operative of 1,965 retail druggists in Ontario.



Mr. Lepage was interested that he did not know the reason why that man in a factory would not sell to Drug Trading.

Commented Mr. Rowntree, "I think that is a rather important observation. IDA has a big plant in Belleville in this province. The fact that one manufacturer has blacklisted you is a matter of some importance."

Inco Accused Of Violating Labor Act

SUDBURY (CP) — Local 598 of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) has accused the International Nickel Company of Canada of violating the Labor Relations Act by refusing to open negotiations for a new contract.

After the first company - union meeting Wednesday, T. D. Delamere, president of the local, said discussions could serve no useful purpose until certification of the union as the bargaining agent had been achieved.

Meanwhile, a record 523,100 vehicles were sold in Canada during the year, up more than four per cent from 1959.

The previous Canadian production and motor vehicle imports, which slowed to about 180,000 units in 1960 after climbing sharply since 1957.

Pickersgill Says Lord Amory Was Snubbed

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal MP J. W. Pickersgill said Wednesday the government is guilty of a "terrible affront" to Lord Amory, British high commissioner to Canada.

Mr. Pickersgill said the insult was the absence of any official cabinet representative at a Canadian Club meeting here last week which was addressed by Lord Amory.

Prime former Liberal minister said this was more serious than the "snub" administered in London recently by Canadian High Commissioner George Drew, who did not attend a briefing on British negotiations with the Common Market.

Mr. Pickersgill suggested that the affront to Lord Amory—who spoke mainly on the Common Market—was the government's way of showing its displeasure with Britain's intention of joining that trade pact.

The MP for Bonavista-Twillingale said in a speech to the Canadian Club of Montreal University that the government was launching a political campaign against the British aim of blocking entry to the Common Market.

BREZHNEV IN SUDAN

KHARTOUM (Reuters)—Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev arrived here Wednesday night with a group of Russian officials to attend celebrations marking the third anniversary of the military takeover in Sudan.

Col. van den Berg, Who Won Distinction in 2 Wars, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Col. Jan W. H. G. H. van den Berg, a hero of Vimy Ridge who also fought with distinction in the Second World War and with Pancho Villa in Mexico, died Wednesday. He was in his late 70s.

Col. van den Berg was credited in the 1917 Battle of Vimy Ridge, mentioned in dispatches, awarded the Distinguished Service Order and the Military Cross and Bar, and the Belgian Croix de Guerre.

He had been a soldier from 1905 when he joined the 19th Alberta Dragoons. He was retired in 1949.

Born in Amsterdam, Holland, he came to Canada as a young man and became an inspector for the Canadian Pacific Railway in the Crow's Nest Pass area.

Returning to Montreal, he was commissioned with the 9th Hussars of the militia. Later he joined Pancho Villa's revolution in Mexico and rose rapidly in the ranks of the revolutionary army.

In 1914 he went overseas as a lieutenant with the 12th Battalion which later formed part of the 1st Canadian Division. In England he was transferred to the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and went to France.

After the Vimy Ridge battle, he was transferred to Canadian Corps headquarters as chief intelligence officer and Canadian Machine-Gun Corps.

In January, 1918, he volunteered for an expedition to the Middle East to defend oilfields against the Turks and Germans.

He remained in the army after the armistice and was stationed with the Princess Patricias at London, Toronto, Winnipeg and other centres.

He retired from the Second World War he was area recruiting officer and quartermaster general at Nov. 4 district headquarters at Montreal.

In 1940 he went to England with the 5th Armored Division as second-in - command of the 2nd Armored Brigade. Two years later he returned to Canada to organize the 32nd Brigade Group of the Reserve Army.

Col. van Vlaan Berg spoke seven languages fluently.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT— Armistice Day service was held at White's Church on Sunday morning with the Rev. T. F. Townsend giving a fine message. A lovely basket of 'mums and roses was placed in front of the altar in loving memory of Pilot Officer Norman B. Hunt who made the supreme sacrifice and gave his life for his country January 14, 1944, World War II.

Mrs. Fred Wilson of Belleville was in Sunday dinner guest of her mother, Mrs. Minna Sandercock and brother Mr. Frank Sandercock and Mrs. Sandercock.

Miss Elsie Hunt Reg. N., of Toronto and Mrs. Percy Boulton of Belleville were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. W. A. Jeffery.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parm of Belleville were Sunday tea guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johns. Mrs. George Garrison and son of Belleville were Sunday evening callers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Trice, Siebon and Cathy of Belleville were Sunday dinner and tea guests of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Hogie of Trenton were Sunday tea guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Westover of Belleville were Sunday callers of Mrs. B. Westover and all called on Mr. B. Westover who is a patient in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Stickle were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson.

Members and friends of the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute chartered a bus and attended the Ice Capades in Toronto on Thursday. Those attending from this district were Mrs. George Arthurs, Mrs. George Bilbson, Mrs. Fred Bowers, Mrs. George Page, Mrs. Frank Sandercock, Mrs. Donald Sandercock, Mrs. Ernest Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Dunn. All voted it a very fine performance.

Mrs. Lyon Beer and children of Brighton were Wednesday visitors of Mrs. Donald Beer.

Mrs. Frank Westfall was a Wednesday afternoon caller of Mrs. George Bilbson.

Several of White's ladies attended Wesley Benear and tea on Wednesday afternoon.

Many local hunters returned on Saturday very pleased with themselves with their catch of 4 deer and 2 moose. This party included Mr. Donald Barr, Mr. Lyon Beer, Mr. Douglas Westfall, Mr. A. Gingras, Mr. Bud Chard, Mr. Pat Scott, Mr. Austin Scott, and Mr. Cecil Ellis.

The rain on Sunday was very much appreciated. Many wells got dry and some farmers are drawing water for their stock.

Mr. Lorne Pengelly of Trenton spent the weekend with Miss Carol Howe.

BIG IMPROVEMENT

Shanedo had 808 reported cases of poliomyelitis in 1960, compared with 8,986 in 1959.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mr. E.L. — He refuses to take the regular driving course.

* * *

Craig L. — I'm 16 and I hold a junior driving license. A friend offered to teach me to drive, even though I could have taught myself from watching Dad and others.

But what good is it if Dad won't lend me his car? There's no chance of my getting one of my own, and my friends won't let us of their own steering wheels for even 5 minutes. I've proved to my father that I know how to handle his car or anyone else's. He still says I'm not ready to take on the road alone.

All I can look forward to at this point is picking up a fifth-hand jalopy somewhere before I'm out of high school.

* * *

Mr. E.L. — I'm not the old mesicle Craig insists I am. He hasn't told you the one condition I made, namely that he take an approved driver education course and show me his certificate when he's through.

If he's learned to drive from watching me, Heaven help us! He's learned all my mistakes, too. Even if I had the patience to teach Craig, I'm no pedagogue. Years ago I tried to teach him French and we wound up crouching at each other.

Once he finishes the formal course, I'll get insurance coverage and start lending him the keys. Driving's a dead serious matter.

* * *

The Council: Craig's fingers itch for the wheel and his toes for the gas pedal, while his father clutches the keys and holds the brakes. Dad's prescription for the 8th sounds perfect.

In his heart, Mr. L. is probably delighted to have another chauffeur in the family — someone who'll run an errand or fall for Aunt Mattie at the station, as well as use the car for himself. But in his heart, too, is the fear of what can happen to Craig in the face of a slip-up — his own, the car's or somebody else's. Knowing how to drive isn't enough. A smart chimpanzee can be trained to do that!

As a teen-ager, Craig must admit that statistics are against him. And even if he's sure he's the exception, the insurance companies don't care. They'll up the rates as much as 60 per cent when a car is being driven by a teen-age son who hasn't passed a commercial driving course. Regardless of who or what's to blame, young drivers are "involved" in many more accidents than their number warrants.

These courses go much further than "start-stop-neutral" talk. They include the anatomy and physiology of the car, and its care and feeding both in health and in sickness. How, for instance, to avoid a boiled-over radiator? And what about blizzards and slippery roads? Above all, traffic laws are interpreted as communal blessings, for the most part, rather than booby traps for luring fine payments to government treasuries.

Dad and Craig are only 36 hours apart. (That's the average instruction time in either the high school driving course or an outside one, approved by the local auto club.) Dad's right. His insistence on thorough preparation increases the likelihood that both Craig and he will be around for many more years of friendly debate!

A year ago, a reckless youth topped off a wild demonstration of juiced-up spectators by stealing the game ball in the Ottawa-Edmonton final at Vancouver with 41 seconds remaining in the game. This year, the money-grubbing Canadian Football League is literally picking the fans' pockets.

It has taken out 486 ground seats, at $10 each, at the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium in Toronto, site of the Dec. 2 East-West final. The idea is to protect the hard core of fans who pay to see a football game, not a bunch of irresponsible drunks.

That's the most sensible thing the CFL has done since it took over operation of the Cup in 1958. But hold off your applause.

Somebody has to pay for at least part of this lost revenue and the 10 pro clubs propose to make up the CFL fans decided to hit Mr. Joe Fan, a tolerant chap who has suffered through four crowd disturbances in the last seven Cup finals.

SEATS AT $12

The CFL has boosted the price of 7,000 grandstand seats between the 25-yard lines to an all-time high of $12, an increase of $2. This block extends from row 3 to 19. Additional ringside seats for television, films, radio and program rights, the gross gate will be an estimated $460,000, greatest in the 53-year history of the Cup.

The previous high was $405,200 in 1960.

When Prime Minister Diefenbaker makes the honorary kickoff at 1 p.m. EST, a crowd of 32,853 is expected to watch from the stands. And anyone who has fans of getting onto the field may as well forget them—the CFL is putting up a fence and there will be plenty of cops around to put the snatch on fans.

Last year, when fans started to pile into the Edmonton Empire and then onto the playing field, Vancouver policemen didn't make any moves to stop them. "They did absolutely nothing," stormed CFL Commissioner G. Sydney Haller of Winnipeg. "They might as well have cardboard dummies out there."

FLEMAS UNRECORDED

As it turned out, control of the crowd was under the jurisdiction of the Vancouver police department. "They were instructed not to take no orders from civilians" said Cub Co-Ordinator Harry McBrien of Toronto to the other day.

"I hollered and screamed my lungs out by the gates, but I didn't get anywhere." With hundreds milling around on the playing field and Ottawa Rough Rider and Edmonton Eskimo players trying to shoo them off, Haller ordered the game to be stopped with Ottawa ahead 16-6 and in possession of the ball—until the daylight theft occured—on its own 30-yard line.

"That year," says McBrien, "the police will be hired by the stadium. And their orders are to grab any spectator who tries to climb the fence surrounding the field. There won't be any nonsense this year."

The Cup final, Canada's greatest sports extravaganza, had never seen anything like the Vancouver rumpus, although this had been building up for a few years.

RAVINE TRIPPER

In 1955, at Vancouver, fans pounced on the ball in the end zone after an attempted fourth quarter Edmonton Eskimo field goal was wide of the posts. Game officials awarded Eskimos a point, but it didn't have a bearing on the outcome as the Eskimos whipped Montreal Alouettes 36-19.

In the 1956 final at Toronto Varsity Stadium, between Edmonton and Montreal, again fans crowded into the end zone after the Eskimos scored a touchdown in the final minute and prevented the convert kick. At that time, it didn't matter as the Eskimos had the game wrapped up by a 36-27 score.

In 1957, at Toronto Varsity again, a fan standing on the sidelines tripped the goalpost holder Ray Hawel of Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Eastern champions were ahead 25-0 at that point and it was a long road for Winnipeg Blue Bombers who eventually bowed 28-7.

If anyone isn't willing to shell out $12 he can always watch the game on television in comfort of his home or Leo Lamont has announced Hamilton Quigley, Welland, St. Thomas and Oshawa. There is also possibility of entries from Oakville and Niagara Falls, he said.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Windsor Field, with substitute jockey Keith Rondeau in the saddle, won the featured Belvidere Purse at Old Woodbine Park Wednesday.

Robinson replaced Cliff Potts, who went to hospital for x-ray examination of his right shoulder. Potts was thrown to the track when Sandy Hawk shied at bird coming out of the starting gate for the third race.

Windsor Field took the lead from the pace setting Pass Service in the final furlong and defeated Count Page by a neck. Pass Service was third.

Windsor Field paid $6.80 to win as he ran the seven furlongs in 1:28.2.

The crowd of 7,351 wagered $620,277.

Curling Club Plans League For Students

Efforts are being made to form a Belleville High School curling league at the Quinte Curling Club.

This marks the first attempt at organized junior curling here although it has proven very popular in many other parts of the country.

Registration will be held at the curling club this Saturday morning from 10.00 a.m. to 12 noon. The only qualification is that every curler must be a registered student at one of the Belleville high schools.

There will be a registration fee.

Time has been set aside for the student league and plans are all but completed. The rest is up to the students.

Minor Hockey

The Bruins blanked the Black Hawks 5-0 in one of three pantian hockey league games played at Memorial Arena last night.

B. Weaver earned the shutout in the Bruins net while S. White, D. Burrows led the attacking unit with two goals apiece with assists for T. Lohnes, M. Brennan and Emerson.

The Browns walked off with a 5-4 decision over Quints, paced by H. Townsend with a pair of goals. Singletons went to R. Cretney, M. Fahey and J. Smith. G. Moore, R. Langabeer, J. Morgan and J. McCreary drew assists. R. Watson and Bob Wade scored on solo efforts for Quints.

R. Bateman's three-goal effort led the Rangers to a 4-3 win over the Canadiens. Bateman topped his performance by assisting on his club's other goal, scored by F. Hume. K. McQuaid also earned two assists. R. Hannah and P. Rooke scored for Canadiens and both also drew an assist, as did B. Beecher.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Portland Buckaroos were host on hospitality but short on punch when they entertained Calgary Stampeders of the Western Hockey League for the first time in this Oregon city Wednesday night.

From a 2-2 first period tie, the Stampeders were the only ready to quit professional football Wednesday he hopes to play again next year for British Columbia Lions.

But the former all-American quarterback at the University of Washington said he hopes to switch from defence to offence and play quarterback again.

"I know I can handle it," he said. "It's my kind of football."

Schlereth, who has full vision only in one eye, said he must check with his draft board in Portland before making definite plans. His vision handicap is expected to keep him out of the army. He also hopes to attend university, continuing his work toward a degree in dentistry.

GIANTS CLAIM BACK

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League said Wednesday they have placed defensive back Cece Johnson on waivers and New York Giants have claimed him.

Peg Wins Junior Grid Title

By DENNIS ORCHARD

CALGARY (CP)—St. James Rocks tucked away another Canadian junior football crown Wednesday night and with it the highest accomplishment from their veteran coach George Dewes.

The 18-13 victory over the defending champion Rose n ns n Rangers of Montreal brought home to Winnipeg the Rocks' third Dominion title since 1955, all under the leadership of Dewes.

"This is the best Rocks team I've had," said Dewes.

The Shrine - sponsored final, played before about 6,000 fans in temperatures that dipped at least 10 degrees below freezing, was in doubt to the last seconds.

Clutch passing by rookie quarterback Gord Irwin and payoff yardage from four hard-running backfielders made the difference.

Gary Robson, a 210 - pound end in his third and last year of junior football, showed why he led the Manitoba Rugby Football Union Junior League in passes-received.

He slipped behind two defenders and grabbed a flipped pass that led to the Rocks' first touchdown, and caught a 10-yarder for another that proved to be the winner.

Four Teams Enter Quinte Hoop League

The Bay of Quinte Basketball League was assured of at least four teams for the 1961-62 season at their organizational meeting held last night.

Last year's champs, Belleville Lakeshore Lions, are expected to enter but are not sure of entering. Apparently three-quths feel that the league is a little too strong for them.

An effort will be made to secure at least two more entries. If this can be arranged, it is likely that the league will have two divisions with the stronger teams playing in one and the weaker clubs in the other. Nonsense is one of the entries that might be considered.

Another league meeting has been called for the radio station CHUC building, Cobourg on November 21, at 7.15 p.m. All possible entries are asked to attend.

Arch, Kearns Enthused Over African Tour

MONTREAL (CP) — Jack (Doc) Kearns said Wednesday night the United States state department has invited him to make a goodwill tour of Africa with light - heavyweight champion Archie Moore next summer.

Kearns said he and Archie are "enthused." The invitation, he said, was extended by G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams, undersecretary of state for African affairs.

They had tea down at this meeting in Washington. Everybody laughed when I told them we knew their budget was small and Archie and I would help out by possibly booking a few exhibitions. But we're willing to do it."

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League said Wednesday they have placed defensive back Cece Johnson on waivers and New York Giants have claimed him.

CARDS LOSE TACKLE

ST. LOUIS (CP)—Ken Panfil, St. Louis Cardinals' hard hitting tackle, was placed on the disabled list Wednesday for the remainder of the 1961 National Football League season.

Cards will replace him with centre Bob Griffin, a six-foot-three, 245-pound lineman from the University of Kansas who was once with Calgary Stampeders.

Panfil sprained his left knee as the Cards' first exhibition game of the season with Winnipeg Argonauts and saw only limited duty in three regular season games. He reinjured the knee Sunday against Detroit.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Calgary Stampeders, uh? All they have to do is defuse the Winnipeg Bombers and we might see a repeat of that wild, woolly, colorful, rampaging orgy of football madness that gave birth to the Grey Cup whoopee back in 1948.

This is the way I saw it on that history-making November 27. The column of November 29 is reprinted.

The Calgary Stampeders rode'd their way into the heart of staid old Tawrawnia in a colorful aura of the golden west over the weekend, took advantage of costly lapses of the east's Ottawa Rough Riders, zip-pee'd down town hotels, restaurants, etc., until early Sunday morn, then turned their faces west with the Grey Cup in their collective saddle-bags.

Second only to the spectacular victory of the Stampeders (they defeated Ottawa 12-7) were the celebrations before and after the classic. Four hundred cowboys and cowgirls complete with mustangs, chuck-wagons, and their colorful western garb took over Toronto. And Toronto liked it. Thousands of Ottawa supporters smiled through the tears of defeat. It was a tough game to lose but a glorious victory for these chapped cowpoke pig-skinners and their backers.

The most despondent player in the Rider dressing room after the game was Fred Stroda. He was the "goat" of one of the strangest plays ever seen in Canadian football. Karpuk, intended receiver for a wild lateral pass passed by Raffrath, stood by as the loose ball lay on the ground. He thought the referee's whistle had gone on the play. There it lay. Calgary's big Woody Strode, sensing the situation, grabbed the ball and galloped for the Rider goal-line. Riders came to life too late. Strode was overhauled at the Ottawa fifteen and lateralled to Michener who took it in the end zone. Thodes went over on the next play for the game-winning touchdown.

The final whistle was the signal for one of the wildest football field demonstrations ever seen in Toronto. Westerners supporting rooted their team, howling, shrieking, gesticulating. Players were lifted shoulder-high and carried off the field to the shrill whoops and yippees of western threats.

Downtown bedlam reigned. The Royal York, Calgary headquarters, was the scene of wild hilarity. Its rotunda was jam-packed with shouting western supporters and crowds of smiling onlookers. A cowboy band of guitars led by a pretty cowgirl played western favorites.

It was a colorful scene, featuring the boastful ten-gallon hats of the westerners and the fire-and-ice Stetsons of the overnight cowpokes from the down-town jungles of the city. Gay silk shirts in blue, red and yellow with the traditional spurs, sombreros, chaps, marked the western crew. Pretty western gals were their colored flat-topped Stetsons, gay scarves, spurs, and some of them, guns.

And plenty of the coin of the realm changed hands that day. Game-time odds were Riders 8-5 and eager cowboy hands reached for pokes to accommodate the eastern fetlock-holders. One of the biggest bets was $8,000-$5,000. Other assorted bets large, but the grizzled puncher chewed a toothpick, shoved back his well-worn Stetson and offered "Buh ranch and two of buh best hawses against your city hall." No takers.

We met Woody Strode and "Sugarfoot" Anderson, huge negro Stampeders, in the post-game press club party. Strode who picked up the ball when it lay loose in the fourth quarter, and who tipped the beam at six-five, pushed back a huge pure-white ten-gallon hat and grinned when asked about the play. "Seems these Riders don't know the rules. The ball just laid there asking for someone to pick it up, so I helped myself."

A feature of the Calgary victory was the touch-down completion of the historical "sleeper" play. Thrown by the entire Ottawa team Calgary's Norm Hill lay facedown inside the middle as Sid Stamps went into the huddle. Quarterback Keith Spaith faded back to pass. Would-be receivers spread out on the opposite side of the field, drawing Rider players with them.

Suddenly Spaith turned and let fly in the direction of Hill. The end leaped to his feet ran about 15 yards gathered in the ball on the one-yard line and stepped over for the TD. . .

Climb Into Second Spot

By LAURENT CHIASSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Eddie Shack has been labelled as over - rated. He's also been called a loafer and a troublemaker.

But the controversial 34-year-old Toronto Maple Leafs winger is a speed demon on skates who at times comes up with a play that makes spectators pop out of their seats.

Shack came up with a couple of these plays Wednesday night. One produced a goal which fired the Leafs to a 3-2 victory over Montreal Canadiens in one of two National Hockey League games.

The Leafs were trailing 2-1 when Shack carried the puck almost the length of the ice and then beat Montreal goalie Jacques Plante while lying on his back at 6:40 of the third period.

TIPS IN SLAP SHOT

In the other game, Bill Hay, a magician with the puck, banged home his first two goals of the season and goalie Glenn Hall stopped 26 shots for his second shutout to steer Chicago Black Hawks to a 2-0 triumph over Detroit Red Wings.

The two-win left Canadiens in first place, but only one point ahead of Maple Leafs who vaulted into second over idle New York Rangers. Montreal still has a game in hand while Toronto has 19 and New York 18.

Chicago, meanwhile, moved into a tie for fourth place with the Wings. Each team has 13 points. Boston Bruins are in the rear with nine.

His was a STRAOIENSHRDLU Canadiens get another chance tonight to widen their lead when they meet the Bruins at Boston in the league's only action.

He was raised a can't-miss professional prospect when New York brought him up at the start of the 1956-57 season. Rangers, convinced he would never attain his potential, dealt him off to the Leafs last season.

In 211 NHL games, he has scored only 34 goals — four of them this season.

But Toronto fans love him.

CRASHES INTO PLANTE

Leafs didn't appear to be getting anywhere Wednesday night until Shack steamed up the ice with one of his patented head- down drive. He crashed into Plante, then shot. For a split-second moment it appeared that Bobby Pulford had slapped in the loose puck but officials said no. It was Shack.

Shack again brought the crowd of 13,598 to its feet several minutes later when he cut across the Montreal goalmouth and ended up in a corner after Plante blocked his shot.

Sophomore Dave Keon got Toronto's other goal in the first period. For the Canadiens, Bernie Geoffrion scored in the second and Gilles Tremblay gave them a brief 2-1 lead early in the third.

Both Plante and Leafs Johnny Bower were sensational in the nets. Bower wound up with 25 saves while Plante stopped 25 shots.

Canadiens dressed all their walking wounded as Geoffrion and Ralph Backstrom, both injured last Saturday, flew into Toronto from Montreal before game time. Leafs Red Kelly, feared a casualty because of the flu, also dressed.

HAY SCORES PAIR

At Chicago, Hay scored his two goals off power plays.

His first came midway through the first period when he stole the puck from Detroit's Leo Labine 15 feet in front of the Red Wings net and skated in to beat goalie Terry Sawchuk at the goalmouth. Alan Johnson of the Wings was in the penalty box at the time.

Defenceman Warren Godfrey was serving a minor infraction when Hay beat Sawchuk. Ross Brooks and Stan Mikita each have two. Brooks is Head of Boston chalked up the other.

Tight - checking was a feature of the game throughout the third meeting of the season between last spring's Stanley Cup finalists. The other engagements ended in ties — 3-3 at Detroit and 2-2 at Chicago.

Roger Nips Mick for MVP Title

BAYTOWN, Mo. (AP) — Home - run king Roger Maris, sporting his second most valuable player award to his many seasons, looks to the American League season as a challenge to keep on doing his "very best to help the Yankees in another pennant."

The reticent slugger, who socked 61 home runs last season to surpass Babe Ruth's total of 60, again edged out Yankee slayer Mickey Mantle for the award in voting by 20 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Maris received 202 points to Mantle's 196. A year ago he beat Mantle by only three points.

Jim Gentile, Baltimore's first baseman, was third in the poll with 157 points, Norm Cash, Detroit first baseman, fourth with 131 points and Yankee pitcher Whitey Ford fifth with 108.

Stamp Back Voted Western Rookie of Year

REGINA (CP)—Larry Robinson, 19-year-old flanking halfback with Calgary Stampeders, has been voted rookie-of-the-year in the Western Football Conference, league officials announced Wednesday. Robinson is a graduate of the Mount Royal College Cougars, a junior team in Calgary. He will receive the Dr. Beattie Martin Trophy, awarded annually to the league's top rookie in memory of the late Dr. Martin, a prominent football executive here.

FIRST BLOOD FOR LEAFS — Dave Keon of Toronto Maple Leafs hits puck past sprawling goalie Jacques Plante of Montreal Canadiens in the first period of last night's National Hockey League game in Toronto. Leafs scored on the play to take a 1-0 lead in the first period en route to a 3-2 victory. (CP Wirephoto)

Heads Stamps Shotgun Offence

'Trigger' Day Is Bomber Target

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Coach Bud Grant hinted Wednesday night that his Winnipeg Blue Bombers will try to spike Calgary Stampeders' shotgun offence in the Western Football Conference final by working on its trigger—quarterback Eagle Day.

Grant said in an interview that Bombers have a different defensive theory" for coping with the shotgun — otherwise known as the spread or short punt formation—from the one employed by Edmonton Eskimos in the league semi - final last weekend.

The Stampeders defeated the Eskimos 27-26 in the two-game, total-points semi - final to advance against the Bombers, who earned a bye into the final when they captured first place in regular league play.

The first game of the best-of-three final is at Calgary Saturday. The second game is at Winnipeg Wednesday night, and the third, if necessary, at Winnipeg Nov. 25.

The outstanding feature of the third - place Stampeders' upset over the second-place Eskimos was their switch to the shotgun formation, with Day standing in the slot, about seven yards behind the centre, and taking a direct snap to start plays.

Day, with more time to throw than he had when working from Stamps' conventional T-formation, passed with deadly effect against the Eskimos.

Grant said Edmonton's basic defence against the spread was to "rush four men and drop back eight to cover potential receivers."

He said Bombers were inclined to favor the theory of rushing seven or eight men in on Day and dropping only four or five to cover receivers.

MAY THROW OFF

"We've had pretty good success with putting a big rush on Eagle — although we haven't faced him in the spread. But we feel that if we press him hard, even if he isn't nailed, his throwing won't be accurate."

At Calgary, meanwhile, coach Bob Dobbs said he is especially concerned about offensive blocking by the Stampeders, particularly in the backfield.

"We don't have a strong blocking backfield such as Winnipeg or Edmonton," he remarked.

Both clubs are expected to be healthy for the first game.

Fuller Gets OK

Can Deposit Million

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's athletic commissioner has assured fight manager Peter Fuller of Boston it's all right for Fuller to put up $1,000,000 as guarantee of a rematch between heavyweight boxing champion Floyd Patterson and challenger Tom McNeeley.

In Boston Fuller, millionaire manager of McNeeley, said he had received a communication from Toronto and if he was satisfied that it gave the commission's official approval of the Dec. 4 title fight in Toronto between the champion and McNeeley, he would deposit the money.

Cus D'Amato, Patterson's manager, accused Fuller Tuesday of not living up to his contract because he had not deposited $1,000,000 in a bank as a guarantee of a return bout.

Merv MacKenzie, Ontario athletic commissioner, said "there's nothing out of line in Fuller not putting up the money so far."

Cullen Gets Three For Bisons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A spectacular performance by Barry Cullen brought the Buffalo Bisons solo—if possibly momentary — control of first place in the Western Division of the American Hockey League Wednesday night.

The 26-year-old right winger pumped in three goals and assisted on another as Bisons whipped Providence Reds 5-3. The victory pulled the Bisons out of a first place tie with the Rochester Americans and gave them a two-point lead.

Cullen, skating on the same line with brother Brian, set up Bob Cleary with a first-period goal, struck for two in the second period and another in the third.

PAPPAS INJURED

BALTIMORE (AP) — Milt Pappas, 25-year-old pitcher for Baltimore Orioles, suffered a minor injury to his right throwing hand in an auto accident Tuesday, Pappas also hurt his knees and throat when he was thrown against the steering wheel of his car.

Sic Sample On Giants Shofner

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether or not Johnny Sample is a troublemaker, Pittsburgh Steelers would take more likes him. The man who walked out of the Baltimore Colts camp after an argument with coach Weeb Ewbank leads the National Football League in pass interceptions as a valuable member of the Steelers defense.

Coach Buddy Parker assigns Sample to the enemy's top pass catcher each week. Although Parker hasn't tipped his hand, it is expected he will put Sample on Del Shofner of New York Giants here Sunday.

"I hope he does," said Sample in Pittsburgh. "Shofner is the toughest man in the league for me and I'd like to get even. He gave me a real bad day in 1958, my first year, when he was with Los Angeles and I was with the Colts."

Sample, who has eight interceptions as compared with a total of five in three previous years as a pro, said he thinks he gets more chance to grab off passes from his new cornerback job instead of his old safety spot.

"When you play safety they usually try to throw away from you," he said. "In the corner you usually play their best receiver. They are not going to throw away from him, so you get a chance."

As for the end of his relations with Baltimore, Sample says: "Ewbank and I had a disagreement. He thought I should be fined because I didn't catch a kickoff seven yards deep in the end zone in an exhibition game. . . . I told Ewbank I just couldn't catch it."

Toronto HL Founder Honored

TORONTO (CP) — Frank D. Smith, founder of the Toronto Hockey League, was guest of honor Wednesday night at a dinner to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the league which today embraces 200 minor hockey players.

Seated under a huge photograph of himself, Smith heard Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, say it was impossible to pay him proper tribute.

A telegram from Prime Minister Diefenbaker congratulated him on "the fine contribution you have made to the development of Canada's greatest sport."

Among the 500 guests were many whose hockey careers began in the THL.

GLASGOW WINS OPENER

BERLIN (Reuters) — Glasgow Rangers beat Vorwaerts of East Germany 2-1 in the first leg of their European Cup competition Wednesday. The second leg will be played either in Austria or Sweden because Vorwaerts cannot get travel visas to Britain or any other NATO country.

Chase Gal Will Chase Boy in Race

MANCHESTER, Conn. (AP) — Julia Chase, 13 - year - old Smith College sophomore, can run in the Manchester marathon years born today but it won't be official.

The Amateur Athletic Union and the meet directors have refused to accept her application.

It is believed Miss Chase will run anyway.

Miss Chase — outdistanced eight men in a 4½-mile race at Chicopee, Mass., where she was the unofficial participant, and finished 34th in a field of 42.

Julia, who specializes in 440- and 880-yard women's events, trained with Johnny Kelley, one-time winner of the Boston Marathon, and trainer George Terry, a former marathoner.

Both Offensives Equal

Ti-Cats, Argos Depend On Defence

TORONTO (CP)—Both Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats have the type of go-for-broke attack that can up a basketful of touchdowns when all the gears are meshing.

That being the case, the outcome of the two - game, total-points Eastern Football Conference final may rest on the performance of the defensive squads.

The Ticats have a well-schooled crew of specialists in the job and the ability, at least in the words of coach Jim Trimble, to confuse the Argos' now-found scatter-gun pass pattern.

The Argonauts, on the other hand, have speed to spare in the defensive backfield but at the expense of working some key players both ways—which could mean trouble if anybody gets hurt.

Trimble, aside from declaring that Toronto's spread formation can be stopped, didn't venture much when he addressed the Hamilton Quarterback Club Wednesday on the prospects of the first game in Exhibition Stadium here Sunday.

"We think our offence is better than theirs," he said. "We hope our defence will be adequate."

Trimble later made it official that end Hal Patterson will play for the first time in six weeks. The great pass receiver, acquired this season from Montreal Alouettes, has been sitting out what was officially described as a shoulder injury while the Hamilton front office persistently denied rumors that it was something more serious.

It was also announced, to the surprise of many, that there is a possibility neither George Scott nor Garver Shannon will be in the lineup.

Instead, Trimble may continue with Milian Wall, the rookie from North Carolina, at offensive halfback. This would give him a rearguard reserve, since both Wall and Patterson are adept in defence.

That was the game in which Toronto unveiled the spread formation—in which the quarterback stands eight to 10 yards behind the line of scrimmage with potential receivers scattered all the way to the sidelines.

Voted Outstanding Players

Faloney, Parker Tops

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernie Faloney of Hamilton Tiger-Cats has been voted most outstanding football player in the East and Jackie Parker of Edmonton Eskimos was the choice in the West, it was announced today.

One more ballot will be held to decide which of the two quarterbacks is the most outstanding player in the Canadian Football League. The choice will be announced in Toronto during the Grey Cup Week and the winner presented with an award donated annually by a distillery.

Voting is by sports writers and broadcasters in the five Western Conference cities.

Also announced were the eastern and western choices for two other awards:

Outstanding Canadian player —Defensive end Tony Pajaczkowski, Calgary Stampeders; halfback Bobby Kunst, Toronto Argonauts.

Parker, former all-American from Mississippi State, already has won the outstanding player award three times in his eight-year career with the Eskimos —in 1957, 1958 and 1960.

It's not new to the Ticats, who used it with devastating effect back in 1958. Trimble's view is that Toronto's initial success had much to do with element of surprise and that will no longer be present in the series to pick the East's Grey Cup representative.

Four Printed Biographies On Life of Clark Gable

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clark Gable, who died a year ago today, already is the subject of four printed biographies.

The authors are his widow, his former secretary and two professional biographers.

Clark Gable — A Personal Portrait (Prentice - Hall) bears the byline of Kathleen Gable, last of the star's five wives. It is indeed personal, perhaps too much so for some readers. But others will find it rewarding for a view of Gable's final years.

The tone is set on the first page: "I needed all of Clark's courage and strength that night I left his hospital room for the last time. They had told me he was gone. But, of course, I tried to hold onto him. Heartstricken, I wouldn't let go. For two hours I held him in my arms.

FACED FUTURE

"Finally, I did what my husband would have expected me to do — I faced up to it. Pa was gone. I touched his cold face with my hand, said a farewell, and I walked out of the room . . ."

Another intimate view is offered in Dear Mr. G— (Little, Brown) by Jean Garceau with Alex Chobe. Miss Garceau was employed by Gable for 21 years, and her book proves that a man can be a hero to his own secretary.

The King: The Story of Clark Gable (Coward - McCann) is the work of Charles Samuels, author of Gable's authorized, factual memoir of Ethel Waters. Already serialized, the Gable book is to be published in January.

NEW OBJECTIVE

Samuels takes a more existential and perhaps more objective view of Gable. Much of the book is necessarily twice - told tales. But there are also some disclosures that may surprise readers. Among them:

That Gable was a close man with a buck; that he was estranged from his father for many years; that he hated the "Adventures" ad line, Gable's back and Garson's got him"; that he was obsessed with cleanliness.

Clark Gable (Pyramid) is a workmanlike job by newspaperman George Carpozi Jr. of the major events of the actor's life.

'Yours for a Song' Not Likely to Have Long Life

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — David Levy, who as NBC vice-president in charge of television programming locked into place the network's popular schedule for the season now on hand, left this week at the industry's he's left behind.

In a speech before students of the University of Pennsylvania's School of Communications Levy particularly condemned TV's tendency to create "trends" in program content. Levy expressed hope that just because NBC's new Dr. Kildare and ABC's new Ben Casey — both series concerned with physicians — have been received by large hospitals — have been proved hits, that the networks would refrain from following them up with a flood of series about young dentists, young psychiatrists or young ophthalmologists.

He could not have been more adroit in pinpointing one of TV's big troubles.

ABC demonstrated this theme when the network's new audience participation show, Yours for a Song had its evening premiere Tuesday.

The new show has many obvious ancestor—Stop the Music, Name that Tune, Give My Regards. The big, "new" item is that when contestants have finished trying to supply missing lyrics for old, awfully well-known songs, the studio audience joins in and sings the last chorus. And so do, I suppose, the folks at home, because the words are flashed on the screen. Remind you of anything?

Yours for a Song is a shabby, dull show in spite of all the borrowing from successful ones—and because it is so imitative and contrived it deserves a short life.

General Tendencies: This is one of your best of days — a time when you can see very clearly what is best for you at the present time and the manner by which you can gain your long-range goals as well as more temporary ones by definite action and—Now! Be sure you hold to a high moral and ethical standard of conduct for best results.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) This is the day when that important data you have waited for some time can be given you by key people quietly and confidentially, provided you first tell your reasons and ambitions. They will then assist you willingly.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—Your associates, kin, comrades are now in a mood to lend a helping hand in whatever aims are yours and of pitch and moment. Contact them, be specific, honest. Dine out in p.m. Get about socially — combine business with pleasure.

(ADVT.)
Chapped Skin
Get fast, soothing relief from painful chapped skin with Mentholatum Ointment. Gently medicated to soften and comfort chapped areas, promote healing.
Widely Mentholatum Ointment

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Now is the right time to confide ambitions to higher-ups and get their co-operation as well as impress them with the quality of work you are capable of doing. The evening should then be carefree and full of fun with good friends.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — With all the new cuticles and ideas at your fingertips now, plus the many persons who are desirous of entering without your orbit, it behooves you to think and act progressively and do some entertaining in the evening. Expand.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — An ideal day to confer with close kin and make constructive and progressive plans for the future. Later, get the aid of expert employees to help you solve any problems or whatever is puzzling to you at this time. Be generous.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—First day to cement better relations with all associates, customers, close ties, etc. Also, much pertinent information can be found in your newspaper. Look for it! Delve into some favorite hobby with good friends in p.m.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—If you work really hard now, you can increase abundance appreciably on today's efforts. Be grateful to co-workers instead of critical. Buy that fix wardrobe. Take health treatments needed.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Every opportunity is yours now to have a wonderful day and night, provided though you set up appointments early and then groom yourself to perfection for the activities planned. Forget all else and concentrate on romance tonight.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Listen to the suggestions of kin, if you want to better your position in life as well as old their interests. Then carry through with plans made reliously and be sure you get regular daily chores handled efficiently.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Fine benefits come to you from trusted allies, provided you first tell them of your needs and ambitions. Evening is ideal for social fun and increasing circle of friends, especially those of influence and power. Be happy.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Raise your level of consciousness at least, if you do take definite action today on plans to increase income appreciably, but striking while the iron is hot is best so that you get wonderful results. Think and get rich.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) The first day in some time for whatever it is you have in mind. You are magnetic and charming and can easily sway key people. Be direct and honest in your approach and you will get fine results. Stop being timid!

If your child is born today—he, or she, will be one of those remarkable people who can be very successful in almost anything the mind and hand is turned to, since there is a whole array of talents in this nature. It is of utmost importance that you give early spiritual training as well as fine academic courses in order to bring out all the fine promis: in this fascinating and dynamic chart.

DESERONTO

Four Patterns of Living Outlined at Commencement

DESERONTO — Very capably catching the interest of her audience with her opening remarks, Dr. Isabell Laird, assistant professor of Psychology at Queen's University made a distinct impression at the annual high school commencement on Thursday evening.

Addressing the pupils graduating she remarked on how the middle-aged group annoys the younger crowd. As a warning she stressed that it would only be a short time before the youths would become the middle-aged group. Using amusing family experiences to relieve the serious aspect of her talk, she kept the crowded auditorium eagerly anticipating her every sentence. She pointed out that there are four patterns of living or behavior that influence our approach to life and the results that can be expected.

The first is inside our own family, where we learn family life and the behavior of adults. The second is in getting used to living with others. In the initial stage sex does not matter as the very young play together for the sake of play. The second stage is when the children cannot stand the opposite sex, and the third stage is when the opposite sexes cannot stay away from one another. She emphasized that when one looks at other people as adults, one is growing up from adolescence.

ATTITUDE TO WORK

The third pattern is in our attitude to work. Youngsters do not make up their minds at the age of 15 what they are going to do for the rest of their lives. Some of those present in the crowd would fill jobs not even known of now. Perhaps they would man space platforms that would be used on trips to the moon. The fourth pattern was in what use one makes of his time and she exhorted the graduating class to continually move forward in political, religious and aesthetic thinking.

In conclusion, she spoke of the work of the staff in preparing for graduation and life.

Miss Lorraine Harvey very capably acted as mistress of ceremonies and welcomed the parents and others to the school. The presentation of certificates was handled with a verve that did not detract from the solemnity of the occasion. Miss Cathy Murphy and chairman Dr. Laird, was capable and concise, showing to advantage the spirit of her school.

In extending congratulations to the school rugby team, school principal Eric L. Quirk, in the absence of Mr. McGregor, told of the team finishing the schedule without a point scored against it. A considerable achievement as it is recognized that there are only 36 pupils in the school and only 35 of these are boys.

A short exhibition of the Charleston was given by Cathy Murphy and Linda Kimmett.

The final item of the evening was a one-act play by six pupils. This was extremely well presented and each of those in the act displayed talent. The interest in the unfolding of the plot was well maintained until the final curtain. Exceptionally good is her part was Linda Kimmett, who showed considerable natural talent and acted her part to perfection.

It is only two years since The Canadian Save the Children Fund dollars built Telsorico nursery centre to help just thirty children from the poorest part of the town. The only development of its kind in all South Italy, the Telsorico nursery is already a model for new Italian-sponsored projects.

Peasants who have never experienced a life beyond starvation level are leaving together to provide a better life for their children. In Sicy, remote villages where "home" is a cave hewn from the hillside and shared with the farm animals, children are receiving the first hot meals of their lives, their first chance of schooling or medical care.

Already Telsorico nursery itself is too small to deal with the growing numbers of children in the area, and plans to extend it are in hand. Now that the Italian authorities have assured financial responsibility for maintaining this nursery, only the new building needs financing by the CSCF.

Zach Christmas, the CSCF appeals to all Canadians to help continue this work. Send your contribution to the fund. The address is Canadian Save the Children Fund, 68 Hayter Street, Toronto 2.

Focus on Health

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Intelligence, a new technique to avoid scars and burns, and healthy executives.

INTELLIGENCE ENDURES

When older people stay healthy and vigorous, age does not seem to be any decline in their intelligence with the advancing years, says Dr. Robert W. Kleemeier, Washington University psychologist.

He gave intelligence tests at intervals over a 15-year period to persons aged 65 to 90. He found no evidence for the idea there is a normal and steady intellectual decline with the years. But in those who were soon to die, regardless of age, the tests picked up a sharp drop in performance.

BURNS WITHOUT SCARS

For severe burns, a Belgian plastic surgeon uses a bold new technique which he proces avoids scars and deformities.

Under anesthesia, Dr. Jean Lorthior of Brussels "sandpapers" the burned area, immediately with a high-speed abrasive drill to remove the dead tissue. A month after the scraping, the skin has been restored, and in nearly all cases it eliminates any scarring, the Medical World News.

TELL-TALE HELMET

Seeking basic information on causes, two Northwestern University faculty members plan to put tiny measuring instruments and a radio inside a player's helmet, to radio back data on what happens during impact, and what happens to the brain activity of a man in an actual game.

HEALTHY EXECUTIVES

Popularized, the building executive is thought of as a "harried and hassled man driven inexorably forward to early death."

But this concept is not supported by findings by Robert J. Thorner, M.D., and R. L. Crumpacker, M.D., of Washington, D.C. in a 10-year study of 431 male executives.

The executives had less than half the death rate expected among the general white male population of comparable age. A male cause of 11 deaths among the businessmen was heart attacks, but seven their heart attack rate did not seem excessive. A high standard of living and good medical care apparently help executives live longer than the average man.

UN TO PUNISH CONGO ARMY BUTCHERS

Kennedy Assails War-Mongers And Appeasers

Cannot Be U.S. Solution For All World Problems

Absent-Minded Boss Neglected To Don Pants

NEWCASTLE - ON - TYNE (AP) — Norman Gilbertson was so absent - minded he walked around his office with his trousers off—in the presence of his female assistant.

"That could be a serious thing," said Judge Cyril Newcastle Thursday. "But I have evidence, which I accept, that he was carried away doing about partly changed."

Gilbertson was caught with his trousers down when the police broke out in the movie theatre he managed.

Someone fitted into his office and found him in the process of changing his clothes and trouserless.

But the judge, ruling this was not evidence of misconduct, rejected the divorce suit.

SEATTLE (AP) — President Kennedy says the United States must be willing to negotiate cold war issues from a position of strength. To reach either war or surrender, he says, does a disservice to the country.

As the Western allies renew efforts to unify their stand toward Russia, Kennedy Thursday made clear these views:

1. To consider either "appeasement or war, suicide or surrender," will divide the country, create uncertainty among allies and inspire doubt in the Communist bloc of the West's readiness to defend its rights.

"The United States cannot impose its will on another," he said. "There cannot be an American solution for every world problem."

2. The United States will never negotiate merely for the sake of negotiation, nor will it ever subject freedom to negotiation. But it will not let arrangements and goals are clear, he says. "We have no fear of talks or negotiations to the appropriate end, but nothing to gain by refusing to play a game in term."

3. Talking out East-West disputes will succeed only if each side can find success in the result. In effect, neither side can expect total victory.

Although the French and others may see weaknesses in the United States in living with Russia, "this nation has confidence in its democratic" the setting and conditions of negotiations.

Kennedy was pressed by some of failing to marshal public support for the Western aims, set forth those warnings and objectives at the outset of a western tour.

Dressed in his academic robe he addressed 11,000 faculty members, students and guests at University of Washington's 100th anniversary convocation.

It was intended to prevent certain nations from adopting neutrality, as he termed certain others from abandoning it," he said in the text.

In deference he deleted that declaration in favor of: "We welcome the efforts of genuinely neutrals who are our friends and sympathetic to us and others who call themselves neutral who are unremittingly hostile to us".

Prisoner Gets Transfer After Stiff Compliant

MONTREAL (CP) — A prisoner at Bordeaux Jail Thursday told a judge that after a disturbance at the jail this week guards locked the agitators in "the hole" and lobbed tear gas shells inside.

"What happened was terrible, really terrible," said Claude Wagner, 22, in making a plea for transfer to St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary.

"It was a miracle we did not all die of asphyxiation. There were other young fellows there who were panic-stricken. . . . They started crying for their mothers. . . . They thought sure they were all going to die of gas."

Wagner also said he was mistreated by guards and suffered a fractured nose and a jaw injury that prevented him from chewing. He said he received no medical treatment.

"I want you to get me out of there Your Honor," said Wagner.

Judge Gerald Almond approved the transfer and instructed a Crown prosecutor to make an immediate report to Sheriff L. P. Caisse about the complaints.

REAPTIRE VIEWS

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Roman Catholic bishops have declared their remain unanimously opposed to "any form of general federal aid to education that discriminates against children attending non - public schools". That declaration Thursday was described as a reaffirmation of the bishops' stand last March which was a major factor in the failure of President Kennedy's administration's school aid bills to reach the House of Representatives floor for debate in the last session.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis:—The strong northwesterly winds which developed behind Thursday's storm are bringing much cooler air to Ontario. By the morning temperatures had dropped to near 40 in Southern Ontario and will remain near that during the day, falling to near 30 overnight. On Saturday winds will be lighter but temperatures will continue cool.

PROTESTANTS ALLOWED TO ADOPT RC CHILD

Precedent-Setting Court Ruling Made

SOUTH RIVER, Ont. (CP)—When Oliver Lamb and his wife have welcomed a 23-day-old infant into their home in this village 35 miles south of North Bay, they unwittingly set the scene for one of Ontario's most celebrated court decisions—that Ontario couples need not be of the same faith as the baby they seek to adopt.

All the Lambs knew at the time was that baby, John Joseph Patrick, had been placed in their home and because a Roman Catholic couple could be found who were willing to take him.

That was just under five years ago, in January, 1957. Since then baby John has become a full - fledged member of the Lamb family, with 10 months after Joey's arrival was swelled by the Lambs' adoption of a girl.

On Thursday Mrs. Lamb heard her "most wonderful news" when the words used to describe the written judgment by Judge Walter Little of Parry Sound.

Judge Little, in a precedent-setting ruling, gave Oliver Lamb to adopt Joey, and in so doing ruled that Ontario couples need not be of the same religious faith as the child they wish to adopt. He made no ruling as to which faith the child should follow.

MAY BE ONE OF MANY

Joey, baptized as a Roman Catholic a few days after his birth, will become the son of a couple who both belong to the South River United Church, and barring an appeal he may be the first of thousands of similar adoptions.

Ontario's Protestants, Jews and Roman Catholics have always been told they must adopt children of their own religious persuasion, despite the fact that the supply of adoptable children in their faith rarely matches the demand from that faith.

But Judge Little ruled the traditional faith is not the law. He found nothing in Ontario's Child Welfare Act which says that a child born to a Roman Catholic mother and baptized in such faith must be adopted by Protestants or vice versa."

The Act does say the statutory bar to the making of an adoption order on the basis of religion, if there say reason why religion should be an obstacle! In my opinion it is not."

Judge Little said depriving a child of the advantages which to us".

British Government Uses Closure To Choke off Immigration Debate

LONDON (CP)—The government, battered and mauled in Thursday's debate on the Commonwealth immigrants bill, on a day appeared to be headed for the closure vote which would end to reduce the flow of migrants into Britain.

The Conservatives Thursday night choked off the debate on the second reading by moving the closure motion and then used their big majority to defeat a Labor amendment announcing the bill because of its color bar implications.

The first signs of trouble came during the debate itself when a number of Tory members expressed their misgivings about the bill and indicated that they could not support it.

In the stormy, bitter session in which the air was charged with the government without quarter, Conservative Nigel Fisher said it was on Commonwealth grounds that he opposed the whole underlying idea of the bill.

It seemed strange to him that at a time when, in Africa, Britain was attacking apartheid and preaching partnership, the government should be taking powers to exclude colored British citizens. This was really a form of apartheid, he said.

What roused the ire of some Conservative backbenchers was the government's decision to exclude citizens of the Irish republic from the number of the Commonwealth.

U Thant Considers Sending More UN Troops to Congo

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Acting Secretary - General U Thant today considered sending more United Nations troops to The Congo to deal with the Katanga crisis as anger mounted over the slaying of 13 Italian airmen by mutinous Congolese soldiers.

U Thant discussed the situation with Maj.-Gen. Sean McKeown, commander of the UN Congo force, and Conor Cruise O'Brien, chief UN representative in Katanga, who were ordered home to brief him on the grave turn of events.

McKeown, on arrival Thursday the UN needs more men and equipment to deal the same faith as the baby they with the Katanga crisis. He asked that those responsible for the slayings would have to be apprehended but that this would be difficult since Congolese officers have lost control over their troops.

The UN Congo force once numbered more than 22,000 men but is down to 15,460 since the withdrawal of contingents from Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Morocco, Sweden and the United Arab Republic. It is expected to lose the Nigerian contingent of 1,711 within a few weeks. Canada has about 100 men in the Congo force.

U Thant denounced the slaying of the 13 airmen as an outrage against humanity and ordered the UN Congo command to make sure all responsible get the punishment they deserve. A dispatch from Leopoldville said Mutinous Congolese troops are being flown to the scene of the massacre to encircle and "neutralize" apparently meaning disarm — the mutinous Congolese.

The murder sent a wave of revulsion through UN headquarters as details were disclosed in a report from Shure Linner, chief UN officer in the Congo. Linner said the Italians were beaten and shot, then cut to pieces and left in their dead-membered bodies distributed to the crowd.

There were expressions of outrage from the United States, Britain, France and other members of the Security Council

Couple With Throats Cut Found in Toronto Lodgings

Police launched a city-wide search for a car with United States license plates seen in front of the house during the night. They said the deaths appeared to be double murder.

Thomas Crater, 30, of Jean Rochelle, 28, Negroes, were found dead early today by night police officer Frank McGuire, a resident of the house.

McGuire returned home from work to find Crater's body, clad in underwear, sprawled in the front vestibule. The nude body of the woman was discovered on a bed in a front room.

Police said Crater was almost decapitated.

Detectives said they knew little about the murdered pair, who moved into the house in mid-October, and appeared to be unemployed.

Canadian Affairs Parley To Hear Separatist Leader

QUEBEC (CP) — The Canadian Affairs Conference at Laval University hears from separatist leader Marcel Chaput today when he told that Confederation must be remade if Canada is to survive.

Dr. Chaput, forbidden earlier this week to speak in front of free his job at the Defence Research Board in Ottawa, told conference delegates Thursday he is coming on his own initiative.

The conference, attended by students from 30 Canadian universities, has been told previously that "if Confederation is not a failure, it is in very bad shape in our eyes."

The separatist claim came from Andre Laurendeau, editor of Montreal Le Devoir, who said if French-Canadians in Quebec are to avoid a fatal rupture they must work together to remake Confederation."

"If a growing segment of French-Canadian opinion feels Canada as foreign . . . I am afraid that we are sliding into an intolerable road towards rupture," Mr. Laureedeau said.

He spoke after Mr. Eugene Forsey, research director of the Canadian Labor Congress, told English - Canadians will soon "have to sit down and work hard to make Canada a success."

Dr. Forsey said there is a real danger English - Canada will perish through inertia unless they "organize for survival and be swallowed by the United States. French - Can. ada, on the other hand, will have "ground in the United States unless they have French-Canadian brethren have been."

Mr. Laureendeau said that Quebec is not alone in its anti-Confederation cultural affairs was published in Toronto. Struggle, fear of United States cultural dominance were unite French- and English-Canadians.

But instead, the two groups had drawn apart. Separatism had appeared in Quebec and in English - Canada it appeared Canadian indifference were winning.

Mr. Laureendeau and Dr. Forsey discussed whether Canada is one or two nations. They agreed, generally, it is two nations inside a single state.

Adenauer Wants More Control of Nuclear Weapons

BONN (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer says the North Atlantic Treaty Organization must be given authority to order nuclear weapons fired. The clear weapons assigned to its members a power now held only by President Kennedy.

Adenauer told a press conference Thursday he opposes any negotiations with Russia from the strongest of bargain positions. He said he is "appalled for strengthening of NATO military forces by giving them to wage nuclear warfare without White House clearance.

"I base this on an expert opinion by Gen. (Adolph) Heusinger who said that one hour may decide our fate and that the president may not be reached able to make a decision," Adenauer said. Heusinger, former chief of the West German armed forces, became chairman of the permanent NATO military committee last April.

Adenauer said that any change to NATO the possibility to make nuclear weapons available to atomic weapons' before Kennedy can be asked," in case of an emergency.

At present, NATO has nuclear weapons on the European continent, but they are under exclusive U.S. control. Changes in the McMahon Act of the Atomic Energy Act before the weapons can be released to the heads could be shared with other nations.

Adenauer said that U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, NATO supreme commander, "submitted a plan in September, 1960, to the previous administration but because of the change in power it not acted upon."

"As far as I know that plan now is before Kennedy," he added.

Norstad proposed to the annual meeting of the NATO parliamentarians' conference last November that "there should be a basic pool of atomic weapons with an equal voice in control of those weapons." He said the plan might satisfy the desire of some NATO members to develop their own nuclear weapon stocks.

NEW PREMIER FACES DEADLINE TO FILL SEATS

Can't Call Elections While House Sits

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts is faced with a four-day deadline if he wants to fill vacant seats in the Ontario legislature before early next summer.

The premier said Thursday: "No decision has been made."

If he should decide to call by-elections in the five vacant ridings as a test of his new government's support, early January would be the most likely time.

The Election Act gives the government until next Tuesday —the day before the 28th legislature begins its fifth session —in which to call the by-elections.

The act prohibits the calling of elections while the house is sitting. Since the act also specifies a minimum of 27 days during the interval between the calling of an election and voting day, that would set the by — election date at probably late May or early June, depending on when the forthcoming session ends.

But should he decide to hold by-elections in the next few months, the premier is faced with a legislative deadline. Out of 44 clear days between the issuance of election writs and the actual polling day, the municipal clerks in motion next Tuesday, the earliest voting date would be Jan. 4.

FROST WAS RELUCTANT

Former premier Roberts had previously ruled out by - elections until a planned redistribution of electoral districts could be completed at the forthcoming session. But polling could be held in the five seats—Beaches - Woodbine, Dovercourt and Eglinton — were vacant Thursday.

In recent weeks, three other members have died, leaving Renfrew South, Brant and Kenora without representation.

Those who have died had been held by Conservatives—Minister Without Portfolio William J. Dunlop in Eglinton, William Hastings in Beaches and Mines Minister Alan Manning in Renfrew South — while Harry Watson had held Brant for the Liberals and Albert Wren had held the Labor representative from Kenora.

The Conservatives hold 88 of the 117 seats in the legislature, the Liberals 20 and the New Democratic Party nine.

BRANTFORD (CP) — Twenty - eight parking meters smashed by coin thieves were repaired and put into service here three days ago. The same 28 meters were again smashed open again Thursday.

Rescued Child's Feet Shrivelled And Skin Colored a Deep Pink

MIAMI (AP)—Pretty, flaxen-haired Terry Jo Duperrault, frozen feet by 36 days aboard a life raft in the Atlantic, was in critical condition today, but her doctors said "I think she will make it."

A spokesman at Mercy Hospital said 11-year-old Terry Jo was drowsy and there had been little change since she was brought in by Coast Guard helicopter Thursday.

The Green Bay, Wis., child clung to a rain - soaked cork raft, riding a sea made choppy by 35-miles - an - hour winds, since Oct. 13 when her feet were shrivelled from long exposure to the salt water and her skin was colored a deep pink from the sun.

Terry Jo previously had been reported lost with four others, including her father, mother and brother, Brian, 14, when a chartered ketch, the Blue Belle, capsized in heavy seas about 50 miles southwest of Nassau, Bahamas.

But Thursday a message came from a merchant ship, the Mizuki Maru, saying a child had been picked up from a life raft. The skipper requested medical advice from the Coast Guard.

The child was given a small amount of water and orange juice and put to bed while a Coast Guard helicopter flew to meet the freighter 85 miles off Miami.

The helicopter was unable to land on the freighter and lifted Terry Jo in a basket. She awoke briefly.

"She went right back to sleep after we put her inside the copter and didn't say a thing," said Lt.-Comdr. Robert Pope, the pilot.

Dr. Franklyn Verdon said Terry Jo was suffering from exposure, loss of fluid, a heart murmur and shock because of shock and the threat of pneumonia.

"I think she will make it—I think she will live," he said.

The skipper of the Blue Belle, Capt. Julian Harvey, 45, was found in a lifeboat with the Coast Guard cutter, Ingham, on Oct. 7, Monday and taken to Nassau by a passing freighter. Harvey was suffering from shock and exposure. He said he found the body of Renee Boating in her jacket.

Also aboard the 60-foot ketch on a cruise of Bahamian waters were Terry Jo's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Duperrault, and Mary Dene Harvey, wife of the captain.

An extensive search by Coast Guard planes and surface vessels failed to turn up any trace of them. The Coast Guard said the search will be intensified.

Terry Jo had drifted about 14 or 15 miles from the spot where the Blue Belle went down after the mainmast crashed through the hull and fire broke out.

Malayan Troops Rushed To Kindu To Open Attack

Given Orders to Encircle And Disarm the Killers

ELISABETHVILLE Reuters—UN planes have attacked three strongholds of mutinous national Congolese army troops in the Kindu province, according to radio reports received here today.

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—United Nations flew Malayan troops to Kindu today to round up and punish Congolese Army butchery of 13 Italian UN airmen.

Thousands of Malayans were flown to the Lulaba river port Kindu province with orders to encircle and disarm the killers and others in a force of 1,000 reported to have been part of the mutiny by the Congo's Lumumbist vice-premier, Antoine Gizenga.

About 80 of the drunken and undisciplined soldiers — identified by a 200-man Malayan contingent early at the Kindu airfield—shot and cut to pieces the men the town prison Saturday.

Cries of "They are Flemish pigs" were the cry repeated in the massacre. Parts of the bodies were tossed to excited spectators.

The military mob had set upon the Italians as they dined in the Malayan officers' mess after landing two transports to deliver powdered milk and hospital supplies.

BRINGING IN REST

The UN organization in The Congo, headed by Sture Linner of Sweden, immediately ordered the arrest of the Congolese commander at Kindu (who disowned responsibility by declaring "You know how soldiers are") and brought about the United Nations-Congolese commission to seek out "the responsible officers."

In a report to New York, Linner said the massacre of the UN Congo command would be used to disarm the Congolese, seal off the Kindu area and round up all suspects.

Pieces of the bodies were distributed to the large crowd that gathered to watch the massacre. Later, certain of those parts of the bodies were also found in the Congolese who were present."

"Two mutilated bodies were dragged through the streets of Kindu and exhibited. . . . All the remains of the victims were then thrown into the river."

Students Protest Expulsion of Shropshire Lass

The petition read:

"We the undersigned junior members of this university deplore the fact that a girl has been sent down from St. Hilda's after three weeks in her first term because she was found in bed with her boy friend.

"We deplore, moreover, not only the severity of the penalty, but also the discrepancy in the punishments the girl was sent down. The boy was rusticated for two weeks."

St. Hilda's is one of Oxford's five colleges for women.

The girl was reported back home with her family in a Shropshire village. Her name and the boy's have been withheld.

The Oxford Union, the university's all - male debating society, in a unanimous resolution Thursday night called on the authorities to reconsider the expulsion and said private morality is solely the concern of the individual.

Federal Govt. Has Approved Technical Training School Costing Million at Madoc

Federal government approval for the construction of a technical training school for the Centre Hastings High School district at Madoc at over a million dollars, was announced today by Rodney Wells, of Norwood, federal member for the riding of Hastings-Frontenac.

The new school, consisting of 16 rooms, would be built as an addition to the present high school at Madoc and would serve the centre Hastings area.

Kel Kincaid, member of the Centre Hastings High School Board, at Madoc, said today that the board had been planning for the technical school for many years but until the Federal and Provincial governments last spring announced their joint program of assistance for such schools, he said, they couldn't afford it."

Mr. Kincaid said of the technical school is $1,165,000 of which the federal government would pay 75 per cent or approximately $875,000, and the provincial government would assist. The plan is the same under which an addition is being built to Moira Secondary School in Belleville.

Architects for the school are C. S. Coon and Sons of Toronto, who have already drawn preliminary plans. Detailed plans will now be drawn and tenders called for the construction which is expected to be commenced some time in February.

"The school will fill a great need in the Centre Hastings district," said Mr. Kincaid.

Cement Co. Starts Talks With Union

MONTREAL (CP) — Talks aimed at settling a strike of 600 Canada Cement Company employees in Quebec and Ontario opened in tight secrecy today.

Representatives of the company and the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers' International Union (CLC) opened the talks less than 24 hours after the walkout and 425 supervisors in Montreal and 165 workers in Point Anne, near Belleville.

No details of the negotiations were made public.

Union sources said the employees are seeking a substantial wage increase over their present $1.91 basic wage, job security improvements and a supplementary unemployment insurance fund to be operated by the company and union.

It was not clear whether the walkout would affect the Canada Cement plants at Hawkesbury, P.E.I., Winnipeg, Edmonton and Exshaw, Alta.

All the workers are covered by the same contract, which expired June 30.

Businessmen Have Chance To Keep Trim

Although most people think of the Y.M.C.A. as being a place where the youth of the community get a chance to work off excess steam at sports and organized activities, the "Y" is also a place where middle - aged "athletes" and businessmen have the chance to keep in trim and work off their excess poundage.

Especially designed for the local businessman who wants to do something about keeping fit but finds his time limited the course at the local "Y" concentrates on putting a few beneficial activities into a short period of time thrice weekly.

During the Monday and Friday noonhour exercises and swimming are the order of the day for those seeking to regain some of their youthful shape and vigour. On Tuesdays, in the late afternoon, there is the opportunity to engage in volleyball and swimming, advises the physical director, Joe Ruddy.

These classes for business and professional men have been increasing in popularity across Canada despite an initial reaction in many places by such people that they "didn't have time" or that any exercises at all would be too vigorous for them and be designed for athletes.

Many have found that these courses were quite different from what they anticipated once they actually got into them. To quote Sidney Katz of the Canadian Broadcasting Company, "I found that I was wrong. To be sure, there are some very fine athletes at the "Y", but for the most part, I found the Business Men's Club to be made up of non-athletes once they actually got into them. To quote Sidney Katz of the Canadian Broadcasting Company, "I found that I was wrong. To be sure, there are some very fine athletes at the "Y", but for the most part, I found the Business Men's Club to be made up of non-athletes once they actually got into them. I discovered that fifteen people I've known for years . . . even an old friend of mine . . . They came to the "Y" because they have seen the wisdom of spending some part of every day maintaining and improving their health. The atmosphere was friendly and informal."

This is what is being provided for local businessmen and any interested in doing something to maintain and improve their health and physical condition. Further details are available at the Belleville "Y".

A few late afternoon shoppers got wet jackets, but rural residents in general appreciated yesterday's rainfall which saw just over an inch of rain spread on the Bay of Quinte district.

Farmers say the rain will do much to replenish wells and improve the water supply for stocks as well as make the late season plowing a bit easier. Lack of rain during the past few weeks in many instances has made the ground too hard for good plowing.

Yesterday's rain started in the early afternoon and continued intermittently throughout the afternoon and evening. The rain ended about 1.30 this morning.

Broken Hydro Poles Black Out 4,000 Customers in Three P.E. County Villages

Approximately 4,000 hydro customers in Prince Edward County, including the villages of Bloomfield, Wellington and Consecon were blacked out last night for periods up to five hours after a 44,000 volt line was knocked out in two places by the wind storm.

The hydro line was broken off by the force of the wind, throughout its distribution system out of commission. Power was off for periods ranging from 53 minutes to five hours and 36 minutes in Bloomfield, which was out the longest.

Besides the above villages a large rural area was blacked out as result of the high tension line break. The town of Picton, Mountain View and area.

The Lake Ontario Cement plant north of Picton, were not affected.

TWO POLES BROKEN

William Benson, information officer with the regional hydro office at Belleville, said the break came at 8.37 p.m. when a period of exceptionally high winds broke two hydro poles one between Bloomfield and Wellington and the other between Wellington and Picton.

Twenty hydro linemen were called out to repair the damage.

With the 44,000 volt line from Trenton out out, hydro officials were able to switch power from Belleville to Prince Edward and thus shorten the blackout period in some areas.

Civic Nominations Will Be Held Next Wednesday Night

With civic nominations less than a week away the local election campaign is already reaching the boiling stage and with the exception of announcements with respect to the mayoralty, only one council member has definitely stated he will be up for re-election.

The nomination meeting is scheduled for Wednesday evening at 7.30 p.m., with the civic election to be held on Monday, Dec. 4th.

To date Mayor A. M. Haig and former councillor Jack Desmond Safe have announced their intention of running for mayor.

But of the candidates whose two-year terms are running out, only Alderman Ben Corke has come out definitely to announce he would seek re-election.

At least three councillors, whose two-year terms are running out have stated definitely that they will not be seeking re-election.

These are Aldermen Dr. John Barlow, Leslie Reid and Jack Deacon.

Another alderman rumored to be thinking of quitting council is Welter T. Elliott, but Mr. Elliott was not available while he had not completely made up his mind, he thought he "probably would not run again."

Pressure of civilian occupations were given by Aldermen Reid and Deacon for deciding not to seek re-election, while Alderman Barlow gave no personal reason except to say he had decided not to run.

All three aldermen were elected two years ago as members of a "clean up" council following the civic financial difficulties. Alderman Barlow has headed up the planning committee, while Alderman Reid is serving as chairman of the personnel committee, while Alderman Deacon is serving on both the finance and executive committees and on the personnel committee. Alderman Elliott who this morning said he would likely be at the head of the traffic committee.

Hold Weekend 'Open House' At 2 New Types of Homes

Belleville home seekers this weekend are being invited to "open house" at two types of homes — one featuring colonial type construction and the other offering all - electric heating for homes in the low priced field.

Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd. is holding "open house" for its Willamsport split-level bungalow on Bloomfield Drive, while Horlock Electric Co. Ltd., is inviting the public to inspect its new all-electrically-heated bungalow on Cherry Street.

For those still unacquainted with the newer sections of the city, Bloomfield Drive is the north of Victoria Ave and east of Herchimer Avenue, while Orchard Drive is in the College Hill area.

COLONIAL DESIGN

The "Willamsport" includes a large living room and dining room and has a large kitchen with ample eating area. The bedrooms have Hanover cabinets.

The three bedrooms away from the living area insure privacy. The home has a four-piece bath and three bedrooms in the closet space. The divided basement allows for future recreation room. Volume construction places this home in the moderp priced field.

ELECTRIC HEATING

Up-to-the-minute styling is offered in the "Econo Electric" home built by Horlock Electric. This home features three bedrooms with ample closet space and separate living room complete with valance.

The family-sized kitchen has birch cabinets with built-in oven and counter type cooking surface. The latest in comfortable automatic electric heating gives the prospective owner the advantages of all-electric heating in the economy-priced home.

IN MEMORIAM

BELCH. — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, William Belch, who passed away November 17th, 1956.
Time heals the aching wound,
We miss you still the same.
Of the love of one, we loved so well.
And he sleeps a peaceful sleep,
His memory we shall always keep.
Sadly missed by his daughter Dee and grandchildren.

BELCH. — In memory of William Belch, who passed away November 17th, 1956.
In tears we miss you sinking,
We watched you fade away;
Deep in our hearts you are lying,
And there you always stay.
We never forget you darling,
Though you are gone from sight,
We could not wish you back,
For we know you're at rest.
—Lovingly remembered by son Jim, daughter-in-law Dee and family.

BELCH. — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, William Belch, who passed away one year ago, November 17th, 1956.
His is gone, but not forgotten,
His memory we shall always keep,
Deep in our hearts he is thinking,
Thoughts of him we never keep.
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Many think the wound is healed;
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies in the heart concealed.
—Ever remembered by son Jim, daughter-in-law Sharon, Corey and Jimmie.

JURY. — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Evelyn Jury, who passed away November 17th, 1960.
If I had one wish dear mother,
I'd give it, yes, and more;
I'd wish to see you walking,
Once more across the floor.
But all I can do, dear mother,
Is go and visit you there,
And leave, behind tokens of love,
Beneath the flowers so fair.
Wherever/heaven may be,
She'll be thinking of me, I'm sure,
Up there to welcome me.
—Lovingly remembered by son Donald, daughter-in-law Ruby and grandchildren Donna and Ronnie.

JURY. — In loving memory of a dear sister, who passed away November 17th, 1960.
Gone but not forgotten.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by husband Ambrose and family.

Many Make Certain Names On Voters' List

Possibly because of the vote in Saturday's sports and polls, or maybe people are taking an added interest in municipal affairs, the Belleville voters' roll is growing. Many more residents turned up at city hall this year appearing before the court to make certain their names were on the voters' list.

The court of appeal for adding or striking names off the voters' list was held Wednesday afternoon before His Honor Judge J. C. Anderson and City Clerk Jack Stalker stated there were approximately 200 persons with applications in to have their names added to the list.

Mr. Stalker said this number was "considerably" more than in previous years.

Further this does not mean that these people were all missed by the assessors when making their rounds. Many of those seeking to have their names added to the voters' list were people who had been moved to the city within the past few months.

Court of revision for assessment appeals is also being held this week with officials reporting quiet sessions. Most ratepayers appearing before the court yesterday were persons seeking transfer of school taxes either to separate or public schools.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Heightened speculative interests brought volume to its highest point since July 8, 1958—a whopping 3,340,000 shares.

The speculative market was spurred by Wilsey - Coghlan, which turned in 903,000 shares by 11 a.m. Wilsey, with proxy adjacent to Lake Dufault in Quebec's Norbec field, advanced 10 cents to 56 after touching a high of 59.

Lake Dufault dropped five cents to $2.90 while Canadian Dyno and Mt. Wright fell 11 and 19 cents respectively to $2.75 and $1.38.

Industrials were pitted with fractional losses. Banks and financial institutions, utilities and steels bore the brunt of the decline.

Typical smogg losers were BC Power, Imperial Bank of Commerce, Steel Company of Canada and Imperial Oil, all off in the ¼ to ⅜ range.

On index, industrials fell 1.25 to 607.38, golds .21 to 88.05 and base metals .83 to 207.87. Western oils rose .34 to 106.28 and the 11 a.m. volume was 3,340,000 shares compared with 3,900,000 at the same time Thursday.

The senior metals list was down.

Thursday industrials fell sharply. Volume was the highest in 2½ years.

Volume was 8,458,000 shares compared with 5,190,000 Wednesday and 1,581,000 a year ago. The high volume was helped by Wilsey - Coghlan, which reached a new high of 44 and turned over 1,387,700 shares and by Black Bay, which added nine cents to 30 on 906,206 shares.

Lake Dufault rose 75 cents to 3.65.

Industrials, after earlier strength, dropped heavily in the afternoon. Declines were led by refining oils, steels, utilities and banks and financial institutions.

Distillers Seagrams dropped ⅜ to 45 and Canadian Tire and the A issue fell $3 and 2½, respectively.

Gatineau Power rose 1½ to 40½ on news of two extra dividends.

On index, industrials fell 2.38 to 606.25, golds .13 to 88.26, base metals 1.23 to 206.70 and western oils 2.15 to 106.06.

Western oil trade was weak with Great Plains and Home A also off as much as ..

Source of Candy Narrowed Down To Small Area

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Police said today they have narrowed down the source of poisoned Hallowe'en candy to a small area in the east end of this city.

Detectives, tracing the "trick or treat" route of 13-year-old Paul Walsh, said they have located two more youngsters who recall having candy with a bitter taste given them by the lower-in eight.

Tommy Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Davidson, and Paul Lavallee, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lavallee, both police today they had thrown away candies which they discovered they had "a horrible taste."

Both boys are 12.

Their Hallowe'en rounds carried them through the same area as that covered by Paul Walsh.

Paul Walsh boy, son of Mrs. E. J. Walsh, brought home at least one orange Hallowe'en candy loaded with alphanaphthylthiourea, a type of rat poison.

The type of poison used—called rat bane—is relatively harmless to humans. The average adult would have to eat half a pound of it to kill himself. It can be bought without restriction. Police said there is little demand for it.

Crown Attorney John Bradshaw said Friday he was responsible to say at present what charge could be laid against anyone connected with passing out candies doctored with this type of poison.

adoption would give him "simply because the applicants, though Christian, are of a different denomination would, in my view, be a denial of natural justice."

MINORITY DENT

"If that were the law it would mean that the children might be denied the permanent values which a normal family life can provide, simply because the natural parent who, as in this case, was found to have neglected the child, was of a different religion than those seeking to adopt the child.

"This would be neither common sense nor justice, and in my view was neither contemplated nor intended when the Child Welfare Act was passed.

"To decide otherwise would be to attach a religious bias to the word justice which its very meaning denies."

The Lambs first attempted to adopt Joey in 1959 but were refused permission by the Children's Aid Society of the District of Parry Sound, which had left Joey with them.

Last May the Lambs, learning of the society's intention to place the child in a Roman Catholic foster home applied for a writ of summons to prevent Joey's removal from their home.

A temporary injunction restraining the society, issued by district court, was subsequently dissolved by Mr. Justice D. R. Morand of the Ontario Supreme Court. An appeal launched by the Lambs was adjourned on consent late die.

Judge Little noted the Lambs had the support of Ontario's acting director of child welfare.

Pointing out that the act specifies the court order must be in the child's best interests, he said the evidence indicated "that the applicants are the only parents the child has known."

W. H. Bury, Ontario's director of child welfare, said Thursday night provincial Children's Aid Societies have not attempted to arrange interfaith adoptions because they aren't willing to take a chance on breaking the law.

"I think myself," he added, "that the broad interests of the child should be considered before anything else."

Labor Holds Seat

GLASGOW (Reuters) — British Labor party held its Parliamentary seat in Renfrewshire in the Bridgeton division of Glasgow Thursday night.

The byelection was caused by the retirement of Arma Jo Michael, Labor member of the House for the division since 1950.

The Labor candidate, James Dempsey, received a total of 10,930 compared to 2,935 for his nearest opponent, Conservative Councillor Malcolm Macaffer.

Belleville Region H. and S. Holds Meeting at Trenton

TRENTON — Members of Canadian Home and School Associations may embark on an ambitious program of bettering the world for the coming generation.

At last night's meeting of the Belleville and District Home and School Council, held in Prince Charles School at Trenton, Mrs. B. Stenson, president of the group, said executive members plan to initiate activities that the Canadian Home and School Parent-Teachers Federation had submitted two questions for the consideration of branches throughout Canada.

Questions have been asked to submit answers to the questions prior to the national federation conference next April.

(1) "Are you in favor of the Canadian Federation taking on an ambitious program in your name to make more friends throughout the world for your children and grandchildren?"

(2) "How do you feel about the statement that Canada should accept nuclear warheads for Bomarc and certain other nuclear arms and thus hooking up with the group of nations holding weapons that would threaten total world destruction?"

These are the questions. A majority "yes" answer from branches on the first question might entail a massive international meeting of such groups on a world-wide scale in Canada in 1967, this country's centenary year; an exchange of teachers and students from each with teachers and students from other lands (including the Iron Curtain countries), and other programs aimed at creating international goodwill.

The impression is that the national federation against Canada be exchanges for "distinguished service" to the U.S. government, it is announced. The awards include cash gifts of $5,000. Merchant was named in recognition of his contribution in the field of foreign affairs and international operations.

The impression is that the national federation against Canada participating in any nuclear armaments program, and the full weight of the national membership is required for any formal decision of the protest to federal government authorities.

MANY ATTEND

Mrs. Stenson welcomed the representatives of the various Quinte area clubs. The meeting was convened by Mrs. Frank Hamilton of the North Trenton association.

Mrs. Dave McDonald, assisted by Mrs. A. Vanderwater, Mrs. D. Waddell and Mrs. J. Coveyou had prepared a display of educational aids in the way of pamphlets and booklets, dealing in various ways with home and school association activities. Aims and work of the organization; leadership training; program aids and a course of study for executive members were recommended.

A panel, composed of Belleville members, Mrs. S. H. Whitaker, Mrs. A. J. Fort, and Mrs. R. D. Jones, moderated by Mrs. W. J. Drew of Picton, discussed associations' activities at national and local level; program planning and leadership training.

Mrs. Fort gave a brief summary of activities carried on at a recent area conference at Oshawa and Mrs. McDonald told the members of the effort of committee members to provide suitable library facilities for rural school teachers.

The main topic of a discussion period which followed the formal meeting was the infrequent appearance of teachers at home and school association meetings. Ways and means of interesting teachers in this phase of school activity were discussed at length.

Trenton Rescue Unit Hunts Missing Boy

TRENTON (CP) — Five aircraft have been ordered to conduct a search over Lake Ontario for a 15-year-old Toronto boy missing on the lake in a 12-foot outboard motorboat, the RCAF search and rescue station here said today.

The search, involving planes from Trenton, RCAF Hamilton, RCAF Downsview at Toronto and a United States coast guard Albatross from Cleveland, is under the direction of Flt. Lt. Ken Harper.

Edward Douglas Rollins, 15, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rollins, is believed to have put out late Wednesday from there heading for Youngstown, N.Y., near the mouth of the Niagara River across the lake from Toronto.

Winds gusted up to 35 miles an hour on the lake Thursday and accompanied by rain. Latest weather reports estimated today's winds from the west at 20 to 30 miles an hour.

Winter Work Waits Approval

TRENTON — On Thursday, town engineer Eric Alderson said that the only winter works project underway in Trenton at present was the reconstruction work going on at the police station. He said that a number of projects were awaiting approval from the Ontario Municipal Board. These include installation of storm sewers and parking and that Central Mortgage and Housing approval of the installation of trunk sewers on Front and Sidney Streets was expected "any time".

Meanwhile, snow removal equipment is undergoing an overhaul, in readiness for the winter days ahead.

Public works department men are at present installing sewers and water mains in Trenton Park, west of the town. The sub-divider will pay for the cost of the installations.

Trenton Lacks Warning Sirens

TRENTON — While sirens were wailing in more than 200 communities across Ontario, warning citizens that a "mock" nuclear attack was imminent, Monday morning's civil defence exercise, Trenton's sirens were strangely silent. There was a very good reason. Trenton has no sirens.

Mayor James McDonald told a reporter yesterday that on September 25, military representatives had visited Trenton and had approved three sites for the installation of sirens. According to plan, one siren will be placed atop the town post office, Dundas St. The two will be located in the Wilkens St. area and the third on town-owned land on the corner of Marmora and Peter Streets.

Mayor said that the September visit was the last he had heard from the civil defence authorities.

Ministerial Assoc. Opposes Sunday Sport

TRENTON—Today the Trenton Ministerial Association released the following statement, addressed to the voters of Trenton, for publication:

"On Monday December 4th, 1961, you will be asked to vote in Trenton on the following question.

"Are You In Favor of Public Games and Sport for Gain after 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon of the Lord's Day, to be regulated by municipal bylaw under the authority of the Lord's Day (Ontario) Act 1950-51."

We ask you to consider the following points.

1. The Lord's Day (Ontario) Act was written for the protection of the individual against the very thing you are asked for, Commercialized Sunday.

2. In this time of conflict and tension it is more important than ever that we have a day of Worship, Rest and Renewal.

3. Sport emphatically demands a day of Rest and Renewal for every man.

4. Sunday is the basis of our civilization, and is dedicated to God, thought and reverence. Therefore to allow commercialization of Sunday is to destroy the foundations, and no telling what else.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson told the council the "revolting mixture" added up to 500 believed to be led by leftist Antoine Gizenga.

Stevenson said Gizenga forces apparently were operating in Orientale province in support of the central Leopoldville government.

PROPOSES AIR FORCE

He proposed that the UN make available to the central Congo "a small but effective air force" to deal with secessions in both Orientale and Katanga provinces.

Stevenson said the reported Gizenga rebellion in the long-run might prove even graver than the Katanga government's defiance of the central Congo government in Leopoldville. He said the United States would present a resolution to the council to give U Thant authority to deal with the entire Congo problem.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin joined in the expressions of regret over the deaths of the Italian airmen, but accused Stevenson of trying to divert attention from Katanga by bringing up activities by the Gizenga forces in the eastern Congo.

A Disgraceful Record

Careless hunters are blamed for a score of bush fires which have broken out in the Tweed district in the past few days.

Department of Lands and Forests officials say that in some cases no effort whatever was made to pick a rocky base for a campfire; in other cases campfires were apparently left burning without any attempt to douse them.

As a matter of principle, we object to all forms of licensing. Man ought to be free to undertake as many different activities as possible without any necessity of obtaining permission from any authority, or without even the duty of notifying such an authority of his intentions.

There are some things though, which have to be regulated. One cannot permit everybody to drive a car without any proof of ability to do so with safety.

With a fire record like that quoted, it begins to look as if people cannot be trusted to walk in the bush without endangering property, wildlife and even human lives.

In some areas of Ontario permits are already required for bush travel—primarily this is to safeguard the travellers and make certain that search and rescue operations are conducted in the proper area if they fail to emerge from the bush country on schedule.

We should dislike seeing this bush travel system put into general effect in this area of Ontario, where the much heavier population makes it unnecessary as a safeguard against getting lost.

But if there are many more weekends where a score of potentially dangerous fires are started by people who obviously lack the sense of responsibility to be trusted to travel in the bush country, we would not blame the authorities if they considered a permit system.

The sins of the ignorant or careless would then be visited on all the rest of us—hardly a fair situation but one which could easily become unavoidable.

According to the Evening Standard of London, England, Tristan de Cunha is to become a British air base.

Inhabitants of this lonely island in the South Atlantic recently evacuated it when a long-dormant volcano erupted.

Now, according to the Evening Standard, the island has been chosen as "the keystone of a global system of island bases." The paper says it will enable the RAF to reach the East. Australia and New Zealand "without flying over politically troubled Africa and the Middle East."

This volcanic island is considered unsafe for future habitation by people whose ancestors had lived there for several generations. The spectacle of the RAF preferring such an island as a base to airfields in Africa and the Middle East speaks volumes about the volatile nature of the political situation in those lands.

For Whom the Siren Wails

Civil defence warning sirens were tested at Ottawa, Wednesday. Their wails failed to reach inside many of the government buildings.

The army, which tested the sirens, was not perturbed. It explained that the sirens were intended primarily to warn people who are outdoors.

Presumably those who are outdoors will rush indoors, warning those who are indoors so that they can hurry outdoors.

Lacking any system of public shelters, this system ought to work as well as any.

We do hope, though, that immediate action will be taken to remedy the defects in 11 of the 45 sirens, which failed to work properly. It would be a deplorable state of affairs if one out of four persons died without any opportunity to worry about death beforehand.

Iceland is so sparsely populated and so unspoilt that it almost seems as if man were there on sufferance, not birds. Of course, this is largely because, generally speaking, Icelanders recognise the rights of birds to rear their families in peace. It doesn't seem to occur to them that man has the privilege of destroying wild creatures. Nature creeps right up to the walls of the farms, and the birds start as soon as you leave the town.—Ornithologist Arnold Benington speaking about his recent visit to north-west Iceland.

Pick Resort By Computer

Christian Science Monitor

Guesswork has already been taken out of many details of everyday living. Any hideband who can light an oven can prepare a multicourse meal without a flaw. It is perhaps only a question of time before the risk of disappointment will be completely lifted from that cherished institution, the annual vacation, or holiday.

In the old days we may have followed Jews for directions, both as to destination and things to do, and we still do at times avoid. Or we sent away for what we hoped would be unbiased literature, not so thorough that we can know in advance whether the motel lounge shad charges for TV in the room or heats its swimming pool.

A hint of the future may lie in a recent report by Solomon Binns in the Observer in London, which devotes a half-page to an exhaustive study of modern vacationers' desires. The newspaper puts a battery of queries (some multiple part) to readers, asking them to "put a thick in the appropriate squares".

The queries range from matters of fact ("Have you taken a holiday abroad in the past four years?") to those of taste. A recent taste ("Do you like the price of your room to be displayed in the hall?"). Some of the multiple-choice replies are intriguing. Why, for instance, if you admit to camping out, you are asked whether ( ) from choice, ( ) from necessity, ( ) don't know. It is heartening to find the Observer recognizing the fact of the man who camps out without knowing why.

After going through the list jotting a few tentative ticks, we began to speculate about the future when we will all note our preferences as the new year begins. Doubtless computers will put us into the right compartments, book seating plans, entertainments, and in the final gesture of thoughtfulness deduct the holiday expenses from our regular pay cheque in a way that we will scarcely notice. Nobody will have to ask "How was your vacation?" They will and we — will know in advance.

Turnips Good For Man, Cow

Ottawa Journal

Turnips are a tangy, satisfying vegetable for both cows and humans. A moderately powerful machine, both wheeled and mixed with the right amount of salt and sorings, goes well with pot roast, fluffy mashed potatoes, bread 'n' butter pickles, hot biscuits and juicy, nutmeg-tinged apple pie.

Turnips were an important crop in these parts many years when women fluffed out their hair with "rats" instead of permanents, and men wore celluloid collars to keep their chins up. A 12-year-old knew turnips intimately through long months of hoeing, thinning, pulling and carting the bulky roots into the house cellar and the barn.

Since then turnips was a daily late-fall task at which a lad reached home from school and got into his chore clothes it was monotonous and messy work. The mail order catalogue said of the cutting machine "Any hand 30 to 50 bushels per hour." It could be a statement of fact but a young future citizen was never tempted to prove it.

Undoubtedly the cows appreciated the juicy food along with their mixture of bran, clover and mash. But when a man looks at that hand cutter, dust-covered and sitting out in the years under the far corner of the shed, he doesn't plan on raising turnips for his gentle-eyed Jersey.

The district association comprises chapters from Cobourg, Trenton, Picton, Lindsay, Trenton and Belleville. The bird measured one foot across the back at the perching position.

Provincial Police today threw a cordon around the region south of Deseronto, after the apprehension of three gypsies, two women and a man. Early today Lou Harvey residing on Murney Street in Belleville notified the police with a clue that took Provincial Police constables to Deseronto, and while trucking down deer that Mr. Harvey came upon a secluded camp in the bush. He cajoled by two women and a man. A queer one they hidden in the nearby bush also.

THE PACKSACK

—By GREGORY CLARK

It is a pity we have not got more ordinary trained surveyors and civil engineers in politics sitting in our governments, federal, provincial and civic. They are accustomed to taking bearings straight as an arrow, towards communism as the Marxist can go. I don't mean the Marxist-Leninist variety of religious communism that Russia has got itself engulfed in. I mean communism as being the opposite of individualism. That is the only and true meaning of communism.

Every year sees less and less of private enterprise and more and more of corporate enterprise. The small shops are being rolled under by the supermarkets. The mines industries are becoming satellites of the major industries. In schools our children and our youth are being trained and conditioned to more ordinary trained surveyors and civil engineers in politics. Newspapers are merging. The civil service is growing like a toad. Big is the word for everything into lovely large fat packets so that when the time comes, the state, or whatever bunch of adventurers can persuade us they are the state, can take us over, body and britches.

It should be easy for them to quell ten thousand shopkeepers. It would be no trick at all to persuade a few dozen editors and members of the boards.

New Edition Of Webster's Dictionary

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Lemme recommend a swell new book that has been in the works for 37 years and has just been finished — no kidding — by the G. & C. Merriam Co. in Springfield, Mass.

It's Webster's Third New International Dictionary, Unabridged, and word-wise it's a gasser. In this new edition it turns out that good English ain't what we thought it was at all — good English, man, is whatever is popular.

This is a lofty speak-as-you-go dictionary — not like that moldy fig of a Second Edition, which tries to separate "standard English" from slang, bastardized formations, colloquialisms and all the passing fads and fancies of spoken English.

The basic excuse is for the people, who decide how a language is going to be spoken, or written, by their collective, anyway; there are no rules or laws to language, just opinion. So there's no point in yakking about "tradition" when Webster's Third New International Dictionary spoils such authorities as Art Linkletter, Dale Carnegie, Mike Mays and Mickey Spillane.

If this column begins using the Third Edition as a reference source, instead of my old Oxford Dictionary, don't be surprised if I start playing footsie with 300,000 new words that have just been added to the English language by the club. And if I make a boo-boo and flub a participle, why, that's the point to my writer trying to compose clear and logical sentences. When a theory of language, if that peerless authority, Webster's Third, abjectly surrenders abjectly to the permissive school of speech?

Relativism is the inevitable philosophy of our day, in all fields, and Webster's Unabridged is satisfactory, and now that adequate treatment has at last started, there is no reason to worry about blindness.

"Dear Dr. Molner I am 22, weigh 107 pounds, and have three children, the youngest being two years old. My problem is my figure. I still look like I am about two months pregnant, although I am not. I have tried dieting but it doesn't help. Mrs. L. B."

In some women, the abdominal muscles become stretched in pregnancy (and it is 20 years and three pregnancies). At 107 pounds you can't be overweight unless you are very short indeed. The answer, then: Exercises like the classic one of lying on your back and moving your legs as though riding a bicycle) can tone up the muscles. Otherwise, a good girdle and care in posture will make you feel better. Best of all, try all three.

Note to L.G. Thank you for your letter. The ladies who write love bowdlerizations (as we used to call 'em) are pretty well-behaved on the whole, especially those who have really received enduring popularity. I agree most thoroughly with the quoted item about the discharged TB patient being safer to associate with than someone who has never had even a single chest X-ray and hence may unknowingly harbor the germ. In the TB hospitals under my guidance, we don't discharge a patient until after 10 or 12 sputum tests and several X-rays have proved negative. And then a group of doctors (not just one) gives the final approval. After that we have patients come in for period tests for the next two or five years. By that time, there isn't any room for doubt.

Glaucoma Does Not Necessarily Mean Blindness

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Just what is glaucoma? My mother, age 70, is perfect health, has specs before her eyes, and a mist. The doctor said it was 'tension' and gave her drops. How does this affect sickness? — R.H."

Glaucoma is an increase in the tension or pressure inside the eyeball. In time this pressure, if not relieved, can damage the eye to the point of destroying sight. It is, indeed, a common cause of blindness.

But that is far cry from saying that glaucoma "means blindness." Why? Because these days we know enough to treat this tension before it has done that much damage.

Drops are used to reduce the tension. Other means are employed, too — some people are required to limit or avoid salt and alcohol, and to lose weight. These measures are tailored to the individual circumstances. At times it is advisable to resort to surgery to permit reduction of the pressure.

The specific and most mentioned cas be symptoms of glaucoma. Halos around lights or bright objects are the ones from vision are another. At the same time, there may be a variety of such symptoms, particularly specks, because so many people have floating specks in the eye. Glaucoma. The speck or "float-er," or "vitreous floater" in the eye, is such a thing.

The better and quicker way of detecting the earliest stages of glaucoma is with a small instrument, the Schiotz Tonometer, delicately in contact with the eyeball to measure the pressure.

When there are no symptoms or signs, such a test should be performed right away, as a routine measure started. Sometimes the test is made in more or less routine fashion, but it is not always and occasionally exposes an unsuspected disease in its extremely early stages.

Discovery at the stage described today, before it is satisfactory, and now that adequate treatment can be started, there is no reason to worry about blindness.

Cannot Make Famine Ally

Vancouver Sun

"Food is an absolutely vital military necessity."

With this half-truth the writer of a letter to the editor justifies his proposal to cut off all sales of Canadian grain to Communist-aged Communist China. The truth is a more simple statement.

Food is a first necessity of life.

In a world beset by dissension, conflict and hatred, it spreads it is all too easy to accept the half-truth and ignore the horrible implications. The mind must face the whole truth and understand the full extent of responsibility that it imposes.

The picture of Canada working up her bursting granaries and prowling around them snarling while hundreds of millions die of starvation is one that would disgust the vast majority of Canadians.

Food can be considered a military resource. It has been used starvation as a weapon of war. But Canada is not at war. Canada hopes to avert a war.

If we choose to call the present struggle a cold war, famine is neither an acceptable nor a profitable ally.

One effective weapon Canada possesses is our appeal to the conscience of the world. Were we to make famine our grisly ally it would be lost to us.

residents' said hands and feet chopped from the airmen were handed around as trophies. A severed hand was tossed on the desk of a World Health Organization doctor as a gesture of contempt.

UN spokesman George Iven Smith said the UN handed a letter to Premier Cyrille Adoula insisting on punitive action. Though it was left open for Adoula's regime to assume responsibility, the UN indicated it intends to carry out the punishment itself.

"We have to create a set of conditions in which we can take any action required," Smith told reporters.

EXPRESSES DISGUST

Adoula expressed disgust at the killings in a broadcast and said "The guilty must be punished with utmost severity." He made no direct reference to the UN plans.

Disarmament has often been proposed in the past as a way of removing the danger of unruly troops. Each time the Congolese Army has resisted with a vehemence little short of panic. Now, however, feeling is running high in Leopoldville political circles at the evidence in recent weeks of growing army unrest.

Gen. Joseph Mobutu, the army's commander - in - chief, was reported close to tears while discussing the acts of desertion.

"It is unfortunate," said an officer on Mobutu's staff, "that 13 UN lives had to be lost before the United Nations would move to put down the mutinous troops who have followed Gizenga at this time."

Few events have angered UN officials here as much as the Kindu massacre. UN flags were lowered to half-staff. Dinner expressed his "heartfelt sympathy to the families of our colleagues."

The UN reported no further outbreaks against white people in Kindu since Saturday. The spokesman firmly declined to add any information about Gizenga, who the UN and Congolese government believe was in Kindu early the week.

The opinion was widespread among diplomats in Leopoldville that Gizenga tried to capitalize on the troops' mutiny to help in his own resistance to the central government.

It was unclear whether he gave up this attempt on seeing how far out of control the troops had become, or whether he in fact still have hoping to benefit in some way.

The UN plan to encircle the area and neutralize the troops could affect adversely the political fortune of the ousted rebel leader, a leftist who still claims to be the only legitimate heir to Patrice Lumumba, the late ex-premier.

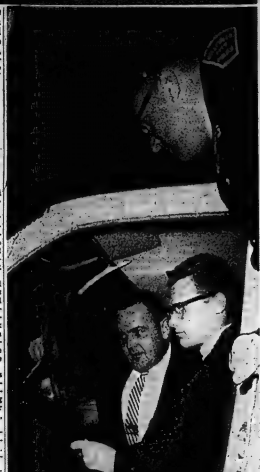
Trudeau Motors Present Car to OSD Senior Students For Safety Driving Course

Yesterday afternoon the senior students of the Ontario School for the Deaf, North America's largest residential school of its type, were the recipients of a new 1962 Chevrolet sedan, to be used for a driver instruction course, possibly the first such course to be held for any school for the deaf in North America school officials said.

The car, which was donated by Trudeau Motors Ltd., was presented to school superintendent J. G. Demesa by J. J. Trudeau of the local automobile firm. Two students, Rudy Lacis and June Rundle, represented the 15 senior students, who will be participating in the initial exploratory training course to be conducted by Miss W. Huffman and Mr. Elgin Vader, members of the OSD teaching staff, who were also on hand for the presentation.



The automobile is equipped with safety belts and a special dual braking system which can be operated by the instructor and overrides the normal braking system of the car when necessary. It is also provided with an automatic transmission.

The two instructors recently took a special two-week instructor's course from the Ontario Safety League in Toronto and have passed their special instructor's test and are licenced by the Ontario Department of Transport.

The course which they will be giving the OSD students will last for six months and will include 30 hours classroom instruction, 18 hours of observation of driving technique, six hours of dual driving experience with a vehicle equipped with automatic transmission and three hours experience with a vehicle with a standard gearshift.

If the initial course proves successful it is hoped that provision will be made for all senior students to receive training during their spare time prior to graduation in future years, Mr. Demeza said.

Also on hand for the presentation were Sgt. R. Blatchford of the City Police and D. E. Kennedy, assistant superintendent at OSD.

Deputy Mayor and Wife Arrive Home From Vienna

The importance of unity between the Western powers, especially in view of the Berlin crisis, is foremost in the minds of leaders in European countries outside the Iron Curtain.

This was noted today by Deputy Mayor Robert Temple, who Wednesday returned with his wife and infant daughter, following a two weeks' visit to his wife's former home in Vienna, Austria.

Mr. and Mrs. Temple flew to Vienna and returned on the Cunard liner Saxonia, the same ship on which they crossed the Atlantic on their honeymoon.

Mr. Temple said he spent an hour with Mayor Franz Jonas of Vienna. Foremost in the mind of the Vienna mayor was the need for unity among the Western powers, Mr. Temple said.

"We had a fine time during our stay in Vienna and Mrs. Temple and I were entertained by the famed opera star Toni Gerhold at her villa on the outskirts of Vienna."

Mrs. Temple is a close friend of the Austrian opera star's daughter.

The visit of Mr. and Mrs. Temple to Vienna was made primarily to visit Mrs. Temple's parents as her father had been quite seriously ill. However, during the last week of their stay in Vienna, Mrs. Temple's father was much improved and was able to return home from the hospital.

Radio Engineers Hear Talk On Detectors

On Wednesday evening a meeting of the Bay of Quinte Section of the I.R.E. was held at the Royal Military College in Kingston. Dr. R. Pullen, Head of the Infrared Group at RCA Semi Conductor Labs in Montreal was the guest speaker.

Dr. Pullen outlined some recent developments in infrared radiation detection. He displayed a gold doped germium detector which could detect surprisingly small amounts of heat. The detector gave a strong response to the infrared heat from Dr. Pullen's hand held twenty feet from the detector.

In his talk Dr. Pullen pointed out that until eighteen months ago there was a gap in the technology using radiation above the microwave frequencies. Today there are detectors which can give continuous coverage of the spectrum from radio waves right up to the optical region.

Energetic Club Hears Talk On Foot Care

The Energetic Club held its regular meeting in Halloway St. United Church on November 8th.

The theme of the worship service, conducted by the men of the group was "Remembrance".

The service opened with "Eternal Father, Strong to Save," played on the euphonium by Bill Campbell. The Scripture reading was from Romans 12. A minute of silent prayer was observed.

Dr. Robert Brain, local podiatrist was the guest speaker. He spoke of foot care particularly of children and mentioned the importance of the feet to general health. He stressed the need for qualified care of children's feet and showed slides of conditions encountered in his practice.

Plans were made and committees appointed for the club Christmas party on December 9th and it was decided to have a carol sing when the church is decorated the night before. A running draw was planned for early in the new year. Rev. Coleman spoke about the coming Belleville Y.M.C.A. sports.

Several games and lunch concluded the program.

Life in Africa Described at WI Meet

The November meeting of Carrollton-Corbyville W.I. was held in the Township Hall, and Mrs. Cecil Hubble, Foxboro to William John Douglas, son of Mrs. Clarence Douglas Crookston and the late Clarence Douglas.

The many friends of Mrs. Kenneth Thompson, 49 Bridge Street west, will regret to learn that she is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Welsh convener for the program on education opened this portion of the meeting. Mrs. Welsh read a paper she had prepared, dealing with brotherhood, also dealing with education of the Indians and Eskimos in the schools.

All this point Mrs. Welsh introduced the guest, Mrs. Belstead who a few years ago came to the Canadian North Africa. Mrs. Belstead who is a supply teacher at the Quinte Collegiate, told of the social habits of the people of South Africa, their schools, their educational system, their climate and so forth. She stated that the W.I. is very active there, but are known as Women's Agriculture Association. Mrs. Belstead has been living in South Africa and planned to write and send a copy of the "Home and Country" magazine. A question and answer period then followed and an invitation was extended Mrs. Belstead to visit the W.I. again in the new year.

Mrs. Welsh presented the speaker with a gift of saucer in appreciation for her talk. The program was brought to a close by reading the World Is Better That I Lived Today" by Mrs. F. Meade, after which lunch was served.

St. Michael's CWL Hears Talk on School Board Problems

Monsignor Sullivan opened the meeting with the reciting of the League prayer and Mrs. James Gallagher, president, called on the various committees to make their monthly reports. One of the points of the social section and child welfare Mrs. L. Gallagher reported an active month in providing winter clothing for needy families with twenty-five sewn had been outfitted completely.

The bridge marathon has been most successful and a December party is being planned for all players and sponsors.

The league's annual Christmas tea now promises to be one of the finest, a gala affair with fun for the whole family. The fish pond will again be there for the amusement of the younger children and to delight little girls, a bride doll and a baby doll, complete with outfit and bedstede will be raffled.

An oil painting donated by Mrs. Bye Eldred will be raffled also at the bazaar. The colorful theme scene is complete with frame and the league was most appreciative of the work and time that Mrs. Eldred put into her generous and talented donation.

It is the hope of the bazaar convener, Mrs. S. Brown, that members will be reminded to give their most welcome support. Councillors have been busy with the mammoth task of calling members to enlist their help but it is never possible to find every member at home. Mrs. Brown stated that these people come forth voluntarily to help with the parish event, since this is a parish bazaar. Mrs. Gallagher expressed the wish that all members of St. Michael's parish come out to support the C.W.L., who do a tremendous amount of planning and preparation to make this bazaar possible.

After the completion of the business portion of the meeting, Mrs. B. Burley introduced the guest speaker, Mr. R. Buckley outlining his many accomplishments. Although Mr. Buckley is a well-known member of St. Michael's parish it was not known to all the extent of his brilliant endeavours.

Mr. Buckley, chairman of the Separate School Board spoke on the reception and many problems the board copes with. It was a most informative and enlightening talk, dealing with maintenance, authority over teachers, pupil progress, all of which were certainly pleasing and readily understood. Another point brought out was the school board is expansion. The ever increasing Catholic population will soon outgrow present accommodations, necessitating additional classrooms at St. Joseph's and Our Lady of Fatima schools. Since building is a long term project this is a matter of great concern to the school board.

After Mr. Buckley's informative talk the members appreciated the time Mr. Buckley devotes amount of responsibility and thanked him for same. Members and the Catholic children, of Belleville.

A short prayer by Mrs. Gallagher thanked the guest speaker on behalf of the members and invited him, also Monsignor Sullivan to partake of refreshments served after the adjournment of the meeting.

WALLBRIDGE — COX

St. Paul's United Church in Bancroft was the setting for a pretty autumn wedding when the Reverend J. Burn united in marriage Aileen Susan Cox, of Belleville, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonsus Cox of Bancroft, to Edward Harry Wallbridge, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wallbridge.

Bronze and white chrysanthemums and gladioli interspersed with ferns, adorned the chancel and white satin bows marked the guest pews.

Mrs. G. Creighton, soloist, sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of heavy brocaded white satin, fashioned with slim-fitting bodice having a square neckline accented by large drop seed pearls. The long, sheath-like sleeves ended in tri-points over the wrists. The floor-length skirt was full and fashioned in Queen Anne style with bustle back ending in four large brocaded drapes giving a bouffant effect. She wore a seed pearl crown headdress with soft French illusion veil reaching well below the shoulders, and carried a cascade of chrysanthemums, stephanotis, and trailing ivy.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. Gordon Crosby, of Belleville, were old gold satin de sole, fashioned in bell-shape street-length, having a fitted bodice with three-quarter sleeves, and velvet bow headdress with tiny veil, matching shoes, and carried a semi-cascade of bronze and white mums.

Miss Jean Hayes, of Oshawa, and Mrs. Phillip Bennett, of Belleville, bridesmaids, attired in similar costumes to that of the matron of honor, and carried similar bouquets.

The little flower girl, Miss Diane Cox, niece of the bride, of Belleville, wore a floor-length frock of white lace over satin with gold cummerbund and bow headdress. She carried a basket of bronze and white baby mums.

Mr. Robert Wallbridge of Belleville, attended his brother as groomsman, while Messrs. Murray Cox, brother of the bride, of Belleville, and Melvin Grandame, of Toronto, ushered the guests.

The reception dinner was held in the church parlor, and the reception dance in the arena ring at the community hall.

The bride's table was appointed in the traditional fashion with white damask, and the three-tier wedding cake topped with white bells and lily-of-the-valley, and misted with white tulle about the base. The white candles in crystal holders completed the pretty setting.

The bride's mother, attired in rosebeige corded lace over taffeta in sheath style with tiny net with three self roses, brown accessories, and corsage of yellow carnations received. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother wearing lawrence-green brocaded taffeta in sheathstyle with three - quarter sleeves, matching jacket, beige accessories and corsage of white carnations.

For the honeymoon to New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, the bride wore a rose-brown and white suit, with magenta accessories, winter-white topcoat, with moulton collar, and corsage of shaded pink Sweetheart roses.

The bride was the honored guest at a shower held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Crosby with co-hostesses Mrs. Phil Bennett and Miss Margaret Bennett. Here the bride received a purse of money and a floor polisher from the staff of Trudeau Motors, where she was employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallbridge are residing in Belleville.

St. Andrew's WMS Views Armagh Film

The ladies of St. Andrew's W.M.S. met Tuesday afternoon in the church hall. The president, Mrs. M. Barlow, opened the meeting and extended a welcome to all members and guests.

Mrs. Barlow expressed the Society's deepest sympathy to the pianist, Mrs. R. Boyce, in her sorrow at this time.

The regular business period completed, Mrs. Barlow turned over the devotional to Mrs. N. H. Walker and her group, Miss Helen Hair, Mrs. Brentnell and Mrs. Taylor.

Mrs. Barlow showed a film on "The Armagh School for Unmarried Mothers," supported by the Presbyterian Church, situated in Clarkson.

This film was well received. A home mission project, it gave the members a clear picture of that wonderful work being done at Armagh.

Tea was served by the group in charge.

Large Crowd Attends WI Pie Social

STIRLING — On Friday evening November 10th a large crowd of men, women and children filled Rivet Valley Hall to capacity for a pie social and variety concert, which was sponsored by the River Valley Women's Institute under the convenership of Mrs. T. A. Hay-Ellis, Mrs. Jack Bush and the members of the historical and current events group.

John Kane was treasurer at the door. The Institute realized approximately $30.

FINE PROGRAM

Glenn Bush was master of ceremonies and interspersed the program with a few jokes. The children of River Valley School rendered three songs. Humorous selections were read by Mrs. Ernest Carr and Mrs. George Hoeman. Mrs. Harry Brown of Carmel contributed accordion selections and also piano novelty numbers. Mr. Linda Ann Morrow sang a Remembrance Day solo with her mother, Mrs. Harry Morrow as accompanist.

Mrs. Jack Bush conducted two games of merriment for the two games of merriment for the adults. Those participating in the latter were: John Kane; Mrs. Roy Bush; Mrs. J. R. Donohoe and Miss Cheryl Uttley.

A few visitors from other points were in attendance and at the close the group in charge served an abundance of sandwiches, pie and coffee.

The event was a huge success and those in attendance report it as "Banner Night."

Wife of Chief Justice Likes Interior Decorating

REGINA (CP) — When Mrs. Emmett M. Hall, wife of Saskatchewan's chief justice, showed a reporter on a tour of her spacious nine-room home, she was asked about a mural covering the wall of the foyer.

"Well, you see, I was this way," she said with a smile. "There were two ugly cracks in the wall. Then I had someone come in and cover them with a mural."

"When Mr. Hall was appointed chief justice of the province (in 1947) we moved from Saskatoon to Regina, where the court sat," she said. "We purchased this house, and all my friends just shook their heads.

"The house is old, and at the time we purchased it there were more cracks than walls. But with a little bit of imagination and planning it has come alive again."

An armchair is a blue, grey and white living room sequence, which is antique and traditional pieces. There is an immense rumpus room with an impressive fireplace and bar, a cosy study with book - lined walls, decorated in browns and greens.

The former Isobel Mary Parlee, Mrs. Hall in 1919 in Humboldt; Sask., where he was a young lawyer. They were married in June of 1922 and moved to Regina five years later.

"I don't belong to any of the women's clubs in this city," she says. Mrs. Hall says. "I guess I'm not inclined that way. But I have very little interest in sewing or any other skill along that line."

But she is interested in interior decorating and also shares a variety of interests with her husband—reading, long walks, travelling, theatre and sports, particularly football. They have two children, both married.

"I prefer light reading, but if Emmett's current choice is heavy going,"

Capacity Audience Views Delightful WHA Fashion Fiesta

To be whisked by the jet "Fashion Fiesta" from a cheerful foggy November night in Belleville to spend an 'interlude' in one of sunny Italy's beautiful gardens of Rome, with lovely flowers, pretty orchids, wrought iron furnishings and whirling fountain was a most happy experience for great number which filled the Collegiate auditorium on Wednesday evening, and to hear throughout the showing of delightful fashions, the soft music provided by Mrs. A. Victor Barkley who presided at the organ console. This was the annual Fashion Fiesta sponsored under the auspices of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary.

WELCOME EXTENDED

Mrs. M. P. L. Jones, president of the Auxiliary extended a cordial welcome and extended thanks for the fine support of all its members, stating that the proceeds of the show would be used to help purchase the baby beds for the hospital, adding that the styles shown would be taken from all parts of the world. She also tendered appreciative thanks to Mrs. V. Barkley and to Mrs. Reid for their assistance in providing the music; to the meters of the puppets, the special appreciative thanks to Mrs. Burley for her inviting attention to every detail without whose help the results would have been impossible.

The fashion fiesta consisted of three parts; the "Flashback" showing decades' collection of casual and sports wear; the "Intermezzo" showing original holiday and resort wear, and the "Nocturne" for exclusive party and evening apparel.

Previous to the Matinata, which began the show, "Thank You", by Mrs. Hazelenne Reid, Mrs. Forester ingeniously mentioned the various merchants who had participated in providing the costumes, jewels, flowers, furs, suits, shoes and handbags, through paraphrases from plays of Shakespeare, especially those whose scenes were laid in Italy, in an unique and delightful manner.

Outstanding in the Matinata were the delightful Italian inspired sports wear. One special eye-catching combination consisted of emerald green slims coupled with a glowing striped sweater in green; pink rose and black stripes, as gay as picked from the rainbow itself. Another was a knitted costume in green featuring a short jacket with grey sweater, especially noteworthy because of its wrinkle resistance. Others included browns and blue shades featuring the one in Italian rose, magenta and green with black velvet slims.

TRAVEL TOGS

The Intermezzo was also favored by a vocal selection by Mrs. Reid, entitled "All The Things You Are." Here the graceful and lovely models showed to perfection the travel togs, whether by plane, ship or car, and included tweedy mobile clothes, having the two-piece look, and englneered for wear. Among these an Italian suit with silk blouse in shirtmaker design; tapestry cloth also held a prominent position for home lounging. While on holiday, there are usually parties, and for these were shown a pretty mushroom gored skirt of pure silk with wide-gored skirt floating out like the petals of a lovely flower. Silk chintzes in printed green floral designs were eye-catching, and display-ed low decollete backs. A simple Black velvet, sleeveless, and having the continental look, this in two-piece style which could be worn with colored slims or black velvet blouse.

A theatre suit, a must, was shown in brown silk, using ochre and bronze as contrast. Wool jersey in glittering cream with stones around the waist and neck, and one in Irish linen, were also shown.

JEWELLER
206 Front St. At Victoria Ave.

The furs were most luxurious including muskrat, the pelt of which was in three-quarter length, suitable for either dress or street wear. Autumn mink featured a flat collar, and deep cuffs, with dark stripes. A Persian lamb jacket with collar and cuffs of Canadian mink and dipped ermine in dark brown was in full length with wide, full back panels. This was worth around $1,000, and weighed around three and a half pounds. Another beaver was in full length with shawl collar and elevated puff sleeve. An outstanding coat was of white muskrat or oyster shade, sheared, with inside of black sheared dyed muskat. A smart three-quarter length coat, closed by hand wrap-around style. Black Persian lamb was also featured as well as the natural Persian lamb and as always, in good taste.

BEAUTIFUL FINALE

The "Nocturne" portion was the beautiful finale to the fiesta, and like the other portions was ushered in by "Nights of Splendor" sung by the soloist, Mrs. V. Reid, in a well lighted setting in the Roman garden, sitting on the garden seat, and clad in a golden gown of exquisite design and texture, a truly golden girl.

Following the song, the lovely models, which had been the evening gowns in blues, whites and gold, slowly took their places, each wearing a stole of the beautiful furs displayed. These were accompanied by the commentator, who now wore a golden lame' gown and full skirt slightly dipped at the back, concluding a splendid exhibition of fashion for lovers of dainty and lovely garments.

TICKET DEAW

A highlight of the evening was the drawing of the winning tickets by Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Burley and Mr. Daschael, which were won by the following: natural pastel mink stole by Mrs. Gerald Dafferin Ave., city, donated by Ashley Furs; gift certificate for half style cut and permanent, donated by Vogue Beauty Salon, won by Mrs. Donald Chisholm, of Roslin; ladies' tricot nylon slip, donated by McBade's by Mr. F. Wignall, 80 Goldale Road, city; handbag of finest Italian tapestry, donated by Mcintosh Brox. and won by Mrs. R. A. Dunsmore, 10 Binkley Place, city; gift certificate for pair of Naturalizer shoes, from Leslie's Shoe Store, won by Mrs. George Cleverley, 270 Dufferin Ave., city; gift certificate for flower bouquet, donated by Barnes' Flowers, won by Mrs. J. Lennox, 53 Alexander Street, city. The grand draw, sold in eight blankets, donated by Ronald Keel, was won by Mrs. Ivan Reid, 30 Linton Park Road, city.

MODELLING

Those modelling included Mrs. Harold Arnott, Mrs. W. R. Doyle, Miss Beverley Durno, Mrs. G. W. Gist, Mrs. J. A. Pringle and Mrs. G. S. Wonnacott.

The fiesta committee included Mrs. Ben E. Burley, convenor; Mrs. M. P. L. Jones, Mrs. F. A. Beeby, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, Mrs. N. C. Macrie, Mrs. J. E. Nelles, Mrs. J. H. Scott, Mrs. J. L. Smith and Mrs. Eva Doolittle, fashion co-ordinator.

Appreciation was extended to Mr. George Greatrix, Mr. W. D. Barrett, Mr. R. Knetsel, Mrs. G. F. Snider, Mr. F. A. Beeby, the Belleville General Hospital and the exhibitors who made the fashion fiesta possible. These were: J. A. McNabb Ltd., exclusive holiday and resort wear; Ashley Furs, coats, capes, stoles and jackets; Barbara Flowers Ltd., artistic floral arrangements; Vogue Beauty Salon, hair styles for the individual; Ronald Keel Jewellers Ltd., for Avon costume jewellery and watches; Lattimer's Drug Store, cosmetics; Leslie Shoe Store, shoes and luggage, and McIntosh Bros., for handbags, gloves and accessories.

TAKING TICKETS

Those taking tickets included Mesdames, Ben Safe, Stan Kvarda, W. C. Tatham, J. B. Casey, A. L. Dickey, E. N. D. Case, George Dimont, Harold Arnott and David Sloane, and Misses Nell Merry. Those who ushered: Mesdames R. V. Burley, E. R. Bakey, H. Brown, J. Gould Jr., and Misses Joan Bell, Ann Bowen, Jane Couture and Anne Marie Murphy.

Mrs. B. E. Burley most graciously thanked all participants, thanks to Mrs. Jones for kindly praise; to Mrs. F. A. Beeby, secretary, reported that a bale of used clothing was still being assembled and asked for more donations. Donations are also solicited for the Christmas box to the Indian children in Norway House, such as children's clothing books, small toys, crayons, combs, mitts, socks and costume jewellery. She has already looked forward to, and is sent together with a gift for the minister there, which is purchased through cash donations.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil McMaster have been moved to Baker Lake, N.W.T., and the members will be praying for them.

Mr. Baker is starting a new school for Eskimo children at Baker.

The ladies decided to hold their regular afternoon meeting in December as well as join in with the family party held by the W.A., C.G.I.T., and Evening Auxiliary, in December.

A special gift will be made to get everyone out to the joint meeting.

Mrs. R. Crook read from Acts 3:1-6 "Silver and Gold have I none, but such as I have I give unto Thee." She said: "We must not apologize for what we give but such has a talent to be given freely and willingly." The theme was "Plus or Minus."

Mrs. B. Bishop, assisted by Mrs. H. Nash, Mrs. Teskey and Mrs. Parker, led the study book discussion under the following topics: "The Church and Its Ministry", "The Lord's Church A Powerhouse Or Social Club", "Are We Living Our Part Right Here Amongst Our Neighbors As Well As Those Afar Off", "Are We Attend Church?" and "What Keeps A Christian Alive?" The members entered the discussion quite freely and the answers proved very interesting.

The meeting closed, after which Mrs. Stenberg and her helpers served lunch.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LOWE

A LITTLE MANNERS — A LOT OF PLEASURE

During the holidays, the older and younger generations mingle more than at any time of the year.

Around Thanksgiving and Christmas, there are family reunions, as well as parties, at which grandparents and elderly aunts and uncles naturally will be present.

The younger generation — and by this I mean youngsters of teenage up to a not-so-young forty, as they may need a briefing on how to behave under social conditions with the children. Usually their relations with their contemporaries are casual and brief.

This doesn't mean that they suddenly have to become stodgy but because grandparents are around. But there are certain little niceties that should be observed when older people are present, as a sign of respect and in deference to their status as senior citizens.

For instance, when an older man or woman enters the room, everyone should stand up including the women. The hostess, instead of introducing the new arrival to those present, should proceed down to be the older person.

Guests should shake hands and tell the older person they're glad to do so, and address her as Mrs. Smith," instead of using her first name or a family nickname like "Nannie." An older person may correctly call a younger person by his given name, but the younger person — even if he's visiting fifty — should never "first name" anyone senior to him unless he's invited to do so.

At dinner, the older person always gets the seat of honor — to the right of the hostess if it's a stag dinner, to the right of the host if it's a woman, providing, of course, there's no other male guest of honor.

At the end of the evening first the older ones should say their farewells, after which other guests may make their departures.

It's simple, little courtesies like these that are so meaningful to senior citizens and which help to bring the generations closer together and consequently makes an endearing "extra" present for older people on Christmas.

CWL Holds Annual Yule Bazaar, Tea

CAMPBELLFORD — The annual Christmas bazaar of the Catholic Women's League was held on Saturday at the Masonic Temple and was a most successful affair. Both table was decorated with seasonal decorations and laden with many attractive items.

The popular items cooking table was well patronized, under the care of Mrs. E. Collins, Mrs. C. J. Walsh and Mrs. C. W. Long. Mrs. A. Clark, Mrs. P. Monaghan and Mrs. L. Wilson were in charge of the apron novelties booth, which featured fancy work, aprons and knitted wear. The country store was tended by Mrs. L. Doherty, Mrs. R. Dunlop and Mrs. R. H. Wilson, and the candy and tuck shop table were presided over by Mrs. L. Countryman, Mrs. F. McEvoy and Mrs. F. Freeman.

The afternoon tea table, convened by Mrs. J. Smith, was centred with red and white carnations and candles. Pouring tea from the silver service were Mrs. F. G. Macoun, Mrs. L. Breen, Miss B. Shannon and Mrs. C. Shannon. Assisting waitants were Mrs. J. Dikin, Mrs. D. Neville, Mrs. A. Cauley, Mrs. J. Mahoney, Mrs. A. Gardiner, Mrs. E. Bureau and Mrs. J. Ferguson. Replenishing the sandwich and cookie trays were Mesdames William Wilks and J. Mahoney.

Replenishing the sandwich and cookie trays were Mesdames W. J. Smith, M. Kelly, G. Hawkins and E. Mahoney arranged the plates, with Mrs. A. Coveney in charge of making tea.

Mrs. H. Cassidy and Mrs. M. Wesse were in charge of the draw tickets for the dressed pixie quilt, which was won by Mrs. R. Prestall and the ten pound turkey was won by Mrs. D. Brennan of Havelock. Rev. Fr. Shaughnessy was the assistor of the draw for the doll. The door prizes were won by Mrs. A. G. Morgan and Mrs. H. Casimir. Miss Joanne Kennedy kept busy selling tickets to the visitors.

Mrs. E. Kelleher, president, expressed pleasure with the results of the bazaar, especially since this was the first big project she had undertaken.

Mrs. Kelleher said it would be the annual Christmas parish party to which all ladies of the parish are invited, and this will be held early in December.

W.M.S.

A memorial service was conducted in memory of the late Mrs. J. U. Robins, who was a life member.

Mrs. H. Nash, in her stewardship report, told the story of Simon, who was told by Jesus to launch out into the deep and asked the ladies if they were prepared to launch out into the new women's work opportunities all its challenges and possibilities. Mrs. R. Thorne, supply secretary, reported that a bale of used clothing was still being assembled and asked for more donations. Donations are also solicited for the Christmas box to the Indian children in Norway House, such as children's clothing books, small toys, crayons, combs, mitts, socks and costume jewellery. She has already looked forward to, and is sent together with a gift for the minister there, which is purchased through cash donations.

QUESTION:

. . . A number of years ago while I still lived in Toronto we were served a delicious pineapple layer cake. It came from candidates for the Miss Universe contest. It desired chopped candied pineapple may be used to decorate top of cake.

ANSWER:

PINEAPPLE LAYER CAKE:

1½ cups sifted cake flour, 1½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup butter or other shortening, 1 cup sugar, 4 eggs, unbeaten, ½ cup canned pineapple juice or diluted frozen pineapple juice concentrate.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together 3 times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, beating until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each. Add flour, alternately with pineapple juice in small amounts, a little at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Bake in two greased 9" layer

Spread Pineapple Filling between cooled layers: One-half cup sugar, 4 tablespoons flour, shake of salt, 1-3 cup crushed canned pineapple (drain some juice), 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 3 tablespoons water, 1 well-beaten egg, 2 tablespoons butter. Combine sugar, flour and salt in top of double boiler. Stir in crushed pineapple, water and egg and cook stirring over boiling water until thick. Cover and cook 10 minutes longer, stirring once or twice. Remove from heat and add butter. Cool before spreading between cooled cakes.

Frost top and sides with Pineapple Frosting: Four tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 cups sifted icing sugar, 3 tablespoons frozen pineapple juice concentrate. Cream butter and cream sugar into it with the pineapple juice concentrate. If desired chopped candied pineapple may be used to decorate top of cake.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Regrets Refusing Kiss

DEAR DORIS:—Last year I got to know a boy from another city who came here to school. We were in a school concert together and we had a lot of fun. At our graduation dance he danced nearly every dance with me. Next night he took me to the movies.

When he brought me home he asked if he could kiss me and I said no. Now I have regretted it ever since. Then he asked if he could write to me during the summer and I told him he could.

He wrote me two letters and I answered them. In the second he said he had a lot of things to tell me when he saw me and asked me to please write. But he never wrote to me again.

Do you think that he might not have received my letter? Would it be all right to write again, just a friendly letter so that he will know that I still want to be friends with him?

This problem has greatly disturbed my work and I would be grateful for your opinion.—MERLE.

DEAR MERLE:—Write again, chat about things that interest you. Mention that you wonder whether he received your last letter and that you would love a note from him.

And stop worrying about refusing that kiss. He probably likes you better for prizing your caresses a little.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—As I am a good seamstress, I have been asked to do ladies' and children's clothes and also alterations. What I would like to know is the current price for doing it.—A STITCH IN TIME.

DEAR STITCH:—Department store fitting rooms usually display a list of prices for various alterations—hems, so much, raising shoulders, so much, and so on. A store in your own town is your best guide, since prices vary with location.

Prices also differ with the dressmaker within any one community. One excellent worker charges $12.00 for a simple sheath dress, considerably more for a dress with time-taking details in it.

Another way is to set prices according to an hourly rate, and one dressmaker estimates rates of $1.00 to $1.50 an hour. But don't hold me to it. Where you live and the quality of your work counts.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—During the summer I met a boy who was going with one of my friends. Before he went back home (300 miles from here), they broke up, but I'm afraid he still likes her. We write to each other and I think he likes me a little because he was here last weekend and he kissed me.

He'll probably be here at Christmas for the holidays. I have two questions to ask you: (1) He'll probably buy me a Christmas present so what could I buy him? (2) How can I get him to lose interest in the other girl? I'm 14 and he is 16.—TROUBLED.

DEAR TROUBLED:—(1) A once-in-a-while one-kiss boy friend rates a nice Christmas card. Anything more is too much. If by Christmas he has taken you out or shown signs of warm interest, you could bake a batch of Christmas cookies and make up a pretty box for him.

Food gifts are thoughtful and yet casual—much like a gift of candy from him to you.

(2) Be your own sweet self. Be a thoughtful companion and hostess. Talk about what he is interested in. And never once mention—or even think about—the other girl.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I was interested in the letter by Little Hope. It sounded like the situation that was building up in our home.

Our 15-year-old son has always disliked school. The teachers felt he should be on the honor roll, although he did well to get by. Last year he failed three subjects in high school.

My husband and I both nagged at him, as he refused help from home or school. Thank God he has always been an obedient child so we have no discipline problems.

This summer we made arrangements for him to attend our church college boarding school. It means a real sacrifice for us to send him but we have made adjustments to take care of the extras. He gets home once a month, which he looks forward to and so do we. We hope the separation will do us all good. He and his younger brother get along fine when he is home.

He loves the school and is willing to work there all summer holidays if he can go back next year. Time will tell about his school marks but at least we can sit down with him and discuss his weak subjects on a man-to-man basis.

We are convinced we have done the right thing.—A HOPEFUL MOTHER.

DEAR HOPEFUL MOTHER:—So am I. Somehow he feels understood and believed in. There are times when even one teacher who clicks with a boy can show him what he is capable of—and help the boy himself to start hoping and working.

In this case it is the atmosphere of the school, and its teachers, that are inspiring him. Let's hear more about it later.

SPECIAL NOTE TO BORED STENO, BELLEVILLE. I have two letters for you, in response to your S.O.S. I cannot send them to you as you have never furnished an address. Please write again.

Pr. Edward Belleville L.C. Lists Officers

The president expressed a warm welcome to all and read a poem, "The Best Is Just Ahead." The minutes of the October meeting were read by the secretary, also a report from the treasurer.

"Thank-you" notes were read from Mrs. Pierson and Mrs. Trumpour Sr. Sorry to report Mrs. Skeggs, one of the members, is ill in hospital, also Mrs. Lee, a frequent visitor to the club. Deepest sympathy was expressed for Mrs. Farnsworth in the sudden passing of her daughter, in Vancouver.

Mrs. Walters conducted the election of officers: for 1962, which resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. James Garbutt; 1st vice-president, Mrs. William Baird; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Frank Bedell; 3rd vice - president, Mrs. Arnold Mastin; secretary, Mrs. Loral Wannamaker; assistant secretary, Mrs. Percy Parliament; treasurer, Mrs. Ray Fox; corresponding secretary, Mrs. D. A. Pierson; pianist, Mrs. E. Farnsworth; assistant pianist, Mrs. Everett Brickman; group leaders: Mrs. Bedell and Mrs. Trumpour; Mrs. Weese and Mrs. MacDonald; Mrs. Pierson and Mr. Wilie; Mrs. Goraline and Mrs. Martin.

Mrs. Baird read a paper, "Historical Sketches of Wellington."

The president closed the meeting and Mrs. Baird and Mrs. Pierson and their group served a tasty lunch.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

FOXBORO — On Wednesday Mrs. Earl Wannamaker entertained the Foxboro ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for the November meeting of the W.M.S. and Guild. Theme of the meeting was Peace.

Miss Watt, the Guild president, opened the meeting, Peace Perfect Peace was sung.

Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Juby read the Scripture and Mrs. Chegwelle gave the commentary and prayer.

Reports of the various committees followed with cards and sick calls.

Several readings pertaining to Armistice Day were read by Mesdames Bartlett, Lyons, Buskard, Wannamaker and Miss Watt. Mrs. Wood favored with a lovely solo. A Bible contest followed with Mrs. Wannamaker being the winner.

Mrs. Wannamaker served delicious refreshments and a social half hour followed.

ROADSIDE CALLS

MONTREAL (CP) — Motorists travelling the Laurentian auto-route now can make telephone calls without leaving their cars. Four drive-up pay telephones, two each for northbound and south-bound traffic, have been installed near the toll booths on the 30-mile, eight-lane super-highway.

That new fur favorite, river otter, dyed a medium beige, makes a delightful little extra wrap that can go smartly with either dress-up or tailored clothes. One button fastens the cape, the other two buttons being just put there for the triangular effect.

Two features distinguish the street pump — the strap and the square, flattened vamp. The shoe has a suede beck and the front is of linard, available in a variety of shades.

United Church Marks Day of Remembrance

JOHNSTOWN — On Sunday morning at Johnstown Church, Mr. Robert Thrasher spoke on "No Greater Love". The Scripture lesson was found in John 15. The choir sang "Stood Up For Jesus". At the close of the children's story, the children under 6 years retired to their class rooms for Sunday School.

Two minutes silence was observed and the National Anthem sung. Mr. Thrasher explained the the word "love" is a word most misconstrued of all in the vocabulary. God's love is eternal.

"In the past years, we have had two of the most terrible wars and war still hangs over the world. The enemy lives because of the fear. One man's sacrifice can save thousands. Let's it true that the popular rule today is to take care of No. 1 but can this make for good living? Jesus said, "Love One Another As I Have Loved You".

At 8.00 p.m. two returned missionaries, Mr. and Mrs. Lehman from Nigeria where they are working with the people of the country stated that there are 35 million people in Nigeria with some 300 languages so the first thing one has to do is learn the language Mr. Lehman also showed shades of Africa.

Mrs. A. Harry was in charge of the service of hymns the missionary meeting for the W.A. Mrs. D. Harry read the Scripture in Romans 10.

Mrs. E. Stickle welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Lehman and Mrs. A. Meyers thanked them for coming.

Compact! Medium! Big! The choice is yours. Mercury is now a family of three, sized to suit you. Now, your Mercury dealer offers you power, room, economy and price—sized three ways. With Mercury, you choose a car that fits your needs precisely. Take the time to size up Mercury for yourself—and see why Mercury has the best buys in every size for 1962.

1 MERCURY COMET—the middle sized Mercury. Built for the family who wants a compact car that doesn't look it or act it. The new Comet is a Mercury, with fine car styling unsurpassed among compacts. New rear deck with dual tail-lights provides a flair unique in Comet's price class. And Comet's wheel of success hasn't gone to its price. Comet still only looks expensive.

Special Features:

Choice of new 85 hp and 101 hp "six" engines. Automatic or manual transmission • Up to 33 miles per gallon on regular gas • Oil change cycle extended up to 6,000 miles • New coolant lasts up to 30,000 miles • Six people ride in comfort • Vacation planned "big car" trunk • 9 models, including Comet's new personal compact car, the S-22 with bucket seats.

2 MERCURY METEOR—the middle sized Mercury. This car is so new its unveiling will not take place until November 30. But it is so exciting, that you should know about it right now. Meteor carries on a famous Canadian name, but that's where past resemblance ends. This totally new automobile is tailored for the man who wants a bigger car than a compact —but he'd quite as big as a big car. Meteor is the heart of the new Mercury line.

Special Features:

Choice of new 85 hp and 101 hp "six" engines • Complete package of self-servicing features: Oil change cycle extended up to 6,000 miles; chassis lubrication and coolant last up to 30,000 miles; self-adjusting brakes • Luxurious 6 passenger interior • Cushion-Link suspension for big-car ride.

3 MERCURY MONTEREY the big Mercury. If you think big, Monterey is sized for you. Monterey is big where it counts—in comfort, in performance, in value. Combine its 8 wide seats with its elegant interior decor—and 6 people stretch out in style. The 1962 Mercury Monterey has all it takes—to take you places in a big way.

Special Features:

Engine choice—Super Economy "six" or two V-8's that include the 300 hp Marauder • 120 inch wheelbase and Cushion-Link suspension for the smoothest ride • Complete package of self-servicing features: Oil change cycle extended up to 6,000 miles; chassis lubrication and coolant last up to 30,000 miles; self-adjusting brakes • Big model choice of sedans, hardtops, wagons and an elegant convertible.

Certain features illustrated are optional at extra cost.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Eleanor H. — No matter what I say, he gives it the worst meaning.

Richard H. — The more flowery she gets, the more I know sh's trying to cover up the truth.

• • •

Eleanor H. — A man is either with you or against you. I think Dick is out to pick on me, so no matter how careful I am, it's no use. We wind up fighting.

All I want is a husband I can talk to. But after two words are out he says, "Get to the point." Naturally when I have to leave out the preliminaries and explanations, things sound different. So if it's about something I want, he'll say no. If it's some family news, he'll charmin it with some belittling remark.

After six years of marriage, if we can't even have a pleasant conversation, what chance have we to grow close and handle big problems together?

• • •

Richard H. — After six years of marriage, I know what's behind the words. For instance, "Do whatever you want to do, darling, it's right with me," means in plain English, "I don't want to go to that movie with you, but I will if you drag me there." She talks sweet like that, and then sulks and groans the rest of the time.

It's gotten so I don't listen to the words; I go after the message. Is she mad? Is she scared? Is her mother arriving?

We'd get along better if she didn't work so hard with the sugar-coating and the buttering up. That's all right with the baby and the girl friends. With me, she can call a spade a spade.

• • •

The Council: A most glorious stage in a human relationship comes when two people can really communicate, words or no words. A wink, a sigh or a shrug — and all becomes clear between them. But this is the reward of years of sympathy, empathy and patience.

This pair is stalled at a primitive stage where words, rather than feelings, are king. And how misleading, how inadequate, how crost words can be! A foreigner trying to a train, goes one story, saw a sign. Look out for the trains. He looked out — and got his head smashed! No, words have their uses, but we must read between and behind them. So far, neither of these people are reading right.

How is clarity achieved? We believe that Mr. and Mrs. H. must bridge by a leap of faith the gap left by words. What if Eleanor's words are but a mask? Why should she need a mask? She wouldn't if she could be sure you, Richard, were on her side, no matter what. And you wouldn't mind her long-winded-ness and her indirection, would you, if you trusted her so completely that you could figure, "Whatever she's saying, it's in my best interests!"

Lacking this unshakable good will toward each other, words will continue to get in the way. Once they have it, words — whether plain, fancy, shouted or sprayed — won't be unduly important. Understanding will complete every message.

Meanwhile, each might concentrate on using words. Richard, his few, and Eleanor, her torrents — to express the good feelings they have toward each other as often as possible. Say the nice word, don't just think it. In England a woman who feels low can deal M-O-R by Morals and hear a male voice whisper "You're quite, quite beautiful, you know." Save the bill charges, Richard. And Eleanor, in turn, can slip notes into lunch boxes or cover verbally (in 25 words or less) her true appreciation.

LITTLE HELPERS

WELLINGTON — The "Little Helpers" group of St. Andrew's Church was treated to their annual party on Monday afternoon. About 50 attended, including the Little Helpers and their mothers and some members of the W.A.

An impressive candle-lighting service took place for each age group and each child presented his mite boxes with their thankoffering which amounted to $17.90.

After the service games were enjoyed under the direction of Mrs. R. Blower.

Unique New Bracelet

By TEACY ADRIAN

The single charm worn on a solid bracelet is the latest jewelry news for the season. And these smart bangles couldn't have come at a more appropriate time what with most sleeves being shorter than ever this fall.

The charms shown are a gold dog and a pearl-and-stone studded drop. They are detachable and interchangeable, so different charms may be worn with different costumes.

VALUED VEGETABLE

The carrot, cultivated for probably 2,000 years, has only in recent years come to be valued for its vitamin and mineral content.

Contact Club Holds Work Meeting

As the time for their "Christmas Arcade" draws near, Contact Club members of Christ Church are busy finishing the articles which will be offered for sale. While Christmas stockings, laced with gold were finished; black robed choir boys with white surplices received yarn hair; and net aprons were cut out. More doll clothes were turned in, including evening gowns for diminutive ladies.

At the end of the work meeting lunch was served by Betty King, Greta Moult and Joan Ford.

Many Attend Remembrance Day Service

WELLINGTON — Remembrance Day was observed in Wellington by a large crowd of citizens on Saturday morning, November 11th, to pay tribute to the memory of that gallant dead of two World Wars.

Members of the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 160, Ladies' Auxiliary to Branch 160, Boy Scouts, Cubs and their leaders, CGIT, Explorers and leaders of the United Church, J. A. and C. A. Auxiliaries, and leaders of St. Andrew's Anglican Church paraded to the Memorial Gates for the service. A guard of honor of two soldiers stood with bowed heads and reversed arms at the gates. The service was conducted by Rev. Rodgers, and was opened by the singing of one verse of "O Canada," and the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

At 11 a.m. Trumpeter Cpl. Peter Clattenburg of the Picton Army Camp sounded the "Last Post," two minutes silence was observed, followed by the sounding of "Reveille." Prayer by Rev. J. J. Rodgers was followed by the laying of many wreaths. The hymn, "Abide With Me" was sung. Prayer and benediction by the Rev. Rodgers closed another memorial service.

The Royal Canadian Legion Branch 160 wishes to acknowledge with grateful thanks those who contributed to the annual Poppy campaign by purchasing wreaths, by donations, and to the general public on the annual Poppy Day in making it a great success this year.

URGES TEST RESUMPTION

NEW YORK (AP)—A scientist whose experiments helped lead to the development of the atomic bomb said Wednesday the United States would soon have to resume atmospheric nuclear testing for its own protection. Dr. John F. Dunning, dean of Columbia University's school of engineering and applied science, urged such a move in a speech.

JOBLESS UPTURN—Unemployment in Canada reversed a downward trend in mid-October and increased by 10,000 to 318,000. The jump was less than the usual September-to-October upswing and the new total was 50,000 lower than in October, 1960.

Graph shows jobless trend during 1960 and to date this year. Totals include those on temporary layoff as well as those without jobs and seeking work. (CP Newsmap)

The Johnstown United Church Mr. and Mrs. Club was held on Wednesday evening with 17 members present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Harry. Mr. Douglas Harry read the Scripture from Matthew 8. The topic was on "Good Driving and Safety." Mr. Harrison Harder was in charge of a questionaire of 70 questions on "Ontario Traffic Laws." One was given each person to answer.

It was arranged that the next meeting would be a tour of the Bell Telephone building in Belleville, returning to Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Harder's home for spaghetti.

Stainless Steel Plays Lead Role in the Modern Kitchen

The kitchen of 1961 is practical as well as glamorous. This trend began during the servant shortage of the past few years, when the mistress of the house took to the kitchen herself. Once in the kitchen, however she rapidly discovered that glamour wasn't enough. Now she wanted the materials that were the easiest to clean and the most difficult to scratch, stain or mar. She wanted appliances that were built in such a way that they were both convenient and out of the way.

Stainless steel answered many of these needs. Literally as strong as steel, it is almost impossible to wear out or dent. Its non-porous surfaces resist rust and stains and make it the easiest metal to clean. It is the same material throughout; hence, it will never chip or wear out.

One of the greatest kitchen revolutions took place in the kitchen sink, which developed from one bowl to two or three, acquired a built-in garbage disposal, a pivoting, splashless faucet that reached all bowls, a fitted vegetable basket, a separate shallow bowl for soaking vegetables or fruits, corner drains to eliminate the risk of glassware tipping, built-in power units with outlets for food mixer, blender and knife sharpener and often a heavy cover of either stainless or wood which fitted one bowl, converting it into either a giant ice bucket or a place to store course three while course two was being served.

Stainless steel sinks became especially popular because research has proven it the cleanest of metals — so much so that hospitals use it almost exclusively in their kitchens and laboratories.

In stainless steel, adaptability has really been the spice of popularity. One reason stainless can be found in such a wide variety of kitchen items is that there is a stainless adaptable for every item.

While all stainless steel is a solid alloy that must contain at least 11½% chromium to be called "stainless," there are about 25 standard types.

Lighting Can Contribute to Home Decor

Decor-conscious homemakers are taking increasing notice of carefully planned lighting in their decorating. One significant indication of lighting's importance for pleasure, comfort, beauty, and safety is that electric utility companies define it as "Light for Living" and specify that provision for good lighting is as necessary as full housepower and electric appliances for their Medallion Home Awards.

Lighting, as much as fabric and furnishings, can be used to create dramatic visual effects, solve space problems, and complement and give richness to colors. Indeed, money spent for expensive and tastefully decorated rooms is wasted if the results cannot be seen because of inadequate lighting.

Experts in home lighting suggest the following decorative effects you can achieve with lighting:

1. Spaciousness. Rooms can be made to appear larger when an abundance of lighting eliminates dark corners. Low ceilings are "raised" with a lighted cornice, formed by mounting the lighting channel and facebboard on the ceiling over a window or wall.

2. Definition of Living Areas. Just as decorators often use area rugs and different textured wall coverings to define a dining area or home entertainment corner, so coordinated lighting fixtures can set aside activity centres.

3. Accents. Wall and ceiling fixtures will not only illuminate but also point up paintings and art objects without creating floor or table clutter.

5. Controlled Lighting. Area lighting (for example, any overhead source of light) which illuminates the whole area of a room, should be controlled so that you can have a high level of intensity when there are several persons in a room or for fewer people, less light, which produces a quieter, more relaxed feeling. Table and floor lamps provide task lighting for reading, sewing or similar sewing tasks. Perimeter lighting is illumination at the sides of the room. New light controls make it possible to dial any degree of light from off to full brilliance.

Coast Guard Takes Disabled Yacht in Tow

BUFFALO (AP)—A Coast Guard cutter took a disabled yacht in tow today and headed toward Buffalo after the two men and two women aboard the yacht had spent the night adrift in a Lake Erie gale.

The crew of a Canadian freighter, the Portadoc, which had been standing by, told the Associated Press by telephone that all aboard the yacht Rowdy were safe.

The 110-foot cutter Ojibwa was expected to reach Buffalo with the yacht around noon. The names of those aboard the yacht and the vessel's registry were not determined. In another report by radio telephone, Capt. Homer Ditzel of Bay Village, Ohio, who was aboard the American ship Metiaria, told The Associated Press the Rowdy's owner had said she was in "bad shape." He said she had water up over the floor boards and was adrift," the captain reported.

25-FOOT WAVES

"We're getting west-southwest winds of 40 to 50 miles an hour now and the waves still are 25 feet high," Ditzel said.

Another Canadian freighter, the Bricoldoc, had tried to tow the Rowdy earlier without success but was helpful in protecting the smaller vessel from waves.

Three Coast Guardsmen who had set out from Erie, Pa., in a 40-foot rescue boat ran into trouble themselves when their craft foundered in twelve feet of Westfield, N.Y. Bot they made their way to shore on a raft. They were taken to the Westfield hospital, where their condition was reported good although they suffered from exposure and shock.

Shortly after dawn, 30-to-35-mile-an-hour winds whipped "very rough waves" across the lake, a Coast Guard spokesman said. Seas had subsided.

When the Rowdy radioed for help early Thursday night, the waves were 25 feet high and the wind blew at 35 an hour.

During the night the yacht drifted from a point about 15 miles south of Buffalo to a point across the lake, nearer to the Ontario shore and about 60 miles southwest of Buffalo.

Engine trouble had forced the Rowdy to anchor in the evening, and then the wind and waves ripped the anchor loose.

The three Coast Guardsmen were about a mile from shore when the waves spilled into their boat.

They said the raft they used was swept under a cliff but they maneuvered it about a half-mile to a beach where volunteer firemen found them.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Irvine and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Casson and family of Hatloway had dinner on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Sutherland.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Harry of Pembro, Mrs. R. Eggleton, of Hillier, Miss Pat Thompson and Miss Gaile Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Harry and boys of Stirling had supper on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. M. Nobes and family.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Dunn and Mrs. R. Hart called on Mr. and Mrs. R. Thrasher on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ray and Mr. and Mrs. N. Edmondson attended a meeting of the Belleville Presbytery Teachers Association at Tabernacle Church on Tuesday evening when the Rev. Bev Caisen and staff of Five Oaks presented the program.

Anniversary Observed in United Church

WELLINGTON — Baskets of 'mums added a bright touch of autumn color for the anniversary services on Sunday, November 12th, in the United Church.

A large crowd present in the morning and a smaller one in the evening, welcomed the minister, the Rev. N. Truax, who preached at both services. His morning sermon was "The Church In Action" and in the evening, "The Church! Why Belong To It?"

Mrs. McNeill, the organist, and the choir, rendered special music for the occasion. They sang the anthems "The Twenty-Fourth Psalm," "The Day Is Past and Over," and the "Pastoral Prayer" and the "Lord's Prayer." Two solos were much enjoyed; Mrs. Peter Doornbos sang "He Shall Feed His Flock Like a Shepherd," from Handel's Messiah, in the morning, and a fitting solo for the evening service, Mr. Paul Twigg gave a fine rendition of "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings."

Carmel

CARMEL — Mrs. Amos Wismore has been spending a few days at Coe Hill with relatives and friends.

Mrs. W. Wannamaker who has been spending a few weeks with friends has returned to the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Homan and Clare. On Tuesday and Mrs. Selden Homan motored to Clinton.

On Sunday, Mrs. Harry Dafoe were entertained to dinner at the home of their son, Mr. and Mrs. Carman Dafoe and children.

A large number from Carmel attended the anniversary services at Gilead Church, on Sunday.

Douglas Ready to Fight Election on Issue of Free Enterprise vs. Socialism

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)— T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said Thursday night he accepts the challenge of Prime Minister Diefenbaker to fight the next election on the issue of socialism versus free enterprise.

He told a public meeting that in the last days of the former Liberal government, the economy was slowing up. Since the conservatives came to power in 1957, we've stopped slidbefore."

The solution proposed by the Conservatives and also talked up by the Liberals was a productivity council. There was no lack of collective capacity in Canada. Production wasn't the problem.

"Our problem is lack of distribution for lack of effective demand," for the goods produced.

The meeting, attended by about 800 supporters, was Mr. Douglas's first appearance in Peterborough visit in this constituency where Walter Pitman was the first leader of Parliament elected under the New Party banner.

LEADER TAXATION

He said political democracy was at its highest when it was being used through legislative action to interfere with basic institutions of association and political action. In New Zealand, under Labor legislation, the premier, at a check of the pay, could veto any change that would add more than 50 per cent of its members voted in favor thereof.

In British Columbia the Social Credit government, though 55th in fiscal ability, moved against basic rights of collective bargaining the last year, and this fall, said no unionist can be appointed to the cities to arbitrate disputes.

The Liberals in Saskatchewan had made an effort in the legislature to obtain similar legislation.

"I think that they didn't succeed is due to corporations, lawyers, doctors, insurance companies or medical associations . . . even when the premier went to give their views a month to support a political party it's against the law. This is interference with basic democratic rights.

"We're still in danger of fascism in Canada and on this continent . . . but it will be dress-shirt fascism . . . and it will be just as destructive to basic democratic rights as if it was brown or black shirt."

HAS WAR TO GO

Earlier he told a service club luncheon that the real worth of a nation is measured not by buildings and monuments but by its culture and education, by what is done about the sick, needy, aged and uneducated. Measured by that standard, Canada has a long way to go.

At a press conference also attended by Mr. Pitman, Mr. Douglas ranged widely over international and domestic affairs.

He called for:

1. Efforts to implement the economic co-operation clause of the NATO treaty rather than permitting it to continue as a strictly military alliance without West Germany had come to regard as an instrument for its territorial ambitions.

2. Demilitarized zones between East and West Europe under United Nations supervision and inspection.

3. Offering the UN forces for an international police force, ending the defence responsibility and using the money for increased foreign aid programs.

4. Admission of Red China to the UN.

RESCUE WORKERS

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty-five office workers, most of them women, were rescued from three stalled elevators Thursday as fire flared on the seventh floor of a downtown skyscraper. The blaze was brought under control quickly.

"Jest a Second"

"Pity — I rather liked her."

Wish Princess Would Hurry And Name Son

LONDON (AP)—A British couple complained today that Princess Margaret's delay in naming her baby is costing them money.

Tony Large and his wife Margaret not only have the same first names as the Princess and her husband, Antony Armstrong-Jones, now Lord Snowdon. The Larges also have a new son, born on the same day as the royal baby.

The Larges naturally want to name their son after young Vancouver Lodge, the title the princess' baby acquired at birth. But the princess has not said what name or when she'll reveal the full name she will bestow on Lord. And until the Larges register their baby by the full name, they can't collect Nz 6l (£21.45) a week in government family allowances.

They also can't collect a £30 (£84) tax rebate until the kingdom of the baby's birth under its name.

The Larges need the money more than the princess, Mrs. Jonesz. Tony Large is a railway shunter and gets £10 10s (£28) a week.

Margaret Large said the baby's father has been toyed with the idea of calling the youngster Large Tony, but has chosen to wait for word from the princess. They'd also like the baby to be christened on the day Princess Margaret chooses for her son.

Marcel Chaput Goes to Quebec Without Leave

HULL, Que. (CP)—Dr. Marcel Chaput, head of a Quebec separatist group, says he will go to Quebec as scheduled even if he is not given leave of absence from the Defence Research Board.

Dr. Chaput, leader of the Quebec separatist Parti Independance Nationale, is scheduled to speak on separatism for Quebecers at a meeting in Quebec City Saturday at Laval University today.

In a press statement, Dr. Chaput charged the board has ignored him during the last three months. The chemist said that one of the reasons given for refusing to give him leave of absence to go to Quebec is that the role of which work is revealing is already too slow. What the directors of the board do not say, added Dr. Chaput, is that the delay in his work is attributable "to the complete lack of co-operation which surround me during the three months following the incident of last June."

This was a reference to the resignation of Dr. Chaput from the post resign because of his separatist activities, considered by many as morally incompatible with his position as a civil servant.

At the time, Dr. Chaput refused to resign and the subject of his dismissal has been a federal servant 17 years.

The board had no comment on Dr. Chaput's statement but Defence Minister Harkness advised the academic organizer in a telegram that DRB's decision not to grant him leave "is in line with a general personal regulation."

He said he would be unfair to other employees to make an exception in this case."

Harbor Police Patrol Waters For Missing Boy

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto harbor police patrolled the waterfront today in a search for a 15-year-old boy missing in a choppy Lake Ontario in a small outboard motor boat since Thursday.

The harbor police spokesman said the search was being maintained despite heavy weather and the failure to find any sign of the boat during the night.

"We haven't given up hope," he said.

Mayor Whitton Opposes Plan Of Civic Centre

OTTAWA (CP)—The weekly war of the sexes resumed on schedule Thursday at a board of control meeting, pitting scrappy Mayor Charlotte Whitton against the four male councillors.

This time the object of battle was the uptown Sparks St. shopping area east of Confederation Square. The councillors wanted the city to plan a permanent Sparks pedestrian mall and eventually carried their point.

Mayor Whitton opposed the plan, saying it was a plot to scuttle a proposal by private interests to build a $20,000,000 civic centre on Sparks St.

"Go on, go on with your little scheme," she told the controllers. "That is the oldest technique in the world for defeating something."

The controllers say they favor the civic centre, which would house a hotel, stores and parking garage in a 11-storey development. But they wanted the mall project also to become a reality.

Three blocks of Sparks St. were turned into a temporary mall in the summers of 1960 and 1961 and the trial was termed a success.

Exports to All Common Market Bloc Increases

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian exports to the six member nations of the European Common Market increased 14 per cent in the first seven months of this year.

There also were sharp gains in sales to the European Communist bloc and to Red China, while at the same time exports declined to the United States and Britain.

The bureau of statistics today placed the over - all January July export trade volume at $3,180,886,000, a rise of 4.3 per cent from $3,050,000,000 in the corresponding period last year.

Exports to Britain fell by $18,746,000 in that period to $902,580,000 and shipments to the United States declined in value $82,982,000 to $1,980,282,000.

Among Common Market countries, exports to West Germany were up to $98,913,900 from $82,-000,000 a year earlier, to France to $44,268,000 from $42,178,000 to Italy to $42,045,000 from $25,-000,000, to Netherlands to $32,164,000 from $32,293,000, and to Belgium-Luxembourg to $36,833,000 from $31,226,000.

Sales to the European Communist bloc totalled $43,561,-000 from $25,815,000. One of the biggest gains was in exports to Russia, up to $19,315,000 from $4,054,000 a year earlier.

Sales to Commonwealth as a group, Canadian exports in the seven - month period fell to $687,300,000 from $702,800,000 in the comparable 1960 period.

Commodity figures showed gains in newsprint, wheat, wood pulp, lumber, crude oil, fish and fishery products. There were declines in lumber and timber, aluminum, uranium, copper and iron ore.

Jet Squadron Always Ready To Alter Base

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the eight Sabre jet squadrons in the RCAF air division in Europe is always ready to pick up and move to another base from which it can operate, a defence department spokesman said today.

He was commenting on a Paris report Wednesday that Canada has made a commitment to the so-called NATO fixtrip to Europe.

The spokesman said the role of the squadron is air defence interception — would be available to that ground crew and spare parts to another base from which the squadron could operate.

Knowles May Run

OTTAWA (CP) — Stanley Knowles, Winnipeg CCF member of the Commons for 15 years until 1958, indicated Thursday night he is considering running in the next federal election as a New Democratic Party candidate.

"It's a matter on which my decision has not yet been made," he said, commenting on Winnipeg reports that he might seek election again.

Formula Believed Reached To Remove Discrimination From Immigration Laws

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government believes it has found a formula to remove racial discrimination from Canada's immigration laws without opening this country's gates to the flood of immigrants whose skins are black, brown or yellow.

A government spokesman said this objective will be achieved under new immigration regulations now being drafted and expected to become effective before the next session of Parliament.

The objective will be to treat all immigrants alike in line with the government's present policy of selective immigration based on quality rather than quantity.

Under this policy stress is placed on encouraging immigrants with skills and professions to emigrate to Canada. The arrival of unskilled workers is discouraged. Unskilled workers make up the bulk of Canada's unemployed.

Existing regulations under the Immigration Act apply mainly to prospective immigrants before they arrive in Canada. They have the effect of limiting the influx of non-white immigrants from China, Japan, India, the Middle East, Africa and the West Indies.

SEE NO BIG INFLUX

The number of immigrants with skills and professions required in this country is limited. In any case, immigrants from which such immigrants would come are developing their own economies and want to keep their skilled people. Thus the new approach is not expected to result in any sizable influx of such immigrants.

Canada's present immigration policy also is to base the annual inflow of newcomers as far as possible on the capacity of the country to absorb them.

As a result of these factors, relaxation of regulations as they pertain to non-whites will not materially affect the basic long-term concept that immigration must be adaptable socially and economically.

The policy behind current regulations dates back to 1947 when the late prime minister Mackenzie King told Parliament that immigration was a privilege and not a right.

Mr. King said he was sure Canadians did not want a fundamental alteration in the character of Canada's population, adding the "large-scale immigration from the Orient would change the fundamental composition of the Canadian population."

TORIES ATTACK

The discrimination built into Canada's immigration system was bitterly attacked by the Progressive Conservative party when it was the official Opposition. In the 1957 election campaign, Prime Minister Diefenbaker promised an overhaul of the Immigration Act. "We ensure that humanity will be considered."

However, after taking office the Conservative govern m ent found that the kind of amendments it would like to make to the Immigration Act were easier demanded than achieved.

The government said at the opening of several parliamentary sessions that a bill would be introduced to amend the act. However, nothing has yet been done.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker now has made clear that the government hopes to remove racial discrimination by changing the regulations.

Strike Votes Seen Likely At GM Plants

WINDSOR (CP) — George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers Union, announced Thursday that strike votes probably will be taken by the 27 General Motors locals in Oshawa, St. Catharines, Windsor, Toronto and London.

Mr. Burt said a government conciliation board, appointed by the General Motors Intra-Corporation Council.

A conciliation board, ordered by the Ontario department of labor, will meet Nov. 28 in Toronto on the GM dispute. Seven days after the board begins its work, the union is free to strike.

Mr. Burt said the reason for the strike votes was that there had been a lack of satisfactory progress at both the master and local bargaining tables.

"We have repeatedly told GM management," said Mr. Burt "that it is unrealistic for it to go on refusing to put anything monetary and nothing but bits and drabs of contract language on the bargaining table. But apparently GM's Canadian management has been directed by Detroit to put the UAW through the same old paces."

Mr. Burt said his union has been negotiating with GM since Sept. 12 and that "everyone knows that settlements have long since been reached between our union and the auto industry's Big Three."

"It has become abundantly clear," said Mr. Burt, "that only a strike vote will move GM to make a decent offer to its Canadian workers."

Suggests Way To Wipe Out Dairy Surpluses

TORONTO (CP)—The surest way to wipe out Ontario's surplus of dairy products would be to reduce the price of whole milk paid farmers for deliveries, a prominent dairyman said Thursday.

Mayor Willard Kinzie of Barrie was speaking as a panelist at the annual meeting of the Ontario Milk Distributors Association.

Mr. Kinzie contended that if the dairies could buy fluid milk at a lower price they could reduce the cost to the consumer, increasing the demand for fluid milk and thus tending to reduce the surplus flow of milk into butter and other milk products.

Other members of the panel, moderated by H. E. Gingrich, a past president of the association, were Emerson Farnsworth, vice-president of the Ontario Whole Milk Producers League, and Fred Hoffmer, past director of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association.

Mr. Kinzie spoke out against the proposed creation of a milk products marketing board to coordinate some of the industry's four producer groups in the province. He said the board would produce a "monopolistic cartel."

Mr. Farnsworth said the proposed marketing plan has not yet been accepted by all producer groups, but the association's opposition to the scheme in view of the fact that milk dairymen were satisfied to deal with a central marketing organization.

Mr. Hoffmer said every other agricultural product is forced to be marketed on a basis of quality. "Yet one lot of grade A milk brings $4.50 per cwt. and a hundredweight because it goes to dairy and another lot of grade A milk only brings $2.50 because it goes into cheese or smoker dairy products."

R. G. Peat of London was elected president of the association for 1961-62. Other officers: Vice-presidents, R. H. Clark, Ottawa, and Wilfrid Lemieux, Owen Sound; executive secretary, M. G. Simpson, Toronto.

Money Stolen Soon Recovered, Youth Arrested

TORONTO (CP)—An apologetic young man walked out of a downtown branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank Thursday with $2,600 in paper money. Within a few minutes the money was back in the bank and a man was arrested.

Student bank teller Rosalie Hall, 18, said a man who took instructions from teller Mrs. Dorothy Dann shortly after the bank opened at 10 a.m. and approached them.

Miss Hall said he "pushed a piece of paper at me." She said the note told her: "This is a holdup. Do not scream unless I am armed. Put all the $5, $10, $20 and $50 bills in a bag."

The teller said she pushed the money through the wicket. The man filled a bag, then paused to say "thank you, sorry, to Mrs. Dann before walking out the front door.

As the youth left, Mrs. Dann said, "Come back." But the teller who sounded the alarm, Michael Hall, a 20-year-old Toronto unemployed tailor's apprentice, has been charged with robbery.

Charge Husband Shot Young Wife Through Heart

TORONTO (CP) — A 20-year-old mother was shot to death Thursday night in her suburban home. Police charged her husband, John Stillwell, 23, with murder in connection with the slaying.

Police found the body of Mrs. Janet Stillwell, mother of a 15-month-old boy, sprawled in the doorway of their basement bachelor suite in the suburban bungalow. She had been shot through the heart with a .22-calibre rifle bullet.

PUBLICITY PAYS

LONDON (Reuters) — Penguin Books sold 3,500,000 copies of Lady Chatterley's Lover after the novel's four - letter words landed it in court a year ago, the publisher said Thursday. "If they had left us alone we would only have sold about 250,000 copies and . . . been very happy," a spokesman said.

Learned Lessons In Modesty Almost too Well

She couldn't get out and her screams awakened Ricky. He went to the neighbors and got somebody to help me," she said she told Ricky.

"Help people," Momma I just have my underpants on. I'm ashamed to go outside."

Mrs. Ragazine bagged and dissided. Finally, after about half an hour, Ricky returned next door, clad in his underpants, to get help.

The neighbor called police and by the time they arrived had Mrs. Ragazine out of the pipe.

Says Movement Has Been Exaggerated

HALIFAX (CP) — Transport Minister Balcer suggested Thursday that the size and strength of the French nationalist movement in Quebec has been exaggerated.

"I wonder if the press has not built it up a bit," he told a news conference. He said he saw no sign in his own area of Trois-Rivieres that the nationalist campaign has any substantial support.

He said the Union nationaliste campaign has any substantial support.

"Most of them are young people," he said. "You have it in every province. I've known a few them when I was a young student . . . Now many of those are solid businessmen."

Hotel Manager Says City Helps Prolong Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Angus P. MacKinnon, manager of the Royal York Hotel, said Thursday in a letter to city clerk Edgar Norris that the City of Toronto is helping to prolong the strike of the hotel by refusing to remain neutral.

Mr. MacKinnon will probably be read at next Monday's meeting of city council, ends his letter with a plea that action by bringing the opposing parties before a special meeting of council be taken.

Employees of the CPR-owned Royal York Hotel have been on strike since last April. They are members of the Hotel and Club Employees Union.

And J. B. Michael Grayson last week gave notice of his intention to bring the parties before the board of control. He said the city is entitled to the financial loss of business because of the strike.

Mr. MacKinnon said: "The interest of Ald. Grayson is appreciated. However, a meeting of the type suggested would merely cover ground which has been gone over time and again in the numerous meetings already held. The adoption of Ald. Grayson's resolution could well hinder settlement of the strike."

He added that the most effective action the City of Toronto could take to resolve the dispute would be to adopt a position of neutrality instead of impeding the efforts of the union against the hotel, as it and other levels of government had done.

FAIL IN BID

LONDON (Reuters) — Leftwing members of Britain's Opposition Labor party failed Thursday night in a bid to take control of the party's "shadow" cabinet in the House of Commons. The parliamentary party re - elected en bloc the existing shadow cabinet, which almost unanimously supports party leader Hugh Gaitskell. The "cabinet" consists of Labor's top men in various fields like defence and foreign affairs.

Learned Lessons In Modesty Almost too Well

WARSAW (AP) — A new and final new version of the arrest of Soviet police boss Lavrenty F. Beria, purporting to come from Premier Khrushchev, was reported by Polish Communist sources Thursday.

They said Beria brandished a pistol and was disarmed by Khrushchev himself who wrestled with him in a heretofore undisclosed meeting of the Communist party politburo.

The informants said Beria later was tried and executed on Dec. 23, 1953, in Azerbaijan. This date agreed with previous announcements of the execution.

The Polish sources told Western reporters they were present at a plain-clothing reception for about 1,000 persons during the recent Soviet Communist party congress in Moscow when Khrushchev launched into the story of his physical struggle with Beria.

BERIA BIDS FOR POWER

One informant said he took notes as Khrushchev said. This is the account:

Khrushchev proposed a toast to the victory over the Stalinist cult of personality. He said Beria, backed by secret service police, launched a determined bid for power. Beria was a member of the triumvirate that included V. M. Molotov and Georgi Maksimilianovich Malenkov ruling the Soviet Union after the death of Stalin.

Other members of the politburo decided the situation was intolerable and met in a closed-door meeting of the politburo to discuss the problem prior to discussing military questions.

Before the meeting Khrushchev approached by telephone Marshal Kiril S. Moskalenko, then commander of the Moscow garrison who since has become deputy defence minister and chief of rocket forces.

He asked Moskalenko: "Have you any men who are willing to risk their lives?" And Moska.. replied: "I replied without hesitation: "I have."

At the meeting, Beria again attacked politburo members for concealed weapons.

STRUGGLED IN GUN

But Moskalenko managed to smuggle in a sub-machine-gun and the guard-room. The meeting was to discuss military problems, Moskalenko and his colonel groups were allowed into a waiting room adjoining the room for talks.

At the meeting, members of the politburo asked Beria to explain charges that he was acting as a British agent during the revolution of 1917. Beria, it is now also asked him to explain what happened to a party member who disappeared in the purges of the 1930s after making this accusation.

Khrushchev told Beria: "You are not a true Communist and have wormed your way into the organization."

Beria then pulled his gun from a brief case. Khrushchev grabbed him and tried to get the gun. Moskalenko burst in a floor button, summoning Moskalenko's task group.

ARREST HIM

Beria was overpowered, put under arrest and led away.

This differed from some British newspaper accounts which said Khrushchev was saying Beria was killed on the spot by Moskalenko and his sub - machine-gun.

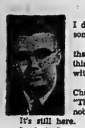
(In Moscow, a spokesman of the city is authorized to said: "There were no secret speeches at the party congress.")

Should Seek Similar Union Says Member

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Judy LaMarsh and Ted Kay, Commons member for Niagara Falls, Thursday suggested in a speech that Canada, instead of opposing the United Kingdom's entry to the European Market, should seek a similar union.

In an address to the Moncton Liberal Women's Association, she said Canada would benefit from Britain's entry into the market. A more prosperous Britain would mean a more prosperous market for Canada to trade with.

HAS CLOSE CALL



CLINTON (CP) — Jeweller Norman Counter was entering his store Thursday with a 20-ton 365 bricks fell from the ledge of a two-storey building, narrowly missing him. The brick wrecked three cars, caus $3,000 damage.

'Twist' Not So New But Still Hard to Do

By JACK HUTTON

Well, have YOU tried the twist lately? I did—and I've still got a lingering twinge somewhere in the small of my back.

Anyone watching TV recently realizes that adults are finally experimenting with this strange dance that has been popular with teen-agers for close to one year.

It was one year ago last summer when Chubby Checker brought out his record, "The Twist." It was an overnight hit which nobody thought would last.

It's still here.

In fact, Sammy Kaye, a man known to most of us for his gentle "swing and sway" music, has now recorded the "Mama and Papa Twist." On the flip side of the record is "Swing and Sway Twist."

One week ago I was told I'd be a social flop unless I tried the twist like everyone else (if only they'd realized this reporter has managed for years with a "speed-it-up-and-slow-it-down" step).

JUST GRATTE

My partner looked grimly amused. "It's easy," she said. "Take a stance like a boxer. Stick your left foot out slightly, with your weight on the rear or right on. Now just gyrate to the music."

"Do you mean," I puffed, "this is all there is to this? I thought it was supposed to be an ancient African tribal dance."

"No, you idiot," she explained patiently. "You must not step on my foot like that. It is very important that two partners touch in absolutely no way. It is not considered correct."

Correct or not, we managed to cover about 220 feet around the dance floor (one-third of a furlong if you prefer figures that way.) I found out that the twist can get complicated.

BACKSCRATCHER

This may sound easy. If so, wait until you've tried the Backscratcher. In this one you stand back-to-back while grating or wriggling. Imagine how foolish you'd feel if your partner walked away.

That isn't all. Dance studios all across Canada are also teaching the Choo-Choo train, the Fight and Bowling, all of which are variations on the basic step. I just wonder who keeps score for the third type.

What also puzzles me is that adults now trying the Twist (in fact, almost claiming it as their own) are the same ones who have been laughing at the Pony, the Fly, the Mess Around, the Hully Gully, the Freeze and the Slop. (Tried any of those?)

At any rate, adults who claim that Canadian teen-agers are physical wrecks just must be wrong. Dance the twist for three hours and you've just got to be material for the next Olympics!

SEWING QUEEN

An extremely charming brown-eyed 13-year-old from Edmonton, Alta., recently won $400 and a one-week tour of the U.S. for herself and her parents—all with a sewing machine.

Sherilyn Bell, who sews everything that she wears, became the first Canadian teen-ager to become a top winner in the annual Singer Young Stylemaker Sewing Contest.

From all accounts, the young dressmaker impressed all her New York judges by modelling her own four-piece suit made of coral-colored jersey knit fabric. It consisted of pleated skirt, box jacket, sleeveless overblouse and matching polka-dotted blouses.

The 13-year-old claimed later she has never had trouble with patterns or fabrics. "My only problem," she said, "is in finding stylish patterns for my small size eight figure."

Two other Canadian girls reaped runner-up awards. They were Delia Kureluk, 16, of Edmonton, and Aleida Waque, 21, of Toronto. Delia won $600 and Aleida $300.

NEW AWARDS

A cross-Canada poll is now being conducted among teen-agers to find out which of their elders they consider most outstanding in sports, entertainment and politics.

Deadline for the Young Canada Awards is next Wednesday (Nov. 25). Have you got a politician in mind? Or a football hero, outstanding swimmer or runner?

Every students' council across Canada has been asked to register an opinion. If you feel like chipping in, mail your choices to Youth Awards, Box 1060, Postal Station 2, Toronto 2B.

Wallpapers Can Co-ordinate Decor Throughout Home

If you are about to redecorate, keep in mind two major objectives. The first is to bring sparkle and interest to the home, and the second is to keep a look of harmony in the home. No matter how imaginative your ideas are, if they don't jell together the result will be unsatisfying.

For the unprofessional home decorator this often presents a problem. But there is help at hand, and at no charge. Visit your local wallpaper store and take a look at the sample books there.

You will find in almost every sample book groups of co-ordinated papers that make a good starting off point for a decorating scheme. Two, three or even four papers are tied together by design or color or mood, or sometimes by all three.

A typical grouping might be a repeat design of a Colonial scene in light beige, brown and burnt orange, which could be used effectively in the hall; a small neat documentary pattern in the same three colors, which would look well in the dining room, and a simple embossed texture of beige with slight flecks of brown and burnt orange, which would be a good choice for the living room as a background for the many books and pictures.

This would give both contrast and harmony in three connected areas. Use these ready made schemes throughout the home wherever you have adjoining rooms to decorate such as bedroom and bathroom, or kitchen and dinette.

These matchmates are not new, but they are now to be found in the popular priced field in many attractive designs of fine quality. They bring unity and distinction to any room.

Where a room has no particular style, either because of different furnishings that don't blend too well or because of too many distracting colors, the use of these matchmates will do a great deal to tie in scattered effects and give harmony to the room.

Trained decorators know how to use what is on the market, and the do-it-yourself decorator too, should use all these built in aids that are there for the looking. The job will be easier and the results better.

BORING HOLES

Whenever possible, hold the hand drill in horizontal position while boring. The possibilities of keeping the bit square to the surface are greater.

RELIEVE DOOR CATCHING

If the bottom of a door rubs slightly, lay a sheet of coarse sandpaper at the trouble point and work back and forth rapidly. This should sufficiently smooth down the wood to avoid need for planing.

EASIER PLANING

To ease the job of planing a large hardwood surface, sponge the area lightly with water beforehand. This raises the grain slightly and gives the edge of the plane a better "bite."

Home Owners Are Adding Bathrooms

In the growing family, lack of privacy and irritating wash-up priorities can emphasize the need for more bathroom space. An unprofessional view of the home may fail to uncover available space for an additional room. But the plumbing contractor, with his years of experience in these matters, can often utilize an area under the stairs or adapt a closet which, with the right fixtures, can be another bathroom or powder room.

In adding a new bathroom or modernizing an old one, the question of "right fixtures" is an important one. Today there are many products readily available which can fit the exact space and decor requirements of any house. There are fixtures for the large bathroom and for the smaller room, fixtures especially suitable for adults and others for children. Style and color variations are numerous as are the very important factors of durability, quality and brand names.

CORNER TUB FAVORED

The corner bathtub has long been a favorite in remodeling schemes where existing wall structures are left intact. The free finished side of the corner fixture makes it adaptable to walls that extend beyond its length.

Many modern designs are now available in corner models. One example is the recently-introduced Contour bathtub which features a specious non-symmetrical bathing area.

The decorating possibilities with the corner model are very attractive. The free end of the bathtub can be equipped with a towel ladder emphasizing the towel colors used in the bathroom scheme.

A popular modernization idea for the house without a basement is the combination bathroom-utility room. Modern, compact fixtures make it possible to have a streamlined installation for laundry and bath facilities in an area approximately 6 x 8 feet.

Along one wall you can have a 54-inch recess Contour tub, which adds to the utility of the bathroom with its handy ledges for easier cleaning and sitting space for mother while bathing her children.

TILE DIVIDES

A tile divider can separate the tub from washing and drying equipment which come in compact models for this kind of installation. The tile divider can house the piping for the tub and the washer-dryer. On the opposite wall twin lavatories can be installed.

FAUCET WASHER CHANGING

If you find it difficult to get at the nut that holds the spindle when you're changing a faucet washer, try using an ordinary spark plug wrench. Its deep socket will solve the problem.

Sunday School Lesson

We Must Be Disciplined

By ROY L. SMITH

The future in this world will belong to that nation, and those people, who are best disciplined. This means that they will be disciplined by their government or they will disciplne themselves.

AUTOMATION AND FREEDOM

Day by day the market for unskilled labor is narrowing. With every invention of a new machine, there is an additional market for the trained and skilled worker.

The industrialization of the underdeveloped areas of the world waits, in large part, upon the development of a mass of trained workers. Mills cannot be operated by ignorant "hands." The development of natural resources comes only when a trained labor force is available. In the new world of automation, which lies only a decade or more ahead of us, will call for a quality of workmanship, and skilled operators, such as no civilization has yet demanded. It is a fact, of course, that automation will throw thousands out of work, but at the same time it will open the door of opportunity to those workers who are willing to make the effort to achieve training. It is not a question of politics, or of union organization. It is one of the inescapable facts of life.

SKILL AND DISCIPLINE

The achievement of skill begins with the willingness to subject one's self to the rigors of discipline.

Just as discipline represents the rock base of efficiency in an army, so the effectiveness of an industrial system depends upon the readiness of the workers to accept discipline in getting their training.

The ability to move with precision, to calculate exactly, to eliminate waste, to avoid unnecessary action—this is basic in the requirements of an industrialized society.

The first element in a disciplined Christian life is, again, this matter of discipline. Peace of mind depends upon an intelligent and determined management of one's mental processes. Christian character begins with discipline, and without it there is no such thing as Christian character.

HEIGHT OF WATWARDNESS

Generally speaking, the churches have laid considerable emphasis upon the matter of correct theology. Certainly there is no place in good religion for fuzzy thinking.

Neither is there any place in the Christian life for undisciplined tongues, appetites, tempers, passions, or desires.

Just as Christianity cannot countenance erratic logic, neither can it tolerate undisciplined living. It is for this reason that it must demand disciplined lives from its disciples.

Various medical conferences and laboratories have been attempting of late to determine just how much alcohol can be tolerated in the human bloodstream before the drinker must be adjudged an unsafe driver. Various state laws have been started fixing the alcoholic content at various percentages. But upon one fact all authorities are agreed; even a minute quantity makes a difference, and that difference is always a diminution of skill, accuracy, and dependability.

With every heightening of the demand for discipline in American life, the use of alcohol in any quantity becomes an aggravated problem.

If the democracies are to hold their own against the forces of communism they must be prepared to achieve personal disciplines in the lives of individual citizens. We are not far removed from the point where we must undertake to discipline ourselves or be disciplined.

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — Mrs. William McGee, accompanied by Mrs. Lyle Leavitt, Wooler, took the bus trip to Toronto on Tuesday of last week where both enjoyed the Ice Capades.

The Live Women's Circle held a successful tea and bazaar at Orser Hall on Wednesday afternoon, with a capacity crowd attending.

Mrs. Beatrice Lindle, Emma and Jimmie, and her mother, Mrs. James Lloyd, returned home after a month's motor trip to Redbank, New Brunswick, when they visited Mrs. Lloyd's daughter, Mrs. Alvin Astle, Mr. Astle and two small sons. Mrs Astle underwent major surgery in hospital while they were there and had returned home before they left.

Mr. Bill McGee, Ned and John Leavitt, are spending two weeks in the north on their annual deer hunting trip.

Mr. John Lloyd and Connie of Oshawa were Sunday dinner guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lloyd.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Huff accompanied by Mrs. Norwood Huff, Picton, motored to Toronto for the weekend and visited their daughters, the Misses Louise and Joanne Huff.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Jandrew and Brenda motored to Toronto on Friday and attended the Ice Capades, and returned home Saturday. They were Sunday supper guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shenton, along with Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur McGee.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. F. Swann, Miss Nancy Ward, Miss Norma Foster and Mrs. Harry Foster, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Foster. The Young People had charge of the service Sunday morning at Bloomfield United and West Lake churches.

Mr. Douglas Lloyd, Toronto, spent holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lloyd who, along with his grandfather, Mr. James Lloyd, journeyed to Bernia to attend funeral services for Jim Lloyd's brother-in-law, Mr. Ernest Bursey. While away they visited Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lloyd, Susan and Bradley Parkhill, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lloyd, Port Dover.

Marmora

REMEMBRANCE DAY

MARMORA — Remembrance Day was observed in Marmora on Saturday with the Canadian Legion and Ladies' Auxiliary marching in company with Boy Scouts and Cubs, Girl Guides and Brownies, from the Legion Room to the Memorial hall, where wreaths were laid in memory of those who paid the supreme sacrifice in two wars.

Two minutes' silence was observed, Reveille was sounded by Thomas Brooks. Padre R. G. Fleming, Marmora Legion, and former Padre P. O. Miller addressed the assembly.

CBC Has New Proposal

Battle Of Picture Tubes

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the CBC said Thursday the corporation is prepared to see proposal dealing with television of concerts and wrestling. Canadian football playoffs for consideration by Jake Gaudaur, chairman of the Eastern Football Conference.

Gaudaur had asked the CBC to decide by Thursday whether it would accept his proposal for the televising of decisive playoff games by the CBC and by CTV, the privately-owned television network.

Bob McGall, supervisor of outside broadcasting for the CBC, sent a telegram to Gaudaur, president and general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, saying investigation of technical details was delaying a reply.

The CBC spokesmen said Gaudaur's latest recent proposal, made Tuesday, was that the CBC should carry western playoff games over its national CBC network and eastern playoff games on the Toronto outlet, while CFTO TV carried the eastern playoff games on its network.

He said the CBC understood that Canadian previous suggestion, made Monday, was that decisive playoff games would alternate between the CBC's eastern networks stations as well as Winnipeg, Regina and Calgary.

Decisive games involved are the second game of the Eastern playoffs Sunday between Toronto Argonauts and the Ti-Cats in Hamilton Nov. 26 and the second and possibly third games of the best-of-three western finals at Winnipeg Nov. 29 and Dec. 2.

The CBC holds television rights to western playoff games and CTV holds eastern playoff rights.

Peter, Guelph Brawl

Referee 'Cleans' Ice

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

What Guelph Royals lacked in scoring punch Thursday night they made up by throwing wee punches—and wound up with a referee in the fistfight.

Peterborough Petes outscored them 7-4 in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A tilt but they didn't outclout them. Referee Gord Fevreau gave 10 minutes for penalties for fighting, handing every player on the ice except the goaltenders.

In the only other league encounter, Hamilton Red Wings did it again, beating St. Catharines Teepees 6-4 in Hamilton for their 10th straight win without a loss this season.

At Peterborough, the fireup came with only two seconds remaining in the game. The wie Menard and Jim McLellan. The St. Catharines goal-second place, one point ahead was netted by Duke Harris.

Pace-setters for Peterborough were Dan O'Shea and Claude Larose, each with two goals. Stu Mulvihead, Keith Wright and Terry Stonge got singles.

GOALIE RETURNS

Hamilton opened a 13 - point gap between first and second positions. The game marked the return for St. Catharines of goaltender Roger Crozier, sidelined the last two weeks with a broken jaw.

Teepees are tied with Montreal for third place, one point behind Niagara Falls.

Marksmen for Hamilton were Earl Heiskala, Pit Martin, Howie Menard and Jim McLellan. The St. Catharines goal-second place, one point ahead was netted by Duke Harris.

Would This Be Hitting Below Belt?

The Halifax University Marauders and the Atlantic Conference championship here each other in a bowl game Nov. 25 and Mayor Jackson wants to get the ball rolling in sports rivalry between the two college cities.

As a wager on the game, he is offering to put up his Mayor cap and gown against Halifax Mayor J. E. Lloyd's kilt.

In Halifax, Mayor Lloyd said he plans a "counter-proposal" which he will wire to Mayor Jackson. He said it was apparent that the Hamilton mayor "doesn't realize the importance of the kilt to the Nova Scotian."

Goyer Goes Well For Blades

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A player exchange completed Thursday between Los Angeles Blades and Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League has already paid dividends for the California club.

Eddie Dorohoy, obtained only a few hours earlier, assisted on the tying goal and scored the winner in overtime as Los Angeles edged Edmonton Flyers 4-3 Thursday night.

The win, before a crowd of 4,800, lifted Los Angeles into third place in the Southern Division. The Blades are one point ahead of San Francisco Seals, while Edmonton still leads the Northern Division, by seven points over Seattle Totems.

In addition to Dorohoy, other Los Angeles scorers were forward Gerry Goyer and defencemen Ralph Keller and Don Mcleod. Chuck Holmes, Roger Dorjody and Warren Hynes replied for the Flyers.

The defeat was a costly one for Flyers who lost forward Art Lunde with a dislocated hip. Lunde, the club's top scorer, will be out for several weeks.

McFarlands Meet Petes Here Tonight!

The Belleville McFarlands will make their first home start of the young OHA Eastern Junior League schedule here tonight against the powerful Peterborough Monarchs.

The Macs, coached by Gordie Bell, won the loop opener in Kingston earlier this week by a close 4-3 score.

Bell had only 18 players dressed for that game, including three defencemen, but he is hoping to have a little stronger lineup tonight.

Two defencemen, Paul Zakos and Richard "Mick" Nicoll and forwards Dave Smith, have been working out with the Macs and are ready to go as soon as they have been cleared from last season's commitments.

Smith is a branch-to-branch transfer from the Ottawa Valley district. Zakos is a Belleville product who belongs to the Montreal chain while Nicoll is a veteran from the Junior "A" ranks. All three are highly regarded by the local brass and will see action tonight if they have been cleared.

Peterborough, operating a new sponsor, Monsens, this year and without the backing of the Canadiens for the first time in a number of seasons, are of unknown quality.

Only three familiar names were included in the pregame lineup sent in but the Petes always come up with a fast, young squad. They have adopted the New York Ranger sweaters in honor of George "Red" Sullivan who hails from Peterborough.

Game time tonight is 8.00 o'clock and a good crowd is expected to view this opener.

The Belleville lineup will include Gordie Parker, Larry Mavety, Gary Reid, Ted Rosebush, Pete Weston, Moe Hunter, Graydon Scott Garry Hull, Gary Duvall, Billy McCaskill and Bucky Ethier, and any of the earlier mentioned trio that have been cleared.

VETERAN COMIC

KINGSTON (CP) — Bruce Coulter turns 34 Saturday but Queen's Golden Gaels aren't charitable enough to hand him his most-wanted birthday present on a platter.

Coulter, leaving later this season after four years as coach of McGill University Redmen, would like to bow out with his second successive senior intercollegiate football championship.

The Gaels, deprived of the ill, last year by McGill in a similar sudden-death playoff, see no need to have it happen again. Says coach Frank Tindall:

Says Coulter:

"They'll be fighting mad all right, but we'll be ready for them."

The game itself shapes up as a passing battle between McGill's Tom Skypeck and Queen's Cal Connor. Both coaches have been pondering pass defence.

MAY USE SPREAD

Coulter, whose new job is athletics director at Bishop's University in Lennoxville, Que., thinks the Gaels will make more use of the spread formation that worked well for them in the second half last Saturday. McGill's Redmen shot for 15-7 to force the playoff.

"It hurt us primarily because we didn't have a defence for it," said Coulter. "We'll have to find one and we may have it. I think Connor will use the spread because he doesn't like to get hit and there is less chance of that throwing from the spread."

Tindall spent the week working on his own pass defence and modifying his offence to give Connor more protection.

FIELD MUDDY

It rained heavily here Thursday and prospects are the field will still be "muddy for the game. Tindall figures this will help McGill.

"McGill has a bigger team and size generally pays off in the mud. They can't help that. But we do and kicking is important in a wet day."

Queen's finished the regular season with an 8-1 record. Its only loss being to McGill. The Redmen were 4-2.

EXPEL HORSE DOPERS

ONTREAL (CP)—Paul Brunette and his wife of St. Eustache, Que., were expelled for life from the Canadian Trotting Association Thursday for doping their horse Princess Stars for its event Nov. 7 at Blue Bonnets Raceway. Driver Irene Rene Grandmaison was expelled for the balance of the racing season.

'The Big Fight'

Million Down, Champ Up

BOSTON (AP)—Floyd Patterson, millionaire manager of challenger Tom McNeeley, said Thursday he will soon make the $1,000,000 bank deposit demanded by heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson's manager Cus D'Amato.

Fuller denied he has not lived up to the contract for the scheduled heavyweight title fight, Dec. 4 at Toronto, as D'Amato has charged.

"I have received the okay on the contract from the Toronto Boxing Commission," Fuller said. "The money will be forthcoming under the terms of the contract, 10 days from the date of that approval. The date of the fight was Nov. 13 which gives me until Nov. 22."

D'Amato had charged in Toronto that the agreement called for Fuller to deposit the money 10 days after the Oct. 16 signing as a guarantee of a return match in four months if the unbeaten but unranked McNeeley should upset the champ.

WITHDRAWS FROM FIGHT

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—An unhealed leg ailment forced champion Harold Johnson to withdraw Thursday from a scheduled light-heavyweight title bout, set for Dec. 2 here, against unbeaten Doug Jones of New York. Johnson said he will meet Jones, the No. 1 contender in the division, as soon as possible.

Habs Slip, Bruins Clip, Score Is 3-2

Nine Points Off Pace

By LAURENT CHABROL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston Bruins' rookie-packed lineup is far ahead of coach Phil Watson's schedule for development.

So much so that the Bruins, after gaining only one tie in their first eight games this season, now are only nine points out of first place in the National Hockey League race.

True, the Bruins still are last but they're rising fast.

Thursday night they clipped Montreal's slipping and injury-riddled Canadiens 3-2 in the league's only action for their fourth win in their last eight games. Of the other four, Bruins tied two and lost by 4-3 and 2-1 scores.

This represents a much better pace than Watson had hoped for. During the early days of the season, he reasoned that not too much could be expected of his Bruins before Christmas.

Obviously, Watson is enthused about his team's progress.

"I've got a rookie team and it's going to be the best in the world," he says. "We're coming, getting better fast — way ahead of schedule."

LOST LAST THREE

Against the Canadiens, who have scored only four goals in losing their last three — all on the road — rookies Terry Gray and Don Head combined with the steady hand of veteran Don McKenney to push Boston on top.

Gray, a 23 - year - old right winger acquired in a trade with two goals within 34 seconds early in the second period to erase a 1-0 Canadien deficit. The goals were Gray's fifth and sixth of the season.

Head, 28 - year - old rookie goaltender, pulled off 24 saves — 10 of them in the third period when Canadiens went all out in an effort to salvage at least a tie.

McKenney, a seven - year veteran, punched home the winning goal. It came at 1:10 of the third period.

Gray and Head are only two of the eight rookies Watson is using regularly. The others also are producing.

DO YEOMAN SERVICE

Bob Bechard has five goals, Cliff Pennington has scored three times and assisted on 11 others, Wayne Connelly is coming into his own, and Eddie Westfall, Pat Stapleton and Ted Green are doing yeoman service on defence.

About the only bright spot in the Montreal camp was Claude Provost's nine points which permitted him to regain the NHL's individual scoring leadership from Andy Bathgate of the New York Rangers.

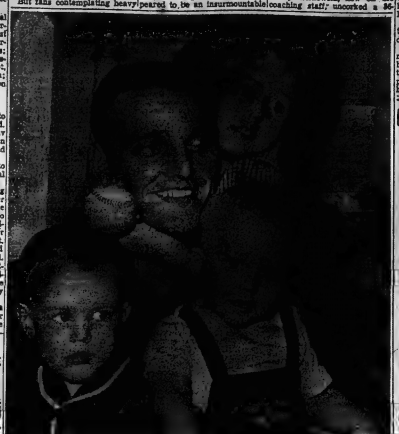
Henri Richard scored Montreal's other goal.

Canadiens, still leading the league, played without Jean Beliveau, out since the start of the season, and Ralph Backstrom, who re - injured his right knee in a loss to Toronto Maple Leafs the previous night.

At least five other Montreal players were bothered by various minor ailments. The list reads something like this: Bernie Geoffrion, bruised ribs; Phil Goyette, bad wrist; defenceman Jean - Guy Talbot, muscle tear in his upper arm; Billy Hicke, bad back, and Don Marshall, banged up thumb.

PUTS BOSTON AHEAD



Richard got the Habs off to a 1-0 lead in the first period. But Gray, assisted by Murray Oliver both times, put Boston ahead with goals at 2:02 and 2:36 of the second.

Provost pulled Canadiens into a tie with a power - play goal late in the second.

McKenney got the winning goal with a Montreal defender draped around his waist. He spun around quickly and let go an eight - footer from a difficult angle that caught the far corner of Jacques Plante's net.

Montreal has two more road games coming up this weekend. The Habs are at New York Saturday for the first of six scheduled afternoon games in the NHL this season. Sunday they're at Chicago.

Detroit is at Toronto for a Saturday night game. Other Sunday night games will have Toronto at New York and Detroit at Boston.

Six Points on Round

Ti-Cats Favored Over Argonauts

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats are favored to win the Eastern Football Conference final against Toronto Argonauts.

The bookmakers quote the Ti-cats as one-point favorites in the opening game of the two-game, total-points series here Sunday. They're six-point favorites on the round.

But fans contemplating heavy wagering might first ponder some history.

The last time these two clubs met in the eastern final was in 1952. The Tiger-Cats were favored even more heavily that time.

Hamilton elected to play the first game at home and lost, to 23-6. The Argos took what appeared to be an insurmountable 15-point lodge into the second and supposedly deciding game.

In a third game, the Ticats had a narrow lead until the last five minutes. Then quarterback Bobby Wirkowski, now on the coaching staff, uncorked a 86-yard heave to Royal Copeland who ran it 25 yards for the touchdown and wrapped up the game 13-7.

The Argos went on to win the Grey Cup over Edmonton Eskimos, the last time they've had a crack at it. Hamilton's luck changed later and the Ticats took the cup in 1953 and 1957, both times from Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Regardless of the outcome of the game, some things will be different Sunday.

Exhibition Stadium, the Argonauts' new home ground, will be dry or reasonably so. The tarpaulin was down Thursday to protect it from rain which fell heavily throughout the day.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Some of these days members of the bald-pated, grey-thatched middle-aged fraternity of the Quinte Curling Club are going to get a surprise.

The day might not be too far distant when risks of fresh-faced, eager youngsters from the secondary schools of the city will prove to their dads and grandads that curling horseshoes can be played and played well by knowledge-knibblers.

Curling, especially in the western part of Canada, has noted a marked upsurgence in popularity particularly among the younger fry during the past few years.

In some parts, especially the smaller communities, the ancient game has defrocked hockey as a school sport. One district reported youngsters using large tin cans filled with cement as curling stones.

High school curling is rapidly reaching the point where its annual national championship is one of the country's outstanding winter sports events. From Hewitt to Victoria the curling "gradesters" have taken to the game like a chorine to a mink stole.

Last year, I understand, the Quinte Curling Club inaugurated a Mch school students' league with a modicum of success. This year the club plans to start earlier to lay the foundation of what is hoped will be a regular part of scheduled activities.

Bill Spinelli, who has taken the Belleville Pepsi's hockey club under his sponsorship wing, has been named chairman of the proposed High School Students' Curling League.

Bill told me today that the club plans an eight-rink league which will accommodate thirty-two players. And in case some young student mite is interested, the girls are eligible to join the club.

The club is losing no time getting the student league started. Registration takes place tomorrow morning starting 10 o'clock through twelve o'clock noon. Applicants for membership must be a registered student at a Belleville secondary school.

It is expected the student league will have "ice-time" from four p.m. to six p.m., two days a week. Some Saturday time also will be allotted to the young curlers.

Students are required to provide themselves with curling shoes and brooms (not the kitchen variety). Instruction will be given at the club by fully-qualified members. Club curling stones will be used.

To the uninitiated student, curling is played on an ice surface 136 feet long with a "house" or series of concentric circles, 12 feet in diameter, at either end. These "houses" or targets resemble a bulls'-eye as used in rifle, pistol or archery shoots.

The implements used are a hunk of granite weighing about forty pounds and a set of brooms. The granite is polished and rounded like a puffed cookie with a handle attached in the centre. The brooms look like those you have by a fireplace.

Each curling team has four players commanded by a "skip." Each player is allowed to curl two stones in a game or "end." When all stones have been curled by both sides to one of the "houses", points are counted—one point for each stone placed closest to the centre of the house, and inside the stones of the opponents.

The purpose of the brooms, in the hands of other players, is to sweep the ice in front of a moving stone to enhance its passage and in some cases to aid its direction. The game, thus is one of great potential skill on the part of the sweepers as well as the players.

And it is a game of great cunning, too. The skip is the director. He stands in the "house" where the stones are being sent and uses a set of intricate broom and hand signals showing where he wants the stone to go.

But just one tip to the youngsters. One thing not easily detected is the cunning of the older men. The teen-agers more often than not, have to defy their fears or Gismgarries to the old codgers of 69 to 96. These greybeards may not be so fast on the brooms. But can they curl!

Weather, Stamps, Bomber Worries

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers head for Calgary today for the first game of the Western Football Conference final, worrying as much about the vagaries of western playoff weather as about the Stampeders' newly dangerous offence.

The Bombers, who won first place in the league and an automatic bye into the best - of - three final, lock horns with the Stampeders at 3 p.m. MST (4 p.m. EST) Saturday. The Stamps are in the final by virtue of a sensational 27-26 victory over the second-place Edmonton Eskimos in the two-game total-points semi-final last weekend.

Winnipeg coach Bud Grant said Thursday night his club spent the last week trying to prepare for any eventuality in the weather, concentrating on this as much as they did on Calgary's new spread formation attack.

The spread, with quarterback Eagle Day standing well back of the centre and taking a direct snap to start plays, was inserted into he Stampeders' attack in the semi-final series and had the desired effect of upsetting Edmonton's defence.

WEATHER CAUSES SHIFT

Grant's concern over the weather was evident in his announcement of the Bomber line-up for the game. He named Charlie Shepard, the veteran inspect fullback from North Texas State University, to replace rookie Roger Hagberg from Minnesota.

Hagberg, who filled in for Shepard in several games, scored six touchdowns and averaged 5.5 yards a carry compared with Shepard's one touchdown and 5.1 yards a carry. But Shepard is rated as one of the most dangerous kickers in the Canadian game and owns a 45.3-yard average for the season.

Kingston Hockey Shrine

Turn Sod for 'Dream' Hall

KINGSTON (CP) — Sod was turned Thursday for a $135,000 international hockey Hall of Fame to be built here.

Construction is scheduled to start at once, ending 15 years of planning by local hockey enthusiasts.

But there is one catch — hockey Hall of Fame which was opened last summer in Toronto is the one which hockey now recognizes.

The Kingston hall will contain mementos of early hockey days collected for the most part by the late James T. Sutherland who for years nourished a dream of a shrine in this city to immortalize hockey's greats. He died in 1955 with the shrine still only a dream.

The hall, to be built beside the Community Centre Arena, will include a 250-seat auditorium on the second floor. It will be operated by the city.

Toronto's Hall of Fame, financed by the National Hockey League, was opened in August by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

ORHA ELECTS BARCLAY

GALT (CP)—John E. Barclay of Stirlerville became president of the Ontario Rural Hockey Association by acclamation at the annual meeting Thursday. T. J. Soo Birds Beaten By Hull

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rookie Bill Masterton and winger Jim Roberts did all the scoring for Hull - Ottawa Canadiens Thursday night when they beat Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds 4-2 in an Eastern Professional Hockey League game.

Masterton and Roberts scored two each in Thursday's only EPHL game which moved the Canadiens into a tie for third place with Sudbury, Kelowna.

Sault took an early lead when Dusty Blair opened the scoring in the first period. Centre Dale Macdonald added the Thunderbirds' other at 3:31 of the second.

Masterton whipped one in at 10:08, followed by Roberts' first at 13:01, ending the period with a tie.

The two Canadiens did a repeat in the final period, with goals less than three minutes apart.

GETS NEW JOB

TORONTO (CP)—F. J. Pilgreen of Toronto has been named deputy registrar of motor vehicles Mr. Pilgreen, a native of Meaford, has been chief accountant for the transport department for nearly three years, and his new appointment will involve mainly supervision of departmental accounting procedures.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Maidens from Western Canada won three of the eight races at Old Woodbine Thursday as one of the heaviest crowds of the season swept the Toronto track. Despite the cold wet weather, 5,386 fans turned out.

The westerners began their series of victories when Fair Johnny, owned by J. A. Charles, worth of Edmonton, won the third race. Bet N Win, owned by Maurice Talbiec of St. Boniface, Man., captured the fifth and Janet Yates won the seventh.

Although Janet Yates now is owned by F. J. Schultz of Winchester, she was bred by the late Bill Yates of Calgary and she raced in the Yates colors until she was claimed by Schultz late in the season.

Mrs. Yates' afternoon official feature, the Hibernia Purse, was won by Horace Up, a two-year-old gelding owned and trained by John Billows. Bruce Up, ridden by Keith Robinson, ran a mile in 1:42 4-5 and paid $6.30 to win. Celebrated Queen Song by 2½ lengths. Warford finished third after suffering interference when Crafty Lace went wide on the first turn.

STAGE FAMILY

John Gielgud, the English Shakespearean actor, was born in 1904, a grandnephew of the famous actress Ellen Terry.

Nine Enter In Richest Pace Purse

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) Nine three-year-old pacers, with Lenny T. Adios the 5-to-2 choice, match strides tonight in Roosevelt Raceway's $143,37.96 Messenger Stakes — the richest purse ever offered in harness racing.

The division title Adios will be at stake in the mile test. A victory for Henry T. Adios would all but wrap up the title for the son of Adios, until he last two starts dominated the three-year-old pacing field after winning the Little Brown Jug in four grueling heats.

But a defeat for the small colt, owned by Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas D'orrio of Pelham Manor, N.Y., would throw the title race wide open. He'll be at the Stanley Dancer.

The Messenger is the culminating leg of garden's triple crown. However, there will be no winner of the crown this year. Second Proud, edged Henry T. Adios in the Cane at Yonkers Raceway—for first leg of the triple. Cold Front since has been out with injuries.

HONOR FOR EVA

Three Movies About Dance Craze Are in the Works

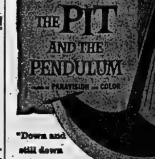
By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The do film industry has decided the twist is a great shake, and the movies about the dance craze are in the works.

The other film makers will have to go some to beat Sam Katzman, who this week had his twisters going at cyclonic speed. His Twist Around the Clock will set a record for getting a film to market.

"I wanted to do this picture a month ago," said Katzman, the man who gave you Earth vs. The Flying Saucers and Unknown Boom. "Columbia said it was just a passing fad.

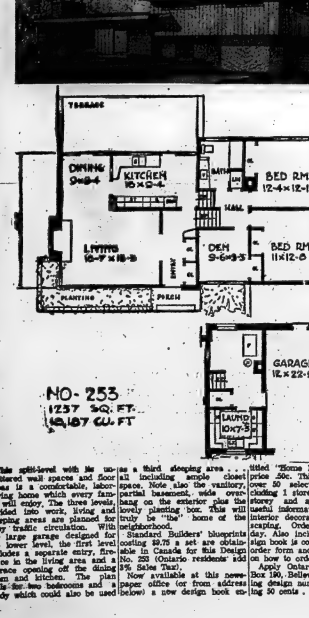
"Two weeks ago they changed their mind. Go ahead, they said. So I grabbed a plane for New York to line up the talent and shoved back here to get the script going. Within eight days we were in front of the cameras.



THINKS IT'S WINNER

"I think we got a strong picture, about a record-show guy who isn't doing well and then discovers the twist. We have the picture in New York and Chicago by Christmas. Judging by bookings so far, I think I've got as big a winner as Rock Around the Clock. Made that one for $200,000 and it grossed $5,000,000."

Katzman was watching as his charges staged the first day's scene—the finale. "We've got to do the ending first because we've got some of these people for only three-four days," the producer explained. His shooting schedule is seven days.



Garage owner is party of the hierarchy of twistdom—Chubby Checker, the leader himself; Dion, Clay Cole, Vicki Spencer and the Marcels, all squirming with the twisting fervor. On the dance floor were two or three dozen dancers, going like crazy.

The dance? The dancers face each other but avoid bodily contact, swiveling hips, bending knees and waving arms with abandon. The effect is both hypnotic and exhausting.

The split-level with its unobstructed wall spaces and open areas is a comfortable, labor-saving home which every family will enjoy. The three levels are divided into work, living and sleeping areas are planned for easy traffic circulation. With the large garage designed for the lower level, the first level includes a separate entry, fireplace in the living area and a terrace opening off the dining room and kitchen. The plan calls for two bedrooms and a study which could also be used as a third sleeping area . . . titled "Home Planning Guide," including ample closet space. Note also the vanities, partial basement, wide overhang on the exterior plus the lovely planting box. This will truly be "the" home of the neighborhood.

Standard Builders' blueprints costing $9.75 a set are obtainable in Canada for this Design No. 253 (Ontario residents add 5% Sales Tax).

Now available at this newspaper office (or from address below) a new design book en-

'Background Music Fine' But Too Much Compliant

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The two most frequent complaints about television, if letters from viewers be its barometer, are in addiction, are about stepped-up sound often when the commercials take over the screen and sharp annoyance with much background music.

"Background music is fine," runs a typical complaint on the letter subject, "but there is too much of it and it is too loud. I don't mind a lot of screeching and grinding to tell me the person I'm watching on the screen is in danger, but not all the time. Sometimes a quiet football—or no sound at all—can be twice as eerie because that's the way it would be in real life. The same for fight scenes."

The real trouble with annoying background music, however, is that it is handled incompetently. Just as in motion picture scoring, the test is whether the viewer is conscious of the music.

MAY NOT BELIEVE

If it diverts him from the plot, it is not serving its purpose.

Jacques Belasco, the composer who wrote the background music for Vincent van Gogh, a Self-Portrait" on NBC estimates that conservatively about half of the musical scoring on TV shows is poorly handled—particularly in shows using jazz backgrounds.

"The use of jazz has resulted in distorting the use of several instruments in a quest for new sounds," Belasco said. "I think part of the trouble is that so many TV producers are young men who have done most of their listening to music in night clubs. They have come to believe that jazz music is good and noisy and jazz music is better."

Recommended viewing tonight: Vincent van Gogh, a Self-. Portrait, NBC, 9:30-10:30 EST—told through van Gogh's works and letters.

Sunday—Intermezzo, NBC, 10-11—Romance of the Louis Howard-Ingrid Bergman movie with Jean Pierre Aumont and Ingrid Thulin.

I LEAD CAJUN

LAFAYETTE, La. Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, November 18, 1961

General Tendencies: This is one of those days when pioneering in, or originating, new lines of action can be excellent. Take a good look at the new conditions that you can work out easily and then contact large groups or corporations who are able to give you a push in such directions. Your mind is open and direct and can be used in very intelligent policy-making activity now.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — A day for thinking of self pretty much and increasing circle of business friends so that you begin an uptrend in your affairs. Get about socially tonight for the same reason and you soon know greater success, happiness.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Any personal aims you may have can be attained now if you will use a different and more modern approach. You have been inclined to live a little too much in the past. Get out to cultural or romantic, artistic interests. Grow.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Real pals in every sphere of your life now truly recognize your fine talents and potential and are willing to give the boost and support you require. Contact them and outline your ideas and plans, specifically and intelligently.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — This is the day to ask for that raise, better position or make the investment to increase revenue. Go directly to the right people. Be honest, ethical, direct. Have dinner out and take in the entertainment you most enjoy.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — The right day to delve into all that fake you've let go after the information you need, as well as confer with individuals who can give you pertinent ideas. Take a trip if necessary, or wire, write letters to out-of-towners.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Look into bookkeeping records now, or set up new ones that give a more clear picture of your true worth and standing, whether in business or personal life. Then think only of beauty and romance in p.m. Have fun.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Use that fine diplomatic touch and innate ability to co-operate to find out what your true position is with all associates. Also, come to an understanding with competition through being courteous.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Now is the time to stop frittering time away and get down to the specific work that awaits you. Even if your labors are humdrum, enthusiasm and persistence will put them behind you efficiently and in record time. Be practical!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — A wonderful day for fun and enjoyment, particularly if you are properly attuned astrologically. Deal with others joyfully, put enthusiasm and love into anything and everything that you do! Life is what you make it.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — A day to make the home and family a joy forever through consistent thought and applied energy. Devote every moment to such aims and be sure you buy little thoughtful gifts to give to loved ones. Put love in your heart.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 18) — If you can go about seeing and meeting people, studying your paper meanwhile, you can make this a most productive and interesting day. Don't neglect your good relatives who have not seen you in some time. They can be very helpful.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — If you stay at home today and make improvements to surroundings, as well as get clothing in tip-top shape, you will be prepared and ready for the busy weeks ahead. Impress others favorably — be artistic, immaculate and add comforts.

If your child is born today there will be such vitality and enthusiasm in the nature that others will be drawn to your progeny like the proverbial flies to honey. So, be sure you early give the benefit of sports in order to channel energies in the right direction early. The forte here is originality and inventiveness, so be sure to slant the education in some profession where these gifts are prerequisite.

TOUR YUGOSLAVIA

BELGRADE (AP) — Foreign tourists spent nearly $7,000,000 in Yugoslavia in the first eight months of 1961, an increase of 18 per cent over the same period of last year.

Awake Nights — Asleep Days...

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and turn in bed, then are dull and listless during the day. When kidneys slow down wastes and excess acids stay in the system. Disturbed rest, tired feeling and backache often follow. If you don't rest well at night — if you feel dull in the day, use Doan's Pills. Get them today. Then you feel better—rest better—work better. You can depend on Doan's Kidney Pills.

'Education for Change' Seen as Fundamental Need

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP) — "Education for change" was posed to Canadians Thursday as a fundamental need in coping with the problems resulting from a "frightening" and "tremendous" explosion of population and knowledge sparked by recent technological and scientific advances.

The threat of extinction by nuclear weapons would make it seem obvious that human survival depends upon "drastic reorganization, re-attainment and teaching of national and human values," says a report prepared for next year's Canadian Conference on Education.

The 48 - page report, titled New Developments in Society, is the fourth of nine study papers designed to stimulate discussion at the Montreal conference March 4-7.

John P. Kidd, assistant director of orientation, University of Toronto, questions whether Canada's schools, churches and other organizations have really set about tackling the complex problems of a changing society. It was their responsibility to do this.

'BOUND TO DELUSION'

Dr. Brock Chisholm, former director of the World Health Organization, says in another paper that "Far too many of us still hold to the delusion that security and freedom can be bought cheaply, without any appreciable discomfort to ourselves, and without taking any chances."

Mr. Kidd outlined some of the basic problems education has to deal with.

These included a tremendous explosion of all kinds of knowledge; great technological changes in manufacturing, transportation, communications and a frightening explosion of population aided by new medical knowledge and practices.

STRESS TV ROLE

Several writers stress the role of television and radio as educational tools.

Alan Thomas, professor of adult education, University of British Columbia, says educational television research seems to show that children or students taught by TV learn as well as students instructed by other means—and sometimes better.

However, he considered the importance of the printed word over the last 400 years would indicate that TV will not do away with the classroom teacher.

Science at Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: A study of women's voices, beneficial fallout from fallout alarms, and concepts about the moon.

FEMALE VOICES

A woman's voice may have a "natural priority in communicating a man's attention," says a research study made for the U.S. Air Force, but her voice has limitations which could rule out women as broadcasters in aircraft warning systems.

The trouble, it finds, is a lack of harmonics which can lead to unintelligibility, and in the long run it is believed the male voice will prove more acceptable to make operators of radio equipment.

FALLOUT BENEFIT

By an example, radioactive carbon 14 from tests has helped trace air movements around the earth. Past studies have shown it takes about a year for carbon 14 to travel from one hemisphere to the other after the carbon enters the lower atmosphere, reports Gordon J. Fergusson of the University of California at Los Angeles. The recent Soviet tests may yield new data on the transfer of particles, and hence air movements, from the Arctic region.

TELESCOPE

The Fallows Astrophysics Laboratory in the Soviet Union now has a two-channel television telescope, says the news agency Tass.

The instrument consists of two telescopes mounted on a common axis. Two TV tubes and two pickups permit simultaneous study of the images of celestial bodies.

MOON MAPPING

Until men or probes can actually explore the moon, scientists can learn about its puzzles, based on observations and deductions.

And one moon student, Dr. Harold Urey, thinks the major features of the moon—its great "seas" or plains and its mountains—were formed about 4,500,000,000 years ago at a time of great collisions with meteors. This bombardment, he believes, lasted a relatively short time, meaning probably less than 1,000,000 years. Other bits have been scored since then, but Dr. Urey thinks they have mostly produced only small craters.

There was at least one tremendous crash, he adds. It was with an impact equal to about 400,000,000,000 medium atomic bombs, or more than 100,000,000 times the energy of the largest known earthquake. It struck the moon, happened about 3,000,000,000 years ago, the University of California scientist writes in the annual report of the Smithsonian Institution.

Killing of Italians May Alter Views of West Powers

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The barbaric and senseless slaughter of 13 Italian airmen in the eastern Congo town of Bukavu points up the fact that the United Nations cannot hope to achieve order in the country until the irresponsible elements of the army are weeded out or brought under control.

The comment attributed to the commander whose rebel troops overran and cut up the killings—"you know how soldiers are"—indicates the army still is largely an undisciplined rabble.

Negotiating with Congolese politicians has always been a frustrating experience for the UN force. Trying to deal with leaders who cannot lead is impossible.

TOUGHER ATTITUDE

The only hope appearing from the situation is that the revolting nature of the Kindu massacre will shock the central Leopoldville regime into co-operation with UN efforts to bring the army into line.

Reports from Leopoldville indicate there is a tougher attitude among the mutinous troops in Kivu province, believed to number from 1,000 to 2,000. Premier Cyrille Adoula has expressed determination to deal swiftly and rid the guilty "must be punished with utmost severity."

There is more talk of disarming all Congolese troops — a move that would seem virtually impossible for the less than 16,000 men of the UN force.

In any event the indefensible nature of the Kindu killings should make it impossible for the rebels to find support outside their own confines.

Western UN delegations that have stressed the avoidance of force in the dispute between breakaway Katanga province and the central government undoubtedly will take a much stiffer attitude against the Kivu rebels.

THIRD FORCE?

It is reported to be led by Antoine Gizenga, who for a while threw in his lot with the central government after holding up a Communist-backed regime in northeastern Oriental province.

But even if Gizenga is in Kivu there is every possibility, considering the jealousy of Congolese politics, that he is not leading but is being pushed or carried along by his responsible followers.

And even if Gizenga should re-establish a foothold in the northeastern corner there is every possibility that the Soviet, bloc considering the unpopular and unstable nature of Gizenga and the fact that Gizenga once before pulled the rug from under them, will hesitate to offer support.

May Include Women in Survival Forces

HAMILTON (CP)—Plans are being studied to include women in Canada's reserves and militia forces, says the chief of the general staff.

Lt.-Gen. Geoffrey Walsh said Thursday no program will be announced before next year.

Gen. Walsh watched several hundred trainees at work in the James Street armories.

He was accompanied by Maj.-Gen. E. A. Sparling, commanding Central Command, and Brig.-Gen. D. Brown, commander of central Ontario area.

Gen. Walsh, appointed chief of general staff Oct. 1, was on the first day of a series of tours which will take him to nearly all the first of four six-week survival courses conducted by the militia command next spring.

Rain and fog forced him to abandon his plan of flying into Mount Hope, after visiting Windsor and London, and he arrived by road in Hamilton nearly an hour late.

After watching the recruits on drill and weapon training he described their performance as "good—it's first class."

"I am very pleased with the type of lads they appear to be," he said. "And the way they are developing. They all seem to be keen, interested and bright."

Gen. Walsh said his impression from similar courses in Windsor and London was "excellent."

The four-course survival program, with a target of training 100,000 Canadians, is rated highly as a militia activity. It said The target of 25,000 for the first course had been met 80 per cent across the country.

TO BUY STRADIVARIUS

CREMONA, Italy (AP)—This north Italian city where Antonio Stradivarius was born is sending a representative to New York to buy one of the prized violins made by Cremona's most famous son. It will be the first to be owned by the city.

The Mercury Meteor for 1962 combines the economy of the compacts with the interior roominess and comfort of regular sized cars and the riding qualities of bigger cars. It is assembled at Ford of Canada's plant in Oakville. It is 203.8 inches long with a wheel base of 118.5 inches. The standard engine is 170 cubic inches, 6 cylinder with an all-new "Precision moulded" 201 cubic inch V-8 engine offered as an option. The Mercury Meteor has such low cost of ownership features as: A factory recommended 8,000-mile oil and filter change interval; a 30,000-mile fuel filter; 30,000 miles or two years, which ever comes first; major lubrication interval and a factory installed antifreeze that provided protection down to 40 degrees below zero for 30,000 miles or two years, which ever comes first.

Host Of Issues Faces Session Opening Wed.

Question of Organized Crime Is Prime Problem

TORONTO (CP)—A host of issues, ranging from crime to industrial development to municipal affairs, will likely occupy the Ontario legislature at the session which begins next Wednesday.

It will be the third session of Ontario's 28th legislature with Lieutenant-Governor J. Keiller Mackay will open.

Throne Speech duties will be leading the Progressive Conservative majority for the first time, and the cabinet shuffle which followed the capture of the Queen's Park treasury will mean at least two new faces in the front benches.

Occupying the seat of an ordinary member for the first time since 1945 will be Leslie Frost, member for Victoria and premier for 12 years until his retirement last July.

Since the last session ended just before Easter, five members have died.

CRIME AN ISSUE

The question of organized crime will be a major issue present in Ontario, or not"—is expected to dominate debate as Attorney-General Roberts has denied there is any major problem of organized crime in this province, although RCMP Commissioner Nelson Warden thinks otherwise and opposition party spokesmen have demanded a royal commission to look into the question.

Labor matters are also likely to occupy the members. A recent magistrate's ruling that the Labor Relations Act does not forbid an employer from organizing a striking employees has thrown many of the trade unionists' accepted concepts of industrial relations into doubt.

With a long-drawn-out strike at Toronto's Queen Elizabeth Hotel and persistent disruptions in the construction industry as a background, the whole question of labor legislation can be expected to undergo review.

Montreal lawyer H. Carl Goldenberg will undergo extensive royal commission inquiry into the construction trades and is expected to report to the new session on his findings.

Premier Frost, backed by Mr. Roberts is creation of a new department out of two former departments.

Energy Resources Minister Matthews promises that the commerce and development portfolio in the recent cabinet shuffle and it is expected then that it would be merged with the department to form a new ministry of economics and development.

TO PUSH DEVELOPMENT

Campaigning as one of seven candidates for the Conservative leadership, Mr. Roberts also pledged a concerted drive for industrial development of northern Ontario, and it is expected he will have to carry out his pledges under the new premier.

Municipal affairs are likely to be the subject of a major discussion of the form of government that will succeed the present Metropolitan Toronto is expected to lead to a wider debate on the municipal affairs of the province in the municipalities and the increasing demands for increased services on both levels of government.

Reports from select legislative committees which met during the summer recess are also due to reach the floor of the legislature. These include committees on mining, coroners and pulsory automobile insurance.

TRYING TO SEND SPACECRAFT FAR INTO SPACE FAILS

Payload Did Not Eject From Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Rocket failure ruined an attempt today to send a Ranger 2 spacecraft far into space to investigate techniques for sending future vehicles to the moon and the planets.

A 100-foot Atlas Agena rocket boomed away from Cape Canaveral at 3:12 a.m. Its Agena second stage whirled into a 115-mile - high "parking" orbit but failed to eject the 675-pound Ranger 2 payload into a deep-space orbit designed to take it more than 500,000 miles away from earth.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced an hour after launching the Atlas section of the flight and the firing of the Agena rocket appeared to be normal. Tracking and telemetry information indicates the second stage ignited in orbit as planned and the spacecraft remained in a parking or near earth orbit.

SECOND FAILURE

There was no immediate word on whether the Agena and the spacecraft had separated. The Agena failed to start the second burn which spoiled the first Ranger launching Aug. 23 when the second stage failed to reignite. However, the two vehicles did separate and whirled around the earth for several days.

The program calls for launching Ranger 3 toward a landing on the moon early next year to begin a long-range exploration program leading to manned exploration in this decade.

James G. Burke of NASA's jet-propulsion laboratory said the Ranger 2 plan still holds despite today's failure. That shot probably will be delayed for some time until problems which occurred today can be corrected.

If it had functioned properly, the Agena was to have fired again in its parking orbit, accelerate to 23,600 miles an hour and release the Ranger 2 into a highly elliptical earth orbit designed to put it spinning 600 to 800 miles into space.

Diefenbaker Says Election To Be Held in Near Future

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker, closely following an election is not far off, meets here today with Provincial executives of the Progressive Conservative party.

It is the first time the executive officers, including representatives of a 12 provincial party organizations, and the federal Tory organization, have met outside Ottawa. Winnipeg is the city in which Mr. Diefenbaker kicked off the 1958 election campaign.

It won't be too long before I'll be back" he told a cheering banquet meeting of the Manitoba Progressive Conservative party's annual meeting Friday night, after declaring that his government would soon seek a new mandate from the people.

The present Parliament, elected March 31, 1958, can run until mid-summer of 1963, but it is generally expected an election will be called next year.

The executive sessions are closed to the press and public. The prime minister, in prime election fighting trim, was given an ovation a the banquet Friday night when he cast doubt on Liberal Leader Pearson's plan to "turn over some powers" to provincial governments to halt provincial control, if elected.

This, Mr. Diefenbaker said, is in direct contradiction to Mr. Pearson's Liberal rally resolution favoring confiscation and expansion of Dominion-provincial shared programs.

Mr. Diefenbaker declared that this government has done more than any other in history to help the provinces meet the needs of expanding and new and other government services.

The prime minister was the guest of the Conservative government reception that followed to invade Liberal Premier Smallwood's domain of Newfoundland next month.

"Joey and John," he said, "are being well together since the premier recognizes the help that has come to Newfoundland from the Government of Canada."

Plans for the Newfoundland visit are not complete.

HUGE VICE RING IS OPERATING IN MONTREAL

Probe Report By Experts Given

MONTREAL (CP) — Widespread vice, using torture and beatings to force women to remain prostitutes and threats of murder to keep witnesses quiet, is operating in Montreal, police investigators know.

The vice is spread through all large hotels, luxurious motels and even private homes, say police who conducted the investigations.

The investigations, carried out quietly during the year by the morality squad, were revealed to public by Acting Police Chief J. Adrien Robert.

He described the work of the investigating officers as sensational.

The consultants, Andrew Way of Scotland Yard and Andre Cruchaud of Paris, both of whom were brought over to try to find ways of combatting a crime wave here.

TELLS OF BEATINGS

Lieut. Emile Ducharme said the investigations showed that many prostitutes want to retire from the vice but are kept in by their procurers by threats and beatings. He said "in scores of cases" girls were subjected to repeated beatings, torture and imprisonment treatment.

"In some cases girls were threatened with being sold to the white slave traffic in Asia and with being forced into initiation ceremonies where they would have lost their minds."

The investigations showed that a large number of young girls—some only 14—had been forced into prostitution.

Lieut. Ducharme said two interlocking call-girl rings were established in the end well-to-do ends.

"Calls were taken on the telephone, relayed through another and a collector was sent around to collect the money.

Police revealed that one prostitute, trying to escape from her procurer, was beaten for 45 minutes with a rubber hose. Her purse was taken and she was thrown into a lane behind the club.

GIRL KIDNAPPED

One woman was reported to have been kidnapped, sent to Buffalo, and threatened with death if she refused to return to Montreal.

Investigations so far have resulted in 88 arrests on charges of living off prostitution. There have been 36 convictions.

Sentences have ranged up to six years in penitentiary and fines ranging from $100 to $1,000 have been levied.

Those involved are mostly Canadians, but there are some Americans and Hungarians, police said.

DRUNK STOPS TRAIN

PERTH, Australia (Reuters)—A drunken woman sleeping on the track brought a train to a halt on the steep incline into the station of Mount Barker, 220 miles southeast of here, it was reported today. The train was stopped by the driver and fireman and scrambled to start again. It was divided into two and the haives hauled up separately. The woman was not jailed for three weeks.

Deny UN Planes Bomb Mutinous Congolese Force

Murderers of Italians Sealed off by Malays

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—The United Nations command today denied Katanga radio reports Friday that its planes had bombed Kivu province rebel troops loyal to the Congolese who massacred 13 Italian airmen last Saturday.

The UN said the Congolese now were completely sealed off by Malayan troops.

Spokesman Brigadier Ho said military preparations for investigating the massacre were progressing "satisfactorily" and declined to give details.

He said the UN is ignoring a radio report allegedly made by Col. Pakassa, Congolese commander in the northern city of Kindu, warning all planes not to fly over the area. Pakassa's troops were reported under orders to fire on any UN plane.

CLAIM ATTACK

Katanga radio said Friday the UN had made air attacks on mutinous troops at Punia, Samba Kasongo and Kimbombo in the Kindu area.

A UN investigation commission will leave for Kindu as soon as the Congolese members are appointed.

He also announced that Major-General Sean McKeown of Buksvu in Kivu province, have prevented a company of Congolese troops from boarding a plane to fly to Albertville, the northern Katanga province where anti-Katanga Baluba tribesmen seized control last week.

Katanga interior Minister Godefroid Munongo on Friday claimed UN and Congolese central government troops were disarmed in the Albertville area, said a pro-Katanga resistance movement was forming to meet around the town.

In Kivu, about half of the 3,500 Katanga troops in the province mutinied last week, surrounded 200 Malayan troops and took them hostage. Only 13 Italian airmen after they landed with a cargo of scout cars for the Malayans.

There was still no word on the whereabouts of Antoine Gizenga, the central government's arrested vice - premier who was reported to have incited the troops at Kindu in a bid to establish control over Kivu.

Central government Premier Cyrille Adoula and UN chief Sture Linner in Leopoldville Friday and agreed to send a UN fact - finding military mission to investigate the massacre.

TOLL NOW 96

The deaths of the Italians brings the total number of UN personnel killed or missing and presumed dead in Congo operations.

In Italy, outraged countrymen of the slain Italian airmen mourned the deaths with bitterness. Labor organizations and nations totalling thousands of strikes in a campaign to build a memorial chapel near the airmen's home base at Pisa.

Premier Amintore Fanfani solemnly through Bari, Leghorn, Palermo and scores of other cities and towns.

Proposal to 'Bug' Ocean Floor Under Consideration by Navy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal to "bug" the ocean floor with thousands of underwater microphones to warn against Russian subs is under serious consideration by the U.S. Navy.

The underwater alarm system, called SOSUS, would be so sensitive it would pick up a whisper. It would be so expensive, however, it would make a billion defence command's Distant Early Warning line seem cheap by comparison.

DEW is a radar warning system stretched across the north world from Alaska eastward through northern Canada to the British Isles.

A less expensive technique of undersea surveillance also was under discussion this week at a secret navy meeting on underwater sound research.

This system, using the still secret Towfleet technique, would involve towing the sounding device, called a hydrophone, from a ship, helicopter or surface ship.

The three - day conference of 200 scientists was conducted in White Oak, Md., was so hushhush the government said, that even the mid - meeting cocktail party was classified and the bartenders had to be cleared for security.

The "bugging" technique would involve planting perhaps as many as 9,000 hydrophones, called sonobuoys by manufacturers, in the Atlantic. The system would be installed also in the Pacific.

Digging the ocean bottom at depths as great as 15,000 or 17,000 feet would require development of hydrophones capable of withstanding great pressures.

More easily realized are gear expensively acquired, in the minds of many of the experts, would be Towfleet.

Saved From Sea, Orphaned Girl Is Recovering

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An 18-year - old girl, orphaned in a shipwreck she barely survived, was the official list today and expressed guarded optimism that they enable her to tell what happened when the illstarred Dutch Hartbeil sank with the loss of five lives.

Officials at Mercy Hospital said no one would be allowed to question blonde Terry Ann Duperault of Green Bay, Wis., until she feels up to par.

The girl, taken semi - conscious from a Mayday in the Atlantic off the Bahamas, now is the only witness to the Skipbeil's breakup with seven persons aboard.

The skipper, Julian A. Harney, survived the Fort Lauderdale diesel boat's destruction as he had several other brushes with death in the air and sea.

But he committed suicide Friday, leaving a note that said: "I got too tired and nervous. I couldn't stand it any longer."

Harney sailed after being fined in Nassau Monday that the Bluebell's engineer's body was pulled down the mizzenmast and tore holes through the deck he had three wives aboard. Then he said fire broke out and boat and a raft before the 60-foot leech sank.

DEATH TOLL 5

Harney's death by razor slashes in a Miami motel, the Bluebell's brigade's toll rose to six. The body of Terry Jo's sister, Renee, was in a boat in which Harney was found adrift Monday.

Promoted drowned were the child's father, Dr. Arthur Duperrault, 40, his wife, Jean, 36, their son, 4, and Mrs. Harvey, one of an undetermined number of wives Harney married.

The Bluebelle's sinking during rainy came a little more than two months after Harvey took out large double indemnity life insurance policies on both himself and Duperrault, a $30,000 policy on his wife named Harvey the sole beneficiary, a $25,000 policy on himself was taken out in her behalf.

Queen's Guineas For Kerwood Girl Aged 20

Shirley Harvey was hoisted onto the shoulders f friends and members of Strathcona 4-H Club after exuberantly kissing the judge.

This was her fourth and last year of entering the Guineas. She has entered eighteen years since she was eight years old but this was her first award at the Royal.

She said she plans to "stay on the farm with dad" — Jim Earley, who has 200 acres, all under Aberdeen Angus cattle.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A large high pressure area centred over Ontario is expected to move eastward across the Great Lakes area during the weekend, bringing fair weather with slowly moderating temperatures. Northwest winds off Lake Huron and Georgian Bay are causing snow this morning in Southern Ontario's snow belt. Light snow is also falling in the Timagami and Cochrane regions.

Boy Feared Drowned Safe And Well

HAMILTON (CP)—Edward Bollins, 15-year-old boy who was the victim of a five-gallon air search, spent the night in a suburban Burlington house, police said today.

The boy was feared drowned after he vanished from his home on Wortley Island, one of a ring of islands enclosing Toronto Harbor. A boat, outboard motor and oars also vanished about the same time and police said they were lost in the stormy water of Lake Ontario. Police said Friday the boy told them he had been picked up Hamilton, about 40 miles west of Toronto, Thursday night. He said he left the police station for home, but railroad officials wouldn't let him take the police dog aboard without a muzzle.

The boy told police he began walking toward Toronto and stopped to help a service-station attendant replace a flat which had blown down. The man let him spend the night with him, then sent him on home Friday.

Constitutional Revision Demanded at Conference

QUEBEC (CP) — Laval University's conference on Canadian affairs today called for a special session today in the wake of Premier Lesage's "Quiet Revolution" and statements by two prominent politicians Daniel Johnson of Quebec and Diefenbaker.

Agricultural leader Dr. Marcel Chaput, in defiance of orders to remain at work in Ottawa, told the packed conference that the French - Canadians no longer will be "hewers of wood." Dr. Chaput said he had not been officially informed.

"I'll tell you my desk at 9:30 a.m. Monday," he told reporters. "I'll be there. I'll be there by Monday afternoon."

The Defence Research Board biochemist asked for three days' leave with pay to attend the conference. He said he will leave for the year had been refused.

When Dr. Chaput asked for a one - day leave without pay, permission was granted. He refused because it was "ok it freight" and ordered his employees to make an exception in his case.

Dr. Chaput said before leaving Ottawa that he was taking "a day off anyway."

In the conference hall, where students sat on stairs to hear him, he said: "The French-Canadians of today and tomorrow, conscious of their power and their capacity, are deciding to be the only masters of their national life." He said subdued

Police Link Prostitution, Dope to Double Slaying

The body of Miss Rochelle Klein, 28, was found in a rooming house and Police Chief were Negroes. They were on bail after their arrest in May on charges of living on the earnings of a bawdy house when they were slain.

Residents of the house said the couple moved in only a few days ago.

A possible vengeance motive was being investigated by police.

They said Crater may have been killed in a dispute over a shipment of marijuana and might have gone into hiding in Toronto once Roman Miclas, owner of a store near where the slaying occurred, said Crater came in a about 12 hours before a highly excited man ran down stairs bedroom, was pushed across the street.

Chief Mackey took personal charge of the case. He notified the United States to watch for three cars bearing Michigan, New York and Ontario licence plates.

The only evidence has been found linking the double murder to the traffic in marijuana between the U.S. and Toronto and that they may also have been connected with a move to

Woman Freed On Charge Of Murder

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Marjorie Skiba, 36, acquitted Friday of murder in the death of her husband, broke into tears while spectators cheered and a woman juror whooped: "Murderers —there is no justice."

Mrs. Skiba had been charged with one count of murder in the scrap - dealer husband Kenneth Skiba's death with a hammer.

The jury was out two hours and 45 minutes.

Mr. Justice D. C. Wells told the 36-year-old convict was a proper one and told Mrs. Skiba: "You may now go home."

Mrs. Skiba faced a $10,000 bail — one of the few times a person charged with murder has ever been granted bail.

The woman, who testified, believed a sister of the dead man, sat by herself in the back of the courtroom crying and court matron Mary Phillips had to comfort her.

Mrs. Skiba, who told the court she had been beaten by her husband during the five years of leave, slumped her lawyer, Harry Rose, as she left the prisoner's dock.

Her son, Kenneth, 16, who had testified his father had been drinking on the night he was killed, said he left the basement the Christmas tree and now under it on several occasions, sat with his head in his hands.

FIVE DIE IN CRASH

MANILA (AP)—A Philippine Navy seaplane crashed on takeoff today, killing five of the six persons on board, the constabulary reported. The crash occurred at Balabac Island, in the extreme southwestern Philippines. The pilot survived.

UN Will Give Thant Greater Power in Congo

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A move to give Acting Secretary-General U. Thant stronger authority to deal with the Congo crisis appeared sure today of United Nations approval. But delegates differed on how far it should extend.

Predictions were that the security council would adopt a resolution calling for vigorous UN action to end secessionist activities in the area by a new province of Katanga and deal with other trouble spots in The Congo.

Western powers objected that a resolution by Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic dealing with Katanga alone was too narrow in scope; that the whole Congo crisis and the Congo command should be empowered to deal with disturbances in all areas.

Kivu province where Congo troops loyal to Premier Cyrille Adoula arrested Vice-Premier Antoine Gizenga killed and butchered 13 Italian airmen.

Safety Rally Will Be Held In This City

The Belleville-Trenton section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations are holding their bi-annual mass safety rally at Moira Secondary School on November 22, at 8.00 p.m.

The I.A.P.A. is an organization made up of representatives from the local industries with the prime purpose of reducing and preventing accidents in industry. Most of their activities are directed towards workers, supervision and management in industry, but some of their activities are as follows: safety dinner meetings for industrial workers and supervision, an annual safety conference, plant surveys by I.A.P.A. representatives in order to minimize unsafe working conditions and work habits, and industrial safety development courses.

However, as intervals, a safety rally is held by the IAPA, open to all persons in the community with the purpose of promoting safety generally. The safety rally this year is being held the time of traffic safety which is of vital interest to all persons young or old and whether or not they are employed, in industry. The speaker will be Inspector A. Witts of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Mr. David Stewart, hypnotist and Quinte Secondary School Band will provide entertainment and a large number of door prizes will be provided for those in attendance.

United Appeal Fund Stands At $57,466

By yesterday evening the total amount received to date by the United Appeal campaign was $57,466.95, executive director Lou Glassdinger reported this morning.

This is still $23,533.05 shy of the 1961 objective of $80,000 which is required by the 17 participating agencies to meet their 1962 budgets.

A mottled picture is noticed when looking over the response in the various divisions into which the campaign is divided. Several industrials, such as national corporations, special names, some "whites" and the professional division, have either exceeded last year's contributions already or show every indication that they will be doing so.

The payroll giving division, on the other hand, has been falling off in its returns and it appears that this group will fall short of their goal.

Other divisions, especially the business divisions, have been extremely slow in providing their cards and pledge returns that have been made, however, indicate that the end results of these groups may exceed last year's results by 10 per cent.

The efforts of the volunteer canvassers have been most gratifying. Mr. Glassdinger remarked. Their efficiency and zeal in many instances has been deserving of considerable praise.

There are still a number of private individuals continuing to call in at campaign headquarters in the old Victoria and Grey Trust offices opposite the city hall to make their donations, he added.

Union Meeting Called Sunday At Point Anne

Members of Local 219 of the United General, Lime and Gypsum workers at Point Anne are now on strike against the Canada Cement Company. It has been called for a union meeting to be held at the Orange Hall at Point Anne Sunday afternoon. The meeting is scheduled to get strike action Thursday morning after company employees at Montreal had walked off their jobs.

Negotiations for a new two year contract are underway in Montreal this weekend. The company is offering a ten cent per hour increase retroactive to September and five cents each July. Other issues under discussion are security and managerial rights.

Paper Claims Soviet Union Has Rockets to Lift, Deliver Warheads All Over World

MOSCOW (AP) — Red Star claimed today the Soviet Union has rocket warheads equivalent to 100,000,000 tons of TNT, the rockets that can "hit and destroy any warhead to any point on the globe."

The claims were made by the military publication's newspaper in an article which denounced Western arms drive behind Soviet rocket capabilities.

The article was written by Col.-Gen. F. Tokhtko and was published in connection with Soviet Artillery Day Sunday.

Tokhtko's words on the giant warhead were:

"We have much more powerful nuclear warheads (up to 100,000,000 tons) and their number is considerably greater than assumed by American specialists.

"And we can assure those across the ocean who like to go in for military adventures that our ballistic rockets have proved themselves so wonderfully that nobody has any doubts in their ability to fulfil and deliver any warhead to any point on the globe."

Premier Khrushchev announced Oct. 17 in opening the 22nd Soviet Communist party congress, that the Soviet Union has a rocket with a 100 megaton load — equivalent to 100,000,000 tons of TNT.

The Red Star article appeared only was intended to answer U.S. disbelief that the so-called missile gap between the United States and the Soviet Union no longer exists.

American authorities are estimating that the Soviet Union has only somewhere around 30 to 35 intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Soviet Artillery Day is the anniversary of the 1941 artillery counter-offensive before Stalingrad in World War II.

On that day the Soviet artillery concentrated on the German infantry and armor, more than 15,500 guns and mine-throwers and 1,500 rocket-launchers.

Teachers Finish Social Studies Training Course

Under the leadership of Mr. F. Evans, president O.E.C.T.A., Belleville & district teachers of Belleville and Trenton area attended the final session of their social studies training course at St. Michael's Academy, last Thursday evening. Special banquet guests included P. C. Murphy who extended words of welcome; Mr. J. Brady who brought greetings from the Department of Education; Miss Mary C. Babcock, representing the provincial executive of the O.E.C.T.A.; Mrs. A. A. Dee, K. J. Neville, A. A. Dunmore and C. [illegible] organ music was [illegible] by W. Long.

Guest speaker was David Cley, assistant superintendent of curriculum, Department of Education. He was introduced by Rev. Sister Mary Andrew. This author of two social studies text books was well qualified to present his subject, "Geography in the Social Studies Program," and advised that geographical study should emphasize man's living in relation to his environment. He stressed especially the consideration of the globe, sketch maps, and a large variety of pictures illustrative of the region or topic being studied. Teachers should not hesitate to bring maps and painting into the geography lesson if they will help the student to a better understanding, he said.

Foot of Snow In 20 Hours At Timmins

TORONTO (CP) — Snow caused business and communications in northeastern Ontario Friday while rain flooded Southern Ontario homes.

The northeast's first real snowfall of the season started in the Timmins area about noon Thursday. The storm left up a foot of snow in 20 hours.

The Toronto area measured more rain in one four-hour period Thursday than in all of October—.77 of an inch compared with October's .33.

Telephone service was out in some areas of northeastern Ontario, road traffic came to a virtual standstill and air services were cancelled or delayed because of snow.

St. Andrew's To Honor 130th Anniversary

Lighted with tallow candles in little white frame building was opened for worship one hundred and thirty years ago in Belleville by St. Andrew's Church, a presbyterian congregation which will observe the anniversary on Sunday. The history of the church goes back to the year before that when a grant of land was made by the government, the same site on which the present St. Andrew's Church stands. The frame building was replaced by a brick church in 1871. That building was destroyed by fire in 1894 and the present building erected in 1895. The cost was intended to be $21,000 but the limit was raised later. Two extensive renovations have been carried out since then, the last one exceeding the original estimated cost of the building.

The congregation now has a communicant membership of between 1500 and 1600. Organized and last year founded a daughter congregation in East Belleville known as St. Columba Presbyterian Church.

The present minister for the anniversary Sunday will be the minister of St. John's Presbyterian Church in Cornwall, the Rev. W. Lloyd Macmillan, D.D. Saturday, Pictou County, Nova Scotia, and graduate of McGill University and of Presbyterian College, Montreal. A former Moderator of the Presbytery of Bay of Quinte, Dr. Macmillan is well known throughout the church as a dynamic personality and a powerful preacher of the Gospel. An interesting program is planned for all friends of St. Andrew's to attend the services of worship and the "fellowship hour" following the evening service.

Rossmore Woman Gets Two Deer

ROSSMORE (Special)—Miss Ruth McEathron is a firm believer that anything a man can do — a woman can emulate. Well, almost anything.

Take hunting, for instance.

Miss McEathron, a housekeeper for Melbourne Wilkinson maker here, proved, beyond a doubt last week that the fair sex can handle a rifle equally as well and effectively as the male species.

With a hunting party seeking deer in the Clayne area, she brought down two, one a buck weighing 200 pounds, the other a doe.

In the party besides Miss McEathron were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rodgurg, owners of the hunting lodge where the party was based, Mr. Annenmasker; Harold Alkenbrack, Napanee; Garnet Soulier, Tyendinaga; Jack Lovesey, Stirling, and Mr. Laurence Meddow, Rossmore.

The party shot a full quota of deer, Mr. Rodburg also accounting for two.

She was born near Mr. Arthur's Mills and comes from a hunting family. "When I was a child," she said, "I used to shoot rabbits and partridges with members of the family."

However she never tried deer hunting until four years ago, and her "kill" of last week was the first deer to fall to her rifle.

MORRIS. — In fond and loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Ada Morris of Belleville, who passed away November 19th, 1960.

In the hush of night I hear you call,
We watched you fade away,
Your loving smile we cannot forget,
You fought so hard to stay.
But when we are at your sleeping,
So peacefully free from pain,
We could not wish you back,
Dear Mother.
To suffer once again.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by daughter Mrs. Muriel Tugwell, granddaughter Mrs. Donna Marie Tugwell.

Prima Ballerina Lois Smith and Premier Danseur Earl Kraul are pictured in one of the dances which will be seen in the city.

National Ballet Will Present Popular Program Dec. 2nd

Ballets from several countries and in a variety of productions will be presented by the National Ballet of Canada at the BCI auditorium, December 2nd.

According to artistic director Celia France, the productions range from the immortal classics such as Princess Aurora — a lavish staging of dance highlights from Tchaikovsky's "Sleeping Princess" — to a present-day comedy sensation direct from London, England, entitled, "One in Five."

Prima Ballerina Lois Smith, premier danseur Earl Kraul, principal soloists Lilian Jarvis and Angelo Leigh, head a large roster of brilliant soloists and corps de ballet. "Princess Aurora", sparkling and lively, is a veritable showcase for the important around the world company of the National Ballet of Canada.

Galina Samtsova, Russian-born ballerina, formerly of the Kiev Opera and Ballet Company, along with Earl Kraul and Lilian Jarvis, are leading soloists in George Balanchine's "Concerto Barocco" staged for the National Ballet by Una Kai, is Mr. Balanchine's assistant. Music for this modern work is from Bach's Violin Concerto in D Minor. These are but two of the five productions which will be presented here.

Our National Ballet has now completed its first decade — a decade in which it has made remarkable progress. A company of 80 inexperienced dancers giving 17 performances in the 1951-52 season has grown to a company of 41 experienced artists who, in their tenth season, gave 100 performances across Canada and the United States. In 10 years they have performed in all the major cities of North America and in most of the minor ones as well — to a total attendance of 1,300,000. Funds have been raised, apart from theatre earnings amounting to $1,481,000 of which $385,000 has come from the Canada Council. This accomplishment has been made possible by thousands of Canadians devoted to the proposition that if art is worth anything it is worth doing well. Public support of the enterprise has achieved a conjunction of artist and company by which made possible this first ten years of phenomenal success.

The Ballet Orchestra under director George Crum is one of the finest available. Mr. Crum has as his assistant such brilliant musicians as assistant conductor Walter Babiak and concert master David Zafer both of whom have wide reputations in their own right.

A full-scale presentation involves about 100 persons. Of these some 80 travel regularly with the company, including dancers, orchestra, stage crew and artistic staff. Generally speaking, travel is done by chartered buses with large scenic and stage requirements carried in motorized trucks. On occasion the Ballet is required to charter special aircraft for some engagements.

Many countries of origin are represented by the artists: England, East Africa, Russia and Hungary are a few of the lands where the dancers were born. Now Canadians, they bring an international flavor to this performing company which tours the continent regularly. In addition, the National Ballet school attracts students from five countries to its academic-ballet curriculum. The annual summer school has approximately 350 students.

The Ballet appears regularly on television networks in Canada and the United States. Its performance of the four-act classic "Swan Lake" was a CBC premiere in North America. It appeared first in this medium in the spring of 1954 on C.B.C. stage and regularly since.

Nearly 50 ballets ranging from the full-length classics in scale (Swan Lake has three acts) to modern abstract masterpieces by George Balanchine are in this National Ballet's repertoire. Of these, more than 30 are original works commissioned from Canadian choreographers after with specially commissioned scores.

Chilly Wind Kept Market Crowd Down

Despite the fact that "lucky old sun" shone brightly over the city this morning, the chilly wind could have been the reason for the small group of vendors and purchasers on the local farmers' market.

These people will continue to come to the market square until the snow flies, and then it will be like a deserted village.

Vegetables and fruits have remained much the same in price for several weeks and the supplies are running out. Apples and potatoes are all that can be seen in large quantities on the market at present.

Carrots, onions and beets sold at 10-25c a peck container, while turnips and cabbage sold from 10-25c apiece, according to their size.

Potatoes were selling at $2.50 a bushel and apples of various kinds, Macs, Snows and Delicious, sold for 25c for a basket and $2.50 - $3 a bushel.

Apple cider is still plentiful and sold for $1 a gallon and from 15c up, for smaller bottles, according to size.

Eggs remained the same in price inls week as last, extra large selling for 65c a dozen; large 61c, medium 53c and small 45 down one cent from last week.

New System Of Waterworks Now Operating

After years of planning and many months construction, the municipal waterworks in the village of Marmora has been completed and is now in operation. The waterworks and places of business signed up for water.

The water supply situation had become serious in the village as result of an exceptionally dry fall and lowering of the water table. Many of the village wells had either gone dry or had become polluted.

The system at present installed will service McGill and Forsythe Streets and Hayes and Burstall Streets and North Hastings Ave., all south of William St.

Douglas Charges Liberal Health Insurance Provisions Are Death-Bed Repentance

WINDSOR (CP) — T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, swung into a Liberal stronghold Friday night with a charge that Liberal health insurance promises are a death-bed repentance to be accepted of. ... contrasted promises with performance on health insurance, recalling that the 1919 Liberal platform called for health - insurance plank never implemented in the 33 years of Liberal government in the intervening years.

Mr. Douglas, filling a series of Ontario and Quebec speaking engagements, picked on Essex East constituency of former health minister Paul Martin to address, to a packed hall which building officials said holds 1,000, followed a 5 - a plate dinner raising dinner attended by 385 persons.

The former Saskatchewan premier said Mr. Martin has made himself the chief Liberal spokesman for a of a national health insurance plan.

"You'll pardon me if I'm a bit sceptical about death - bed repentances ... The Liberal record is such that they should never breathe the words."

Mr. Douglas also charged that the Liberal economic adviser, Walter Gordon, chairman of the 1956 royal commission on Canada's economic prospects, had shown signs that the Liberals have a troubled conscience. Mr. Gordon's book, Troubled Canada, would be better named "the troubled conscience of the party which caused the most trouble to Canada."

Mr. Gordon had the "unmitigated gall" to attack Finance Minister Fleming's right-money policy when right money is recent years had been the inventor of the famous Liberal fi-

"To be really happy, one should be three." Principals in "The Little Hut," Harry Mulhall (left) and Mark Heilahu, are trying to persuade Margo Hall that being cast away on a desert island with two men isn't so bad if one will agree to a rather unorthodox design for living.

It Takes Three to Tangle Life in Desert Isle Hut

TRENTON — A capacity crowd opened the Quinte area premiere of the play, "The Little Hut," in the intimate atmosphere of the upper auditorium of the Trenton Country Club last night. Trenton audiences will see a repeat performance tonight. The play will be presented in Belleville next week.

Stars of the production, sponsored by the Trenton Drama Group and the Belleville Theatre Guild are Margo Hall, Harry Mulhall, Mark Heilahu; director is Jim Alexander.

Susan (Margo Hall) is an alluring female, cast adrift on a desert island with two handsome, socially-acceptable males. Incidental to the matter is hand as the fact that one of the males is her husband, and this gets more and more incidental as time goes merrily along.

The males, Henry (Mark Heilahu) and Philip (Harry Mulhall) have come to an amicable agreement. Susan is to be undivided, as it were. One week, she is expected to shower Henry with wifely attentions and the succeeding week, Philip is to be the recipient of this marital devotion.

This design for living suits everyone very well until Henry, the unmarried member of the trio, falls desperately in love with Susan. This complicates matters somewhat. Husband Phillip, who finds the situation embarrassing, to say the least, is loathe to change the established format.

"To be really happy, one should be three," Phillip insists, and adds as an afterthought, "Polygamy is the coming thing ... like nuclear fallout."

Susan, meanwhile, has been enjoying her island existence. To be sure, there is a certain amount of work involved. There are sheets . . . . palm leaves . . . . to be gathered; there are coconuts to be gathered; dust collects equally fast on stones, pressed into service as chairs, as it does on their mahogany counterparts. And then, there is Phillip's pipe which to be washed and hung up to dry on an improvised clothesline. But there are compensations. It isn't every girl who has, not one, but two attractive males at her beck and call and on whom she can practice her wiles.

"What we need on this island is . . . ," she muses.

The boys can't seem to see eye to eye with the Crown Prince (Bill Goldie) but Susan manages, in her own inimitable fashion, to save them from the stew pot.

CONSTITUTIONAL

tion has been a failure as far as French-Canadians are concerned.

Both Quebec Resources Minister Rene Levesque and Mr. Michael Oliver, national chairman of the New Democratic Party, said Canada's constitution must be changed to meet changing times.

Mr. Levesque said it must be under constant study and revision to keep pace with a moving world.

THROW IT OUT

"There have to be political and economic changes," said Mr. Oliver, a McGill University professor of political science and economics. "If it cannot change, we must throw it out."

Within confederation, Mr. Levesque said, Quebec must have sovereignty in education, in social security and in the economy.

Dr. Chaput asserted that Quebec has only been a colony for Ottawa.

His movement, Le Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale, he said, is not against English-Canada but the domination by it of being a minority.

"What other term but colonialism describes the fact that English is the only official language in the federal capital that a French-Canadian cannot die in Ottawa but his own country?

"What other term but colonialism can you invent to qualify the attitude of the Canadian government abroad? For 15 years at the United Nations Canada has hardly ever spoken in French.

"Economically, the French are not masters in Quebec and that's called colonialism."

The structure of the constitution, he said, are outmoded. Quebec does not want provincial autonomy but to be master of its destiny.

Former Mayor Will Not Be A Candidate

TRENTON — R. E. "Roly" Whitley, a former mayor of Trenton, said yesterday that he would not contest the mayoralty this year.

Mr. Whitley, who served as mayor during Trenton's centennial year, 1960, said that he had been approached and asked to run for mayor again, but that after giving the idea due consideration, he had decided against it.

"Business comes first with me," said Mr. Whitley, "I wouldn't want to create a situation where either my public office or my business would suffer."

Mr. Whitley, who is an active member of the Trenton Lions Club and is also interested in working with Trenton's Senior Citizens' organization, added that "Mayor MacDonald has been doing a fine job. He's a very sincere person."

UNIT RECALLED

RCAF authorities at Trenton announced yesterday, shortly after 2 p.m., that aircraft, sent from Trenton to aid in the search for a 15 year old Toronto boy, believed to be attempting to cross Lake Ontario in a small boat, had been recalled. Authorities at Hamilton reported that they found the boy. The search plane has Rollins in that city, around 1.15 p.m.

Five aircraft from the search and rescue unit at Trenton had been called to the search area.

Around 3 a.m. today, a car, driven by Keith Leslie McCoy, Leopold Street, Trenton, struck a fire hydrant on the Carrying Place Road, according to "fire plug" over.

Damages . . . hydrant $500; car, $500.

Mr. McCoy was treated in Trenton Memorial hospital for bruises and lacerations.

The car was considered a write-off.

On Nov. 10, a car "driven" by a boy was backed into a hydrant on Dundas St. W. causing a shut off of water in the downtown area.

Trip to Africa Shown in Film To B-P Women

TRENTON — Miss Vera Clarke, of Brighton, a member of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's club, spoke to the club at its monthly meeting on Wednesday evening, showing pictures of her trip to Africa with the UNESCO mission.

The mission touched down first at Cairo, and went on to Nairobi Johannesburg, Leopoldville and Nigeria, in Nairobi and Johannesburg, they were entertained by the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of those cities. Miss Clarke showed pictures of Nairobi's modern buildings, none of which are over 50 years old. Although there is no racial discrimination in Nairobi, there are no colored Africans nor Indians in the National Business and Professional Women's Club. Indians form one-third of the population in this area an' the women of this race assist in raising money for the African Welfare department. Zulu tribal dances are also staged for the purpose. Nutritionists are hired to work at village level in an attempt to improve the health and living standards of the colored people in this area.

Nairobi's National Park attracted a number of interesting subjects for the party's camera.

Miss Clarke showed pictures of the Kenya White Highlands, the scene of the Mau-Mau uprisings in this area each race carries on its own education program When Kenya had its own government, it is expected that there will be a leveling of educational standards.

Beautiful Johannesburg was the subject of a number of interesting pictures including the diamond mines outside the city. These accommodations although small by our standards, were constructed to replace the former native slum areas and Miss Clarke said they included an impressive swimming pool serving the native quarters as well as a beer garden. The mine dances put on by members of the mines depict modes of tribal history or everyday life. Miss Clarke stated that it is the hope of the Business and Professional Women's Club in Johannesburg that a sister club in th's city may soon be established, as political conditions prohibit the establishment of a mixed group.

At the end, presentation of a cheque was made by the group for educational purposes and an extremely impressive ceremony was witnessed by the members of the mission, much of which was filmed by the members.

Miss Clarke stated that it was her opinion that the African women "knew what they wanted and were reliable and dependable."

Next Thursday evening the Kiwanis Club will take its audience from the Collegiate auditorium to the "Land of the Midnight Sun" entitled "The Yukon with Don Cooper as narrator."

This is a rollicking true-life story based on the great Gold Rush of '98 — one of the most colorful chapters in American history, and is recalled to mind over the Chilkoot Pass and down 500 miles of the roaring Yukon River.

The adventures take them to many of the one-time roaring mining camps, including: Skagway, Whitehorse, Atlin and Dawson City. They visit the primitive Yukon Indian fish camps, and re-discover famed old Bonanza Creek, and its one remaining prospector still holding down his claim. From the raging fight between two Alaska brown bears to the shy smiles of native children, Coop's camera has captured the grandeur, humor, wildlife and hardy people of the far north.

This is the second travelogue in the ninth "Travelogue and Adventure Series" and promises to be one of outstanding interest regarding Canada's north land.

Job Insurance Studied

The four-man committee appointed by the Federal Government to study Canada's unemployment insurance system has already received a flood of suggestions.

As might have been expected, some of these suggestions are contradictory. For instance, one of the main themes of briefs submitted to date appears to be the desirability of eliminating, or at least reducing, "sponging" on the fund. It is a common knowledge that amongst the spongers have been married women who, quitting a job because of approaching maternity or for some other reason, continue to draw unemployment insurance although they have no real desire to obtain another job. Some of the briefs, have, therefore, advocated a difference in regulations governing this class of worker, but the National Council of Women objects. "It would be unfair to penalize a whole group because certain members of it are guilty of misconduct," it argues. This seems like a logical objection; some other means will have to be used to eliminate this type of sponging on the fund.

Another somewhat similar drain arises from payments to seasonal workers. In some occupations the rate of remuneration is high to compensate for idle periods and in such cases, we suggest, unemployment insurance payments are not needed. In other seasonal occupations, however, wage rates are actually below the level received by many with steady year-round jobs. In such cases the seasonal workers need help when they are idle. Several groups have argued, we think with considerable merit, that payments to such seasonal workers should not come out of the general unemployment insurance fund.

One theme which can be detected in several of the briefs is the plea that the fund be established on a sound actuarial basis with the rates of contributions bearing a relationship to the likelihood of the worker drawing benefits. It is possible to present a case against such a system—to argue that those fortunate enough to work in fields where periodic unemployment is unlikely ought to be willing to help their less fortunate fellow citizens who, therefore, should contribute at the same rate. The answer to this contention is that, in many cases, wage rates are slightly lower in occupations where continuous employment is likely. These workers are thus paying in lower wages for the security they enjoy.

About one suggested reform, though, there should be no argument. One suggestion, advanced mainly in respect to the special problem connected with unemployment insurance for married women, was that before benefits should be paid consideration ought to be given to financial responsibilities of the need. A general application of such a plan would be contrary to the whole spirit of insurance and would make benefits a matter of charity, rather than of right. Suppose, for example, an unemployed worker had to prove need before benefits were paid. Two workers in the same world side by side in the same plant, for the same number of years, receiving equal pay and shouldering equal family responsibilities. Then they might be laid off. One man might have saved diligently, the other might have squandered his money. The man who has saved for a rainy day, because he was not in need, would not be entitled to benefits; the spendthrift would. Obviously this would be a most undesirable state of affairs.

Changed Tune

Britain, traditionally open to all-comers, is considering legislation to control immigration. Ceylon plans to issue residents with identity cards bearing their photographs and fingerprints as part of a program to combat illicit immigration. Canada, of course, in spite of its wide open spaces, controls immigration strictly. The United States, for all its boasts about being a "melting pot" of nations, has for many years had some of the world's most restrictive immigration laws.

In Britain's case, access will be forbidden only to those unable to prove that they can support themselves—and only to some of these for British-born persons will have a right to return to their native land even if they are paupers.

Many other lands, too, are concerned primarily or largely with the danger of the immigrant becoming a charge on the state.

If the trend is carried far enough, immigration may be reserved for the rich or the well-to-do. This will be a complete switch from the days when the immigrants, in the vast majority of cases, were the poor or the oppressed.

Story of a Refugee

New York Times

Pyotr was probably pretty homesick, but he might have stuck it out if he hadn't twice failed his automobile driver's test in London. Perhaps pressure was being put on him to go home. Maybe he is still in Kogan, but none of them who knew him in London believe this. They think he went back to Russia. But his failure to get his driver's licence did make him very unpopular because he had been an expert truck driver in the Soviet Union Army. This thinks that he failed his test the second time because he could not remember the four persons who may legally buy a motorist on the road. They are a policeman, a road repair man, someone guiding children across the road, or a shepherd. He forgot the shepherd.

• • •

Pyotr appeared in Britain a little over 5 years ago. He said that he was there because of a mishap, the nature of which he did not explain, or because. When he found himself in Britain he did not report to the nearest Soviet Union consulate and he communicated with certain British newspapers and told them the story of how he happened to be in Britain. Of course, the newspapers in the country must have been known to the Soviet Embassy almost as soon as he set foot in Britain.

Pyotr was 30, unmarried and an electrician. Incidentally Pyotr isn't his name. He said that he had been a member of the Communist party nor to any of the Soviet youth organizations. He was an intelligent and unprepossessing young man; not particularly handsome, not stupid, either. A psychologist might have called him a dull normal. He did, however, seem most granted him political asylum and gave him working papers.

• • •

When Pyotr first appeared in London he was taken in hand by a group of Russian-born women who have specialized in aiding escapees from the Soviet Union. Some of the women were refugees from the 1918 revolution and are no longer young. Nor do they command much money. For a year Pyotr lived with the family of one of these women and slept on a sofa in the living room. It was hard to find a job for Pyotr. He could not speak anything at all nearly connected with the defense effort. Eventually a big of work territory out of bounds to him. He got a job washing cars at the rate of an allotment of $15 a week. He went to night school to learn English, which he found almost impossible to grasp.

When Pyotr first came to London his favorite pastime was window shopping. He would walk about the streets for hours. He got tired of this after a while and began to take no interest in any kind of London institution, although it was obvious at first at least, that he was enjoying his liberty. Of course there was much speculation about Pyotr. Was he a Soviet spy—a plant? Was he a British counterspy seeking to make contacts with the Soviet intelligence apparatus in London?

After a time Pyotr began to receive letters from home. His mother wrote him letters, one in which said he was living well and well-being. He showed these letters to the Russian-born women with whose family he lived. They were not impressed enough letters. But it seemed that none of his letters were reaching his mother.

• • •

To those who were not cynical about his reasons for being in England, Pyotr's problem became one of helping himself so a liberty he had never known. Some of the liberty he could not understand, or did not want. Here was the city, no stranger to refugees from Karl Marx on. Here was the staid young man. The city and the man became antagonists. The letters still came from Russia, but he no longer showed them to his Russian friends.

His unhappiness mounted to near hysteria as the letters came. One day he was gone. He did not take his clothes or even his shaving things. There was a wretched little note on the table saying that he was "going away." That was all.

Cruel Jests Back in Style

By Stanley Marsh
in the London New Statesman

One of the surest signs of crisis is the wry joke, the ruthless rhyme or sour story that refuses to amuse. It is a back-handed compliment to the conscience.

Europe was full of such cruel jests in the Thirties. Now it is the prosperous West that must somehow make a joke.

New York was completely destroyed several times in Temple Stute Building. One man, who had escaped from the last disaster, was unable to bear his loneliness. He jumped from the 86th floor and broke his fall with as he passed the 14th floor.

Another version has it that the man jumped from sheer joy that, though nothing else was left standing in Georgian explosion, the New York Public Library was intact.

At last all the world read all the books he had never had time for before. Eagerly he sprang forward, only to find smashed his glasses.

Such unbroken bouts of imagination do not dry up the usual supply of international jests. I remember a story told me by an American who, hearing I came from London, immediately told me a story about a way carriage in England where one of the seats was occupied by a lap dog.

His owner flatly refused allow another passenger to take the seat; when she refused for the third time, a man threw the dog out the window.

An American passenger said: "Why didn't you shoot?" "I've got me beat. You drive on the wrong side of the road, serve beer warm, and then you throw the wrong bitch out of the window."

Where Baker Important

New York Herald Tribune

We will not say to the people of Nimes what Caesar said to France once said to the people of Paris; "Let 'em eat cake". But Gordon Grimes, a baker in near the town of Nimes in southern France, was convicted in a bad way for bread. The only baker in town, by name Vinsay Bruno, he was charged a batch of bad bread the other day and was fined and sentenced off to jail. He said it was an accident, but the mills of justice grind fine. He will be in the mills of flour, and at last re-port he was still there.

It's interesting to be reminded of these things in a week when this world — and very nice ones, too—where what happens is not a matter of profound concern to the people. The world people with whose family he lived. They were not impressed enough letters. But it seemed that none of his letters were reaching his mother.

• • •

To those who were not cynical about his reasons for being in England, Pyotr's problem became one of helping himself so a liberty he had never known. STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE EVERLASTING ARMS

A young friend of ours was recently stricken down with poliomyelitis. The physicians warned the parents that her condition was grave and that there was practically nothing they could do to slacken the progress of this dread disease. The mother of the young victim was a particularly religious woman and she asked her friends to pray about this situation, which in considerable numbers they proceeded immediately to do. At present writing the girl spears to be out of danger and will probably retain unimpaired most of the powers which the disease so often destroys.

As the young lady recovered she thanked her physician very earnestly. His reply was, "Don't thank me, cookie, all we did was to furnish hospital equipment and to do what little we know to do. You have answered your own prayers." This terrible situation by nothing else than prayer.

The point we wished to make more things are wrought by prayer than this world has dreamed of. God expects us to use the truth and skill which has been revealed to us, but sometimes we can only use the limit. Prayer makes this limitless more effective.

But situations arrive at times before which modern medicine stands hopeless, helpless, and aghast. When this time arrives, remember that only the Power who made the heavens and earth can protect it. "The Eternal God is our refuge, and underneath are the Everlasting Arms."

Morgan Memorial Trophy committee of the Central Ontario Chess Makers Association, the trophy will be placed in the cabinet presented to the British Empire Dairy Show and Cheese Exhibition, and will be awarded to the Canadian cheesemaker manufacturing the highest average in the Belleville Cheese Board for the ten years succeeding the last Great War.

"Yes and No", a play comedy in three acts, will be given by the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School for their annual school play, and proved delightful entertainment. Directed by Miss N. J. Mercy, the play sustained the reputation for excellent acting which has become a tradition of the school. This year the play is serving a dual purpose, providing the major dress offering of the school for the season, and assisting in the war effort of the pupils as the proceeds will be contributed to the Christmas Tag Fund for students and formers students overseas.

30 YEARS AGO

November 18th, 1931

Miss A. E. Sanderson, who has been operator at the Canadian National Telegraph office here for the past seven years, has been transferred to the Peterboro office in Toronto.

The supplies committee in connection with the unemployment work here is urgently in need of boys' clothing and boots and children's underwear. A large supply is badly needed.

Miss Margaret Hardy was home from Toronto University to spend the weekend.

Mr. Charles Holden of Coe Hill, ex-Warden of the county, was in town today.

Miss Lillian Connor spent the weekend with her mother in Peterborough.

Mrs. Henry Foltz has left for Stirbroodon, Alta.—where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. Earl J. O'Brien.

Mr. John B. Colling was home from the College of Pharmacy in Toronto, to spend the weekend.

40 YEARS AGO

November 18th, 1921

At the last meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board for this season, there was a large attendance. Seventy boxes of white cheese and fifty boxes of colored cheese were boarded and all sold at 13 1-2 cents. This was a higher average price. The Board will not meet again until the fourth Saturday in April.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Reid have left for Grand Rapids, Mich., after visiting the parents of Mrs. Reid. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Anderson of Hillside Street. Mr. and Mrs. Reid will leave in January next for Bristol, Bristol Africa where they will engage in missionary work.

Belleville Market prices: — butter 40 cents to 45 cents per pound; chickens $1.25 to $2.00 per pair; ducks $1.10 to $1.35 each; potatoes $1.85 per bag.

50 YEARS AGO

November 18th, 1911

Miss Gillies and Patterson Street, has returned home after visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. McCauley of this city are visiting friends in Belleville.

Belleville Market prices: butter 26 cents to 30 cents per pound; eggs from 70 cents to $1.40 per pair; geese $1 to $1.80 each; ducks $1.50 to $1.80 per pair; turkeys $2 to $2.50 each; potatoes $1.50 to $1.60 per bag.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Campbell have returned to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. William Reed of Flint, Mich., have come to this city to reside. Mr. Reed is taken up residence in Bellevue Terrace on Patterson Street.

They Bottled London Fog

Calgary Herald

Anyone for a London fog?

Reports from Britain that a couple of enterprising Londoners women living there have managed to bottle a bit of London's famous fog for anyone who cares to have some are rather surprising.

There are many memories of London which would bring its fog to mind, but one filled with choked-up feeling. None would choke them up quicker than the greatest bronchitis producer known.

It is hard to believe anyone could feel nostalgia for one of the choke rs.

We can imagine someone having fond thoughts conjured up by a whiff of "Kew in Lilac Time." Even a bit of the cotch-with-a-little atmosphere of a British pub five minutes before the public calls "time," gentlement would be acceptable if not attractive.

But to offer for admiration for the ingenuity of the women who canned the fog we cannot help but exclaim "Lor' Us."

The possibilities are tremendous, of course, for those with a bent for commerce. If people will buy tinned London fog why would they not pay cash for a bit of lost air, tinned at the height of the last of the winds sweep down and deep-freeze Winnipeg?

Or could it not be possible to fill up a jar of "Vancouver Winter" and overcome rain! Calgarians abroad would surely find tears in their eyes if anyone opened a jar of "Spring Dust From A Calgary Street." All of these would help to ease make the expatriates happier with their lot.

Quick Change Eyebrows

Sherbrooke Record

The lowly stencil — that basic tool for marking parcel boxes and crates for shipping — has become the rage in the world of high fashion.

Stencils are now on the market which will give women a different eyebrow shape for different days, occasions and moods.

Nature's own eyebrows have to be borne away with first, so operation which today's fashion conscious women cannot resist.

Then the stencil in whatever shape is wanted, is placed in position and then a few flicks of some special paint and eyebrows are "painted" accordingly to the blurbs).

If this fashion catches on in a big way, social life may become a bit difficult. A raised eyebrow used to be the sign that one had committed a faux pas. But with the new stencils it might mean anything or nothing more than a make-up experiment.

To Your Good Health

Insect Bites or Stings Are Known to Be Fatal

By Joseph C. Meisner, M.D.

A 19-year-old college student, helping his father spray trees, was stung by a wasp and collapsed immediately.

After a few minutes he began to tremble, was violently sick at his stomach, large blotches appearing on his body as well as swelling, of course, at the spot where he was stung.

The foregoing was from a letter and the writer asks, "Is there anything that can be done for this type of thing? About three years ago the boy was stung on the neck and the swelling was so terrific he nearly choked to death."

Yes, there are things that can be done.

Severe reactions from insect bites are not common but they can be dangerous. Snakebite is n't common, either, but it is dangerous. For a person unusually sensitive to insect venom, the consequences can be as serious as snakebite.

About one person in 30 becomes increasingly sensitive to insect stings, after once being bitten, but the severity varies. In extreme cases, and there are a number of them each year, such a sting can be fatal. More often, it is not quite so dangerous.

Adult bedbugs, bees, various flies, wasps, hornets and mosquitoes at times can cause serious reactions, even when quite sensitive to the particular poisons involved.

With the honey bee, as is pretty well known, the stinger breaks off, and does not pull out or squeezed out at once, to prevent further venom from escaping in. The bumble bee, hornet, yellow jacket, wasp, etc., can sting and sting again.

So first aid begins with getting rid of the stinger if it breaks off. If not, application of cold, and some kind which may be soap, water, ammonia, or bicarbonate of soda.

If there is extensive swelling, redness, itching or other widespread irritation, antihistamine drugs can be taken by mouth or applied as creams or lotions to overcome the bite hypersensitivity, which is another word similar to allergy. Such drugs are the antihistamines help. (Calamine lotion is soothing to the bitten or itchy area.)

A tourniquet is very useful — a little realized fact — to people known to be highly sensitive to certain bites. It should be loosened at intervals of two or three minutes, and not left continuously tight. The gradual release of insect venom helps modify the severe effects.

Such individuals might well carry a kit containing adrenalin, and relatives or friends should know how to administer it in case of sudden collapse of the victim. I refer, of course, to people who are so highly sensitive to bites that adrenalin. Likewise steroid drugs are available, and are useful in severe cases but should be administered by a physician.

In recent years, the effects of venom of bees, wasps, hornets, in extreme cases, have been extracts have to be taken before the season of exposure to stings, often, it is said, for as long as 5 or 6 years.

In addition to medical aids, proper understanding and the ability to remain calm and not run, or stop at an insect, remain important in avoiding bites and the attendant consequences.

Dear Dr. McCoy: If you chose one, snip them off carefully with scissors.

Dear Curtisons does not cause sterility.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YIELD GRACEFULLY

We can win all the time. The grateful yielder is a great one, be he or woman. He or she is one who accepts defeat with a fine spirit and passes on to the next task of winning one's self.

There is plenty of applause for all. Applause never wears out. There is a freak supply as it ways waiting just around the corner!

God apportions His awards. He keeps mankind going strong by failing to make approval real in a man's heart many times without letting the world in to understand.

Greatness is often merely a matter of knowing how to yield in some corner of a man's own understanding that is sacred for advertisement or show.

Anybody can glow in spirit when all is coming his or her way. To yield to the inevitable and bringing good cheer to the appointment, yet to keep sweet and bring one's temper under to full control, is something that way.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When we drove onto the gravel area in front of a very attractive highway restaurant, we could not help but notice the extraordinary little heaps and piles of cigarette butts, burnt matches and other small trash that were strewn along over several feet of parking lot.

It was apparent that more than half a dozen motorists had emptied their car ash trays all in the one small area.

I mentioned the matter to the management as she showed us to a table.

"Oh, yes," she said. "We get outbreaks like that every now and then. It is usually when and maybe once a week. What happens is that one guest takes it upon himself to empty his ash trays. And when the next comers see the pile, they empty theirs too. And after three or four have done it, it seems to be taken as a standing suggestion to everybody who follows into that section of the lot."

Human nature is very curious particularly in its dirtier and more selfish aspect.

A Lift for Living

Christians / ... Rich Men

Not too long ago the press published a list of America's richest persons. Probably every one of us would have been pleased to be in that group. We admire the ability of a person who can honestly achieve such mastery over things that he can acquire great wealth. And we respect the person who can properly handle inherited wealth so that it serves the public good.

But at this Thanksgiving season in the U.S. I should like to ask this: How would God look at the world's list of rich persons? God knows where wealth comes from. He knows where this wealth goes when present possessory are done with it. How would He compile His list of rich persons?

Now of course, such a question seems utterly presumptuous and purely speculative. Who can assume that he knows the mind of God? Certainly I do not rely on my own wisdom. But we who call ourselves Christians look to Christ as our authority. And Christ did talk about those who are "rich toward God".

THE RICH FARMER

Jesus used this expression "rich toward God" in his parable of the rich farmer as recorded in the twelfth chapter of Luke. The story is familiar. The farmer was planning larger barns for his increasing crops. He felt secure and was looking forward to his own pleasure and ease, when suddenly he was stricken by death. The Master asked; whose will be the things which the farmer stored up for himself. And then He added these words: "So is he who lays up treasure for himself and is not rich toward God".

But who are rich toward God? From the study of Christ's teachings, we can say first of all that those who are rich toward God are those who hold their lives faithfully as trusts under God.

Over and over again Jesus stressed the truth that God is the owner of all things and men, while his property as God's partners and trustee. One trouble with the rich farmer in the parable was that he overlooked God's part in producing his wealth. Listen to his soliloquy: " I will pull down my barns", "I will store all my grain and my goods". In that brief soliloquy the pronoun "my" occurs six times. But how far were they his? In producing the grain, the fertility of the soil, the sunshine and the rain played their vital part, but they were not under the farmer's control. If God had withheld the rain what would have happened to his wealth?

Also the farmer seemed to forget the part played by his fellow men in producing his goods. He did not plow, reap and build barns singlehanded. Wealth is the product of society as well as of personal effort. Society maintains and enforces laws without which property could not be bought and sold. Society provides the common honesty which undergirds our market and our investments. However able and industrious the individual may be, he cannot amass wealth without the natural resources given by God and the labor and laws contributed by other human beings. We speak of our "states as commonwealths"—the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania", "the Commonwealth of Illinois". And that is what they are — common - wealth. In them we live, work and make our money.

NOT SELF-MADE

Even the ideas which seem to be the products of our own brains are not wholly our own. We are indebted to parents for what we have, inheritors, to writers for the suggestions we have received and to teachers for the nurture of our minds. Even the most brilliant and creative persons among us are not really self-made. We are all users and stewards of funded resources.

When a person dies, we often ask, "What was he worth?" By that we commonly mean, "What did he leave?" But a man might be worth millions and yet be bankrupt in God's sight, unless he had done his best to pay back what he owed to his Creator and his fellow creatures for the values received from them.

In life neighbours may rate a person's wealth by the number of servants he has. After death society measures his worth by the number of people he has served. Men may get rich by mastering men, for the making of things. But men become rich toward God by mastering things for the making of men.

Oriental Art Accompanies Tea On a Social Visit in Japan

By SHIRLEY and ROB SLOANE

KYOTO, Japan — Mr. Shigeru Matsuoka, a retired miner, owner and real estate man, appeared momentarily at the entrance to what would be the dining room in a western house —Japanese houses have virtually no furniture, so it is difficult to tell one room from another except by its location.

Handsomely kimonoed, bald-headed and barrel-chested, he was the image of imperial shogun. But the image was brief. Mr. Matsuoka glanced quickly at the curved-out fluorescent lamp above the round cocoanut table in his "living" room, sucked in his breath sharply (the Japanese equivalent of "tsk, tsk"), and disappeared like a Kabuki player exiting into the wings. He was quickly supplanted by a tittering teenaged maid in bobby socks and a distraught wife in kimono carrying candles.

Our Japanese guides remained standing with us in the entrance alcove to Mr. Matsuoka's living room. Only after the candles were lit and Mr. Matsuoka reappeared was there any formal acknowledgement that guests were in the house. Then our guides dropped to their knees in the incredibly graceful Japanese manner, placed their foreheads almost to the floor and introduced us.

We settled down on cushions around the table and Mrs. Matsuoka served green tea, after which she respectfully retired to a lower position of station behind her husband.

ART COLLECTION

After sliding open the shoji screens of his house to display the garden in which all proper Japanese gardens are set, Mr. Matsuoka trotted out some of his vast store of Oriental art collected over a lifetime. There were ancient crusted vases, scowling priests, scrolls of Kamakura warriors and allegorical battles, and wildly varied Buddhas, from medieval abstractions that artists today call modern.

When it was time to leave, our guides touched their foreheads to the floor once more. We slipped into the shoes we had left at the front door, and departed with impressions of a visit as precise and formalized as a tea ceremony.

Some believe that only this symbol-laden formality of Japanese life over the centuries has prevented the nation from disintegrating under the pressures of history. Nowhere in this continuity of past and present better revealed than in the historic cultural capital of Kyoto.

There are in Kyoto some 1,500 shrines and palaces, all of them different. Some, like the Kinkakuji of the 1,001 Buddhas, are fantastic, like a 15th century emperor enshrined what he believed to be his skull from a previous incarnation. Others, with a huge gilt Buddha and surrounded it with an army of a thousand wooden Kannon, Mercy Goddesses, are awesome. Still others, like the altar stand 28 fierce guardians, carved of wood, their grotesque attitudes depicting their ecstatic devotion.

The East Honganji Temple overshadows most of its imposing intricately carved pagoda roofs and wooden gates. The Nijo castle is famed for its great stone wall of fitted blocks as it is for its musically squeaking "nightingale" floors, designed by some ingenious craftsman to warn the emperor of approaching assassins — gently.

But the most unusual and challenging of Kyoto's sights is the Ryoanji garden, called the garden with nothing in it. An oblong sea of raked gravel studded with waist-high stones placed so that all 15 are never visible at one time, it is an exercise in Zen Buddhism and contemplation of the serene and the inscrutable.

GEISHA MORNING

Kyoto is also the breeding ground of Japan's most winsome geisha, the young women who make a calling of entertaining in the classic arts and providing men with proper and respectable feminine companionship away from home. A geisha's training in Kyoto begins on the sixth day of the sixth month of the six year. Until she reaches maturity she is a maiko, a doll-like Oriental Lolita of gorgeous gowns, tinkteted hair and mincing, giggling ways.

If you can afford the reputed $15-an-hour tab, you may be entertained by geisha and maiko at a traditional restaurant of Kyoto such as Tsuruya, where the screens open above a lagoon filled with golden carp and the food is classically designed to please the eye as well as the palate.

A paper napkin folded in the shape of a crane, the Japanese symbol of good fortune; a delicately woven basket of baked rice dough containing strips of dried seaweed studded with roe, plump green ginko nuts and strips of salmon; soup with bells of fish sausage; raw fish and tempura; slices of roast duck; sugared rice . . . all are served by processions of maiko with white powdered faces and helmet-like hairdos, dropping gracefully to their knees to serve, pour sake and exchange pleasantries with the guests.

After dinner comes the bold, baritone twang of the samisen, accompanied by the flutey voices and stylized steps of the geisha acting out a medieval tragedy of love or an ancient sonnet to the seasons.

And gradually, Japanese philosophy seems no mystery at all. The past and the present need not belong to separate times.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

In the election of officers at the annual meeting held in Club Canara, Mrs. Cecil Hubble, of Foxboro was elected one of the directors instead of Mrs. Everett Hubble, as reported in the recent issue of the Ontario Intelligencer.

Mrs W.I. Cole Reaches 80th Milestone

A pleasant even took place at the home of Mrs. Alex. W. I. Cole of Cannifton, celebrated the 80th birthday of her mother, Mrs. Roy Pound, as hostess. The co-hostesses were Mrs. Harry Walker, eldest daughter, and Mrs. Roy Clarke, youngest daughter.

The guests were met at the door by Mrs. Walker and Cathy Cole, great-granddaughter, and Mrs. Clarke and Elaner Pound, granddaughters, acted as coat check girls for the evening.

POURING TEA

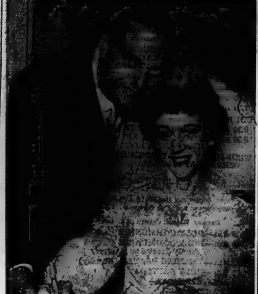
Those who poured tea during the afternoon were: Mrs. Stillings Hamilton, Mrs. Ken Empson and Mrs. O. Roblin.

Those serving were: Mrs. Gordon Elmy, Mrs. Bruce Walker, Mrs. Ross Cole and Miss Joan Clarke, all granddaughters.

Mrs. Willis Brenion, Mrs. Ross Cole were in charge of the Gerald Brenion replenished the supplies.

Mrs. Cole was born in Cannifton where she has resided all her life. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ogie Cole. She is the last living member of the Cannifton family of which the village was named.

Mrs. Cole is a member of the Cannifton United Church and Women's Association, the Woman's Missionary Society, and the Ladies' class of Cannifton Sunday school. She is enjoying good health and spends a great deal of her time with the quilting group of the church.



The honored guest was presented with many birthday cards and a lovely floral arrangements, including an orchid corsage, a gift from her family.

There were about 100 friends signed the guest book which was also a gift.

RETIRED GENERAL DIED

MONTREAL (CP) — Maj.-Gen. Ralph Otter Geoffrey Morton, 66, retired general officer commanding the army's Quebec command, died Wednesday on the Spanish-owned Mediterranean island of Majorca, it was learned here. His 36 years army service extended through both world wars. He was appointed to Quebec Command in 1946 after having been GOC Prairie Command, with headquarters in Winnipeg, from 1945. He retired in 1951.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Allen Caverly are shown signing the register following their recent marriage in Christ Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Patricia Ann Blakely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Grant Blakely, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Caverly, also of Belleville. CAVERLY — BLAKELY

A pretty fall wedding was solemnized recently at Christ Church in Belleville when Archdeacon J. R. Gorman united in marriage Patricia Ann Blakely of R. R. 2 Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Grant Blakely of R.R. 6, Belleville, to Ronald Allen Caverly, son of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Caverly, White feathered basins interspersed with ferns, adorned the chancel and white satin bows marked the guest pews.

The choir of eight boys assisted Mr. Clark Coyden Withers, organist, in singing "O Perfect Love," and the "Twenty-Third Psalm."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of Chantilly lace over satin and net, fashioned with slim fitting bodice having bateau neckline accented by seed pearls and sequins. The long, sheath-like sleeves ended in lily-points over the wrists. Her cathedral length veil was held by a fingertip bouffant of French illusion veil, and carried a bouquet of white carnations with pink Sweetheart roses and sprays of ivy.

Miss Patricia Rickard, Belleville, was maid-of-honor and Miss Jo Lewis, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Rosemarie Blakely, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. All wore dresses in deep, rich blue, peau de soie, fashioned in bell-shape street length, having fitted bodices and short sleeves. They wore matching blue velvet bulb roses of peau de soie in the same color as their gowns; satin shoes and short veils completed their accessories and they carried semi-cascades of pink carnations.

The best man was Mr. James Gladioli adorned the altar in Holy Rosary Church, Belleville, and white satin bows designated the guest pews for a recent lovely double-ring ceremony when Joyce Theresa Fobert, of Belleville, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Fobert, became the bride of William James Brady, of Madoc, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brady, of Madoc. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brady. The Reverend Maurice Imhoff, assisted by the Reverend Yves Purcell, officiated.

Mrs. Bernard Turcotte, organist, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. James MacGavern, of Belleville, in his rendition of the wedding hymns "Dear Lord and Father I am Not Worthy," and "Jesus My Love, My God, My All."

Given in marriage by her father, wore a charming bridal gown of white peau de soie featuring a fitted bodice embroidered in seed pearls, with long sleeves. The floor-length skirt was fashioned in bouffant style. Her elbow-length veil of French net was held by a headdress of matching material, and she carried a white prayer book crested with red Sweetheart roses with long white satin streamers.

She was attended by Miss Geraldine Fobert, her twin sister, who was attired in peau de soie having a bouffant skirt in cornflower blue length. The molded bodice and sleeves were complemented the beautiful shade of sweetheart neck and matching shoes, and bronze veil-type headdress.

The bridesmaids, Miss Judy Lang, Miss Barbara Fobert, cousin of the bride, and Miss Rosemary Daley, also cousin of the bride, all of Belleville, were gowned alike in cotillion length dresses of peau de soie in a deep marine shade, with matching shoes and hats, and carried hand-bouquets of yellow, and bronze 'mums.

Little six-year-old Karen Doxtator, cousin of the bride, as flower girl, was sweet in her full-skirted antique gold peau de soie frock with matching bronze headband, with veil effect and carrying a nosegay of yellow and bronze 'mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. John Jenkins, of Toronto, and the ushers were ably by Messrs. Bernard Fobert, cousin of the bride, and Cliff Hart, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Garry Valance, all of Belleville.

The reception was held at Club Canara, where the bride's table was prettily appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of white flowers, and misted about the base with white tulle and red rosebuds. White candles in crystal holders and the bridal bouquets completed the bridal setting.

The master of ceremonies was Mr. Frank Lang.

The guests were received by the bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother; the former in moda Azuel faille with matching accessories, and corsage of orange-toned 'mums; the latter in a two piece dress of silk with white accessories, and corsage of white 'mums.

For the wedding trip to the United States and Niagara Falls the bride chose a forest green two-piece ensemble with matching accessories, and corsage of red Sweetheart roses.

Guests were present from Toronto; Oshawa; Madoc; Copper; Queensboro; Peterborough; Ottawa; Cornwall; Belleville; Trenton; Stirling and Hallowy.

The bride, previous to her marriage, was entertained by a presentation of a set of beautiful dishes at the home of Mrs. Donald Woodcock by a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Beverley Millard with Miss Grace Sinclair as co-hostess, by the bride's former schoolmates of Quinte Secondary School; and at a presentation by the co-workers of W.I. Hawkins, Ltd., when she was presented with a wrist watch, chenille spread, and clock. A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. M. Fobert, aunt of the bride.

The bride's gift to her attendants were pearl necklaces with matching earrings; to her flower girl, a gold chain with drop pearl. The bridegroom's gifts to his attendants, matching cuff links and tie pins, and to his bride, a green rhinestone necklace with matching earrings.

Mr. and Mrs. Brady are residing at 116 Verdun Road, Oshawa, Ontario.

SYKES — ROBB

Bridge Street United Church was the scene of a beautiful military wedding on November 11th, when Barbara Ann Robb, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Stuart Robb, was joined in matrimony to Mr. Ralph Leonard Sykes, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sykes, of Calgary.

The wedding procession entered the sanctuary to the singing of "Praise Ye the Lord, the Almighty, the King of Creation." Lighted candles in the multiple candelabra and baskets of white gladioli, mixed with white Shasta chrysanthemums, on either side of the Communion table, gave a dignified setting to the ceremony.

The bride, wearing a full-length gown of white silk velvet fashioned in princess lines with a self-embroidered Lavalier neckline and a three-tiered veil of silk illusion pouffed from a headdress of two silk roses, carried a bouquet of stephanotis, red roses and ivy, arranged as a background for a beautiful white orchid.

Miss Enid Gouge of Toronto, maid of honor to the bride, and the bridesmaids, Miss Anne Tooth of Belleville and Miss June Martin of Kitchener, were gowned alike in full-length silk velvet dresses of a deep cherry shade, made for them by the bride. Their cascade bouquets of white Shasta daisies equalled the moon of their white feather tams.

Miss Jocelyn Smith of Toronto, accompanied by Mr. S. Alec Gordon, who played the wedding music, sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd" during the signing of the register, and "The Lord's Prayer."

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner and reception were held at the Hotel Quinte. Mrs. W. Carter, the bride's nursing a dress of pure silk satin faille in a silver mink shade with sunglasses of French inserted, lace received the guests. Her corsage, in three shades, of Sweetheart roses, reflected her autumn rose accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Sykes left from the bride's home on a short trip to Montreal, the bride's travelling costume featuring the business meeting, lunch was served by the hostess.

TRIAL COSTS HIGH

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan government has paid $62,165.11 so far in the prosecution of Regina lawyer M. C. Shumiatcher, Attorney-General Robert Walker reported Friday. Shumiatcher is charged with counselling perjury and subornation of false declarations. The charges were laid in connection with a Saskatchewan Securities Commission hearing in 1958.

Q Alexandra H-S Assoc. Holds Meet

The Queen Alexandra Home and School meeting was held in the school auditorium on Tuesday evening with a large crowd in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Fisher, presided over the business session. Penny Daley, also cousin of the bride, all of Belleville, were gowned alike in cotillion length dresses of peau de soie in a deep marine shade, with matching shoes and hats, and carried hand-bouquets of yellow, and bronze 'mums.

Little six-year-old Karen Doxtator, cousin of the bride, as flower girl, was sweet in her full-skirted antique gold peau de soie frock with matching bronze headband, with veil effect and carrying a nosegay of yellow and bronze 'mums.

Wednesday evening the ladies of the Women's Department of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, met as hostess in the home of Mrs. A. B. Mogg, 34 Rivers Drive, in Belleville Park.

The worship period was conducted by Mrs. A. B. Mogg, with the theme, Our Daily Stewardship Endeavor.

Mrs. W. Carter gave the lesson on, "Stewardship in the Home." The business meeting was conducted with Mrs. S. C. Else in the chair.

It was decided that each family will help in the Christmas party program to be held in the home of Mrs. A. Ward stiff in December.

Following the business meeting, lunch was served by the hostess.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES +

UNIONDALE W.I. (Hastings West)

5TH SIDNEY — The November meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Phillips, 5th concession of Sidney, with a large attendance.

Business was dealt with which consisted of thank-you notes from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Aged (Mrs. J. Maclean), in regards to the help of Uniondale toward the successful bazaar, and from Joyce Anderson and Mrs. Ross Stirling, who have been ill in the Belleville Hospital. A letter was received from Miss MacDonald, secretary regarding the International Plowing Match.

A euchre party was planned at this meeting and 37 members, husbands and a few children, motored by bus to the Ontario Winter Fair in Toronto and stayed for the horse show, which included the RCMP "Musical Ride."

Delegates for the area convention at Club Canara were also selected and were Mrs. Avery Martyn and Mrs. Edison Sine. The W.I. adopted Club Canara as their area and as an Institute emblem is to be made from crossed pitchforks.

The topic, "Citizenship," was taken by Mrs. Frank Phillips, who read an article which was given by Mrs Eadie at Guelph, with the title, "How I Can Train My Child To Be A Citizen of the World," along with a short poem, "What A Cent Can Do!" A paper was given by Mrs. Bert Hall on "Broadcasting Recreation." Short poems were read by Mrs. Kenneth Faul, "How To Be Happy"; Mrs. Ross Fleming, "Little Things," followed by a vocal duet by Mrs. Milton Orville and Miss Patricia Orville, "Mansion Over the Hilltop."

Mrs. Ross Fleming gave a reading, "Little Boy Blue," a prose was given by Mrs. Harold Rose, "Mama's Hands," a Grandpa Door Salesman Tires of Hearing." A contest by Mrs. Wilmot Rose was won by Mrs. George Halsall and a guessing contest of beans in a bottle was won by Mrs. Grenville Sine.

A pot-luck supper was planned at this meeting for November 23rd, which is a family night, get-together at Scott's United Church hall.

Lunch was served by the group in charge, Mesdames Harrington, Mallory, Bush and Sine.

The Christmas meeting will be at the home of the president, Mrs. Edison Sine, 6th concession of Sidney, with an exchange of Christmas gifts.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mimi, W. — This year I want to celebrate my birthday with friends.

Mrs. H.W. — Her birthday was the only day we could count on seeing her.

* * *

Mimi W. — I'm about to turn 30 and it's time my parents and the family were weaned!

I share an apartment in town with two other business girls. We've got home for weekends once in a while, and make it a point to meet Mother here in the city several times a year when she makes a trip for an errand.

For about 10 years, ever since college days, I've kept in close touch with five other girls. We enjoy each other's company immensely. One of our rituals is to meet on birthdays, five treating the sixth to a festive luncheon at a fancy place — cake, candles and all. To humor Mother, I've refused out on my turn with the girls, and spent my birthday with the family. Well, the child's play is over!

* * *

Mrs. H.W. — While it's true her father and I see Mimi on her rare sojourners at home, or when I travel in to midtown, the only time we could be sure of having our three children under one roof again was on her birthday. The other two live in Westchester. Mimi never showed up for their birthdays, and she knows it, so guessing about Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's. But she did plan to faithfully visit a year on her own birthday.

As a mother, I want to keep our family together. Mimi's birthday has become a sort of symbol of our family unity. The time when we can join hands and count noses are few and far between. The others remove the day. Certainly this is the least Mimi can do. Her friends will understand, and pardon her.

* * *

The Council: Where have you been, Mrs. W.? In this movie-anywhere, go-anywhere, do-anywhere, serve-anywhere city, Hamilton, what families are able to get together, on masse and one hundred per cent attendance every 12 months so matter? Those who can are most definitely the exception, not the rule. Better not try to hold on to a thing, especially when the good thing's been wriggling to get free for years.

Your excellent goal, however — family pride and unity — may be realized in other ways. What immediately comes to mind is that the more you do to that end, Mimi (which you admit is just a device to bring all your children together), Mimi being the hardest to snag) may be set for a day near her birthday, not on it. Also, since Mimi wants to beg off the family fuss over her, how natural to shift the symbolism to one of the Westchester three children (a ribbing!) Mimi not only promise to change her ways and make it her business to show up on or near her birthday. That'll make the three, no matter who alices the family.

A word here to Mimi, anyway, about not chafing too hard at her mother's efforts in behalf of the family solidarity. With the best of intentions and despite the best of travels, feelings of affection, families, get drift from time to time under inertia and carelessness. It's thanks to people like your mother, who spend time and work at it, that the deepest family-ties are kept. Postcards, letters and phone calls are a feeble substitute for the face-to-face meeting, however much support and encouragement your mother longs for once in a while. Don't deprive her of it lightly.

We repeat, Mrs. W., the plea: Keep the family together. The next brood may be harder and harder to corral, and the years are few, far. You may soon have to substitute "spiritual" tricks. We're at least Mimi can do. Her friends say that when she's playing in the New Year's Eve, she and her family set their clocks so as to be singing "Auld Lang Syne" at the same time, though separated by the Atlantic.

Second Glance

INTO THE LAND OF MARK TWAIN

"Thomas Sawyer . . . why are you late again, as usual?" I stopped to talk with Huckleberry Finn". The master's pulse stood still . . .

"Thomas Sawyer . . . Take off your jacket." The master's arm performed until it was tired and the stock of switches notably diminished.—The Adventures of Tom Sawyer.

* * *

"What's you name?" "Becky Thatcher. What's yours? Oh, I know. It's Thomas Sawyer."

"That's the name they lick me by. I'm Tom when I'm good. You call me Tom, will you?"—The Adventures of Tom Sawyer.

* * *

"Mark Twain."

At once "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" and "Life on the Mississippi" springs to mind at the very mention of this author.

"Mark Twain" was chosen by Samuel Clemens as his pseudonym when he went to report the first Nevada Legislature, at Carson City. Soon the name became so well known, in time his own was forgotten. But, had such a name any connection with boyhood, to cause him to select it?

Little did we ever expect to personally find the quaint old Missouri town of Hannibal, Missouri. But such was the case, when Mother's age, on a motor trip, we found ourselves driving into this Mississippi River town, speeding along the highway with road-signs telling of "Mark Twain Caverns", "Mark Twain Home" and "Visit Mark Twain Cave". Each flashing forth such haunting territory of childhood days; a sort of unreality.

But as the car rolls smoothly over the Free Mark Twain Memorial Bridge that arches the Mississippi so gracefully, between rural scenes, Hannibal's Main Street that parallels the levee at a distance of a few blocks, we begin to find life-sized statues of Tom and Huckleberry Finn, to greet us at the foot of a flower-terraced hill, as they lovingly go down the heart of swells of the unexpected sight of these immortal bronze kids. They epitomize all the adventurous boyish youth of the universe.

Suddenly the whole atmosphere here becomes a living reminiscence of the genius of Mark Twain and his magic and no longer seems an unreal, far-away place.

Though last year was the 125th anniversary of Mark Twain's birth and the 50th anniversary of his death, there is no dearth of interest. Indeed this hot (90 degrees) Sunday afternoon, there on this historic cross street, named Hill stands the house Mark Twain lived in, before his family lived in, exactly opposite from each other, (across the street) in a frame. Visitors crowd the downstairs of Becky Thatcher's house, now a restaurant and Gift Shop.

The young sales girl in charge says the house has been lived in for years by families who had prepared food, but the present owner, decided to make it a museum. So all the living rooms are beautifully restored upstairs, the parlor nicely furnished with full length mirror, settee, chairs, an exquisite chandelier, studded with an old-fashioned colored glass prisms, and other knacks of her day. The bedroom finds Becky's clothes ready to wear neatly laid out on her bed.

Across the street, at Mark Twain's home, built we learn in 1844 by his father, who was a lawyer and held court as Justice of the Peace near by, the furniture was quite modest on the living room and kitchen. The latter proudly displays a huge black woodburning stove (I remember those kind as a child) and the dining near, and so do we, red wall paper, a baking cabinet and rocking chairs.

A side living-room door leads into the adjoining Mark Twain Museum, where rare books, original manuscripts, clothing and photographs and objects once owned by Mark are displayed. We note the writer's desk, a favorite of the author's, a white linen coat he was fond of wearing.

Suddenly we come upon a huge steamboat wheel, such as the kind that the west kid mounted so as to respond to the slightest touch. On it we see that we read and — so learned:

"Mark Twain — an old river expression meaning two fathoms, or twelve feet, and when heard in the days of the past, called out by boatmen taking the river, especially during the night, gave all within hearing distance a sense of security and well-being."

W.M.S. - W.A.

MADOC JUNCTION — Mrs. Murney Kinzey was hostess last Thursday afternoon for the November meeting of Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A.

The W.M.S. president, Mrs. Keith Johnson, presided, and opened with the call to worship. Mr. Dyson led in prayer and the Scripture reading from I Corinthians 12:1-30 and the commentary on the lesson were given by Mrs. Forest Shipley. The minutes were read by Mrs. Pilchett, who reported 12 members and four visitors present.

In keeping with Remembrance Day, the minutes of silence was observed, followed by the reading of a poem, "Honor the Brave," by Mrs. W. McMullen. Two missionary readings were given, "Pain in Your Greatest Blessing," by Mrs. Maurice Clancy, which described the work of physicians in trying to find a cure for the dread disease of leprosy, and a second reading by Mrs. Bruce Stapley told of the work of the missionary, Adoniram Judson, who translated the Bible into the Burmese language.

The W.A. president, Mrs. McMullen, took charge for the business period. Mrs. Carl Bridges offered her home for the December meeting and Mrs. Dyson will prepare the program. A motion was made that bills for the fall fair of the church and the new study paper be paid. A new study on the Communion table is also to be purchased. It was also decided to have the usual Sheaf gift exchange at the December meeting. Mrs. McMullen responded on the recent meeting held at Moira. The inaugural meeting for the four appointments is to be held the last Thursday of December with Mrs. Bruce Stapley, Mrs. Clarence Flichett and Mrs. Fowie Stapley were appointed nominating committee to bring in the new slate of officers for the local unit at the December meeting.

The W.A. report was given by Mrs. Forest Shipley, Mrs. Warren How, and the W.M.S. report by Mrs. Carl Bridges. Correspondence was dealt with and words of thanks read. There was a discussion in the question box and cards to be ordered by Mrs. Mackenzie for the new organization United Church women.

Mrs. Johnson thanked Mrs. Kirkey for the use of her home; Mrs. Bruce Stapley, who had prepared the lunch and the present owner, decided to make it a museum. So all the living rooms are beautifully restored upstairs, the parlor nicely furnished with full length mirror, settee, chairs, an exquisite chandelier, studded with an old-fashioned colored glass prisms, and other knacks of her day. Readers' Saturday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . . This is a follow-up of former effort and a helpful bit of advice you gave me. I am enclosing the card I originally sent you (in 1958) with the recipe in question and your notes on it also another sample of my cake which was made with ½ teaspoon soda, no baking powder, and almonds on top of cake only. Also I had stepped up the cherries to one pound and to one and a half pounds and the citron peel to ½ lb. My query is: can I step up the cherries to pounds and possibly go to 3 lbs? I use grade A large eggs. Would that be too much fruit for that amount of batter? Many thanks indeed for the advice as regards pan and pans of water. It makes a real difference. Also I would be happy to have any other comment on the current sample which might improve it. I do enjoy your neighborly-sounding column. Even if I were not trying for a cook I would enjoy the personal touch you give it. There is lots enough of it in today's rush, rush of living. May your family bring you the creasing satisfactions as the years fly by — M. Helen S.

ANSWER:

Helen, I hope you will approve of my giving your White Fruit Cake recipe below. The sample from 1958 is excellent. Try increasing the cherries to 2 pounds and the pineapple to 2 cups. I think the batter is large enough to support it especially since you are using 9 large Grade A eggs.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE

CHRISTMAS CAKE (recalled courtesy M. Helen S.):

One and one-quarter lbs. butter (2½ cups), 1 lb. granulated sugar (2½ cups), 1 lb. flour, 5 cups unsifted), 1½ lbs. glace cherries (3 cups), 1 lb. glace pineapple (3 cups), 1 lb. blanched almonds (or top).

NOTE ON METHOD FROM 1958:

Cream butter, add sugar and cream thoroughly. Beat in yolks of eggs one at a time. Sift flour and sift again with salt and soda (and baking powder if using). Add fruit to batter (reserve nuts for top as Helen did). Sift in dry ingredients and mix well till blended. Line 4 average sized pans (or all pans) with triple thicknesses of heavy wax paper and butter outer ones. Divide batter in with back of wooden spoon to make sure corners are filled. Bake at 250 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour then raise temperature to 275 deg. Fahr. for 1 hr. 2¼ hours longer. Have water pan underneath throughout. Brush with boiling water as necessary. Large cake will take longest time

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

A lot of people pride themselves on being able to "spot a phoney" at ten paces, but fail to recognize their own private phoneyisms at closer range. Are you a natural? Answer Yes or No to the following:

1. Do you, at times, affect a so-called "cultured" accent?

2. At a party, do you bob-only with "important"?

3. Do you "talk down" to those whose knowledge of a particular subject is not on a par with your own?

4. Do you try to give the impression you possess a VIP entree by using his first name when you speak of him?

5. At a social gathering, do you always steer the conversation around to a subject that only you can discuss about?

6. Are your bookshelves stocked with tomes that will impress visitors, even though you've had hardly read a one, yourself?

7. When planning a party, do you invite only those who can do something for you instead of people you really like?

8. Do you cultivate friends who can give you a boost socially, professionally or financially? Are you firmly entrenched on a higher rung?

9. Do you try to "keep up with the Joneses" to the extent that you pile up debts?

10. Do you tell "amusing" little inside jokes about VIPs to give the impression you're in their private circle?

Scoring:

Half and half — You have the makings of a phoney but taste holds you back. Hang on!

Helping the Blind

By ALMA MASON

Dear Lois — You ask me, my dear, what to do with your surplus time after reading your interesting letter, I could not help but think of a very dear friend who is blind.

The other day she brought one of her friends for afternoon tea. The friend is a woman of my own age. She has just recently been stricken with blindness. What a sad feat we had! I found the blind friend so stimulating. She is resourceful and confident and happy. She operates a rather large wholesale business here in the city and has not allowed her handicap to deter her in the very capable management of her work.

Well, to get back to my dear friend and neighbor. A few years ago she lost her way in a labyrinth of grief and disaster. Truly, there did not seem much left for her to live for and one could not blame her for becoming addicted to fear and distrust of the future. Finally, she found God's hand again. She has climbed back on the mental and spiritual safety train.

Frances is now a busy, well-adjusted woman. Why? Because she suddenly was exposed to the agonizing and seemingly unbearable sorrow that others were carrying. So now helps donates an unfortunate. Her life with a little more courage. She does not propound a dynamic philosophy — she has adopted a special formula for full living. She merely endeavors to serve those who need small kindnesses and unselfish deeds.

Would you like to meet her? Would you like to traverse the hospital corridors with her, as she visits the sick who are deserted in their loneliness? Would you like to dine at dinner with her — a dinner she has cooked and is serving to her wonderful blind friends? The next time you are in the city— please come to lunch and chat with her. Frances can show you the way to glorious rich living. Walking her about-face she has taught me so much that is helpful and inspirational.

Thanks for listening—Lovingly Lou.

Double Coat

By VERA WINSTON

All sorts of tricks for cozy winter costumes are on view at this year, such as this double coat.

The top one is in flossy wool with leaf brown. The other coat, which is really a coat dress, is of black ribbed knit. The overcoat can be worn without the under one, or both.

DO YOU HAVE...

—a marital problem

—trouble with your children

—difficulty in budgeting your income

If so, the Children's Aid Society can be of help and invites you to talk it over with one of the members of its family service department staff. You will find them sympathetic and understanding of your problem and desirous only of helping you to help yourself. There will be no obligation on your part and you may terminate contact at any time.

The Society's offices at 63 Moira St. West are open from 8:30 to 5:00 o'clock Monday to Friday each week. For your own convenience it is suggested that you telephone for an appointment. Your call will be treated with complete confidence.

In Belleville this service to families is supported by the Belleville United Appeal.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian WMS Marks 60th Anniversary

IVANHOE — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church W.M.S. and West Huntingdon observed its 60th anniversary on November 10th. The president, Mrs. David Fargey presided and extended a warm welcome to all present. Devotions were led by Mrs. Burton Sharp.

Greetings were extended as follows: the session of St. Andrew's and the Presbytery, by the Rev. K. J. Rooney; Presbyterial — Mrs. Vernon Weir and the Synodical — Mrs. W. H. V. Walker.

HISTORICAL REPORT

The history of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was given by Mrs. John Wallace in which it was stated that the Society was organized by the Rev. S. S. Burns in the year 1901. A list of officers elected, charter members were: Mrs. Harvey Wallace, Mrs. George Post; Mrs. John Fleming; Mrs. Allan Wright; Mrs. Henry Wallace; Mrs. Matilda Hollins and Mrs. Samuel Shaw. The officers for 1901 were: president — Mrs. Harvey Wallace; vice-president — Mrs. George Hyde; secretary-treasurer — Mrs. John Fleming and organist — Miss Jessie Wallace.

To facilitate its work the Woman's Missionary Society, as it was then called, affiliated with the Ladies' Aid in 1906 with Mrs. Henry Wallace the first president. A few years later the two societies amalgamated having one president and two treasurers and continued to work together up to the present time.

PAST PRESIDENTS

The presidents through the years were as follows: Mrs. Harvey Wallace, 1901-1906; Mrs. George Post, 1907-1908; Mrs. Henry Wallace, 1910-1913; Mrs. Allan Wright, 1914-1917; Mrs. John Fleming, 1917-1920; Mrs. Peter McIlroy, 1921-1925; Mrs. Wm. Wallace, 1925-1926; Mrs. Samuel Donnan, 1929-1931; Mrs. Harry Haggerty, 1931-1932; Mrs. William Shaw, 1933-1936; Mrs. John Wallace, 1937-1938; Mrs. Peter McIlroy, 1938-1940; Mrs. William Benson, 1941-1943; Mrs. Harry Haggerty, 1944-1945; Mrs. Milton Shaw, 1945-1946; Mrs. Ross McIlroy, 1946-1950; Mrs. Harvey Haggerty, 1951-1952; Mrs. Burton Haggerty, 1953-1954; Mrs. Harry Benson, 1955-1956; Mrs. Harold Sagers, 1957-1958; Mrs. William Donnan, 1959-1960 and Mrs. David Fargey is the present head for the year, 1961.

ORGANIZE M.B.

Through the efforts of the W.M.S. a mission band was organized in 1933 by Mrs. Jessie Wallace and Mrs. Bessie Duggan was the first leader. Leaders through the years were: Mrs. Samuel Donnan; Mrs. Donald Haggerty; Mrs. Milton Shaw; Mrs. Ross McIlroy and Miss Bessie Fleming.

Two delegates were appointed to the Presbyterial secretary each year for mission work. Their duties: to carry the banner. The prescribed mission and Bible study were taken. The group was disbanded in 1957 and a C.G.O. group was organized by Mrs. Presbyterial children's department secretary, Bessie Fleming. This group is under the leadership of Mrs. Donald Thompson and Mrs. Harry Benson.

All the women of the congregation belong to the Aid as are life members. A table is served each year. The W.M.S. allocation has always been met. The present membership is 20.

The foundation of the Society has been well and truly laid by the pioneers. The present women are carrying on the work begun by the pioneers. We must not only cherish our heritage but pass it on, enlarged and improved. The coming year will be a challenging one, with new opportunities and a chance for fresh beginnings.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

A memorial service was conducted by Mrs. Ross Fleming and Mrs. John McIlroy and Sagers were placed in the church and in memory of the following: by Mrs. William Shaw in memory of Mrs. Samuel Shaw; Mrs. Mary Aydelott and Eileen Dollans in memory of Miss Martha Horton; the Ladies' Aid in memory of past members; Mrs. John Wallace in memory of Mrs. Richard Haggerty; Mrs. Ross McIlroy replace the first president. A few years later the two societies amalgamated having one president and two treasurers and continued to work together up to the present time.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Maintain That Parent Status To Keep Your Children Close

By THOMAS COLLINS

If you would keep your children close to you as you enter the Golden Years —

1. Maintain, with all your character, your status as the parent of creation. Wear a strong face always. Live with an air of substance. Beyond a certain point be gently aloof, as Mama and Papa always were. Nothing will keep your children closer to you as older parents than your role as a sturdy oak they can cling to when the world starts shoving them around.

2. Do not reveal to your children how much retirement income, or annuity, you have. They can figure how much your car is worth and what your house will bring — and forgive them if they already have.

3. Make a will (both husband and wife should make one), let the children know you have made one. However, let no one, except your lawyer, know what the will's say — not for a day, and not for a year — but until you are dead.

4. Make a studied effort to be impartial to your different children. If you have three or more, be exactly impartial, each one will think he or she is the favorite child, and you break the illusion. If you play it partially you will not necessarily be discomfort yourself. Because if you have any wealth your children will still pocket for favor. The damage will be in creating suspicions among your children and will not benefit your family into pieces.

5. Devote yourself to cultivating the love and the trust of your children's spouses. (Your children, presumably, already love you.) It is always the spouse who makes or breaks a good relationship with older parents.

6. Learn to listen patiently, and smile in proud assent, as your children let you in on their wisdom. The sons of retired parents . . . along about 40 or so . . . get rare pleasure in telling "Good Old Dad" how we should solve the Russian problem and inflation, and how he set a company vice-president straight last week. Smile and agree. Don't criticize and argue. And the child will come back next week to tell you more.

7. Have the courage to say once in a while, and without dismay, that the children your children are rearing — those precious little grandchildren of yours — are little monsters and ought to be sent to bed. Your children will respect you for it . . . they know it, too.

8. If you can manage it, the most ideal place you can live in would be exactly four blocks from your children. It's too far for small fry to come toddling all the time, but close enough for you to stroll over. It's too far to watch in the window at the grandchildren while your children go to a dance, but close enough in time of trouble. Not two blocks. Not eight. Four.

9. Don't baby-sit for your children. Just don't. And don't connive to dodge it. Say you won't. Other young parents can afford to pay baby-sitters. You can your children. And they will respect you more for it. Of course, if the children have a chance to make a trip to Europe for two weeks . . . but they're not catching.

10. Start giving away your household treasures . . . slowly and impartially . . . to the children. A piece of china this Christmas to each of them. A piece of silver next year to each. Never annoyed in advance when you'll play Santa again, with what, or to whom. Surprise them and they'll love you for it.

11. Hold to your money. No matter what (unless it is a medical emergency or a threat of jail), don't give your money to your children until you die. Most fascinating in our society are older parents who have money . . . or older parents whose children think they have it. Stay fascinating.

Sleeping With Ten Pythons Is Dangerous

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — A 19-year-old youth who for a $70 bet is sleeping for a week with 10 pythons moved his life Friday night by breaking the neck of a snake that attacked him.

Darryl Dandridge was reaching for a cigaret when a big python fastened its teeth in his right hand and wrapped itself round his arm and shoulders.

He struggled desperately as the python tightened its coils. Suddenly the snake went limp. He had broken its neck.

Darryl is one of the Transvaal snake park hero, where Dandridge is trying to win his bet unscathed the record set Dandridge settled down to sleep. He commented:

"I should not have any more trouble. This one tried to bite me on previous occasions."

Sent to Jail For 30 Days For Contempt

NEW YORK (AP) — Andrei Porumbeanu was sent to jail Friday for 30 days for his runaway marriage of 18 months ago with typewriter heiress Benedicte Bemelmelmans. He was escorted in handcuffs to a cell.

The Rumanian-born Porumbeanu, who had come into court hoping to clear himself of contempt charges, appeared stunned at the jail sentence.

Porumbeanu, 24, ran off to Paris with Miss Benedict late in 1959 after her late grandmother, Mrs. Katherine Gedney Benedict, opposed their romance. Gemble was 18 at the time and Porumbeanu was married.

After their return to the United States, Magistrate Peter Horn ordered them not to see each other until Miss Benedict was 21. However, two months later, in April, 1960, the couple eloped to North Carolina, after Porumbeanu had obtained a Mexican divorce from his first wife.

It was this defiance of the court directive upon which Horn based the contempt charges. Porumbeanu and his wife have been living in Switzerland and he returned to New York to get the $70 contempt citation dropped.

Likely To Be 'Some Fur Flying' When Kennedy, Adenauer Meet

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Qualified American authorities say they likely will be "some fur flying" Monday when President Kennedy and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer meet for talks on the Berlin crisis.

They expressed confidence, however, that sharp differences between these tough - minded leaders may be narrowed in a frank two-day exchange where Kennedy is expected to raise questions of whether West Germany intends to pursue a unilateral approach to the Kremlin.

This question is based on continued talk of contention over the real intent of Kremlin discussions between Soviet Premier Khrushchev and West German Ambassador Hans Kroll. Other than Adenauer, Kroll for an alleged suggestion of a Berlin solution like that could have the prior support of the West German government, Adenauer and the veteran German diplomat back to Moscow with the prospect that he will have further talks with Khrushchev.

Meanwhile, U.S. Ambassador Llewllyn Thompson, who had hoped to be the chief Moscow explorer in talking to the Reds on Berlin, has had his hands tied by a lack of a unified Western mandate, American sources said.

American diplomats had hoped West Germany, France and Britain would renew an earlier agreement that Western views be co - ordinated and that the British would serve as the chief spokesman for the West. But before the Western foreign ministers could meet for a fresh look at the situation — that won't be done until mid-December — Kroll was called to Moscow Kremlin to talk to Khrushchev.

Kroll maintains Khrushchev took the initiative. Ready to American diplomats was that Kroll, without prior notice of the talks, were given no chance to co - ordinate views with Kroll and only got a belated briefing of what went on.

There is embarrassment to the U.S. was the public announcement by Adenauer that the U.S. Congress likely will press for an independent Berlin settlement and will take the position that the wall in East Berlin must come down before there can be an East-West settlement of the Berlin issue.

Kennedy has no intention of agreeing to any immediate NATO nuclear force, fearing that spread of control over U.S. atomic warheads could increase the possibility of a nuclear war.

Underlying the basic German-American differences on the best method of handling the Berlin crisis is a German suspicion that the U.S. may seek an easy way out through a face-saving compromise that might mean the sacrifice of some West German interests.

There also is suspicion in some American quarters that Adenauer, short of some of his political stature in the September elections, may attempt to shore up his bargaining power with the U.S. through backroom talks with the Reds.

French Arrest Right-Winger

PARIS (Reuters) — Police today arrested Jean Dides, right-wing former National Assembly deputy and one of the main speakers at a meeting here Thursday at which the audience shouted its support of the outlawed anti-Gaullist Secret Army Organization, interior ministry officials said.

The OAS, which makes no secret of its violent methods, is campaigning against President de Gaulle's self-determination policies for Algeria.

The Paris public prosecutor's office announced today that an inquiry against "X" — the legal term meaning persons unknown — has been opened for provocation to murder, provocation to crimes against the security of the state and insults to the president of the republic following the Thursday meeting.

Preston Paid Out $90,000 In Film Venture

BRANTFORD (CP) — Arthur J. Kelly, suing Peter M Preston for damages for alleged breach of contract, testified in Supreme Court here Friday that a partnership agreement signed April 5, 1960, to produce documentary films was cancelled by Preston Aug. 31 this year.

Mr. Kelly testified he was approached by Mr. Preston in a cafe in Dieppe, France, while both were there to attend the premiere of Kelly's first production, This Most Gallant Air fair, and was asked to take part in a moving picture enterprise. He said he decided later to associate himself with the venture.

Profits were to be shared 50 per cent to Mr. Preston, managing editor and publisher of the Brantford Expositor, and 40 per cent to Mr. Kelly. The plaintiff alleged an ulterior motive on Mr. Preston's part in making the partnership agreement. He said there had been "a private deal" with a film-distributor executive to the detriment of the enterprise.

Another witness, Curtis Harrison, a professional photographer engaged in the film project, said Mr. Preston told him out more than $60,000 on behalf of what his employer referred to as "a disastrously unsuccessful production," and had received only $146 in gross receipts.

"As long as his money held out, you were going to be a photographer?" asked Mr. Preston's counsel, D. K. Laidlaw of Toronto.

Mr. Kelly, acting as his own counsel, rose to protest: "Is he fat, Godber said.

British Spokesmen Have Way Of Stinging Russians in UN

By JOSEPH McSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

British spokesmen in the United Nations perhaps lack the oratorical gifts of Adlai Stevenson but they have a way with the cutting remark in discussing the Soviet Union.

Stevenson, the chief United States representative, is more direct but occasionally he gets into with Moscow spokesmen and his role sometimes transcends that of a mere ambassador. place he is remembered as a candidate for the U.S. presidency.

It was significant that Soviet Premier Khrushchev sat quietly through the speech of President Eisenhower last year but rose to his feet in anger at the subsequent speech of Prime Minister Macmillan.

Lesser British spokesmen are showing an equal talent for stinging the Russians in the General United Nations General Assembly, notably on the issue of colonialism.

GIBRALTAR

British spokesmen also seem to take pleasure in raising crowded parties from American delegates by reminding them that, after all, the U.S. was once a colony of Britain which now is doing fairly well.

Sir Hugh Godber, British minister of state for foreign affairs, told the assembly it was impossible for Britain to "forget the ignorance of the fact" that all 600,000,000 people in the Commonwealth except five per cent will be living in independent countries by the end of this year.

But in the Soviet empire the "wind of freedom" has yet to be felt, Godber said.

In a "deplorable catalogue of oppression" Moscow has imposed itself on more than 112,000,000 people in eastern Europe and the Balkans.

Godber castigated Soviet delegate S. O. Lapin for saying that the UN trusteeship system in the Islands was a colonialist trick. He noted that Russia has control of the Kuriles there.

"It is perhaps pertinent to ask when independence is to be granted to the Kuriles?" Godber said. "These islands were part of the price exacted by the Soviet Union for its nine - day participation in the war against Japan.

"Since their occupation by Soviet forces in 1945 it has been difficult for the outside world to discover what is going on there . . . a curtain of Soviet silence surrounds them . . . but it seems that, as in the case of Soviet central Asia, large-scale Russian immigration has been encouraged so that the local population are probably now outnumbered by white settlers of Russian nationality."

Godber didn't mention The Congo, but the current horrors in that former Belgian territory were foremost in the UN when he said there is "no value, indeed there is very great danger, in declaring independence without making the necessary basic preparations.

"We cannot share or shift our responsibility."

Check Brakes Often for Safety's Sake

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Safety inspection records show that weak or defective brakes represent the most common serious trouble found in today's cars. It's estimated that close to half of the cars on the road are in need of brake work . . . usually minor repairs or adjustments which would not strain the budget.

Why would any driver take chances with poor brakes? A big reason is that most just don't realize it because the change in pedal and braking action is usually very gradual. There are some who know they're overdue for a lining adjustment at the very least, but they depend on a strong right foot to see them through—they can find time to get the job done.

How long has it been since you've had your car brakes checked out? Once a year isn't enough.

L. A. asks: "Does that new V-8 aluminum engine, introduced this year, take regular or premium gas?"

(A) Regular . . . but it's not an aluminum engine, its cast iron.

From F. M.: "My car is just a year old but for weeks it's been hard to start and idles badly. I've gone to four mechanics and just about every cure in the book has been tried."

(A) A close friend who owns the same model had these troubles, too. We found that a bad gasket between the air cleaner and the carburetor was admitting too much air and leaning out the fuel mixture.

C. W. writes: "I can understand that an oil filter reduces oil contamination, but how can they say it reduces engine wear?"

(A) Because it traps abrasives which would otherwise stay in the oil and be carried to engine parts.

O. J. asks: "I had my '60 sedan on a lift and saw fluid leak stains on the outside of one of the shock absorbers . . . yet, it seems to be working perfectly, and silently too."

(A) There may be no leakage at all. The shocks on your car are designed so that units are lubricated via a controlled oozing of the fluid.

How to 'Sight-In' Your Rifle

By RICHARD ALDEN KNIGHT

When I was a ball-turret gunner in the Navy Air Arm during World War II, my choicest possession was a boresighting scope which I had purloined from a training base early in my career. It went with me to the Pacific and I backed in my flying coveralls. Each day before a mission, I would open the breeches of my .50 calibres, insert the sighting scope and check out my weapons. I feel to this day that this one precaution (plus far more meticulous care for my guns than myself) helped to bring me home in one piece. When I pressed the firing trip control, I knew where those weapons would strike the target.

Today's nationwide hunting license sales are numbered in the millions. Yet, with the number of rounds fired per hunter also arriving at a figure that keeps the ammunition manufacturers fat and happy, the bead count of big game missed by sporting firearms in the hands of the occasional hunter is disgraceful to recount. In good part, the majority of these misses are caused by but one thing . . . the lack of adequate "sighting-in" of the rifles.

There is no secret to making your rifle hit where you look. The principles are basic; the actual operation is not difficult. The following of a few rules of thumb will make this task one which will take but a few minutes of your time. And, it will pay off in hits that once were misses; game rather than excuses. Let's break down this bugaboo to the basics.

A jacketed rifle slug does not travel in a straight line from the time it leaves the muzzle of your weapon. Rather, it travels in an arcing parabola, crossing the line of sight twice. The line of sight is an imaginary straight line drawn from the eye through the sights to the target. Bringing trajectory and line of sight together is simply the matter of compensating for the natural fall of the bullet which is caused by the pull of gravity.

Recognizing this, you explode the fallacy of "pointblank range", as a slug fired at short range is falling from the time it leaves the muzzle.

TOOLS NEEDED

Take along the following — several small sand bags or a pair of sofa pillows, a small screwdriver, a light ball-peen hammer, a length of wooden dowelling, a box of shells and either field glasses or a spotting scope. If you do not have a shooting bench at your disposal you will find that the hood of the family car provides adequately well as a substitute. Rather than carrying NRA regulation rifle targets, you will find that several sheets of brown wrapping paper with a simple cross drawn on them in crayon will do the job for you.

After picking a location that is either an approved firing range or has a background that will stop the slug without its ricochering into a possible inhabited section, set up your target 25 paces from your shooting position. If you have a bolt-action model weapon, remove the bolt and check the sights on the target in relation to the bore. Quite often, this simple procedure can save you ammunition in sight adjustment. The closed action models (slide, lever, and semi-automatic) require a special tool for this operation.

Brace your rifle on either sandbags or pillows and fire three rounds at the target. I specify three rather than one as this number will compensate for natural flinch on your part after a year's layoff from heavy calibre recoil. After firing, inspect the target for impact conditioning of the slugs. If you have held properly and squeezed off your shots, they should be in a tight group.

Now—to move your group to the six o'clock position, you move the rear sight! This simple rule will set up your job in short order. Here's an example. If you are hitting high and to the left on the target, move the rear sight to the right and elevate it to place your impact point exactly where you want it. (In the case of most large calibre rifles, a six o'clock group at 25 yards will place a bullseye centre group at 100 yards).

ADJUSTING YOUR SIGHTS

In the case of a fixed set of factory sights, move the rear sight by placing the wooden dowel against it and tapping lightly with a ball-peen hammer. Receiver sights (peep sights) are micrometer sights and can be set for elevation and windage (horizontal movement) by the turning of two screw adjustments. Just remember that one thing . . . The rear sight moves the slug on the target!

After the initial sighting-in at 25 yards, move your target back to 100 paces. Now fire another group of three rounds and then check your impact point through the glasses. It should be very close to dead square on the bull centre. If not, move the slug with the rear sight adjustment and fire another round. Serious small changes should put your rifle shot-on for every subsequent shot.

This will take advantage of the bounty of the outdoors and take a rifle into the field with the best you know! A pleasant afternoon spent getting acquainted with your weapon will pay off in venison in the freezer. So be a hitter, not a misser. Sight your weapon in!

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"Am I seeing things," murmured the expatriate rallbird in Memorial Arena the other midnighting, "or are the Belleville McFarlands taping a television spectacular of the 1959 world amateur hockey championships in Prague, Czechoslovakia?"

JEAN P. LAMIRANDE

Jean Paul Lamirande wiped a few beads of sweat from his brow, gargled a beaker of Pepsi liberally laced with pea soup, and split his face with a smile that had satisfaction seeping out of the tiny crow's feet."

He waved his hand at a group of players zooming up and down ice, who would have looked far more familiar in the famous red-white-and-black of the world champions than the brilliant scarlet-and-white of the intermediate Belleville Pepsi's.

"They're going fine," he said, "there's plenty of the old fight and spirit there and I'm sure we are going to come up with a club that is as good as any in the league. The 'old guys' are getting back into the swing of plays, are skating hard and their shooting is getting better each time out."

"Evidence of the spirit?" Lammy said, "is the fact that at least a dozen are turning out for 11 p.m. practices. Tonight there is seventeen out there, every one of them a potential 'keeper.'

"Watch the defence," he advised as he skated out to his position. Lammy takes his regular turn behind the blueline while mentoring the team as a whole I did. And I liked what I saw.

Lionel Botty teamed up with the fast-skating, hard-shooting Floyd Geegan, while the coach took his turn with Floyd Crawford. Behind them was the reliable "Turk" between the pipes.

Floyd is here to stay and it is hoped a suitable job will be found for the likeable guy. "It is great to be back with the old gang again," he said. "I'll be tickled to death to play with them and if we get back into the old groove we should have quite an intermediate club."

There was a threesome up front that showed a lot of the polish and finesse that marked them in the "good old days". Barry Jones was streaking down centre ice flanked by "Wiener" Brown and Lou Smrke. They look like the top line of the club, if Lou can be persuaded to turn out permanently with the team.

Gary Goyer pivoted Keith MacDonald on the right wing and Ronnie Hull, who has returned from Ingersoll on the other flank.

Lammy's third line of the night which should hold its own with the rest of the attacking brigade, was Chuck Rowbotham in centre, with "Shaker" Baker on the right boards and Tom O'Meara on the southpaw side.

O'Meara who sails from the district, looks like a hockey find. Lamirande is greatly impressed with the youngster's ability and potential. He may prove to be one of the better forwards of the squad. Tom, incidentally, is a nephew of Pat and Jean O'Meara, both solid McFarland fans and Boosters in the days of not so years.

Like Hildebrand, 'nuf sed, will play for the squad in their home engagements, according to the playing coach. There's a lot of hockey left in the grand little guy, and a host of Belleville fans will welcome him to the intermediate fold of the Pepsi's. Billy Moxon is the spare goalie.

Lamirande said he had been in touch with Jean Paul Payette, who has, he said, expressed a desire to return to Belleville. I doubt very much if Jean Paul comes back. He has signed with the Rouyn-Noranda Aloustes of the Northern Ontario Senior League and according to reports is going great guns. He scored twice against Kapuskasing Thursday night.

The CAHA bulletin of a week ago announced that Rep Guidolin had been suspended indefinitely by the United States Amateur Association, but I note where Rep is still playing with the Ferropinte Flyers of the Northern Senior League. On the same club is Johnny McLellan, still going strong. Johnny rapped home a pair of goals and had an assist on a third in the Perkins 3-1 victory Thursday night over the Abitibi Eskimos.

Carl Ortiz Favored Over Paolo Rosi

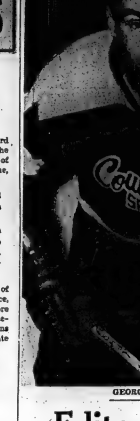
Ortiz, No. 2 contender, lost his title to Joe Brown's light-weight champion in the 15-round championship bout before a capacity crowd of 15,000 at the Garden last March 24.

Rosi, 30-year-old Italian-born ace who left Friday night for Las Vegas, Nev., site of their Dec. 9 title bout, already has had one victory and one defeat in the 125-pound title. After middleweight title fight. Full-back Ortiz won an early lead by a wide margin, but in the ninth round he was decked by Rosi. Rosi's record is 36 victories, eight defeats and two draws with 25 kayos. He is ranked 10th.

Ortiz, who has a record of 34 triumphs, four setbacks and one no-contest. He is a shifty boxer but his slate includes 13 knockouts.



PLENTY CONFIDENT

NEW YORK (AP) — Benny (Kid) Paret, world welterweight champion from Cuba, predicted he will knock out Gene Fullmer in 10 rounds.

Paret, already has had one victory, title of their Dec. 9 title bout tonight at Madison Square Garden. Fullmer won an early lead by a wide margin, but in the ninth round he was decked by Rosi. Rosi's record is 36 victories, eight defeats and two draws with 25 kayos. He is ranked 10th.

In seven years as a pro, Ortiz has a record of 34 triumphs, four setbacks and one no-contest. He is a shifty boxer but his slate includes 13 knockouts.

GEORGE ASHBY

Editor Blasts Amateur Body

TORONTO (CP) — Milt Dunnell, sports editor of The Star, says "the Ontario Hockey Association has sold out teen-aged boys to professional hockey ..."

In his daily column, Speaking on Sport, Dunnel Friday outlined the case of George Ashby, 18, of Whitby, who is barred under OHA rules from playing hockey in his home town.

OHA officials in Toronto were unavailable for comment.

Dunnell says that last season, while George was playing defence for the Whitby Junior B club, "a man who said he was from the St. Catharines Junior A team asked George's father whether he would sign a card that would commit George to St. Catharines when and if he moved up to Junior A hockey."

"George says his father gave the man the brushoff. The fellow was overheard to say 'it doesn't matter much. We'll get him anyway.' Some weeks later, George read that St. Catharines had drafted him. He laughed that off because he had no intention of going to St. Catharines."

NEW LEAGUE FORMED

In the meantime, a new league was formed and Whitby became a Junior A club in the new circuit — the Metropolitan Toronto League.

Dunnell wrote:

"When George turned out with Whitby the Whitby manager, Ivan Davie, told him 'we'd like to have you, but you can't play for this club. The OHA will not permit it. The draft rule states that, if you are drafted, you can not play for any Junior A team except the one which drafted you. Whitby now is a Junior A club. You can't even play for an affiliate of any Junior A club.'

"The latter sentence was more significant than it sounded. George still is eligible for juvenile hockey — but the Whitby juvenile team is affiliated with the Whitby Junior A club. He has been told he can't play juvenile hockey either, but he knows the Ontario Minor Hockey Association will have more backbone than the OHA. The OMHA would be the one which would have to approve his juvenile card. . . ."

"Just why the Ashbys, who haven't accepted a dime from anybody, who haven't signed anything or made any promises should obligate themselves to the Chicago Black Hawks through the St. Catharines Junior A team doesn't seem explained by the OHA.

"There are a lot of things the OHA doesn't explain — such as why it permits the prow to move in and run an important segment of the OHA show — and why it doesn't have the guts to go to bat for one of its own players. Some day an exasperated parent will take the OHA to court and that will be the end of the draft legislation."

Dodgers Well Under Way

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The season is still five months away but Los Angeles Dodgers already have broken the baseball record for advance sales with a figure of more than $3,000,000, The Examiner says.

Baseball writer Bob Hunter said Friday the club has sold 11,786 season box seat tickets although no tickets have even been printed. "They showed no actual cash figure of $1,153,258.86 in advance sales."

The club reached its previous high in advance sales in 1960, when it sold 7,716 season boxes and 430 season reserved seats for $2,017,200. The club set the National League record of 2,253,019 that year—because after it won the world series.

Record Crowd Tomorrow

Cats Favored 7 Points On Round

TORONTO (CP)—As of Friday night, fewer than 500 Exhibition Stadium tickets remained unsold for Sunday's opener of the Eastern Football Conference final.

At that rate, Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats could well launch the two-game total-points round before a bigger crowd than will witness the Grey Cup spectacle here Dec. 2.

The fans are almost certain to surpass by number the 32,-634 Eastern Conference record set at the same park last year for a game against Ottawa Rough Riders. And because of a new Canadian Football League rule, the maximum that can be jammed into the stadium for the east-west championship is 33,875.

Hooligans at last year's cup game in Vancouver prompted the edict. Crowds pouring in from the sidelines forced cancellation of the last 41 seconds of the game between Ottawa and Edmonton Eskimos.

REDUCE SEATS

To avoid a repetition, the league ruled that no track seats or standing room could be sold this year. That will cut 580 from Exhibition Stadium's normal capacity of 33,135.

For the second Argos-Tiats game in Hamilton next Saturday, ticket sales indicate crowd of about 30,000.

Although the Argonauts have lost all three league games against Hamilton this year, the club odds reflect their upset of Ottawa in the semi - final in which quarterback Tobin Rote passed out of a spread formation with devastating effect.

Latest quotes fluctuate between a one-point edge for Hamilton and a pick-'em situation on Sunday's game. Over the route it's Hamilton by seven points.

The Argos are likely to spring the spread again, at least until Hamilton comes up with a solid defence. And Tiats' coach Jim Trimble says he'll do just that. He and Toronto coach Leo Agase won't announce their lineups until shortly before the 2 p.m. game time but few major changes are expected.

The big difference for the Tigcats will be the use of end Hal Patterson after an absence of several weeks with a shoulder injury. Patterson also is a defensive standout.

Not Hungry, Says Coach

What's Troubling Hawks?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Here's a National Hockey League puzzler for you:

What happened to Chicago Black Hawks?

The club was a ball of fire in last season's Stanley Cup playoffs, sweeping through the post - season series to the title.

Now with the NHL long-quarter deep into its schedule, Chicago is struggling for a grip on fourth spot.

A string of early - season injuries beset the Hawks. They lost key men such as Bill Hay and Pierre Pilote, the scrappy little defenceman who loves to throw his weight around.

But it seems to be something more than that.

Coach Rudy Pilous says his players are not as hungry as they were eigh months ago. He's indicated that an austerity program is in the offing unless the boys start to move.

BLAME PILOUS

There are some critics, however, who place the blame squarely on Pilous' shoulders. They say he has lost control over the team.

It has even been mentioned variously that Rudy's position is in jeopardy, that it's win-coach or bust time for him.

Defensively, the Hawks have turned in passable if unspectacular work. But where it hurts is on the attack. In 16 starts, the Hawks have collected only 36 goals, a league low.

You have to go to 15th place in the league scoring race to find a Chicago marksman. It's Czech - born Stan Mikita, with four goals and nine assists for 13 points.

There's another big lapse before you come to centre scoring champ Bobby Hull, a 10-point man.

THIRD WITH DETROIT

Heading into weekend play, the Hawks are bracketed at 13 points with Detroit Red Wings, the NHL's other club controlled by the Norris family.

At this point in last year's schedule, Chicago was locked in battle for second spot with the Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Hawks ultimately finished third, knocked off Montreal in a Stanley Cup semi-final upset and went on to down Detroit for the cup.

Apart from Chicago and Boston, all NHL clubs swing into action this weekend. Today the league-leading Canadiens go against the Rangers in New York and Sunday's feature game while Toronto is host to Detroit at Boston.

Amerks Swamp Reds 5-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rochester Americans take a three-point lead in the AHL standings and a flock of injuries to Pittsburgh tonight in quest of sole possession of the Western Division lead of the American Hockey League.

The injury - riddled Amerks pummped Providence Reds 5-2 Friday night in the only league action and advanced to a share of the top spot with the idle Buffalo Bisons.

It was Rochester's fourth straight victory and came in the face of crippling injuries to defenceman Bill Hicke and wing Dave Creighton, who left with only three defencemen, regulars Bill White and Darryl Sly and amateur Arnie Brown.

Roger Cote and Steve Kraftcheck had been hurt previously and Mike Donaldson was injured in the second period.

The Americans built up a 5-0 lead at the end of the second period before Providence could break through against the weakened defensive corps.

DRAWS WITH AKINS

TOTOWA, N.J. (AP)—Stefan Redl survived a first - round knockdown and a couple of cuts and gained a 10 - round draw with former world welterweight champion Virgil Akins Friday night. Akins, 147½, from St. Louis, was a half-pound heavier than Redl, of Clifton, N.J. Redl now has a 37-10-2 record, Akins 52-37-2.

Badminton "Special" Tonight!
The Belleville Garrison Badminton Club is getting along very nicely, thank you.
The season is young and new members are enjoying the popular winter indoor pastime.
Betty Walmsley, the attractive publicity gal of the club, says there is room for more members. You do not need experience, Betty says. This will come as the season advances.
Tonight the club is holding a "Get To Know Everybody Night". The "special" is being held to allow the "new faces" to mingle with the veteran members, and with one another.
Formalities will go by the board.
On the Bridge Street acrobatics courts, a round robin will be played.
A social evening and lunch will be held in the officers mess at the conclusion of play.
So if you are anticipating joining the club, tonight is the night to do it. An excellent time to get into the swing of things and meet the players personally.
The club holds playing sessions in the armouries every Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights starting at eight o'clock.

Rockets Down Maroons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Strathroy Rockets scored four goals in the last period Friday night to down Chatham Maroons 6-3 and climb into a tie with Windsor Bulldogs for first place in the Ontario Hockey Association senior section.

At Woodstock, the Athletics dropped a 4-2 decision to Galt Terriers, allowing Galt to tie it into third spot five points back of the leaders. Woodstock is in fourth position.

In the other league encounter, Sarnia Rams and Stratford Indians failed to break a 5-5 tie in overtime. The game was marked by a spectacular performance by Sarnia goaltender Ron Murray, making his first start in senior competition.

To top it off, Murray got an assist on his team's fifth and tying goal.

For Chatham, the loss was their fourth in four starts. Strathroy pace-setter was Art Sullivan with two goals. Singled out to Don Kincaid, Bob Gresham, Andy Gauthier and Paul Oliver.

Maroons' scorers were George Aitken, Jim Connelly and Ted Power.

TV Titans Hassle, Fans 'Get Works'

TORONTO (CP) — The latest round of television negotiations on Canada's National League playoffs blew up Friday night over the issue of the Grey Cup game.

As a result, Eastern fans will not see Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers open their best-of-three series today.

Western viewers will be equally in the dark Sunday when Toronto Argonauts start their game, local option permitting with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The CBC, which holds both Western Conference and Grey Cup TV rights, proposed Friday that it carry the western game live on its national network. In return it offered CTV, a private television network with the eastern rights, the microwave facilities to carry eastern games on its network feeds to CTV's affiliated stations in the West.

CTV agreed, but only on condition that all its stations be permitted to carry the Eastern final to be played here Dec. 2.

Reginald J. D. Nixon, director of programs for the publicly-owned CBC's English network:

"It is our view that coverage of the Grey Cup game on the CBC TV network of the CBC provides the broadest possible service to Canadian football fans.

CBC 'REGRETS'

"The duplication of coverage by CBC and CTV would not be in the public interest. CBC regrets that it cannot to provide full coverage across Canada of all playoff games now appears impossible."

A CBC statement said its efforts to bring western playoff games to its eastern TV audience had been "blocked" by J. G. Gendron, chairman of the Eastern Football Conference radio and TV committee; John Bassett, chairman and president of CFTO-TV, and officers of the CTV network.

The Eastern Conference has to give its okay before western games can be carried into its territory.

Bassett's station acquired the exclusive right this year to televise the CBC with a $730,000 offer for two seasons. Gendron became affiliated with CTV and hailed the rights to the private network.

Macs Shade Petes 4-3

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Writer

Scoring all their goals in a wide-open second period, the Belleville McFarlands chalked up their second 4-3 victory in as many starts here last night to move into an early lead in the OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League.

Ike Hildebrandt's Peterborough Petes provided the opposition and, like Kincardine on Monday, took a 1-0 lead in the first period. The Macs outscored the visitors 4-3 in the second heat for their 4-3 lead and then, through a close-checking, scoreless, third period to get the win.

The Belleville goals last night were evenly divided among newcomer Dave Smith and three of last year's regulars, Pete Weston, Billy McGuire and Bucky Ebbet. Larry Mavety, who played a strong game on the Mac defence, earned two assists, as did Garry Hull. Moe Hunter and McGuire also drew assists.

Peterborough goals went to Bob Dalliday, Clint Watts and Bill Shearer. Pete Morris, Jeff Nichols, Larry Hill and Paul Hull helped each one assist.

Referees Vern Goyer and Tim Williams ruled with an iron hand, dishing out 17 minor penalties, nine to the Macs. A couple of fights broke out as tempers and it proved costly with Belleville to go. Hill got a major for butt-ending and Dalliday a misconduct. Hill later had a game misconduct handed on and this killed hopes for a last-minute tie.

The first period's lone goal came at 12:37 when Dalliday, skating in front of the net, deflected Morris' corner pass out into the twine before Parker could react.

After a minute and two seconds had elapsed in the second, Smith tied the score, tipping home a good shot after Bucky Hunter's fine pass-out. The Macs went ahead 2-1 when Weston fanned on Weston's soft shot at 6:13.

The visitors came back for two quickies, Watts on a high shot at 6:3. and Shearer at 8:44, after taking LeSarr's good pass and full stride. He beat Parker with a high backhand drive.

Belleville's line of Ebbet, McGuire and Hull came up with two goals in eight seconds to regain the lead, Hunter merely just past the half-way point in the game.

McGuire took a pass from the side boards, waltzed in alone and beat Parker from out to in at 10:46. At 10.54 Ebbet wicked off a loose puck at the Peterborough goalie's feet and poked it home for the final 4-3 score.

In the third, Hooton stopped McGuire and Hull at his doorstep but the early pressure left the game settled away to very tight checking over the remainder. Parker and Hooton, two

There's a sneaking suspicion kept to go at full speed when in some circles that Eddie he gets the puck. His legs are Shack may be the National Hockey League's next color guy. He has some qualifications. Home—he's a butcher by trade.

Right now at 34, he isn't the type who fills an arena simply by lacing on a pair of skates. And he never is likely to reach the heights attained by only a few big leaguers as a Rocket Richard and Eddie Shore.

But there's something about him that propels the customers right out of their seats at Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens. Of course, he's a Leaf and that has a lot to do with it. He's supposed to be a rough customer, but so far he hasn't attained the "bad egg" tag pinned on Wild Bill Ezinicki while he toiled as a Leaf.

Shack is a big (six feet), rangling, lawless skater who doesn't know anything else except how to go all out.

He was traded to Leafs by New York Rangers last November 15 with Tim Horton and Ezinicki for Dick Kelly, Howie Meeker and Eddie Shore.

He looked for the black since Ezinicki departed the scene in 1950. The Gardens is a bedlam whenever he gets the puck, although no one in the building has the faintest idea what he's likely to do with it.

He isn't a great goal-scorer—15 with Rangers, his best year—but the customers, who like their hockey on the rough side, have the feeling that someone is going to be spilled before he relinquishes the black disc. That usually happens and the fans go home satisfied they've received value for their money.

What type of fellow is he?

DISLIKED NEW YORK

Andy (Weekend Magazine) O'Brien says Shack was peddled off to the Leafs at the request of the team-mates.

Apparently the feeling was mutual. "Nobody was more delighted to leave Broadway than Shack," O'Brien says. Toronto's Gardens had been the scene of many thrilling moments for him as a junior (with Guelph) and the Leaf players, while not exactly gushing over the newcomer to the team gave him a fair shake.

"Everybody in Toronto wants him. In New York he was lonely in and out of the rink."

Shack hasn't the education of some his age and has been the target of taunts.

A week ago, when Leafs met Detroit in Toronto General Manager Jack Adams of the Red Wings suggested in a loud voice that Shack should learn to read and write. The score was tied 1-1 and moments later Shack broke the deadlock and skated over in the direction of Adams.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Blue Light, winner of the $10,000 Queen's Plate, showed he has fully recovered from an injury this summer at Fort Erie, by winning the featured Blue Prince Purse in the fifth race at Old Woodbine Park Friday.

Under jockey Hugo Dittfach, who also rode him to victory in the Queen's Plate, Blue Light won over Indian Line by a neck. Blue Light returned $6.70 to win. The quinella of Blue Light and Indian Line paid $42.50.

Stressing the Jocky Club policy of gelding away from the short sprints, every race Friday was a distance of one mile. It was the first time in the history of Canadian racing that every race was held at a distance of a mile or more.

The daily double of Lord Lyric and Sunny Maple was $331.90. Both winners were longpriced choices with Lord Lyric paying $22.20 to win while Sunny Maple returned $35.10 to win.

Wagering totalled $391,888 while the attendance was 6,715.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Even a turnout of 8,400 and the fact that they were playing their first home game of the Western Hockey League season failed to help San Francisco Seals Friday night as they dropped a 5-3 decision to Edmonton Flyers, leaders of the league's Northern Division.

San Francisco is in last place in the Southern Division.

In other games, Spokane Comets continued their move towards first place in the Southern Division by humiliating Vancouver Canucks 8-0 and Seattle Totems edged Calgary Stampeders 6-5.

San Francisco lost its home opener after a tiring 14-game road trip while Ice was installed in the California club's 12,500-seat Cow Palace.

The Packers took a step Friday to plug up the hole caused by the departure of fullback Paul Hornung as they signed veteran kicking specialist Ben Agajanian. Agajanian was waived by Dallas Texans of the American League and Hornung is in the army.

Three other games round out Sunday's schedule. Chicago Bears (5-4) go to San Francisco (4-4-1) and hope to duplicate their earlier 31-0 triumph over the 49ers. Win is tagged Redskins, still seeking their first win after nine defeats, visit Dallas Cowboys (4-5).

St. Louis Cardinals, play the Colts in Baltimore, where the victor will emerge with a 5-5 record.

Sunday, November 19, 1961

General Tendencies: Now you have one of those days when you are unsure, excellent influences to use this Sunday morning to get your spiritual and emotional problems worked out on a ver; desirable and careful manner. Then the afternoon and evening's changes can be handled in a wise fashion because your thoughts are in accord with rightness. Be sure to accept new beginnings philosophically.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Dwell upon spiritual things this morning and raise your level of consciousness. Also, maintain whatever is of prime merit. Later, partners come to you informally with suggested changes, but be sure you give these full consideration.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) You have a fine opportunity to show devotion to loved one today as well as lend a helping hand to those who are worthy. In fact, be helpful to all this holy day and you garner many new friends as well as please old ones. Grow.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)— Take time on this day of rest to think out the best possible methods to use in doing your job daily so that you get the approval of higher-ups and also make real progress. Step out in the evening for some light diversion.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 22) — Make it a point to do something kind to everyone about you today so that you help to relieve their burdens. Be sure to step out in p.m. to social affairs that are worthwhile with close ties — make a fine impression. Dress nicely.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Take the opportunity to attend some fine lecture with friends today that is highly spiritual or has to do with advanced psychology. Get in tune with the things you can make your future far brighter and happier. Grow.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Try to get partners together at some informal affair now so that you get to know them better personally and know what you may expect in the future. The evening is then fine for planning the new week's activities wisely.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Just the type of day that pleases you most; since your loved one is in the mood to be very understanding and cooperative. Be sure to go out to dinner in p.m. and have a wonderful time.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)— Be sure you handle all affairs with partners very efficiently this morning. Then you find that if you are interested in the welfare of others, they will retaliate by being very helpful to you. Strri ball rolling in right direction.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — If you are efficient with your work today, you set a pattern for some time into the future. Also, be very co-operative with co-workers. Important if you take health treatments you need this evening to insure greater success.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) This is a fine day to call on true friends and have a wonderful time together, but it requires that you early telephone them and advise of your impending visit. Then all will work out famously. Enjoy hobbies mutually pleasing.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get all basic affairs properly handled, though they may seem somewhat difficult. In the evening, by bringing home little gifts and listening kindly to small family troubles, you can help to straighten them out. Be lovable.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) The ideal day for shopping and also setting up appointments for professional treatments, etc. Give time to study your pet as well, ask questions from other sources for data you need, etc. Keep constructively occupied in p.m., too.

If your child is born today — there can be great success in the outside world in that child because of the practical nature which your progeny possesses. There is particular aptitude for gaining wealth through the proper handling of assets or property of others. However, be sure to give courses in psychology so that your son, or daughter, knows better how to deal with persons in every walk of life.

By CARROLL RIGHTER
GENERAL TENDENCIES—

This is the day when it is essential you start the week right by getting down to the detail of any plan that is big in nature or that has to do with utilities, large ventures, etc., on the basis that can last and hold for a considerable period of time to come. Later in P.M. you need to avoid all kinds of confusion, muddled thinking. Stick to proven principles.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) It behooves you to be very efficient at your work at this time and see to it that problematical affairs are wisely handled. Don't worry about bills, but do something constructive that will help you to pay it quickly.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Important you improve your appearance now so that you make the finest impression upon those who can be most helpful to you in the future. Make it a point to show your loyalty to associates this evening. Be trustworthy, helpful.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) If you get out where it's quiet you can think over quickly what is best to do in the future so that you and kin can know greater security and happiness. Get out to the movies tonight or some other inexpensive entertainment. Relax.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) By doing something hgnful for good friends now, you find they will extend a helping hand to you, too, where it is most needed. Exchange constructive ideas. Then get out socially tonight and have a ball.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) Contact the most powerful persons you know who can assist you to reach your cherished ambitions. Take the road that leads to greater success. However, be careful this evening that you do nothing that will endanger reputation.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are able to become active in all sort of modern channels today that will prove more lucrative in the future. Then join with good friends in the evening at whatever hobbies or amusements mutually enjoyed.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) It behooves you to forget frivolity now and get busy on constructive and important financial affairs. Be co-operative with loved one in P.M. who has good ideas in mind.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) While many wonderful new ideas occur to you, this is one of those days when you are apt to have many interruptions, so be sure to take them in your stride. Be kind and of service to others. Then big plans can materialize soon.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have a fine opportunity in A.M. to show your loyalty to those of whom you are fond. Later in the day you may be depressed because you feel you do not have enough money for your cherished aims, but constructive thinking solves all.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) While you may feel limited and restricted insofar as gaining your wishes now is concerned, if you are very loyal and considerate of close ties, all will be ameliorated. Sit down and make plans for the future in practical fashion.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Private worries could really throw you for a loop, if you permit. Get out to some fine lecture or meeting where you can regain the confidence you are shaking off through fear. Think constructively and plan new week wisely.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) If you concentrate on how you can get ahead much faster in the future, and avoid that individual who is a pessimist or has the power to disturb or annoy you, you will really succeed. Do as Caesar did - plan every detail first.

If your child is born today he, or she, will be one of those independent youngsters who early feels has to get out into the business world and make his own way. Be sure to point out that if time is taken to go to college, changes can be met more intelligently, chances for success are far greater. Help your progeny to pick out the right profession, then all turns out well. Be understanding.

POINT ANNE — Mrs. Floyd Henderson has returned home from a three weeks' visit with relatives at Cochrane.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Akey and family had tea on Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. F. Akey, at Canniffon.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Akey and Karen and Mrs. Amab Akey of Canniffon, spent the weekend in Toronto with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bradshaw spent a few days in Windsor and attended the International Trades and Labor Council convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bradshaw attended the marriage of Miss Shirley Rippi and Mr. Walter McIlmoyle held in the United Church at Bath, on Saturday afternoon.

The weekly euchre club was held at the home of Mrs. Lee Bradshaw. Winners were: Mrs. Allin Henderson, Mrs. Helen Whalen; low, Mrs. Nellie Breach. Hostesses were the hostess served refreshments and a social time was spent.

Several men from here have returned home from deer hunting, reporting not much luck.

Mr. George MacDonald is still a patient in the Kingston General Hospital, improving slowly after surgery to his foot.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. Arthur Buck and family in the loss of a wife and mother. Mrs. Pearl Buck, who passed away recently in Belleville.

Sicilians Say U.S. Exporting Dread New Mafia to Country

By JAMES M. LONG

PALERMO (AP) — Sicilians are complaining that the United States is exporting a dread new Mafia to Sicily where the secret society of vengeance was born centuries ago.

The fear here, Sicily, in the golden era of Italian emigration to the U.S. at the start of the 20th century, has the Mafia first found its profitable way into American gangland.

There, in the fertile ground of the prohibition era and the postwar period, papers relate, Italian emigrants toughened up their criminal organization to become a byword for crime and violent death.

But here it had not always been so, nor is it now.

The Mafia still is known on the Mediterranean island as "the honorable society." It was founded as a Sicilian protective society against the wrongs of foreign conquerors who overran the island.

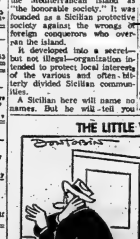
It developed into a secret— but illegal—organization intended to protect local interests of the weak and often helpless divided Sicilian communities.

A Sicilian here will name no names. But he will tell you plaintively:

"It was quiet here for 20 years or more. Now they're coming back."

He refers to the more than 100 Italians, largely from Sicily, who have been deported back to Italy from the U.S. since the Second World War as undesirable aliens or illegal immigrants.

The result has been an upflaring of kidnappings, extortions, hijacking, and killings, with a century or more ago, the Mafia earned its reputation as "the long arm of the lawless."



The long succession of conquerors who maltreated Sicily and bled by violence it carefully plotted vengeance. Even Sicilians were not exempt. The Mafia struck relentlessly at betrayers or supposed betrayers, whether of enemies or friends.

Sicilians blame violence and the gangster tactics today on Italian-American hoodlums exported back to this island.

The number of Latin American students on scholarships in West Germany increased from 1,953 to 346 in 1961.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Providing for Herself

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I am an 18½-year-old girl, doing a commercial course (I finished grade 11) and I'm wondering how young people can be so selfish toward their parents.

The kids around Belleville think Mom and Dad should put out money for school, entertainment, clothes, cigarets and anything else their hearts desire.

I earn anywhere between $3.00 and $5.00 a week and that has to buy me whatever I want. My parents will not (and I don't think they should) give me money even for school. If I were not earning money it would be different, but the kids I know think I'm crazy to put up with it.

They earn money babysitting too, and it doesn't go on anything they need. Don't you think that this is going to leave them dependent on someone else all their lives, if they don't soon break the habit of "give me, give me" and always getting?

It gives me the greatest pleasure to be able to say that I bought and paid for something with my own money. And I personally think that to grab from one's parents is the most selfish thing heard of, especially after our parents have given us so much already—JUST WONDERING.

* * *

DEAR JUST: — You can stop wondering. You're right, 100 per cent.

Soft-hearted parents—who are also short-sighted—think they would be mean to expect their teenagers to pay for anything themselves. So said teenagers have a tough time when they are finally out on their own and faced with finding out what money is for.

This is a big problem for many young married, often suffering through years of financial anguish while they overspend the stuff they thought grew on trees. If they survive you can bet your bottom dollar (without serious gambling) that someone belatedly helped them to budget the stuff.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I am in same situation as the girl whose mother did not tell her the facts of life. I wonder if you would be kind enough to suggest how I can help my own understanding of the facts.—GRATEFUL.

* * *

DEAR GRATEFUL:—I have written you about this suggesting some books you can read, or others can read their mothers—how about getting together on this. Hardly anything can bring you closer in understanding and mutual love.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I so agree with you about the problem this mother wants solved with her 18-year-old daughter being pregnant. It seems to me that when two young people go together for years there must be some feeling between them. What if they should get married later on and want their child back?

I saw this happen around here. The girl gave her child out for adoption too and later married and found she could not have any more children. If you saw that woman now, it would make you stop and think.

Remember she could do worse if she married another man later on and he held it against her having had a child. If they get married now, she can hold up her head and have her baby like other girls.

So what it it is a bit early? That would all be forgotten soon. She is old enough to face this the right way with your help.—HELPFUL.

* * *

DEAR HELPFUL—If the marriage has a chance—yes. This is always a difficult decision. Where parents stay in there and pitch, the young people concerned, and their little one, may make a happy family.

This is the best solution, where it is possible.

* * *

(Don't just muddle through—Doris will understand and help—Write and tell all.)

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

The writer of this weekly advice column is an 11-year-old boy. The advice he gives is strictly his own; it has not been changed by his parents or the editor. We welcome letters from parents: If you want him to discuss your problem write to ASK HENRY, in care of this newspaper.

Dear Henry—Which is a better child: One who obeys at once or one who likes to argue it out?—UNDECIDED.

Dear Undecided—The one who argues it out is the better. A kid who obeys at first command every time is no better than a trained dog. The kid who argues it out shows that he will fight for what he thinks is right.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I am a 12-year-old crippled boy. I leave the house at 8 a.m. and arrive at school at 9 a.m. and stay at school till 3 p.m. and then come home at 4 p.m.

When I get home I am teased and bothered by my older sister who is spoiled by my mother and father. What do you suggest I do?—MAD.

Dear Mad—What has being crippled got to do with being teased? All sisters tease their brothers if they are younger. Being a little slow getting to school and back just gives her another good thing to tease you about. A good whack with your crutches is what she deserves.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—Today my mom spanked me for nothing. Is that fair?—SORE.

Dear Sore—It depends how much nothing you did.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I am very disappointed by your reply about the boy who likes telescopes and such things. Your answers are usually very sensible but you are wrong here. Teamwork is important, yes—but for not for everyone.

There must be leaders for the masses and I think a study of history will show you that the best leaders as a rule have not been active in group or team activities to any great extent.

This boy may well be a great leader or thinker of the coming generation and he shouldn't be forced to conform in all ways if it is against his inclinations. Too much conformity is bad for the race.—DISAPPOINTED.

Dear Disappointed—It is good to be doing things by himself and to be able to think by himself and not to follow like a sheep. That's the trouble with kids today. They always follow a kid who rolled two grades and is the biggest in the class. But I am sure that playing with other kids in groups or teams will make him a happier child and will help make him a greater man.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—My son Stan loves to phone up people. He will, for example, call up a lady and ask if they have hot rolls. When the reply is "yes" he would say: "I hope you will sell them," and he hangs up. What do you think of this?—ASHAMED AND ANGRY.

Dear Amused and Angry—I think it is a lot of fun. It's a good exercise in public speaking. It will only bother grumpy people but it will amuse good sports. But I wouldn't my everybody should start doing it.—HENRY.

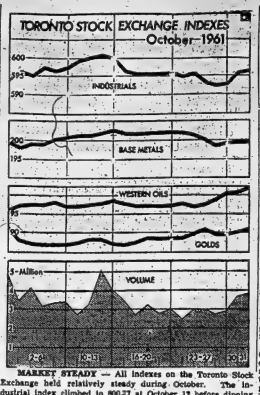
BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

Everglades National Park at the southern tip of Florida should really be called "Birds' Paradise". Many spots in Canada are ideal for birds in summer, but the little piece of southern Ontario between Lake Huron and Lake Erie is positively the only area that can be termed a pleasant winter home for birds, and it cannot compare with the Everglades. Here lie more than 2,000 square miles of swampy ground. The "glades" are in the interior. Bay, holly and magnolia trees covered with trailing vines form many of the islands. Others are jungle-like forests where ferns and orchids grow. There are several good sized lakes. No wonder so many of our birds gather there in winter to swell the population of "residents"!

HOT, DAMP COUNTRY

Abundance of fish entices American bitterns, great blue herons, grebes, merganasers, and kingfishers. Rails and scaup duck are drawn there by the seeds of marsh plants and aquatic animal life. Certain birds go for the deed or, dying trees: small brown creepers to pick tiny insects from the loose bark big pileated woodpeckers to dig boring beetles from the diseased inner wood. Marsh wrens inhabit the grasses or sedges lured by swarms of insects found in this hot, damp country.



Such song birds as redwings, grackles, meadowlarks, brown thrashers and ruby-crowned kinglets gather there to enjoy the fare offered in this sultry spot: grubs, beetles, or flying insects as the case may be. A few seed eaters, as pine siskins, vesper sparrows and song sparrows, hover amidst the lush vegetation of the Everglades in winter.

ATTRACTED BY INSECTS

Not many warblers remain as far north. However, some black and white (with creeper) rather than warbler-like) are no further south as they can very well feed on the insect eggs masses and pupae found in the bark of the old trees there. Water-thrushes, which sometimes act more like shore birds than warblers are attracted by the insect life in the swamps. Remembering that the northern breeding grounds of parulas are in the vicinity of swamps and that they nest in moss that hangs from trees, we need not be surprised to find these warblers in the Everglades. Some Orange-crowned substitute this boggy spot for their northern, streamside thickets of summer. And, strangely enough, the odd Nashville, black-throated blue, and black-throated green is satisfied to winter in the Everglades.

PIONEER BOOK

The first book printed in the Massachusetts Bay colony in 1640 was the Bay Psalm Book, produced by Stephen Daye.

MARKET STEADY — All indexes on the Toronto Stock Exchange held relatively steady during October. The industrial index climbed to 600.27 at October 12 before dipping slightly.

Western oil and gold indexes showed a small raise toward the end of the month.

Graph also shows volume of sales for October. (CP Newsmap.)

Garden Notes

Plants for Your Garden Path

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Beside the garden path, the driveway, the front or back door steps, near a garden seat or beside a pool is the place for those special but smaller plants. These are the plants that are worth a second look, and those that give you joy each time you notice them.

There are lovely small shrubs such as Crimson Pygmy Barberry. This grows very slowly, keeps its compact shape and never needs pruning. Plant in full sun to bring out the color. Blue Spires also known as Blue Beard (Caryopteris) is another good dwarf shrub. Does not exceed two feet. The foliage is a distinctive blue-green and the blooms come in blue clusters in August. Prune each spring. Colonscster Adpressa is another small treasure. Height below two feet, glistening dark green foliage and masses of bright berries in the fall.

Heather Erifa is hardy after the first year. Give some protection the first winter. It will please you winter and summer for many years.

Daphne Cneorum, also called Garland Flower, has a wealth of rosy bloom spring and autumn. This shrub is right for twelve inches high and is ever-green. Give a light mulch two inches deep after the soil freezes in late fall.

Lavender Hidcote Blue is a triple pleasure. The grey foliage is always attractive and the spikes of bloom are a soft wedgewood blue. The fragrance of leaf and flower can be savored all summer when they are plucked lightly and the dried blossoms will perfume the household and personal linens all through the year.

Artemisia Silver amound is a perennial only four inches high, but a full foot across. This cushion-like plant is pale silver, needs a warm dry place.

Sedum Dragon's Blood has deep wine red buds which open to magenta pink two inches high, quite distinctive. Another good one is Sedum Kamschaticum, four inches tall with bright yellow, orange flowers, in the fall the foliage turns to deep gold.

Hosta or plantain lilies are good plants for shade, choose the small types such as H. Verigata this has green and white striped leaves with rippled edges.

Ferns too are shade loving plants. Christmas Fern, Polystichum, or Walking Fern, a low creeping evergreen fern. Both of these are dwarf types and give year round colors. The lacy foliage is always attractive.

Iris Cristata has lovely blue flowers, is three inches tall, too small for the iris border but just right for the path side. Give the same culture as iris.

Miniature roses need a sunny spot where they can be observed closely to be enjoyed. There is a good choice here. One of the brightest is Baby Masquerade. The bright pink buds open to deep red blooms.

Right now, before it is too late, do turk in a few of the minor bulbs beside the path. You can plant Snow Drops, Snow Flakes, Grape Hyacinth, Crocus, Dwarf Red Emperor Tulips miniature Darwinthis called Dutch Romans or any of the dwarf type bulbs.

ELECTRIC HEAT
The Best, Most Modern Way To Heat Recreation Rooms
... Unheated Sunrooms ... Home Additions, Economically, Easily.

ELECTRIC HEAT now makes it possible and practical to enjoy room-controlled heating comfort in the added living space you are planning, without going to the trouble and expense of extending your existing heating system. Built-in electric heating units operate independently of your main heating system—delivering almost instant heat, where you want it, when you want it . . . without putting an added strain on your furnace . . . without overheating the rest of your house.

ELECTRIC HEAT is safe, clean, quiet. You enjoy a healthier atmosphere in an electrically heated room because electric heat does not deplete the important oxygen content of the air. Electric heat does not create draughts, dryness or dust. Individual wall thermostats may be turned up or down, at will. You control the heating comfort and the heating cost.

ELECTRIC HEAT is easy and inexpensive to install. Electric wiring to the built-in electric heating units is all that is required. You can have the job completed quickly, even in midwinter—because there is no need to disturb your present heating system or make costly structural changes.

Call your qualified electric heating contractor or your local Hydro for assistance in the use of modern electric heating.

For Comfort . . . For Convenience . . . For Ease of Installation.

Complete your home with electric heat.

Moments in History

- In 1877, Belleville "came of age." On March 2nd, the Legislature of the Province of Ontario passed a statute enacting that on Dec. 31st, Belleville would be a city. This event, however, was not celebrated until July 1st, 1878. Some twenty years later, the original Moira-Schuster company first began: it has grown up with Belleville, supplying heating fuels to homes and industry. Why not let Moira - Schuster supply your needs . . . fuel oil; coal; new furnace: 24-hour service. Call WO 4504 or drop in next time you're downtown.

Impressions Left By Prime Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—A mid-January meeting of Parliament and a June or September general election seem to be the key dates in the government's timetable.

Executive sources said they took these indications from the prime minister's speech to the private meeting. Mr. Diefenbaker was to return from Winnipeg by train early today.

The prime minister himself would give reporters no comment on the meeting or indication of what was contained in his speech. Party delegates were enthusiastic about the indications he gave them of the government's accomplishments and its plans for the future.

A number of Parliament and Senators who attended the meeting said Mr. Diefenbaker has discarded his earlier notion of having Parliament prorogued in February, in the hope of the proposed debate on the speech from the throne, which will outline the government's legislative program for the new session.

Instead, it now appears that Parliament will meet Jan. 15 or 16.

The choice of a date for the election campaign will be Mr. Diefenbaker himself. It was understood that the party executive that represents five of Western Canada and Atlantic provinces pressed for an early election.

They felt that politically, times were never better than now for the start of a sweeping number of Conservative MPs.

A more sobering position, however, was taken by the delegates from Ontario and Quebec. The former wanted more time for the adverse effects of Ontario's new Liberal-Labor coalition to wear off, and the latter for the organization by the Liberal government of Premier Lesage to get settled in office in Quebec, before the voters will be given the Conservatives a larger share of power.

Influential members of the party's executive reported to be split on the question. There were some who said a June election date would give the party the best time to campaign. Farmers would have finished their spring chores.

The other group argues in favor of an early autumn election, probably in September, when the effects of the Conservatives' big drive in the farm areas with most of their seasonal chores done, but would come after the Canadian Exhibition circuit is ended, snappy session of Parliament.

The present Parliament, elected March 31, 1958, can run until the early summer of 1963.

Wall 'to Last 1,000 Years' Built On East Berlin Border by Reds

BERLIN (Reuters)—The Berlin wall, which West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has stated must disappear as a prerequisite for peace, is now almost complete.

Construction noises were heard from the area immediately behind the Brandenburg Gate, once the main crossing point in the divided city. Men worked under arc lights in sub-zero temperatures to wall the gate into the Communist sector.

East Berliners went to work knowing nothing official of the large-scale military and building activity, which included construction of an apparent massive reinforcement of the East-West border wall erected after the Aug. 13 Communist Pact.

Ethiopians Flown to Help Malayan Troops

LEOPOLDVILLE Reuters'—The UN today airlifted 200 Ethiopian troops from Stanleyville to Kindu, Orea province, to reinforce Malayan contingents in an action against rebellious congolese troops who nine days ago murdered 13 Italian UN airmen.

A UN spokesman here said they would reinforce their strength further before entering the town of Kindu and rejected the Malayans' request for immediate action" to bring the situation under control.

For reasons of military security he declined to give any details of the action and added that the movement of such delicate might result in restrictions elsewhere in the Congo.

Mahgoub Khiari, chief of the UN civil operation in the Congo, told reporters that the convoys were being blocked with mercenaries from a Belgian base.

KENNEDY OPENS POLICY TALKS WITH ADENAUER

Flexible Approach On Berlin U.S. Aim

WASSINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer open a series of policy conferences today in an effort to agree on a basis for Western negotiation with Russia over the Berlin dispute.

Kennedy was reported hopeful that Adenauer would accept a flexible approach, allowing some concessions by the West, if Russia is willing to respect "vital interests" of the Western powers in West Berlin.

Adenauer arrived here Sunday calling for co - operation among the Western powers and predicting victory for "the peace - loving nations" in the world war.

He told State Secretary Dean Rusk, who met his plane, that he is "convinced the peace-loving nations will win."

Adenauer was accompanied by his new foreign minister, Gerhard Schroeder, and by Defence Minister Franz Josef Strauss.

NO BASIC DISAGREEMENT

U.S. officials said there are no disagreements between Adenauer and Kennedy on fundamentals. Both are agreed that the interests of the West require the continued presence of U.S. and British troops in West Berlin.

They also agree that West Berlin's access routes to West Germany across Communist East Germany must be kept open and they consider workable the agreement between West Berlin and East Germany.

Finance Minister Fleming said today his top-level talks in Paris and London indicate that "very great difficulties" are in the way of Britain combining membership in the European Common Market with full protection of Commonwealth interests.

Fleming spoke to reporters just after a 90-minute talk with Prime Minister Macmillan. He saw French president de Gaulle today.

Fleming told his press conference Canada will ask for a Commonwealth prime ministers' meeting before Britain makes a final decision on joining the Market.

In Ottawa Prime Minister Diefenbaker told reporters today that it is Canada's hope that a Commonwealth conference will be held after Britain's negotiations with the Common Market group, and before any final decision is made.

Mr. Diefenbaker said, however, he could suggest the date for such a meeting.

He said he believes most of the Commonwealth countries

Income Tax Rate Structure Bit of Fraud Meeting Told

MONTREAL (CP)—The existing income taxrate structure is a bit of a fraud on the public and is misleading, Dr. A. K. Eaton, former assistant deputy minister of finance, said today.

In an address to the Canadian tax conference of the Canadian Tax Foundation Dr. Eaton, long an adviser to federal finance ministers, criticized the system of steeply-graduated levies as incomes go up.

He termed the system a "political device" and combatted the idea that there is in Canada any large group of impoverished people or of idle rich. He said some of those receiving the greatest benefits from present welfare measures are able to make a higher contribution to the taxes required to pay for them.

Under a proportional tax system, he said, a person with twice the taxable income of another would pay twice the tax and the person with 10 times as much, and this would constitute "a pretty impressive annual re-distribution of income."

Today, however, the following situation exists:

"If taxable income (income after exemptions and deductions) is $2,000 the tax is $250. If, however, taxable income is three times as much the tax is more than four times; if taxable

Douglas Stumping Province As Though Election Near

TIMMINS (CP) — Tommy Douglas is giving Ontario audiences a close-up of the political technique that helped to keep him premier of Saskatchewan for 17 years.

Mixing the wit and timing of a professional comedian, the fervor of a preacher and the politician's sense of his audience's problems, Mr. Douglas is stumping the province as though the New Democratic Party which he leads expects an election tomorrow.

"I'm just—in the words of the criminal world — casing the joint," he said in a television interview in Windsor when the interviewer suggested he was fighting the election campaign before the election date is set. He went on to see how many Ontario seats we can steal from the Liberals and the Conservatives.

His current speaking tour includes Toronto, Peterborough, Windsor, Galt, Kitchener and Waterloo and winds up later this month with visits to Montreal and Charlottetown.

In some places he has spoken to two or three groups a day, besides making radio and television recordings and submis-

WINTER FAIR ENDS IN BLAZE OF PAGEANTRY

U.S. Equestrian Team Wins Honors

TORONTO (CP)—The Royal Agricultural Winter Fair ended Saturday night in a blaze of pageantry.

Horsemen of the international equestrian teams and other participants who had played a part for the previous eight days paraded in the Coliseum as a prelude to the closing address by Premier John P. Robarts.

Before the gates closed on the 33rd edition of Canada's biggest annual agricultural fair, an estimated 260,000 persons had viewed the daily horse shows, livestock and produce exhibits and countless side attractions.

The Royal never announces attendance figures.

At the fair concluded, the United States equestrian team came up with a late surge to win the jumping title over Canada. U.S. riders finished with 32 points in the five - country event, followed by Canada with 28, Argentina 23, Ireland 20 and Mexico 11.

ELDER WINS

A Canadian rider, however, won the individual point crown. James Elder of Toronto, Ont., accumulated 18 points in the jumping events. Capt. W. A. Ringrose of the U.S. team was second with 14 and Lieut. Gustavo Catalog of Argentina third with 8.

The international competition highlighted the horse performances at the Royal, but also in the spotlight was the dog show with its musical ride.

Visitors of note included Governor-General and Mme. Vanier, Lieutenant - Governor J. Keiller Mackay of Ontario, Premier Duff of Feverham who opened the Royal Dairy Show.

The Canadian Agricultural Hall of Fame was opened Nov. 15 by Agriculture Minister Harry Dinsdale. Paintings of 14 Canadians who have made outstanding contributions to the country's agriculture were displayed and the fair association plans to add more names to the honor roll next year.

Three western exhibitors were surprised with their wins at the Royal this year.

Ralph L. Erdman of Leth-bridge, Alta., won the world's wheat championship with a brand of wheat that had never before won an open award in an open class.

Mrs. Mary Stewart was variety of durum wheat, a premium-priced grain used chiefly in the manufacture of pasta.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Chorney of Sabin, Man., took the world potato championship award and also the top honors in the seed potato class.

Saturday was a happy day for 20-year-old Shirley Darby of Kerwood, Ont. She sold her grand champion guernsey heifer, Angus steer to a grocery store chain for $5,747.

Air Force Beats Dictatorship's Comeback Plot

U.S. Fleet off Coast Backs New President

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Soon after a U.S. show of force and opposition from Dominican Air Force generals, the Trujillo clan today appeared to have abandoned an attempt to set up a new dictatorship in this Caribbean republic.

President Joaquin Balaguer, pledged to set the nation on the road to democracy, extended his control as 29 top Trujillo officials slipped out of the country at midnight aboard a chartered airliner.

Two brothers of slain dictator Rafael L. Trujillo led the exodus of the crumbling family dynasty that ruled the country for 31 years virtually as a private plantation.

The brothers — Gen. Hector Trujillo, a former president, and Gen. José Arismendi Trujillo, who had his own army—went into exile three weeks ago but returned for a brief visit in what the United States said appeared to be a desperate attempt to seize power.

Gen. Rafael L. Trujillo Jr., the former generalissimo's son, was reported at odds with his uncle, quit as commander-in-chief of the air forces last week when they came back and sailed away in his private yacht.

Balaguer, himself a former front man for the old dictator, had faced the prospect of difficulties with strong opposition party elements in carrying out his pledge to bring democracy to the country.

The president took over supreme command of the military and proclaimed an emergency, just short of martial law. The island nation remained tense.

Balaguer won pledges of support from the top leaders of the armed forces after warning the shrinking could lead to "foreign military intervention — a clear allusion to U.S. naval units that are hovering off shore.

The U.S. ships led by the cruiser Little Rock appeared off the coast Sunday and were joined by others, including an aircraft carrier.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk had offered Balaguer troops if he needed them to "avert" a return of the Trujillo dictatorship. But there was no indication the Dominican leader had requested any outside help.

Gen. Pedro Rafael Rodriguez Echavarria, 39-year - old commander of the air force post at Santiago, and other generals formed a communique supporting the president.

Deer Hunter Drowned When Boat Capsizes

GORE BAY (CP) — A deer hunter was drowned Saturday when a 14-foot boat carrying four men and four deer capsized in the icy North Channel.

Another small boat was swamped during a rescue attempt.

The body of James Dufresne, 36, of Cutler, was recovered Sunday near Cloperton Island, a lighthouse station 10 miles north of the Manitoulin Island community.

First word of the accident came when Lighthouse keeper Bill Baker returned to his station to find a scribbled note saying a boat had swamped in the channel. He called the radio operator at the Gore Bay airport who informed provincial police. Rough water and lack of a large boat made it impossible for police to go to the island until Sunday.

Police said six men had gone to Cloperton Island and had shot four deer.

James Dufresne, his 30-year old son, George, and two others men along with their equipment and the deer had set out in a 14-foot boat for the mainland. On board were Lionel Fournier and Verdi McCormick.

The boat swamped about 300 yards from shore. Fournier made another small boat and went to the rescue.

Police said that when he reached the scene he told the men to hang on to his boat, but they tried to climb into it and swamped it. Fournier and three others swam ashore to get help, leaving the elder Dufresne floating on the partly submerged craft.

Before they could get help Dufresne drowned. The rest of the party spent the night around a camp fire.

New Guinea Natives Kill 3

HOLLANDIA, Dutch New Guinea (AP)—Papuan tribesmen murdered and mutilated a 36-year-old Dutch administrator and two native policemen at a village in the West New Guinea jungle last week, police revealed today.

The killing took place at a village called Diadam, 40 miles west of Hollandia.

Police said the Dutchman, A. M. Nikmemeyer, the local government official in the Lorentz basin district, sent his five porters ahead from the village to prepare a camping place.

After he and the two policemen failed to turn up at the camp, the porters returned and found their mutilated bodies.

Officials said there was no connection between the murders and the disappearance of young Michael Rockefeller, the New York governor's son who was last sighted was hundreds of miles from Djadam.

Hunt Governor Rockefeller's Son In Uninhabited New Guinea Area

HOLLANDIA, Dutch New Guinea (Reuters)—Dutch police today searched an uninhabited area of New Guinea coastline for Michael Rockefeller, who set out Sunday to swim in shore from a raft in search of the Eilanden River.

Michael was said there was no "good hope" for the safety of the youngest son of New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller.

Michael set out for shore supported by two aqualung cans, from a raft on which he was heading out of the mouth of the Eilanden River, anthropologist W. Wassink.

Wassink was spotted on the raft by search planes Sunday night picked up this morning by the a naval patrol boat. Michael, he did not know whether young Rockefeller had reached shore but Dutch officials held out little hope that he had.

Dutch officials could not explain how Rockefeller, 23, and Wassink, 34, happened to be on the raft at the mouth of the Eilanden River in the Asmat area of southwest New Guinea. Nor could they say why Michael had decided to swim to the uninhabited shoreline.

Dutch planes were concentrating their hunt on the area where Rockefeller was last seen by Wassink.

Reports reaching Port Moresby in Australian-administered New Guinea said the white men had been sighted by native search planes. But it was not known whether they included Rockefeller.

Two policemen and several Papuans were reported to have been with Rockefeller, who stayed at Peabody College and working with a Harvard University group specializing in tribal music and war chants of the stone-age natives in the interior of Dutch New Guinea.

Michael's father was heading here by plane to aid in the search for his son.

When Wassink was spotted on the raft Sunday night it appeared that young Rockefeller had been found. But when the patrol boat got alongside it was scientist he said Michael had set out for shore.

It was not immediately known how Rockefeller and Wassink reached the coast. The search for them had previously been concentrated on the mountainous interior of Dutch New Guinea, where they were last reported to have been.

MALCOLM ROBB TO BE SPEAKER AT SALES, AD CLUB

Malcolm Robb, D.F.C., Q.C., will be the guest speaker at the Sales and Ad club meeting on Tuesday night, Nov. 21st in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Malcolm Robb is a barrister and solicitor, born and educated in Toronto and was called to the Bar of Ontario in 1939. He became Queen's Counsel in 1953 and practised his profession with Sleight, Ferguson and Gerrie in Toronto from 1939 to 1941. He also practised in Belleville as a partner of Robb, Ross, Cass and Burley.

Mr. Robb served in the Second World War with the RCAF, as an air craftsman. He is married and has two children and is known far and wide as a man who speaks his mind.

Next Tuesday night will be "The Reality of The Common Market For Canadians", the meeting is being held at 5.30 p.m.

Rev. Laurie Price Returns Home From Maritimes

The Rev. Laurie Price D.D. of Calvary Temple, has returned to Belleville after ministering at rallies throughout the Maritime Provinces, which culminated in a district convention at New Glasgow, N.S.

While in the east, Dr. Price appeared at invitation to speak at St. John's United Church, Dalhousie, N.B., where combined services had been held by the Anglican and United Church congregations.

"Dr. Bishop, the pastor of St. John's United, requested that I ask our people in Belleville to pray for him and his people, that God would visit them with a genuine move of the Holy Spirit," stated Dr. Price. "I was happy to assure this faithful servant of God that we would."

"It is heartening to see different denominational institutions assembling together in a bond of love for God and with a desire for the deeper spiritual life," said Dr. Price. "I was thrilled by many places across the continent. Sincere people believe that God is our only hope in this, the most desperate hour in world history."

ples of the communique on Ciudad Trujillo. Reports from Santiago said planes bombed the town of Valverde until the commander of the local garrison agreed to halt his bulletfire. The number of casualties was not known.

For a time there were indications that a force under Luis Amiama Tio, brother-in-law of Trujillo might not go along with the anti-Trujillo group, and planes from Santiago were reported to have bombed the highway leading into that city to impede units that might try to come from Ciudad Trujillo. But late nightfall secures close to the government said the air force was unified behind Balaguer.

The air force is the strongest of the armed services in the country and has its own infantry and tanks.

Gen. Fernando A. Sanchez, pro-Trujillo air force chief of staff, was killed probably only after the Trujillo brothers had agreed to get out of the country. He was on the chartered plane with them, headed for Florida.

Others aboard included Gen. Jose Garcia Trujillo, brother of the assassinated dictator, and Trujillo's nephew, a former army commissioner.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Hector and Jose Arismendi Trujillo, brothers of the slain Dominican Republic dictator Rafael L. Trujillo, landed here today.

The brothers were in a party of 29 aboard a chartered Pan American plane from Ciudad Trujillo.

It was reported here that the two Trujillos planned to live in West Palm Beach in exile.

First Visual Touch of Winter Seen in District

The first visual touch of winter in the Bay of Quinte district this season was seen over the weekend when the thermometers dropped to below freezing degrees below the freezing mark, while today soft wet snow blanketed the ground in the first real snowfall of the autumn.

Sunday morning substantial crusts of ice were seen in the ditches on small ponds and then even around the edges of the bay.

Today true to the weatherman's prognostication, fluffy white snow began to fall in more than a couple of hours and was still falling at noon to make for shabby walking and driving conditions.

Point Anne Cement Workers Await Word From Montreal On Progress of Negotiations

Local officials of Canada Cement Co. in Montreal and members of Local 219 of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum workers were still waiting at noon today for word from Montreal where negotiations were underway for settlement of the terms of a new labor contract.

Employees at Point Anne and at two other Canada Cement plants in Ontario and at Montreal, walked off their jobs Thursday morning to support demands for a new labor contract.

Today Point Anne employees were still picketing the company main gate as well as truck entrance to the plant and the Canadian National Railway line into the village.

UNION REJECTS OFFER

Last week's strike action was taken following union rejection of the company offer which included two five-cent per hour increases and one paid by the company for termination of the indemnity after one year's layoff.

Reports at that time were that the union was not alone in contract talks was termination of seniority rights and certain fringe benefit rights.

During weekend talks between Eastern Canada representative for the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers, was reported Sunday by the Canadian Press as saying: "We're still apart by 7¼ cents, which includes the cost of a supplementary unemployment insurance fund, time-and-a-half for Sunday work and improved insurance coverage.

GRINDS TO HALT

At Point Anne the big cement grinders ground to a full halt today at noon after being operated by supervisors since employees walked out on Thursday.

Since the strike took place at 10 o'clock Thursday no deliveries of cement have been made from Point Anne. Plant plaint, either by truck or by railway.

Fire Completely Destroys Tweed Steel Works Plant

TWEED (Special) — For the second time in 30 years, the Tweed Steel Works was completely destroyed by fire. Saturday afternoon as fire raced through the 100-foot frame structure reducing it to a pile of rubble.

Only the concrete north end of the long storey building in which the office was situated was left standing as flames fought the fire which broke out about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. It was almost an hour later the building was flattened as flames raced along the light framework structure. The building was completely covered with steel.

With Saturday a plant holiday, only Dorian Bosley was working when the fire broke out. Mr. Bosley said he was about to go home for supper and was removing a fuse from the fuse box when he heard the sound of a low explosion and turned around to see the entire south end of the building afire.

TWO TRUCKS LOST

Lost in the fire were two thirteen ton trucks which Mr. Bosley was unable to move in time, about $17,000 worth of machinery, a 30-foot launch boat owned by Carman Alton, the plant manager, and a passenger boat owned jointly by Mr. Alton and Dr. G. Allen of Tweed.

A west wind blew the flames away from the other buildings on the street and no other structures were endangered. Office files and furniture were removed to safety.

Black smoke and flames leaping high into the air attracted people from around the Tweed district. Provincial police from Madoc assisted Police Chief Walter Higgins in directing traffic. The Salvation Army Corps served coffee to the firemen.

BURNT 30 YEARS AGO

Thirty years ago on December 18th, a similar type of building on the same site, then known as the Tweed Chair Company was destroyed by fire. The plant was rebuilt by the owner, Wilbur Gordon, father-in-law of the present manager.

Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Alton were in Madoc attending a funeral when the fire broke out.

Mr. Bosley said he discovered about 1? men.

The plant was covered by insurance and Mr. Alton said plans were to rebuild.

Queen Dances With Nkrumah At Farewell Ball

ACCRA, Ghana — The Queen danced with Dr. Kwame Nkrumah at a farewell ball given by Ghana Saturday night, slipping into the presidential rhythm of the West African dance as 2,000 guests cheered, around and applauded.

Prince Philip danced with Nkrumah's daughter, born with Fatia on the floodlit open - air dance floor at State House scene of a gala farewell ball for the visiting monarch.

The Queen and Nkrumah at one time specifically composed High Life — Welcome Your Majesty.

The Queen seemed at first to have difficulty getting into the rhythm of the dance but she picked it up, stopped looking at her feet and began to enjoy herself.

During the day the Queen had appeared tired when she visited educational centres.

Commencement Exercises Are Held at High School

TRENTON — The annual commencement exercises of Trenton High School were held on Friday night.

Graduates were urged by Rev. J. T. Irwin to learn to see beyond the meanness and humanity to the divine nobility and heroism of each individual. Mr. Irwin said that the world was getting better all the time and that we must learn to see beyond our own little circle of interests. He said that each person should do a bit of soul-searching and learn to know himself; his own possibilities and limitations.

Mr. Irwin was introduced to the assembly by T. W. Spear.

Valedictorian was Dale Treloar.

L. G. Phinney, chairman of the Trenton board of education, presented honor graduation pins and diplomas to honor graduates. Pins were awarded by board member Mrs. G. Griffiths.

Three in Quinte, N. Hastings Area Killed in Accidents

Three persons in the Bay of Quinte and North Hastings area died in separate highway accidents over the weekend.

At Carrying Place, Belleville man was killed and two persons were injured Sunday in a two-car crash on Highway 2 at Carrying Place, six miles south of Trenton. In the Campanee area a partially crippled man died when struck by a car on the Camden East Road, while at Bancroft a Cardiff man died when the car in which he was riding went out control and rolled over in the ditch.

Killed at Carrying Place was Patrick Bennett, 20, of 3 Highland Avenue, Belleville. Taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital were Frederick Skinkle, R.R. 1 Consecon with cuts and internal injuries and Mrs. Margaret Fraute, 40, of R.R. 2 Carrying Place with cuts and shock.

Police said a car driven by Mrs. Fraute was hit by a car driven by Mr. Skinkle as she was turning onto the highway from a sideroad.

Mr. Bennett, married four months was Mr. Skinkle's brother-in-law. An inquest will be held.

At Bancroft, Maurice Crete, 22 of Cardiff was killed when a car driven by Christie Allard of Bancroft went out of control and struck the 42 inch tree.

Miss Allard and another passenger, Murray Tyron, 27 of Bancroft, were taken to Bancroft and Red Cross Hospital with undetermined injuries. Police said the top of the car was ripped completely off.

At Napanee partially crippled Ross Myles 66, died on the Camden Road after a lifetime of narrow escapes. He had been kicked by a horse, thrown from a runaway horse and gored by a bull. Although lame, Mr. Myles walked three miles to church every Sunday.

He was struck Saturday night by a car driven by William Wiley, 23 of Napanee, as he was crossing the road. A bachelor, Mr. Myles lived with a brother, Markland, in the Napanee area.

INCOME TAX

income is five times as much the tax is more than eight times; and if taxable income is 20 times as much the tax is more than 64 times."

URGES FLAT RATE

If, instead of this system, a flat rate of 18 per cent were levied on all taxable income it would produce revenue about equal to that now produced by rates running from 11 per cent to 80 per cent.

Mr. Eaton, now in private practice as a federal fiscal consultant, added:

"I have always thought the theoretical justification for a graduated income tax quite shallow and inadequate, but in the past it did not behoove me to say so. For years I resigned at having to use the rather stuffy phrases commonly used in suggesting some working for the tax section of budget speeches for successive finance ministers. Now I can say what I think and still eat."

Even where considerable differences in income exist, Dr. Eaton said, no over-all conclusions can be drawn concerning who should pay higher or lower tax rates.

"A $30,000-a-year man," he said, "may be living fairly strictly with the idea of accumulating a good estate for his free enhancement soul with one-fifth his income may be living it up happily in the knowledge that the state will help him out and give him every cent of $1000 a month to supplement a modest private pension in his old age."

In regard to corporate income taxes, he said there he leans to the view that as a general rule the economic tax is passed on to the consumer in higher prices.

ECONOMY HAMSTRUNG

Trevor F. Moore, vice - president and a director of Imperial Oil Ltd., speaking at the same session, said the tax is hamstringing Canada's real economic growth and the manner of their application is penalizing investor from the home owner to the large corporation.

"Is there any reason," he asked, "why home improvements or additions could not be granted some tax relief providing the owner intends them for his own use over a period of say three years? Are penalties more appropriate than actually penalized through higher property assessment?

"Why can't a person deduct capital losses in the year of his interest on his mortgage from his taxable income?"

The comments of both Dr. Eaton and Mr. Moore were contained in papers made available to the press in advance of delivery.

WED 70 YEARS

SHAG HARBOR, N.S. (CP)—Capt. and Mrs. Job Cunningham celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary during the weekend. "This has been one of the happiest days of our lives," said the 95-year-old Mrs. Cunningham after a family dinner party guests enjoyed four wedding cakes. Now 93 and recovered from a recent heart attack, Capt. Cunningham spends his time building replicas for neighbors.

Buying a Watch? Ask Your Jeweller's Advice

Are you one of the several million Canadians who is a prospective watch buyer this year? If you are, be sure to consult your community jeweller.

The Watchmakers of Switzerland point out that a fine timepiece is like a fine automobile—only an expert can tell its performance possibilities. And the quality jeweller, who has been selling and repairing watches for many years, is the only qualified person in your community to rely upon when it comes to the purchase of a watch.

When selecting a watch, personal preference is the key together with pocketbook capabilities, must first be considered. At that point, however, your jeweller is in a position to help you select a fine watch which he knows is built to give you accurate, dependable service over the coming years.

For example, his experience has given him practical knowledge of the workmanship that has gone into the various brands of watches on the market, and since his store and reputation are the guarantee behind the products he sells, his first desire is to sell watches that will keep you satisfied and pleased.

There are various grades of watch movements manufactured and offered for public sale. It's the business of your jeweller to know and recognize the difference. He might offer you two different watches, one that sells for $40 and the other for $100. And he'll be the first to tell you there is a difference between the two, although he has made it his business to obtain for you the best value he can for the money you have been able to find for customers who can afford a watch in that price category.

A number of features in the make-up of a watch can be reflected in its retail selling price. Certain watches have been scientifically every part in the movement finished by hand and, naturally this outstanding checking and rechecking must bring the price up. In addition, there are different metals used for different parts of the mechanism and, here again, the cost differential will be reflected in the price you say.

And, just as there is a difference in movements, there is also a difference in watch cases. It might be chrome, stainless steel, gold plate, gold filled, or 14 - karat gold. And, even if marked gold, it might well be paper-thin, so that it does not give the movement the protection it needs against everyday wear.

Too often a prospective watch buyer will be lulled into the purchase of a so-called "watch bargain," only to find later that he usually gets just about what he pays for. An established jeweller generally carries only standard brands of fine watches — brands that have a good value for the money you spend.

Remember, a fine watch is one that goes as good as the first stands behind it, and your local community jeweller has a reputation for reliability upon which you can depend.

Berlin Solution Coming ?

Harold Morrison, a Canadian Press writer, says that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany, now dependent on a coalition, may find his weakened position makes it difficult or impossible to "resist Washington pressures to end pursuit of dreams of German reunification."

We were unaware that any such pressure was being exerted on Adenauer from Washington.

There have been hints of such a U. S. policy, but these hints have been more than offset by statements contradictory to any such a policy.

If the U.S. really seeks such a development, the solution of the Berlin crisis may not be anywhere near as difficult as it has appeared during the past few months. If the West Germans would give up the dream of German reunification, at least in the immediate future, there is no real barrier to the Western powers, including West Germany, granting de facto recognition to the East German Communist government. Once that recognition is granted, there is no real barrier to an agreement transferring from the Russians to the East Germans the responsibility for maintaining the access of the Western powers to West Berlin. Once the transfer of authority is recognized, Khrushchev could sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany without any danger of withdrawal of Russian occupation forces precipitating a situation which would lead to war.

We say that such a solution would be possible, not that it would follow automatically. But the only thing needed to make this possibility an actuality would be a desire by Khrushchev to avoid a nuclear war. No matter how suspicious we may be of Khrushchev and all his works there is no valid reason to believe that he is-at present to want to destroy the world, including Russia and himself.

Abandonment by the West Germans of the dream of German reunification is thus the first necessary step toward a settlement of the Berlin crisis, a settlement which may be precarious but would still be less fraught with danger than the present situation, where opposing armies of police toss tear gas grenades at each other every other night or so.

Incidentally, it has been noticed that, as the original deadline set by Khrushchev for the signing of a peace treaty with East Germany nears, the over-all Berlin situation has declined, rather than increased. Surely this must have some significance. There must be some behind-the-scenes moves to reach a settlement. It would be unthinkable to suppose that the world's leaders were allowing things to drift towards war without any real peace effort than has been apparent to negotiate a satisfactory agreement.

An Amazing Invention

Is armor coming back?

Canadian defence research scientists have designed a modern-day chain mail intended to protect soldiers from the heat of an atomic blast.

We are told that this new armor gives off a puff of smoke when exposed to a heat of 50 calories a square centimetre, this puff of smoke preventing the soldier's ordinary uniform from being ignited.

At first reading, this may sound like a wonderful discovery. There are, however, apparent flaws in such a protective device.

The first place, a second degree burn is caused by a heat of only one-sixth that needed to generate the protective puff of smoke. It follows that this chain mail would have to be worn over the whole head and body—otherwise the uniforms would be saved but the exposed flesh would be burned to a crisp. Secondly, it is obviously impossible to protect all the soldiers' surroundings with such mail. Their uniforms might not catch fire—but everything else combustible would. What would be their chance of living in the centre of a blazing inferno?

There is another entirely different phase to the discovery of this protective material. At a cost of $360 the scientists converted an old army searchlight so that it produced temperatures of 6,000 degrees centigrade by focussing the rays of the sun.

Even if the protective chain-mail proves useless, might not this cheap solar furnace provide the key to a cheap source of abundant energy, ideally suited for use in many of the world's power-poor lands?

What Have Blondes Got?

By Harold Weir in the Vancouver, Sun

In the midst of war scares, fallout jitters and bomb hysterics, it is refreshing to get a letter from a woman who works in a beauty parlor, a beautician I believe she's called, whose chief worry is the current obsession with blonde hair.

This beautician tells me she finds hair is coming in different shades and, of these 35, no less than 15 are variations of what is referred here as a scientific fact, merely a matter of the dictionary's observations.

Some of our more frivolous-minded archeologists have come up with their distinct explanations of why gentlemen prefer blondes. The fairly reasonable explanation is that most of us are descended remotely from tribes whose skin was darkened by generations of exposure to the sun and whose hair was bleached by plastering it with oil. Consequently, the occasional person of markedly blonde characteristics came along, he or she was regarded as a precious novelty to be imitated.

Then, Homer goes to some pains to point out that Achilles, I think it was, had fair hair which seems to indicate that blondness—and not artificial effects—was in the 12th century B.C.

A recent symposium of historians offered by anthropologist Iris is that the upper classes of Europe have been usually those of fairer complexion than the more pigmented peasants and farmers or were more carefully protected from the rigors of the weather and thus enjoyed more frequent shampoos. So fairness became associated with social position.

* * *

There strike me as pretty far-fetched reasons why a modern society should pay a beauty parlor and demands to have its hair bleached. But, there are only knows what strange racial memories rank around in our skulls and influence our impulses.

My personal conviction, since I was asked for it, is that women have their hair bleached when they are bored, in much the same way as men have their beards shaved. But because so utterly weary of their sex that they have to go to a much greater part in our psychological phenomena, I think, than the men have to theirs.

However, I agree that gentlemen prefer blondes. The confusing part of it is that they also prefer brunettes and redheads.

Hope to Give Heart a Rest

BBC London Letter

A research team at St. Mary's Hospital, London, is experimenting with a development of the famous heart-lung machine, which, they believe may eventually allow both heart and lungs to be put out of action altogether for as long as 48 hours, and return to work fit and free from damage as a tired or sick person is after sleep.

Describing these experiments science correspondent Nick Lloyd said that at present the heart-lung machine could give the heart a rest for about 40 minutes, just long enough for surgeons to open the chest and do a quick repair job on a faulty valve organ. It works by taking over the circulation of the blood, which is the link between both the heart and the lungs and flow through a complex machine, where carbon dioxide is removed and oxygen replenished before it is again pumped back into the body.

"The snag is that to keep this essential process of replenishment the blood appears to suffer some damage. At any point this does not matter, but doctors have found that the less it is used to keep the pump for the less long it has to work, the better than good. This is because blood drips through the machine over a series of revolving metal plates in a drum filled with oxygen, and these plates are extremely delicate organisms and seem to be able to stand only a few hours' passage at this comparatively rough treatment.

"In nature, blood gets rid of its unwanted carbon dioxide and obtains fresh oxygen by a far more subtle process. The blood passes through a network of microscopically fine vessels in the lungs which act as membranes into the blood and carbon dioxide passes out.

This was the method which the team at St. Mary's was trying to copy more closely by an ingenious arrangement of tubes, pumps and membranes. Something like this had already been achieved with the artificial kidney, so that the main function of the natural kidneys is getting rid of impurities in the blood. It might be some time before this new advice could be put to people, but eventually it would take to be far more reliable even than an artificial kidney. A patient could survive with impurities in his blood for some time, but if his blood should have no oxygen he would begin to die in four minutes.

King George Spoke Mind

Hamilton Spectator

Mention of the word "culture" makes many possible people in the high-brow set go all shivery, but culture is not a bad thing, they do not know what it means and for another, they suspect that whatever it is, it is not for them. Culture is something that is acquired and vainly pursued as some sort of social asset.

Describing these kinds of "culture hunters". There are people who lavishly discourse on the merits of night starkness but care musically inferior; there are students who study words who "understand" the mysteries of supposedly enigmatical abstract paintings; there are people who read intellectual books (or rather books that they think are intellectual) to impress others with them and then there are the barely perceptible of the culture hunters who are content to appear appreciative.

All this is not culture. Surely culture must be the warp and woof of civilization — a quality of mind and character which —which finds its best expression in the simple, natural, courteous behavior. Primitive people are often cultured, even though they have little formal use of Beethoven or Shakespeare, Rembrandt or Picasso.

Snobbery is the natural companion of pseudo culture. How else can we explain the profession of superiority and refinement by those who have not the lofty realms of great creative artists.

The great artist, addressing an art association the other day, said: "This kind of snobbery can not all heal.

"It is possibly true", he said, "that it prevents a lot of people who attended the Shakespearean festival in Stratford from out of sheer snobbery; but perhaps then they learn something which is good".

But it is not culture but knowledge that is acquired. Knowledge is not everyone's dish. But few people have the courage to admit, publicly, one of his plays, that they were bored. To do so would be to be a philistine, to be regarded as uncultured".

The late King George V once set through a full-length performance of Hamlet before he realized it.

"I'd rather abdicate", growled the king, "than sit through that again".

Both honesty merits emulation.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

IMPORTANT

The liar is one of life's most despicable creatures. When we encounter a person whose spoken word cannot be relied upon we have the terrifying feeling that people are said to have when they find themselves walking through quicksand. The lying tongue is a deceitful one. Shakespeare, it is as keen as a two-edged sword. Security and mutual understanding are dissolved as if with an acid when men or women of lying tongue enter the circle of one's experience.

Business stability depends upon an unshakable "no does happy marriage. So does friendship. The liar can spoil it all and does so if he is accorded the least toleration. Finally, in reality, forcing truth means the setting forth of things as they really are. The most miserable liar in the world is the person who lies to himself, and lies by forces ourselves that we have played the game squarely, that he has spoken the truth on all occasions, that he has spurned dishonesty and dealt in false statement. It is a mighty achievement to come to the end of our lives and to be able to say honestly that we have injured or misled by say word or action of ours.

Paul's counsel to the Colossians (3:9) was, "Lie not to one another . . ."

Strictly Personal
Encouraging That Readers Welcome Idea

By SYDENT J. HARRIS

Within the last few weeks I have received a letter, a clipping from an editor of The Saturday Evening Post asking me to submit ideas for a new Post feature called "Speaking Out," which is designed "to stimulate a little dissent in our society."

This is a very encouraging trend in mass media, and it confirms what I have long felt to be a fact — that the public appetite for is increasing in sophistication at a faster rate than most of the media of communication.

When so conventional and conservative a magazine as the Post is forced to revalue and revise its editorial formula to take more seriously the "voices of dissent," this is open admission that the same publications have been lagging behind the public's growing hunger for something more than intellectual pablum.

Another huge pile of straw in the wind has been the increasing promotional success of my home town paper in offering foreign-language records to its readers at a nominal cost.

Within a few months, more than 150,000 requests had poured in to the newspaper from time to time this appears in print, some 300,000 persons will have participated in the project.

This would have been unthinkable 10, or even 5, years ago. Newspaper promotions at that time were geared to the lowest common denominator, and anyone who proposed dangling foreign-language records before prospective subscribers would have been hooted down as a starry-eyed Utopian.

Slowly but quite perceptibly, however, the American public is reaching a new plateau of sophistication, a plateau which have done best in the last few years have been those which appeal to some specific interest, on a fairly high level; those which have gone out of business (despite huge mass circulation) have been those which still cater to the primitive appetites of the 1890's and 1900's. This has struck home to the editors of a Hearst chain of newspapers as well.

I think that almost everybody has underestimated the public's capacity to grasp ideas. When this column first appeared, 19 years ago, I was told that only a few intellectual would have an extremely limited audience of serious readers for such material. This has not been the case at all; its readership embraces all walks of life and all levels of formal education.

The public, I believe, is not only catching up with its media of communication, in many respects it has pulled ahead of them and is vaguely but profoundly dissatisfied with the same old formulas, the easy answers and the cheap optimism. It is heartening that the Post is finally learning the value of speaking out after speaking down for so long.

To Your Good Health
Sugar Diabetes No Longer Is a 'Sentence of Death'

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"When I was told I had diabetes," a women reader writes, "I thought the end — that it was doomed.

"I joined the diabetes society and in the meeting I went to, I thought, I'd made a mistake and was in the wrong room. Everybody looked so normal and healthy. I thought they'd all look sickly the way I felt I would soon.

"I soon found out I was in the right place, and what a difference it has made to me!"

For years there have been chapters of the American Diabetes Association, made up of doctors and others in the health field.

Today recently, lay societies have been formed as companion groups, composed of people who have diabetes or of those who are interested in controlling this disease.

As some other causes of death have declined in importance, diabetes has risen to about 10th now rank, among the top 10.

Yet, at the same time, the diabetes patient has the same assurance then ever before in history of living normal years and a normal, addicted life span.

Sounds like a paradox? Well, until 35 years ago, anyone who developed diabetes while young died quickly, usually within a few months. Only those who developed diabetes in middle age managed to have children.

A starvation diet was the only known means of extending, even for a little while, the life of such a patient.

Today, with insulin, and with "diabetes pills" of much more recent discovery and quite a few other but less-important ones, the diabetes patient lives a life that is for all practical purposes a normal one, simply shielded by a few moderate rules.

Members of a diabetes society look and act and are just like anybody else. True, a meeting-place is a great many "ills of diabetes," but only at a time when they would have died of some-thing else anyway. We can't all live as long as Methuselah. If I, personally can have my average of 70 years, I'm satisfied, and what I do with the years I have is up to me.

Since, today, diabetes can be a well-controlled, most diabetics (if they develop the disease early) may still live full lives and have children. Since there's a strong hereditary factor involved, it means that many more diabetics are being born now; we have more diabetes.

The difference is this: Learning that one has diabetes no longer is a "sentence of death." Simple care (but one must follow the rules) affords long, happy life.

The day will come, I thoroughly believe, when we must and can detect cases sooner, and can extend the happy life span. To me, that is a most worthy objective. So once a year, about this time, the American Diabetes Association promotes a program for raising all over this continent. From reliable statistics, for every case we know about, there are 10 about which we have not yet found. Have the test! If you DO have it, you have early diabetes, the first stage, and by detecting the easy rules, the longer life with it.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ANTICIPATION

The aimless life is, of course, the headless life — that is, no life at all.

Things that we anticipate nearly always thrill and lift us right out of our ordinary selves.

We should always be planning and looking ahead. And we should always be planning something that may take the place of worn out habits and customs.

Worries will come. Troubles will rise up unbidden to plague us in small mountain. But if you have learned to anticipate these things as conditions bring about, we have need to retire until our energies are gone and a fair renewed strength from the things which we have treasured in bygone days.

If we have lived merely to eat and drink to save, there will come a time when we shall need to call on our reserves and there will be none!

Anticipate change.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The cheerful cynic among my friends believes that you can't get anything for nothing. And when he was a boy he used to spend 98 cents a pound!" he exclaimed.

"That," he said, "will be what they're worth, and a little over.

But I bought a pound. There was a vendor, a Siberian, Almonds, brown and rich looking. And of course some pallid half grown.

The girl scooped me up the pound and put them in a warm bag. At lunch, in the very seedy little restaurant of the place, my cynic bade me empty the bag into a dish he asked the waitress to bring. There were almonds, a pound of pallid half peanuts, and a small smidgin of the pecans, Siberia, that disease of Canadian fresh roasted mixed nuts.

"They hand-sprinkle every few minutes a few fresh nuts on the top," explained my cynic, "but they scoop up the peanuts, which are bulk, underneath. You have here a little less than a pound of pure peanuts."

From now on, when I see bargain sale, I'm going to say to the girl:

"Stir 'em up!"

Will she?

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

Canada Music Week

Profession of Music Teaching

Editor's Note: As this is Music Week in Canada, The Ontario Intelligencer is publishing five articles written by city residents who are teachers or directors of music.

By Sister Mary Avila R.M.T.
Music Teacher of St. Michael's Convent

In bringing music to the people as a great power for the good and the beautiful, the teacher of music is the most important factor, a factor far more important than is the artist. True, the performance of the individual artist enables us to experience, as nothing else could, the power of music to move and elevate; but it is the teacher and the scholar who in their labor fundamentally affect the development and artistic consciousness of the community. It is the teacher who can cause music to be a lasting influence on the lives of people, and it is the teacher who, for millions of people, is the only link with living music, the only guide toward its appreciation, the only carrier of its message.

As music teachers, persons dedicated to the art of music, perhaps we should do some serious thinking. Why are we teaching music? Because music happens to be a talent which we have found convenient and profitable to exploit? Is music teaching for us just a career, a business? Or are we dedicated to the profession of music teaching? Is our music teaching merely a matter of passing on to our students the techniques of playing a particular instrument? Or, are we true educators? "The great teacher," as Vladimir de Pachmann said, "is an artist who works in men and women." What a sublime calling in our profession when viewed in this light!

SERIOUS RESPONSIBILITY

The music teacher has a serious responsibility toward the community as a whole, as well as to her students individually. Because, through her profession, she wields a powerful influence on the cultural trend of her time. It is a responsibility and an ideal in which we all share. The culture to which the public is now exposed is an invitation to mediocrity, and a challenge to improvement. Through teaching music honestly intelligently and enthusiastically we can give the materialistic world of ours some of the inspiration which music imparts.

But before we can hope to enrich the lives of others we must first look within ourselves. We must deepen our own appreciation of the things of the spirit. We must ourselves be convinced that "man does not live by bread alone", that there is a realm of the spirit in which the soul of man must be free to communicate with truth and beauty. If we would teach others there must be also, within ourselves, continued artistic and professional growth. As teachers, we often fail to reach out beyond the performance level of our own students.

Of great importance to the music teacher is a sympathetic understanding of the various personalities and varying degrees of talent that confront her in her daily teaching. Let us teach consistently, in such a way that our students are made increasingly aware of musical elements and given every opportunity to display their aptness to musical expression, be it little or great. The intimacy so easily established between the music teacher and the pupil, through sharing the expression of beauty in music, gives the teacher unequalled opportunities for exerting a deep influence on the pupil's character and life — and thus truly fulfills her mission as an educator.

GREAT REWARDS

We who teach are fortunate, in that the countless masterpieces we have to choose from express all moods, all the qualities of life, all the phases of human thought, and all human yearning for beauty and perfection. This is what we must teach if we are to be worthy of being called educators: not only the craftsmanship of our instrument and the mental discipline necessary to master it, but, above all, the presence of the things that music has to say, if our music teaching contributes vitally to the education of children, and to the enrichment of the home and community, if our actions as teachers make explanations of the value of music unnecessary . . . then we need have no fear for our responsibility toward the cultural development of our country. We love we have for the art of music and for our profession as music teachers will be found its proper mode of expression: "Music is Love in Search Of A Word." Have you ever stopped to think:

Of music as a wondrous magic link
With God, taking sometimes the place of Prayer
When words have failed us 'neath the weight of care?
Music that knows no Country, Race or Creed,
But brings to each according to his need.

KENNEDY OPENS

Germany essential to the city's survival.

The points of difference lie just beyond these agreed fundamentals:

1. Adenauer insists that the Soviet government must agree to destroy the wall built by East Germany to seal off East Berlin from West Berlin. The Kennedy administration does not want to make removal of the wall an absolute requirement of a Western-Soviet Berlin settlement package.

2. Some West German officials favor treating West Berlin as another West German state. Kennedy administration officials do not regard this as a practical possibility in negotiations with Russia.

3. Another problem is that of contacts between West Germans and Communist East Germany. None of the Western powers recognizes East Germany. The United States has been reported favoring the modification of Western attitudes on this point. West Germany has been reluctant to take any steps which seemed to suggest recognition of the Communist regime.

Cadet Corps, Navy League Officers Hold Conference

Close to 25 Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Officers and Navy League of Canada branch personnel held a conference yesterday at the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment armouries to discuss the various problems encountered and methods used by Sea Cadet Corps in carrying out their youth training activities in central and eastern Ontario.

Representatives of Sea Cadet Corps and Navy League branches (which are the local sponsors of corps) from Ottawa, Cornwall, Kingston, Picton, Trenton, Port Hope and Cobourg were present for the conference which was organized by the local Sea Cadet Corps "Quinte". The Ontario Area Officer for Sea Cadets, Lt.-Commander Clare Shaver, accompanied by Commissioned Officer Arthur Hill, was also present to represent the Royal Canadian Navy, which cosponsors Sea Cadet Corps with the Navy League of Canada.

The early arrivals for the conference paraded to Bridge St. United Church and St. Michael's for Sunday service, following which the conference got underway with Lee Grills, M.P. for Hastings South welcoming the visitors and expressing his desire that the conference would be of benefit to those present in carrying on their work in Sea Cadets.

The range of topics ran the gamut from the setting of exams for the new entry, in order to determine his individual ability and grade his training in Sea Cadet work to his capabilities, to providing economical means of transporting Sea Cadets to intercorps events held out of their home area.

PLAN EVENTS

Discussion of a series of planned intercorps events for 1962 resulted in six events being arranged. Regattas are planned by RCSCC "St. Lawrence" of Kingston and "Vanguard" of Toronto. Other events, including the annual church parade, sports day and band competition held by the local corps "Quinte", will include church parades, a swimming meet and a camp-out during the summer. The corps, "Trent" of Trenton, "Hallowell" of Picton, "St. Lawrence" of Kingston and "Quinte" will be host corps for these regular events with a number of the other corps planning occasional events.

Due to the response of the people present the Intercorps officers' conference, which is unique in Sea Cadet work, will again be held next year by "Quinte".

A number of the topics discussed resulted in items being recommended for the agenda of the forthcoming commanding officers' conference to be held in Toronto early next year.

Following the conference a buffet supper was held with those present spending a brief social visit before returning home.

HOW ABOUT THAT? — Shown above are a few of the persons present for the Sea Cadet Corps' officers conference held here yesterday discussing a point on improving Sea Cadet activities. Front row: Lt. Bert Curtis, RCSC, commanding officer of RCSCC "Trent" of Trenton; Mr. Jack Koyl, president of the Navy League of Canada branch in Port Hope; LCDR. Clare Shaver, RCN, Ontario Area Officer; Comm. Arthur Hill, RCN, assistant area officer. Back row: Lt. E. M. Creighton, RCSC, commanding officer of RCSCC "Skeena" of Port Hope; Lt. Bert Prior, executive officer of RCSCC "Hallowell" of Picton; Mr. H. P. Wills, president of the Navy League of Canada branch in Belleville.

Yuletide Decor Demonstrated At WA Meet

The regular meeting of the Bridgewater Street United Church Women's association was held Thursday afternoon in the church parlors. Quiet music by Mrs. F. Hubbs preceded the welcome given by the president, Mrs. H. Gallagher.

The meeting opened with the singing of "Bells and Tenderly Jesus Is Calling". Mrs. T. Poole read the Scripture and a meditation, taken from Roy Marches' book, "Look Up and Live Up", was read by Mrs. Gallagher, on the theme being that each should honor good ordinary people - mother; men, poor but good, who do great deeds of kindness; men, who carry good will into sports, business, driving and even just plain living; women, who face hardship with courage and hard living with grace; - these and many others should be honored with degrees of Christian education, victorious living, Dr. of good will, Dr. of courage.

People like these are examples and raising a youngster slow and a need of zeal. Jesus said, "As much as ye do it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye do it unto me". So always look for the best in others for, that is safe, "then live in the best of us and good in the worst of us", do not criticize!

The committee reports were read and business, including plans for the December meeting, when the W.A. will entertain the W.M.S., were discussed.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. I. Knight introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Willet Barber. Mr. Barber spoke on, and demonstrated, the "making of Christmas decorations". With her deft fingers and imaginative mind she formed many attractive pieces and decorations, including table centres, place cards, hanging rings, and door wreathes. Many of the homes will be fixed better with the help and great gift year because of her demonstrative talk.

Mrs. Clifford Smith thanked the speaker and the president closed the meeting.

Tea was served and a social half hour spent.

KEEP MOISTURE

House plants in plastic pots take less water than in clay pots because there is less evaporation.

Store your coffee pot with lid off to give it an extra air of sweetness. Wash it with soda and rinse thoroughly to clean the vessel effectively.

Women of Moose Plan Children's Yuletide Party

The 1st meeting in November of Belleville 488, Women of the Moose was well attended with Noel Stackhouse presiding. Ruby Hodgins (Recorder) read the correspondence and thank you cards were sent for the business and financial report on pass pottyteas.

The draw donated by Georgina Pickering was won by Bertha Hodgins.

Plans are in the making for the annual Christmas party for the children and the Moose Christmas supper for all members.

Lunch was served after which the Chaplain, Evelyn Bolton gave a few verses of poetry and Noel Stackhouse assisted by Ruby Hodgins and her committee.

Women's Institute

WOODLEY W.I.

WOODLEY—Mrs. Fred Van Vaali was hostess to the Woodley Women's Institute held November 8 in the W.I. Clubroom.

Mrs. Mac Johnson, vice president called the meeting to order with Mrs. Henry McColl at the piano. Mrs. Percy Goodfellow acted as secretary for the meeting. A reading was given by Mrs. Anderson.

Two thank you notes were read one from Mrs. J. Whillans and from the Rev. Father Walsh. A cheque of $5 was received from Mrs. A. Bryant and Mrs. R. Putnam who displayed an exhibit of dolls at the Brighton Fair for the W.I.

Two sisters of Mrs. Percy Goodfellow who have been visiting her from England for three months, Mrs. Spender and Mrs. Vickers, also little white cups filled with green and white mints. Mrs. F. Freeman and Mrs. G. Stone were in charge and were very complimentary sold out.

Mrs. Ray Pound had on display a beautiful selection of Christmas and all kinds, special greeting cards. The Misses Janice and Honora Pound also helped.

At the plant and vegetable booth, gift articles and other small plants, willow tree settings, pumpkins, vegetables of all kinds and baskets of apples were offered for sale. Here, Mrs. Edmund and Mrs. R. McMurter were in charge.

BUSY FISH POND

At four o'clock, the fish pond did a thriving business on the arrival of the numerous school children, and Mrs. Partridge was kept busy for nearly an hour.

The entrance to the tea room was most attractive with an arch of pine and white streamers, entwined with red bitter sweet branches, where Mrs. G. Stenton welcomed the visitors.

ATTRACTIVE TEA TABLE

The large tea table was covered with pcru lace cloth from which a green undercover showed through, which was most attractive. This was centred with a large silver bowl of variegated mums at each end of this was the silver candelabra with tall pastel green tapers wound with small ornaments of bitter sweet. Silver tea services were placed at each end and plates of delicious small cakes and tarts and assorted sandwiches and the attractive green and white serviettes completed this lovely setting.

The small guest tables were covered with snow-white luncheon cloths and centred with a pastel green taper wound with small branches of bitter sweet.

Mrs. G. Brunton and Mrs. C. Dawson assisted by Mrs. B. Walsh were the conveners. Those replenishing were: Mrs. H. Brenton; Mrs. H. Boyce; Mrs. B. Walsh, and Mrs. D. Collett. Mrs. W. Cole made a delicious cup of tea and those pouring were: Mrs. Simpson; Mrs. J. Williams; Mrs. O. Robbins; Mrs. Coles; Mrs. Dawson and Mrs. Throop. Those serving were: Mrs. M. Mitchell; Mrs. R. Brunton; Mrs. D. Graham; Mrs. Day; Mrs. F. Holgate; Mrs. B. Walker; Mrs. H. Putman and others.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. D. Collett to the lovely flowers and to all who helped in any way to make this event such a fine success.

Cannifton United Church WA Holds Annual Tea, Bazaar

The annual Cannifton United Church W.A. tea and bazaar was held recently in the Sunday School rooms. The minister's wife, Mrs. Lawson welcomed all and after a short business meeting the bazaar was open for business.

The president of the W.A., Mrs. J. Boyd and Mrs. Dawson welcomed the visitors at the tea table. Mrs. Whitmore and Mrs. A. Holgate were treasurers for the afternoon.

The second-hand and color scheme throughout were green and white with an added touch of red bitter sweet.

MANY APRONS

A brisk business was conducted at the attractive aprons booth with its various styles and colors, where Mrs. D. Brenton and Mrs. G. Lyons were in charge. The fancy work booth was a sight of beauty with its pretty pillow cases, dresser scarfs, knitted goods and fancy cushions. This was in charge of Mrs. Cora Slade and Mrs. W. Brenton.

The homebaking table was most inviting with its cakes and tarts of all kinds, cookies, pies, pickles and preserves, which was in charge of Mrs. F. Howard, Mrs. J. Botting and Mrs. E. Anderson.

DELICIOUS CANDY

The touch and take table and the homemade candy was combined and many surprises were received from this white wrapped packages. Green and white small boxes made attractive container for the delicious fudges and other candy. Green was also little white teacups filled with green and white mints. Mrs. F. Freeman and Mrs. G. Stone were in charge and soon were completely sold out.

Question: We live in a section where baby-sitters are hard to find. A friend has a marvelous sitter on a fairly regular basis. Recently, when I had to get someone urgently, I called this friend. She gave me her sitter's phone number. The woman obliged, and I've asked her to sit several times since.

Now I understand that my friend is quite upset over my "arrogance" in "stealing" her sitter, which certainly never was my intention. After all, the woman could have refused to sit when I called. Was I being inconsiderate of my friend in asking? — Mrs. S. R., Stamford, Conn.

Answer: Your friend probably didn't think you'd make a habit of hiring her sitter after your original emergency — and that's the rub. She does have first claim — or feels she has — on the sitter's time. The chances are that the sitter had to turn her down on subsequent evenings when you got to her first.

It would have been more considerate if you had called your friend on each occasion to make sure she would not need the sitter at the same time. Don't make a practice of this in the future — if you want to stay on the best of terms with both.

Question: I know the bridegroom usually gives his attendants their gifts at the bachelor dinner. Does the bride also give a special party for her attendants before the wedding and present their gifts in similar fashion? — P.H., New York City.

Answer: The bride often gives her attendants their gifts at a tea or a small dinner before the wedding. Sometimes it's held the same night as the groom's bachelor dinner. But, if things are too hectic, the bride doesn't have to give any sort of party and can present her gifts informally whenever the entire group happens to be together at the same time before the wedding.

Question — My class in high school is having a dance at Christmas time. Tickets are $1.25 each. I'd like to go and invite a boy who lives in my neighborhood, but who goes to a different school. Tickets may be purchased at the door. If he accepts my invitation, who should pay for the tickets? — M. O., Baltimore, Md.

Answer — Since you are issuing the invitation, you should pay for the tickets. It would be simpler if you could buy the tickets in advance and give them to your escort before you arrive at the dance. Check with the dance chairman as to when tickets will be available. If they can be picked up only at the door, then arrange to pay in advance and have them set aside in an envelope marked with your name.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Irwin Watson are shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Shirley Margaret Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mills, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Mills. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Watson, also of Belleville. (Photo by Ted Carter, Belleville).

WATSON — MILLS

White standards of large, white chrysanthemums and ferns adorned the chancel rail in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, for a recent lovely autumn wedding when the Reverend R. D. MacLean, pastor of the church, united in marriage, Shirley Margaret Mills, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. W. J. Mills, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Mills to Walter Irvin Watson, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. William I. Watson.

The wedding music was rendered by the soloist Mrs. D. Shaw, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because".

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. W. Jack Mills, the bride was radiant in her short bridal gown designed on Grecian lines of candlelight embossed taffeta featuring plain short sleeves and classic neckline accenting the beautifully cut molded bodice, and softly flowing skirt. She wore matching short gloves and a double strand of cultured pearls, with shoulder-length veil held by a pearl and encrusted tiara, and carried a cascade of white mums, orchids, and trailing ivy.

Mrs. Lynn (Kay) Wilson, as matron of honor, was attired in dusty-rose taffeta fashioned with bell-shaped skirt and fitted bodice having a Sweetheart neckline and short sleeves. She wore matching gloves and shoes, with flower hat, and carried a cascade bouquet of white Sheana daisies.

Miss Dianne Watson and Miss Patti Lyn Wilson, as junior bridesmaids, wore short, waltz nylon gowns with short sleeves, Sweetheart collars, short white gloves, with sashes and slides in candy-pink with white floral headdresses. They carried nosegays of white Sheata daisies with centres of pink rosebuds.

Mr. Milton Watson, of Peterborough, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Bartley Watson of Cobbyville, and Lynn Wilson, of Belleville were ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors, where the bridal table was appointed with white damask and centred by a three tier wedding cake, flanked by silver candelabra with tall white candles, and misted about the base with white tulle and scattered pink rose buds. The bridal bouquets added a pretty regular accent to the setting.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a royal blue printed matta jersey gown with black accessories, and corsage of white feathered mums. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, in deep mauve printed matta with black accessories, and corsage of white baby mums.

For the wedding trip through the Adirondack Mountains, to Niagara Falls, and Sudbury, the bride travelled in a tweed sheath dress with matching jacket of dark and wood in regency blue, with black accessories, and corsage of white Shasta daisies and white feather bat.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower by the office staff of International Hardware Company of Canada held at the home of Mrs. J. Partridge; at a tea and saucer shower held at the home of Mrs. W. Bell; and at another miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. J. Miller.

Elegant Little Lunch For Bridge Players

By Mary Moore

Helen and George Pollock's home has become our half-way house on our drive from Ottawa, because we were so hungry Helen served us an appetizer course while frogs' legs and steward were still cooking. Fancy fare for tired travellers and ever so welcome.

While I was tasting what Helen called our appetizer I was thinking what a lovely little lunch it would make for an afternoon bridge.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

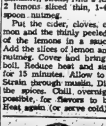
Braised Lamb Ribletz; Mint Jelly; Noodles; Brussel Sprouts; Chef's Salad; Deep Apple Pie with Cheese; Coffee.

FROZEN FRUIT SALAD

1 8-oz. package cream cheese; scant 1-2 cup mayonnaise, 3 to 4 tablespoons top milk, 1 cup fruit cocktail cocktail, medium size, lemon juice to taste. Mix softer cream cheese, milk and mayonnaise until smooth. Add drained fruit cocktail. Freeze in ice cube trays. Cut into squares and serve on cupped limer lettuce leaves, re quiree no garnish.

LEMON CREAM SCONES

2 cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, 4 tablespoons butter or other shortening, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 2 eggs, 1-3 cup light cream or rich milk, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1-2 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and sugar, and sift again. Cut in shortening and lemon rind. Reserve about 1-2 cup white for glaze. Beat remaining eggs well and add cream or milk. Add to flour mixture, and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. Stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough and follows spoon around bowl.



Turn out on slightly floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll 1-2" thick and cut in narrow triangles. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Brush tops lightly with reserved egg white, slightly beaten; sprinkle with mixture of sugar and grated lemon rind. Bake at 450 deg. Fehr. for 12 minutes, or until browned.

Serve wiki.

HOT SPICED CIDER

2 quarts cider, 12 cloves, 4 cinnamon sticks, rind 2 lemons, 2 lemons sliced thin, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg.

Put the cider, cloves, cinnamon and the thinly peeled rind of the lemons in a saucepan. Add the slices of lemon and the nutmeg. Cover and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 15 minutes. Allow to cool. Strain through muslin. Discard the spices. Chill overnight if possible, for flavors to blend. Heat again (or serve cold).

SUNBEAM M.B.

RAWDON — Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Sunbeam Mission Band convened at the church hall with 32 children and four adults in attendance.

Barbara Williams gave the call to worship and all sang "Little Sunbeams." Judy McAdam gave the prayer and the group sang "O Valiant Hearts" in commemoration of Remembrance Day.

Mrs. Herbert Smith conducted the devotional on the theme "Life's New Direction in Christ" and read the Bible verses and meditation. Janet Scott gathered the offering, which the president dedicated with a prayer. Carolyn Johnson gave her report.

Brenda Williams and Jean Jeffs each contributed a piano solo.

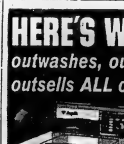
Three selections were read by Glenn Spencer, Brenda Campbell and Joyce Jeffs. A vocal selection was rendered by Jean Sharpe. Miss Diane McAdam outlined the primary story on the theme, "Jaimie's Big Question." Jaimie's teacher explained that Bibles are printed in more than one language and later he took Jaimie to Mr. Ho, where he went for himself how the Bible is printed in the Portuguese language.

Mrs. Stanley William outlined the Junior story. This was centre as well as a church. They thought Rhode Island Red's chicks to replace their scrawny little hens, and cleared up the litter in the streets of the town. The villagers studied their Bibles and learned a better way of life.

The next meeting will be centred on Christmas and its wondrous message.

FRANKFORD C.A.'s

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle C.A.'s held the regular monthly meeting on the evening of November 17.



The president; Keith Hoinson welcomed everyone and opened the service. Prayer was led by Miss Connie Wood. Vice-president Gordon Smith read the Scripture reading. Pastor, Lloyd Wood and Mr. Jerry Wager of E.P.B.C. Peterborough, Choir, were present to lead the singing.

The ushereties' Misses Linda Fisher and Gloria Reilly received the evening offering. Mr. J. Wager of E.P.B.C. Peterborough brought the evening message from Jeremiah, 18, speaking on "The Potter and the Marry".

The service closed with a time of prayer.

ANCIENT SPORTS

The first mounted horse races of which there is record were run at Olympia in Greece in 624 BC.

Minor Hockey

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association's peewee and bantam teams saw action at Memorial Arena Saturday with nine games being played in all.

In the bantam loop Quinte defeated the Maple Leafs 4-0 with D. Beresford scoring three goals for the winners. Beresford also assisted on the other goal, scored by D. Dickey. S. Maloney and Dickey had one assist each. D. Muldoon potted both Leaf goals with B. Salisbury helping on one.

The Browns squeezed out a 2-1 win over the Bruins on goals by C. Moore and L. Townsend. John Smith and K. Martin drew the assists. J. Pringle scored for Bruins with help from K. Legg.

A hat-trick by R. Beleman provided the Rangers with the winning margin in a 5-3 decision over the Black Hawks. B. Fullerton and T. McDonald also scored while M. Dalnard picked up two assists. J. Murphy and A. Martin potted the Hawks' goals and F. Ellis had one assist.

The Mets shaded the Barons 5-4. The Mets' goals were divided among D. Muir, B. Forgie, L. Pollitt, J. Doran and R. Wardaugh while assists went to K. Richards, Muir, M. Cook and Pollitt. J. Ling scored once and drew two assists for the Barons. W. McTaggart had one and one assist while Doran picked up two assists to J. Cockburn and R. Dryadale.

In the peewee division the Maple Leafs downed Quinte Steelers 6-4 with C. Wilson and A. Bradley each scoring twice and Bob Lambert also scored. Lambert had a pair of assists and Lumsden an assist. Rick Day potted two Bruin goals with the aids for John Parsons and Ted Sullivan. Herrington and Sullivan also had assists.

Red Wings took a 3-1 win over the Canadiens as L. Moore scored two goals. T. Boulter got the other and Blatford drew an assist. J. Parry bagged the Habs' goal.

Black Hawks blanked the Rangers 3-0 on goals by Richard Holmes, J. Henn and A. Shipkaluska. Gordon Meagher drew two assists, G. White one.

Barons defeated the Macs 6-2. J. Holgate paced the winners with two goals and two assists. D. Loder also scored twice, R. Locke and J. Blatchford once each. R. Mitchell had a goal and assist, A. Jones a goal and D. MacDonald an assist for the Macs.

Shamcats Nip Bulldogs

MONTREAL (CP) — Verdun Shamcats rallied behind substitute quarterback Bobby Anderson to score 13 points in the fourth quarter and scrape by Winnipeg's St. Vital Bulldogs 23-22 in the Canadian Intermediate football final Sunday.

The Shamcats got the winning touchdown on a 13 - yard pass from Anderson to halfback Jim Montgomery in the last minute of the game.

Anderson entered the game early in the second half when regular Verdun quarter b a c k George Thomas was injured. The score was 16-7 for the Bulldogs.

Giants Whip Steelers

Jim Brown Blasts Eagles

NEW YORK (AP) — Y. A. Tittle, New York's bald bomber, has passed the Giants into first place in the National Football League's Eastern Conference doorstep, but he needed a record - breaking performance by Cleveland's Jimmy Brown to complete the job, today.

While Tittle was leading the Giants to a 42-31 thumping of Pittsburgh Sunday, Brown crushed for a one-game record of 237 yards and scored four touchdowns as the Browns blitzed Philadelphia 45-24 Sunday and knocked the Eagles out of a tie for the top.

Brown, league ground-gaining champion all four years he's been in the NFL, eclipsed his own mark of 237 yards set in 1957 by averaging more than six yards a carry, and added 52 yards by catching three passes.

The loss was Philadelphia's second succession—the Giants gave them a 38-21 beating last week—and dropped the defending champions into a second-place tie with the Browns, one game behind the Giants. New York is 9-2, Cleveland and Phil, Philadelphia 7-2.

Green Bay Packers, playing for the first time without scoring Ming Paul Hornung, maintained their big-game edge in the Western Conference race by whipping Los Angeles Rams 35-17 for their 8-2 record with four games to play.

DETROIT BEATS VIKINGS

Detroit Lions, runners-up in the west at 8-3-1, rolled to a 37-10 victory over Minnesota Vikings while San Francisco 49ers, put a damper on Chicago Bears' hopes with a 41-31 win. Baltimore Colts blanked St. Louis Cardinals 16-0 and Washington Redskins ended their losing streak by tying Dallas Cowboys 28-28.

U.S. College Football

NEW YORK (AP) — Lowly Texas Christian, a four - time loser and 25 - point underdog, turned in the upset of the season Saturday with a 6-0 shutout of mighty Texas, the top-ranked U.S. college football team.

A shocked crowd of 50,000 watched partisan Texas, benched in disbelief as inspired Texas Christian mounted three goal - line stands and made its 67-yard touchdown march count up against Texas, which hadn't been impressed in winning eight straight.

The upset left only Alabama, ranked second, and Rutgers undefeated among the major U.S. teams. Rutgers, which has no major football aspirations, turned back Colgate 26-6. Alabama, angling for a Rose Bowl spot, chalked up its ninth straight with a 10-0 decision over Georgia Tech.

Syracuse, ranked 19th, also was an upset victim. Syracuse bowed to Notre Dame 17-15 when Joe Perkowski booted a 41 - yard field goal for Notre Dame with no time remaining on the clock, virtually eliminating Syracuse from the bowl picture.

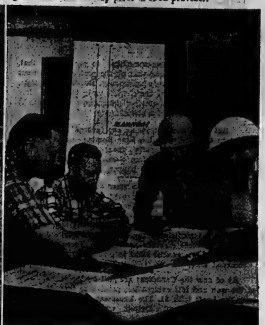
World Food Gains from Saskatchewan Mining

Canadian Deposit Largest in World



Air view of nearly-finished surface facilities shows three "Beehive" storage bins, offices, warehouses, workshops, mill, railways and head shaft. Increased food supply needed to feed world's growing population, in turn, spurs potash demand. Combination of high-grade wheat and potash gives Saskatchewan top place as food provider.

National Film Board of Canada Photos by Chris Lund

Sinking shaft through 200-foot-thick layer of high-pressure sand, clay and water, 1,300 feet below ground, was major engineering obstacle. Shaft engineers expect little further trouble in reaching potash beds at 3,150-foot level.

How many more years can Canadian agriculture produce its rich, annual yield of food? How is the exploding world population going to be fed? The spider-web pattern of the storage bin, above, will soon be spread over a 35,000-ton answer to these questions. This cone-shaped, 200-foot-diameter bin, at Esterhazy, 120 miles east of Regina, was not built to hold a harvest of golden grain. It is one of three giant storehouses built to contain the first sizeable crop of potash — vital mineral fertilizer for all growing things — that will shortly be mined half a mile below the Saskatchewan prairie. This deposit of potash — biggest in the world — will help Canadian farmers harvest larger yields from less acreage and end reliance on lower-quality imports. In addition, large exports will be made to the United States and other countries. First-year production from Esterhazy is expected to reach 420,000 tons. This will be trebled the following year, in striking contrast to present annual imports of 150,000 tons — worth four million dollars. The Esterhazy mine shaft is one of several prairie probes that have battled through the surface formations, acting as mammoth, life-giving roots for world agriculture. The valuable potash they draw to the surface, made into chemical fertilizer, will boost the larders of the earth's hungry millions. And, for Esterhazy, Saskatchewan, the mine development since 1957 has meant changing from just another small, wheat-growing village on the prairie to: Esterhazy, the Potash Town of Canada and, some predict, potash capital of the world.

SHAFT STARTED IN '57

A start on sinking the Esterhazy mine shaft was made in August, 1957. Until then the economy of this Saskatchewan village was contained in one word: "wheat." The following year the Esterhazy Council and the Community Planning Branch of the Department of Municipal Affairs for Saskatchewan formed a long-range plan for the town's development. Its title, "Esterhazy, the Potash Town, Plans its Development," tells its own story.

But the physical problem of getting through to the potash beds, 3,150 feet below the prairie, was no easy nut to crack. Like all ancient treasure-houses the Esterhazy deposit had its formidable guardian—a 200-foot-thick conglomeration of sand, clay and water with a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch. To solidify this barrier and allow passage of the 18-foot diameter shaft, a special brine solution at a temperature of 58 degrees below zero was pumped down to the 1,240-foot level, the beginning of the Blairmore formation as the barrier is called. The brine, having frozen the Blairmore into immobility, the shaft was then sunk and lined with tubbing sections of cast iron to form a solid metal casing. Jackhammers chipped away at the frozen formation and every five feet a sectioned ring of cast iron was placed in position. Finally, 78 rings weighing 44 tons each were in place from the 1,150 to the 1,458-foot level. At either end of this long vertical tube, water seepage seals were made by pounding 15,000 pitchpine wedges between the metal and the shaft wall—a mass of wood so dense a steel spike cannot be driven into it.

The last bolt to secure the last tubbing section was formally tightened up earlier this year by Saskatchewan's Premier, T. C. "Tommy" Douglas. In this ceremony Mr. Douglas was assisted by Mr. Tagaragi, Consul, Japanese Embassy in Ottawa, Saskatchewan Minister of Natural Resources J. H. Brockelbank, and mining company officials.

Surprising Blues Tied For Second Spot

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It was a real exciting weekend for sports buffs, depending of course on whose team won. Argonauts addicts horseback claim Yobin Rote and company proved their sparkling win over the Ottawa Rough Riders a week ago was no flash in the pan, when they trounced the Hamilton Tiger Cats by an 18-point margin.

Rovin' Rote again sparked the victorious Argos completing 32 out of 39 passes "walking" over the line for the first major himself.

Coach Jim Trimble of the Tiger Cats paid fine tribute to Argos saying they played "almost flawless ball" but he refused to admit defeat as the round. He said "we've been behind before in similar situations. We trailed Ottawa by 13 points after the first playoff game in 1958 and came back to win. And I recall on occasions when we were 17 points behind at halftime of a game this season against Argos and we managed to win. I wouldn't say the situation is insurmountable, besides gentlemen," he told reporters "it only half-time."

The Argos may have something to say about that. They have been "up" and well up the past two games out and they've came through handsomely. But the Tiger Cats, always tough to beat at home, will be in their own lair next Saturday and you can bet grampappy's store teeth it will be a humdinger of a battle.

But right now Argonauts are favored to win the eastern title and with the Blue Bombers setting back Calgary in their playoffs opener, it looks like a Boomer-Argonaut Grey Cup classic. Bet don't hold your breath, anything can happen.

The New York Rangers were thumping and the Black Hawks still slumping over a torrid National Hockey League weekend. They held the loop-leading Montreal Canadiens to a four-all tie Saturday and roared back to whip the Maple Leafs 5-3 last night with Earl Ingarfield in the hero role. Ingarfield ripped home three markers against the Toronto crew and scored one against Hahn to give him four for the weekend take.

As of now the Canadiens are still on top if you look at the won and lost column but point-wise they are tied with the Leafs with 21. The Broadway Blues are a mere two points behind while Detroit which whipped Boston 6-2 last night after being drubbed 6-1 in Toronto Saturday trail by 4c. Boston still in the cellar is but two points behind the still-sagging Hawks.

The victory cry of the Golden Gaels rang out clear and strong in Kingston Saturday after they had won the college football title by trouncing McGill 11-6. Quarterback Cal Conner of Queen's played a brilliant game and prevented the Redmen from making their second victorious comeback in as many years. Conner scored Queen's only touchdown in the first quarter and helped set up the clinching field goal in the third frame. The Tricolor played brilliant defensive football behind Conner and proved a big thorn in the side of the stylish McGill quarterback Tom Skypeck.

Tonight Jean Paul Lamirande's Belleville Pepsi's race their first big test in the Lakeshore Intermediate Hockey League, trekking to Uxbridge to clash with the Black Hawks of that town in their opening game of the season. The Napanee Comets are back here Wednesday night to pry the lid off hockey in the city.

"Lammy" has rounded up a strong team on paper and they should give a good account of themselves in tonight's clash. Uxbridge, an unknown quantity player-wise, defeated the Trenton RCAF Globetrotters 7-3 in their league game last week, but you cannot go by that. Rumor has it that the Hawks playing coach Fred Eicher, who wore a Belleville uniform on one or two occasions before the eastern senior league flopped, has some of the ex-Whitby Dunlops on his roster.

The Pepsi's leave around six o'clock by car from Memorial Arena. The club has been burning the midnight oil in heavy training grinds and Lammy is quite satisfied with their efforts.

Ingarfield Scores Four

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers, the surprise team of the National Hockey League, came up with three of a possible four points during the weekend and pushed into a second - place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Rangers also came up with a surprise scorer in Earl Ingarfield, who rapped in the first hat trick of his National Hockey League career as New York downed Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3 Sunday and got one more goal Saturday when the Rangers tied Montreal 4-4.

It was a discouraging weekend for Montreal's Canadiens, who managed two ties and bunch on to the National Hockey League lead by the skin of their teeth. They're now leading with 22 points, just one ahead of the Leafs and Rangers.

Toronto's Leafs looked like world - beaters as they battered Detroit Red Wings 6-1 Saturday in Toronto — they could have made the score a lot higher except they were sloppy on their shooting and missed first place when the Rangers outplayed them Sunday.

CRUSH REUBS

Detroit came back with a vengeance Sunday at Boston, crushing the last - place Bruins 6-2 and dropping Boston three points behind Chicago Black Hawks, whose 3-3 tie with Canadiens kept them one point out of the last playoff position.

Ingarfield, a hefty centre, moved up into fourth place in the NHL scoring race with his outburst of five goals.

He now has 11 goals and nine assists for 20 points in 18 games and is off to what amounts to by far his best season. He scored only 13 goals in his entire season with New York last year — his first full season—and got a total of two goals in two other seasons when he played 56 games in all.

Ingarfield's third goal against Toronto was into an empty net when the Rangers were leading 4-3 with 30 seconds left and the Maple Leafs yanked goaler Johnny Bower to try for extra power.

Ranger captain Andy Bathgate aided on all the first four goals, two of Ingarfield's and the others scored by defenceman Jimmy Langlois and Andy Hebenton.

Toronto fought back three times to tie the game, getting goals from Ron Stewart, Red Kelly and Frank Mahovlich.

GETS FIRST PENALTY

Kelly, the league's prime candidate for the Lady Byng Trophy, got his first penalty of the year Saturday in Toronto during the Leafs win over Detroit.

Saturday, Ingarfield scored once and assisted once as the Rangers, outplayed almost all the way, managed to match Montreal goal for goal. Bathgate's second goal of the game, 12 minutes after the third period opened, made the deadlock.

Ingarfield and Hebenton gave New York a quick 2-0 lead, but a goal by Don Marshall and two by Dickie Moore put the Canadiens ahead 3-2, and little Bobby Rousseau, getting his second goal of the season, made it 4-2.

Bathgate's first goal of the night cut the margin to 4-3 before the second period ended.

The tie snapped Montreal's three - game losing streak.

Yanking the goalie may not have worked for Toronto, but it worked in Chicago, where Black Hawks pulled out Glenn Hall in the last minute of the game and Bobby Hull jammed in the tying goal with six seconds left in the game.

FALLS BEHIND

As in New York Saturday, Montreal fell behind 3-0 in the first period on two goals by Bronco Horvath. After a scoreless second period, the Canadiens looked as though they had it sewn up after a blazing third period in which Gilles Tremblay, Lou Fontinato and Moore put them ahead until the very end.

The Black Hawks, defending National Hockey League champions who are in an unexplainable slump, remained in fifth place with 14 points, one less than Detroit.

The Red Wings couldn't do more than get one goal Saturday against the Leafs in Toronto — Norm Ullman scored at 1:51 of the final session — and their defence was riddled with holes.

Bobby Pulford even managed to break through and get one goal when his own team was short - handed. Leafs spread the scoring around, with goals going to Mahovlich, Pulford, Dick Duff, Bert Olmstead, Stewart and George Armstrong.

It was a different Detroit team that travelled to Boston Sunday.

Fired up by old reliable Gordie Howe, who scored once and set up two others in his 997th NHL game, the Wings easily outdistanced Boston 6-2.

Vic Stasiuk got one goal against his former teammates and Ullman scored twice. Rookie Marc Boileau contributed the first NHL goal of his career — he was brought up from the American Hockey League only a few weeks ago down — and Howie Glover also got one.

Whip McGill 11-0

Golden Gaels Win Rah-Rah Title

KINGSTON (CP)—The scene he held unhappy memories for Queen's Golden Gaels but they trotted out in Richardson Memorial Stadium Saturday determined not to let history stage a repeat.

It didn't.

The Gaels, described by coach Frank Tindall as "28 keyed up, thrilled McGill's vaunted passing attack when it counted, made the most of their own chances and won an 11-0 playoff victory to end the Redmen's brief reign as Senior intercollegiate football champions.

Although the Gaels were on the low side of the statistics in winning their first crown since 1956, they received some versatile quarter backing from Chunky Cal Conner and converted three alert defensive plays into scores.

The first came when McGill rookie Eric Walker fumbled on his own 25 in the first quarter. Kent Plumley scooped up the ball and ran it to the 12 from where Conner sent the Gaels into a spread formation but elected to run up the middle twice and then Conner, on a keeper, bulled his way over the goal line.

Conner's convert attempt was wide.

The second Gael touchdown came in the second quarter when Conner hit Jack De La Vergne with a 15-yard pass. De La Vergne grabbed the loose ball out of the air for one of the three interceptions on Skypeck.

Queen's, helped by Conner's important third - down plunge, moved it in range for a 34-yard field goal by Strickler.

As they did in 1960, the Redmen dropped their first two games but finished strong to knock off the previously-unbeaten Gaels in the last game of the regular season and force a playoff. Last year McGill won 25 to 6 in the first game,

Argonauts Pile Up 18-Point Lead

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TORONTO (CP) - Toronto Argonauts have put two brilliant 68-minute football games together and they're on the threshold of a Grey Cup berth.

The Argos, who managed only seven victories in 14 Eastern Conference games this year, smashed the league-leading Hamilton Tiger - Cats 25-7 Sunday to take an 18-point lead into the Mountain City next Saturday in the second game of the total - point eastern final. And if they can continue this end - of - season splurge they'll meet the western champs in the Dec. 2 cup final.

They started this rally with a 43-19 walloping of the second-place Rough Riders at Ottawa in the sudden-death semi-final a week ago. That, in itself, was a surprise and there weren't many in the East's largest football crowd in history at Toronto who figured they could put two exceptional performances back to back.

But they did and the old-fashioned shotgun spread, the modern-day version of the old short punt formation, set it up for them.

"The score isn't insurmountable, of course," said a subdued Tizzy coach Joe Ziambiasi after Sunday's slaughter before a sellout 30,136 crowd at the waterfront Canadian National Exhibition Stadium. "They played flawless football."

ROTE-WAS MASTER

Flawless was the word for it. And the master was veteran quarterback Tobin Rote who operated out of a variation of the shotgun offence. He started off by tossing it to the old-fashioned way — standing alone 10 yards behind the line of scrimmage with the potential pass receivers spread out. Then he moved up directly behind centre while still keeping half a dozen men wide.

The Ali-Cats was just about a standoff with Argonauts ahead 3-2 by Rote, who connected on 26 of 39 passes for 351 yards, broke the game wide open with a 20-point second-half scoring spree. He scored a touchdown himself on one touchdown strikes to Bobby Taylor and Dave Mann for 29 and 47 yards.

Guard Bill Mitchell kicked three converts and a 38 - yard field goal and Mann added a single to round out the Argos scoring.

Tiger-Cats, who had won all three Toronto league games from the Toronto club in finishing first with 10 wins against only four losses, were in contention until the final 15 minutes they trailed 9-0 in the first quarter, 9-2 at the half and 15-4 after three quarters.

Quarterback Bernie Faloney, who completed only 12 passes in 25 tosses for 79 yards, rambled 38 yards for Tizzis' only touchdown and Don Sutherin, who intercepted two Rote passes and was a mishesh on defence, contributed a single from a wide, 44-yard, second-quarter, field goal attempt.

Faloney's touchdown sprint was small consolation for Hamilton's total net yardage gain along the ground throughout the contest. Tizzis managed only 80 yards, which was 46 more than Toronto picked up on rushing — but then Rote depended mainly on his good right arm to move the club.

SHAITO INTERCEPTS — Halfback Dick Shaitto (centre) of Toronto Argos was intended for halfback Milan Wall of Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Sunday's Eastern Football Conference final in Toronto. It was the first interception of the game for Argos who won 25-7 and meet Hamilton in the deciding game next Saturday. (CP Photo).

James Paces Bomber Win

By DENNIS ORCHARD

CALGARY (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers took a step towards their fourth Grey Cup berth in five years, by turning Gerry James loose against Calgary Stampeders Saturday in a 34-1 victory opening the Western Football Conference final.

Bombers stopped the Stampeders spread formation cold before 18,500 fans as James, a Canadian fullback, broke loose on a 74-yard run to set up the game's only touchdown and kicked the convert, and a pair of field goals. Otherwise, both teams were scoreless.

It was Winnipeg's 20th straight road victory, dating back to their 1959 Grey Cup victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats. The Bombers can wrap up the best-of-three final with a win in Winnipeg Wednesday night.

"A real rough, tough football game," summed up Stampeder coach Bobby Dobbs Sunday. "Our defence played an excellent game and Winnipeg's defence was very rugged."

Calgary's loss was compounded by a clock of minor injuries. The worst were a new pull at the sprained ankle of tackle George Hamson, and a pulled groin suffered by centre Dick Fencross. He will see limited action Wednesday.

Driver Killed In Car Race

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Al Keller, 41 - year - old race driver from Green Acres, Fla., was killed Sunday when his car flipped during the Bobby Ball memorial 100 - mile race at Phoenix.

Keller spun into the north turn at the state fairground track when his Konstant Hot Special skidded. The right front dug in and the racer flipped several times. Keller was pronounced dead at the scene.

The veteran racer finished 12th in the Indianapolis 500 this year. He had survived bad wrecks in 1955 and 1957 at Indianapolis and again at Langhorne, Pa., in 1957.

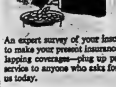
Parnelli Jones of Torrance, Calif., won the abbreviated race, halted after 90 laps around the one - mile oval because of darkness.

St. F.X. Wins Grid Title

HALIFAX (CP) — Veterans Woody Hayes and Jock Simpson provided the punch Saturday as St. Francis Xavier University X-Men won their fourth straight Maritime football title with a 42-6 victory over Mount Allison University Mounties.

Hayes scored two touchdowns and was a defensive star as Mounties tried to get their running attack going in the Purdy Cup game before 3,000 fans.

The victory gives the X-Men the Atlantic Football Conference championship for the third consecutive year. They will meet McMaster University Marauders of Hamilton in Saturday's third annual Atlantic Bowl game here.



Patterson Leads Bowling

CHICAGO (AP) — Pat Patterson of St. Louis, broke his 15-game scoring record Sunday to take a three - pin lead in the qualifying round of the fifth annual world's invitational bowling tournament.

Patterson had a total of 3,980 pins, breaking the previous record of 3,958 set by Jimmy Carman of Dallas in 1958. Trailing Patterson by three pins but also breaking Carman's record was Leo Mann, 34, of St. Paul, Minn.

Toni Cahlo of Leamington was far back with a total of 3,681 pins. He rolled games of 211, 215, 181, 220, 249 and 225 for 1,301 Sunday.

The entire field of 128 bowlers will shoot six more games today with the high 47 joining defending champion Don Carter of St. Louis in the semi - finals of the $48,000 tournament Tuesday.

Two New York Rangers made the biggest gains in the National Hockey League scoring race during the weekend.

Andy Bathgate, fighting a season-long battle since the beginning of the season with Montreal's Claude Provost, regained much of the leadership with a two-goal, five - point weekend for a total of 31 points, six better than Earl Ingarfield, got four goals and one assist, to gain a fourth-place tie with Boston's Don McKenney. Each has 20 points.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Bathgate, New York	9	22	31
Provost, Montreal	14	11	25
Geoffrion, Montreal	8	15	23
Ingarfield, New York	11	9	20

Buryk, Boston	5	14	19

Joyces Whip Vagdens, Booths Win

Joyce Real Estate moved to the top of the Belleville Industrial Hockey League last night when they overpowered a weak Vagden Mills team by a 10-1 count.

In the other half of the double-header, Booth TV's clanked Quinte Printing's Pirates 3-3 in a much better contest.

Joyces scored five goals in the first half of the game and had built a 10-0 lead before Vagden's one of the loop's new entries, scored their lone goal with just a few minutes left to play. Hugh Pointer scored the Vagden goal with Bob Dugan assisting.

Bert Faulkner and Hyde Bryant each scored two goals for the winners. Doug Morosi, Jackie Elliott, Jim Sheridan, Wayne Fox, Bill Vesterfelt and Buck Reeves added the other goals. Joe Arsenault threw assists to Bryant, Morosi and Faulkner two each, Murphy and Thompson one apiece.

Referee Vern Gover and Harry Morgan blinded out 14 minor penalties, eight to the losers.

In the nightcap, Booths opened up a 2-0 lead in the first half and moved 3-0 early in the second. Napanee made it close with a late minute surge of the game, Eddie Buck scoring from Birth and Conway while the TV's got the insurance goal. Bob Birch cutting the lead to 3-3 while Jim Falconer threatened vas had a man in the penalty box. Conway also assisted on this one.

Greg St. Jean opened the game scoring while Napanee was short a man at 12.10 of the first. Ab Wright made it 2-0 just before the half ended. Derbie Hughes assisted on both. three goals and scored the third himself, with Wright assisting while their club was shorthanded at 6.50 of the second half.

Bobs's picked nine of the game's 15 minor penalties.

The league standings, after two week's play, shows Joyces with four points, Rollins Construction and Booth's with two each, Napanee and Vagden Mill with none.

The league's final signing date has been set for December 10 and an effort will be made to strengthen the Vagden team prior to then. The loop's other four clubs appear evenly matched.

Beavers Win

Wolves Tie Kingston

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers are steamrolling along in front of the Eastern Professional Hockey League East and showing no signs of engine trouble. A 5-4 win over South Sts. Maple Thunderbirds at Kitchener Saturday strengthened Beavers' hold on first place. The win left Beavers with 27 points — nine ahead of Kingston Frontenacs and Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, who share second place.

In other weekend action, Hull - Ottawa moved up from third to a tie for second place, defeating the Jacksons Bears 5-1 at home Sunday. Frontenacs tied Rockingy Wolves 4-4 at Kingston Saturday and North Bay Trappers downed Sudbury Wolves in a home game, Sunday.

LINE SHINES

The line of Bob Cunningham, Leon Rochefort and Chick Zamboni led the Beavers attack against the Saints with a goal apiece. Bryan Hextall and Ed Hoekstra scored the other Kitchener goals.

Norm Golmond, Dusty Blair, Merv Edwards and Pete Robinson came through with the Sault goals.

Robinson also scored Sault's lone tally Sunday. Sharing the Habs goals were Ralph Backstrom, Keith McCreary, Barclay Plager and rookies Brian Smith and Bill Hicke.

Bears Take Twin Wins, Nudge Tribe

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Springfield Indians, who usually lead the American Hockey League by any margin they went to, are getting a run for their money from Hershey Bears.

The Bears, by virtue of a couple of weekend victories and a pair of Springfield defeats, have moved within one point of the Indians in the league's Eastern Division standings.

Hershey followed a 5-1 triumph over Providence Saturday with Sunday night's 6-3 victory over Buffalo to put the heat on the Indians, two-time regular - season and playoff champions.

Springfield, which lost to Cleveland 3-1 Saturday and to Providence 4-3 Sunday, has 73 points, just one up on Hershey's 72.

In other Sunday games, Pittsburgh broke a five-game Hershey - eater streak with a 4-2 win. Cleveland turned back Quebec 4-2. With Rochester and Buffalo held back, the Americans maintained a two-point lead in the Western Division.

Bob Dillabough and Claude La Forge each got a pair for Hershey with Earl Balfour and Willie Marshall contributing the others. Bob Chrystal, Wayne Hicks and Barry Cullen did the Buffalo scoring.

Baby Habs Edge Teeps, Irish Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A hard-fought 5-4 win over St. Catharines Teepees Saturday night left Montreal Junior Canadiens in second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series.

Réjean Richer led the Canadiens with a pair of goals and singles went to Jacques Laperrière, Norm Dennis and Bill Inglis.

A St. Catharines crowd of 1,481 saw Phil Esposito score three for the Teepees. Ray Cullen got the other goal.

Meanwhile, the league-leading Hamilton Red Wings downed Toronto St. Michael's Majors 4-2 in an exhibition game Sunday. The Majors lead the Metropolitan Division under A loop.

In regular play in the Metro League, St. Michael's widened their lead Saturday with a 6-2 win over Whitby. Runner-up Toronto ties Unionville 3-3 Sunday.

Ortiz Verdicts Rosi

NEW YORK (AP) — Carlos Ortiz, the former junior welterweight champion of the world, got off the ropes to outpoint Paolo Rosi Saturday night in a 10-round television bout.

The victory earned Ortiz a March, 1962, shot at world lightweight champion Joe Brown.

The decision was unanimous, but close. Judge Frank Forbes and referee Ruby Goldstein each had Ortiz ahead 5-3-1. Judge Joe Agnello had him in front 6-4.

Rosi, who was stopped by Brown because of cuts after leading most of the way in a bid for the title more than two years ago, floored Ortiz in the ninth round with a left hook to the jaw.

Both were well marked at the end. The 33-year-old Rosi, eight years older than Ortiz, opened a cut over Ortiz's left eye in the first round.

North. Electric Hockey League

Indians trounced Hornets 8-3 in the second half of the Northern Electric Interdepartmental Hockey League on Sunday, in the game the Flyers shaded the Comets 6-5.

Davy Jones with two goals and two assists paced the Indians' victory. Cornell and Soule each scored a pair with Green and Pukanchik tallying singles in Pukanchik and Barrett were credited with two assists each Soule, Cornell and Green each and helpers.

Hull scored twice for the losers with D. Semanik accounting for the third goal. Smith, Hull, Semanik and Philp had assists.

Four penalties, all minors, were handed out by referees Vern Goyer and W. Royce.

Taylor scored four times in the Comets' lost cause, Reynolds getting the fifth marker. Rygroski, Taylor, Hazel, Hamilton and Hutchinson each had assists.

Gill paced the Hornets with with three goals and an assist. Adams scored a pair and McLeod one. Creighton, Mc Kay and Wardhaugh also helped on other goals.

Skelly and Bedard each drew minors and major penalties. Five other minors were handed out by the officials.

Bare Bones of Intermezzo Were Painfully Visible

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — If ever the acting magic of Ingrid Bergman and the late Leslie Howard was demonstrated, it was Sunday night when NBC's Theatre 62 adapted the screen play Intermezzo into an hour - long television play.

Without the stars of the original movie, the bare bones of this thin plot were painfully visible. It was just another story of a self-indulgent man on an extra-marital romp.

Jean Pierre Aumont played the man as overbearing and selfish. Neither beautiful Ingrid Thulin nor Teresa Wright, playing the mistress and the forsaken wife, had much to do except wring their hands.

The most interesting venture of the weekend was Friday night's Vincent Van Gogh, a Self Portrait, on NBC. The photography was superb. Often the film camera lingered on a view which the painter had fixed on his canvas and then he saw the painting.

The color was insignificant. But only a tiny fraction could use it—and in the case of Van Gogh's paintings, color was the essence of his work.

Richard Salant, president of CBS news, recently sent a note to Edward R. Murrow, "Ed Sullivan when his network's news reports are called "shows" or even "programs."

Actually, no one has yet come up with a better word to describe words for the function of men like Chet Huntley, Walter Cronkite and others. The networks have borrowed liberally from newspapers in their terminology. For instance, they call some of their staff men "correspondents," but because most of them talk their stories rather than write them (and often somebody does the writing for them) that is an inexact word, too. Salant prefers "broadcaster" for the news shows, and presumably "broadcaster" for the man before the camera, but that seems too general a term.

At the Belle

Angie Dickinson in "Rachel Cade" and Clint Walker in "Gold of the Seven Saints."

Primitive passions come into bitter conflict with civilization's moral codes in Warner Bros. Technicolor production of "The Sins of Rachel Cade," starring Angie Dickinson, Peter Finch and Roger Moore, which opens today at the Belle Theatre.

Miss Dickinson playing the title role, is seen as a beautiful woman in her mid-twenties who ought to be married to a good man and have lots of children. Instead, she is a spinster missionary in the Belgian Congo.

Her desperate struggle between God's work and the weakness of her own flesh—and the ultimate resolution of her emotional turmoil —provide the Dramatic material for the motion picture based on the popular selling novel by Charles Mercer.

Scenarist Edward Anhalt has dealt with the sensitive and frequently delicate subject matter in straightforward fashion, approaching the young missionary's problems with candor and honesty.

Clint Walker in Suspense Drama

The desperate flight of two trappers who have stumbled on a fortune in gold nuggets and are pursued by both friends and foes across gruelling desert wastes is caught in all its fury and suspense in Warner Bros' "Gold of the Seven Saints," the second worthy feature attraction on the same program.

Clint Walker and Roger Moore are topcat as the two trappers in the brulsing adventure drama filmed in Warner-Scope against the picturesque Arches, national monument in Arizona.

Co-starring are Italian newcomer Leticia Roman, Robert Middleton, Chill Wills and Gus Kinney.

The matinee performances begin at 1.30. The evening performance, one complete show starts at 7.30.

Ray Milland's Son Danny Will Be Actor Like His Dad

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Danny Milland is a handsome gladiator who might well climb the ladder of movie fame, as his dad did.

Danny, 21, full-grown son of Oscar-winning Ray, is on the first rung; He's got a contract, bought.

He's also got the best of helpers. He's the first actor signed by Artists and Producers Associates, Incorporated. The men behind the formidable title are Jack Lemmon, producer-directors Blake Edwards and Richard Quine and veteran talent executive Max Arnow.

Unlike some movie kids, Danny is well-spoken and articulate. His resemblance to Rock Hudson is likely to be seized upon.

"But Rock was just a farm boy when he started out," said Arnow, "I know, because I tried to get Harry Cohn to sign him. Danny is a lot more sophisticated, because of his travels abroad."

It was on a trip to Europe last summer that Danny made the decision to try for an acting career. "Naturally, I had thought about it," he explained.

TOURED EUROPE

"I had $1,000 saved up, so I blew it on a trip to Europe. I spent some time in France, Spain and England, living the way the natives do. I came to the conclusion that the best thing for me would be to act."

Danny came home, got in touch with an agent friend who started taking him around to the talent buyers. Arnow bought.

"I had him read a scene for me," said Arnow. "He was bad; he was acting too much. I told him to forget acting and just be natural. He did. He lines again, and he was fine. I had him read for Dick Quine, and Dick said to sign him without even a test."

How does his pa feel about his budding career?

"He's resigned to it, I guess," said Danny. "He wanted me to seek a professional career—anything but acting. He's a bit disappointed."

Astrological Forecast

Tuesday, November 21
By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: Long-range plans that have to do with specific financial arrangements where your income or outlays are concerned, are the main operating influences today and tonight, and since it is the Full Moon period as well, much quick action can also follow in other directions as stated for your own sign following. Be serious, careful and precise now.

Aries (March 21 to March 19). — Budgeting and getting all financial and property matters in best order possible are of vital importance today. Then in the evening you are in a position to improve upon others that you appreciate the finer things of life.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — A day to think pretty much in terms of self, getting appearance improved and then going to the individuals who can grant you whatever you most desire, backing needed for projects, etc. P.M. Be very entertaining socially.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Private arrangements that lead to greater financial security are fine during daytime. However, later get out to the cultural or other enjoyable pursuits that satisfy and make life less humdrum. Be romantically inclined, too.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Dynamic colleagues are now in a mood to back you in whatever project you have in mind. You have waited long enough — contact them and state your desires positively. P.M. Get out socially so that you increase circle of friends.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Here is a day when others will be highly impressed with your ability and personality, so make the most of your opportunities. Dine out in the evening and then off to some social affair where you can almost sweep them off their feet.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) —By raising your level of consciousness, you can now find wonderful new outlets that will prove very lucrative in the future. Get in touch with the right people early. Then get out socially with them in full for fun, talk.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) —Follow your intuition and do some kind deed for a close tie that will endear you to him, or her. Then concentrate on getting your financial affairs in order, books of account up to date.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —Go together with colleagues and talk over matters of policy, how to have a better modus operandi. Impress them with ability as well as your spirit of true co-operativeness. Think of their interests as well. P.M. Fine for fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Handle all affairs that await your attention efficiently, which is easily possible since so many are about and willing to help you. Be co-operative and appreciative of co-workers. P.M. Entertain them, generously.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — A particularly fine day to show key people how talented you are and to commercialize on such gifts. Then the evening is free for social pleasures or going out for a gay evening in a carefree mood. Call friends early, though.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — The day to get tedious tasks behind you, since they are essential and have to be done sometime. Tonight, be kind with close ties and find some form of entertainment that is pleasing at home with their participation.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) A perfect day for shopping, making calls, etc. Then get caught up on your correspondence. Be sure to see those who have been difficult to reach before but can add to your success. P.M. Do some studying, then off for a little fun with friends.

If your child is born today . . . the nature will be a most practical one and the will to succeed will be tremendous, so be sure you give as time an education as you can, particularly in the field of law, where your progeny can excel in the handling of trusts, probation of wills, etc. Also, don't neglect spiritual training so the character becomes of the highest for such a profession of trust.

A BARGAIN BUNGALOW

THINK OF ALL THAT THIS home has to offer — CONVENIENCE, COMFORT, BEAUTY. AGREE that this is a better home, in brand new condition, for a few things remaining to be finished. It's R.S.G. 1960 Construction and has all the features, including the nice brick work, the big picture window in the living room, the separate dining room, the pleasant kitchen with eating area, the 4-piece bath. The basement is big, tile, Automatic furnace, of course. Now, this home has almost 1,100 sq. ft. on the main floor and a full basement. That's not a misprint. $12,900. A down payment of $2,100, and you can arrange with the NHA for the balance. Just look around for your own home. Don't know that you will be back to write this advertisement. We are besides.

Separatist Suspended From His Govt. Job

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. Marcel Chaput, Quebec separatist leader who kept a Quebec City speaking appointment Friday in defiance of government refusal to grant him leave of absence from his job as a Defence Research Board, said today he has been suspended for two weeks.

He has been suspended until Dec. 4 pending the return from Europe of Dr. A. H. Zimmerman, chairman of DRB, which includes Defence Minister Hees and Dr. Chaput as a biochemist.

The suspension, which Defence Minister Hackness said Friday would be imposed, came after a meeting today between Dr. Chaput and Dr. John Keyston, vice-chairman of the board.

Dr. Chaput was called in by Dr. Keyston to explain why he went to Quebec to keep a speaking appointment on separatism when permission for such leave had been refused by DRB.

SHIP SINKS

TOKYO (AP)—The American freighter Almeria Lykes was slightly damaged and a Japanese ship sank in a collision Sunday night off southwestern Japan. Three of the crew members aboard the Japanese ship, the 3,235-ton Hiyoshi Maru, were missing. Thirty-one others were rescued. None aboard the 7,855-ton American freighter was hurt.

Million New Jobs Must Be Found in Next Five Years Says Productivity Bd. Head

TORONTO (CP)—There is no reason why Canada's manufacturing industries cannot be built up to absorb the support in this concept, H. George De Young, president of Hiram Walker Ltd. and chairman of the National Productivity Council, said today.

"We have the raw materials, we could have cheap energy, and we have intelligent, employable people," he told the Canadian Club. "Yet we send our raw materials to foreign lands to be manufactured where energy is costly and there is over-employment. We send back the manufactured goods at a trading loss and keep our people on relief."

One of the noticeable characteristics of Canadians, Mr. De Young said, is their resistance to change.

"The pre-occupation in recent years with a quick fix for additional concept fleet our prosperity solely based on raw material and agricultural export has resulted in an apathetic acceptance of our present stagnant economic growth.

"Canada's factions are so scattered that no single one is supreme that no really thought-out, long-term policies are likely to be established. Nor are they yet possible as to how to achieve a balanced competitive economy.

"If a manufacturer states he believes it would be helpful to examine and bring up to date tariff regulations, a Liberal Party policy have been made to look a retort about the inadvisability of raising tariffs. If a primary man says we should consider liberalizing trade, a secondary man will have a tantrum about free trade."

Mr. De Young's comments were contained in a text made available to the press in advance of delivery.

NEW JOBS NEEDED

He said the 1,000,000 new jobs will have to be found for Canadians during the next five years. Mr. De Young said, adding that if primary industry alone were to supply this employment it would need to open about 6,000 new mines and oil wells at once. He asked:

"Would it not seem that the same knowledge and skill economically manufacturing as are given to primary industry could be used to them compete in the world too?

Examining Canada's population picture, Mr. De Young said that during the period 1941 through 1950, Canada received 1,800,000 immigrants but about 1,300,000 emigrated, a net gain of only 500,000.

But, of 18,000,000 people in Canada, 2,000,000 were foreign born; in 1961, of 14,000,000, still only 2,000,000 were foreign born and this year, of 18,000,000 people only 3,000,000 are foreign born.

Congo-Bound Italian Plane Crash Kills 4

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Four persons were killed and six survived in an Italian UN plane crashed at a flight to the Congo on Saturday, British officials announced here today.

The plane, a flying boxcar, flown by Italian air force pilots Tanganyika, was spotted earlier today by a UN plane and a search and rescue party was dispatched to the spot.

The government of Britain's East Africa high commission said survivors who were unhurt were flown to Nairobi and would go on to Albertville, the Congo's Katanga province, as soon as possible.

The plane, flying from Italy to Leopoldville, was carrying two civilians identified as UN officials and eight Italian airmen on a routine flight to reinforce the UN in the Congo.

The UN launched a big air search for the plane when it went missing on Saturday. None of the search aircraft scoured the Lukuabourg and Kabalo areas, where Congolese troops are rallied and mutinous against UN overflights.

The two men believed the murder of 13 Italian airmen by mutinous Congolese troops at Kindu, Kivu province, nine days ago.

Charge Detroit Man Murdered Pair in Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—A warrant charging Arthur Lucas of Detroit with murder was forwarded from Toronto to the Michigan city as a 200-man Toronto police squad today continued their investigation of the gangland slaying of a man and woman here Friday.

Metropolitan Toronto police were checking all laundries for blood-stained clothing and were searching for a .38 revolver and a sawed shotgun.

They are the weapons believed to have taken the lives of Theriand Carter, 43, and Mrs. Yvonne Carter, 36, of Detroit. The Negro couple was found in a mid-town rooming house with their throats cut. The man also had been shot four times in the back.

Meanwhile it was learned here that Lillian Boykin, 30, of Detroit has surrendered to police there and is being questioned in the case. Since Saturday Detroit police have been questioning Lucas, 33, as well as two other men, Gus Saunders, 44, and Lester Ramsey, 47, all of Detroit.

HERE IN TORONTO

Miss Boykin was described as a girl friend of Lucas and is reported to have been with him here. Lucas, who was in Toronto at the time of the slayings, was charged with possessing a narcotics case at which Carter was to have turned state evidence.

SEIZE DOPE

Meanwhile they made two arrests and a quantity of narcotics in their continuing search of the area in which the Carter couple lived and were charged with illegal possession of narcotics here. Marsha Rae and Fred Reeves of Toronto. Police said Reeves came here from Detroit on the 3 p.m. train today. Four ounces of heroin and four marijuana cigarettes were seized.

Police Chief James Mackey said there is no connection with the double slaying resulted from Detroit underlayers seeking to take over Toronto prostitution and dope rackets.

"We are aware that they were ordered because Crater was going to give evidence for the state in a narcotics conspiracy charge," he said.

Police also said Crater had a record of 22 arrests and five felony convictions. Inspector Russell McCarty of the Detroit narcotics bureau said Crater was working for the United States treasury department's narcotics bureau.

FIVE DIE IN FIRE

STONY CREEK, Va (AP)—Five swept through an isolated Negro home here Sunday, a day killing five children and seriously burning two others and their parents. The children, whose ages ranged from one to eight years, were not immediately identified. The father, Carroll Slaton, 30, was reported in critical condition in hospital at Richmond. The mother and two other children were seriously burned in fleeing the burning house.

feel the same as Canada about the need for a prime ministers' conference.

Reporting on his interview with Mr. Gaulle, Mr. Heath said the French government was not averse to British adherence to the Common Market, depending on the terms of membership, but he didn't find "much evidence" that the French were prepared to go any distance in relation to Commonwealth interests.

At his hour-long conference, Fleming touched on a wide variety of topics, including repeated ill-feeling between Canada and Britain over the Commonwealth negotiations.

On the question of Anglo-Canadian relations, Fleming said he would "deplore with all my heart" any suggestion that feelings between the two governments were unfriendly.

At the airport, he made plain that Canada is still pressing the British administration for a full report of exactly what Edward Heath, Britain's chief negotiator, said in Paris Oct. 19 in his opening statement of Britain's position to the Common Market council.

So far Canada had received only a summary of part of Heath's statement. It wanted the whole statement.

He said he received the Canadian request at his meeting this morning with Macmillan, but the prime minister didn't give a commitment.

"We are not in a position to assess the position of the British government's stand across to the full text," he said.

Fleming also said that there is not an unbridged difference of opinion over the extent to which Britain is keeping Canada and other Commonwealth countries informed of the progress of the negotiations in Brussels and Paris on Britain's application for membership.

The British government is reported to feel that some documents circulated at the negotiations are of a confidential nature and should be disclosed to their entirety.

Fleming emphasized that he is not challenging the good faith of the British government, which has given assurances that it will safeguard Commonwealth interests during the negotiations.

Workers at Canada Cement Hull Plant Ready to Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — An official of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers' International Union (UCG) said Sunday night the union's Hull, Que., local will meet "early this week" to set a date for a strike against Canada Cement Co. in support of new contract demands.

The Hull plant would be the fifth of Canada Cement's nine plants to suffer a walkout.

G. E. Cormier, the union's Eastern Canada representative, who said the Hull local voted Friday night to strike if negotiations broke down.

More than 600 workers at plants in Port Colborne, Belleville and Woodstock, and Montreal already are on strike.

A meeting between company and union officials Friday ended without success and no further talks set for the present, the union said.

"We're still apart by 7½ cents," Mr. Cormier said, "which includes the cost of a supplementary unemployment insurance fund, time - and-a-half for Sunday work and improved insurance coverage."

V. C. Hamilton, vice - president and assistant to the general manager of Canada Cement Company, said management has offered an hourly wage increase of five cents this year and five cents next year, "but the union wants more."

WOULD ACCEPT AWARD

"We have offered to accept the best award made by any conciliation board in the cement company-wide," Mr. Hamilton said.

An Ontario conciliation board had recommended a 10-cent pay increase with other fringe benefits, and the company was willing to go along with it.

SIXTH VIEW OF PLANE

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP)—Warren Willis, 70, of Mountain City, Tenn., waited to see the planes at Willow Run Airport Saturday night. He got a good look at one of them—it almost landed on his car. Capt. Forrest Shuderwat was easing a big United Airlines DC-8, carrying 63 passengers, in for a landing when he saw a headlight coming toward him. He pulled the passenger jet into a climb and then radioed the tower. This was reported on the runway by state police. He was not hald. The plane made a routine landing.

44 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic fatalities formed the bulk of accidental deaths reported across the country this weekend.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Friday to Sunday midnight showed an over-all total of 44 accidental deaths—39 of them the result of highway accidents.

The remainder were a drowning in Ontario, three deaths by fire in British Columbia, a hunting fatality in Quebec and one death as a result of a plane crash in Alberta.

Provincial figures with traffic deaths bracketed: Ontario 17 (18), Quebec 10 (9), Saskatchewan 6 (6), British Columbia 5 (2), Nova Scotia 3 (3), Newfoundland 1 (1), Prince Edward Island 1 (1), Alberta 1 (0), New Brunswick 0, Manitoba 0.

This survey does not include natural deaths, known suicides or industrial accidents.

The Ontario dead:

George A. Bennett, 56, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., killed Saturday when his car was in collision with a transport on the Queen Elizabeth Way just east of the Welland Canal.

Bradley Roy, 10, of Grimsby Beach, who died Saturday several hours after being struck by a car near his home midway between Hamilton and St. Catharines.

Mrs. Shirley Hill, 40, of Toronto, killed Sunday when her car collided with a stationary vehicle.

Herbert Bebnke, 82, and his wife Edith, of Fenelon Falls and William Douglas Gidley, 41, of Agincourt, killed Sunday when their car was in collision with a truck on Highway 17 west of Pembroke.

George Daoust, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Daoust, of Ottawa, killed in the capital Saturday night when he ran into the path of a truck.

Ross Myles, 36, killed Saturday when he, by a car as he crossed a street in Napanee;

Maurice Crete, 22, of Cardiff, killed Saturday when the car in which he was riding went out of control and rolled into a ditch on Highway 62 just north of Bancroft;

Robert Blair Robinson, an RCAF officer from Calgary, killed Friday night when the car in which he was riding collided with a truck in Ottawa;

Frederick Clarke, 71, of Walker Lake, killed Saturday when his truck collided with a freight train at a level crossing at Emo, 23 miles east of Fort Frances in northwestern Ontario;

Patrick Bennet, 20, of Belleville, killed Sunday in a two-car collision at Carrying Place, about 10 miles west of Belleville;

Robert Sancroft, 48, and Charles Sim, 46, fatally injured when their car was struck by a train just east of Metropolitan Toronto Saturday;

James Dufresne, 36, of Orillia, drowned in the North Channel of Manitoulin Island Saturday;

Ernest Barber, 65, of Toronto, killed Sunday when the car in which he was riding crashed into a tree on the Queen Elizabeth Way at Oakville.

Mrs. Jean Loxley, 48, of Brampton, killed in a broadside collision on Highway 27, near Cookstown, just north of Metropolitan Toronto, Sunday.

Frankford

FRANKFORD — Mrs. Ella Tripp spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Louis Woodcox in Stirling.

Little Miss Lois Elliott is a patient in The Hospital for Sick Children.

Miss Gladys Brenton of Corbyville and Miss Helen Perrick of Belleville visited Miss Kathleen Gunter on Monday evening.

Mr. Ray Walker attended the Metropolitan Life veterans' banquet at the Royal York Hotel in Peterborough on Thursday.

Mrs. Bob Donnan of Stirling visited Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Elliott this past week.

DOUGLAS

His stories are folksy and simple, aimed at explaining complicated problems in easily understood terms. For example, in Windsor he likened the Canadian economy to a hand-turned cream separator. The hand turning the machine represented labor and the raw milk being poured into the machine the economic contribution of primary producers — farmers, fishermen, loggers or miners.

The machine, he said, is owned or the capitalist. As the cream and milk is separated, the owner drinks the cream while labor and primary producer take turns at the spout that gives off skimmed milk. In short, the man on the cream spout becomes full of cream. He says, "stop pouring in raw milk, stop turning the separator, we're going to have a recession."

Labor and the primary producer then lose their livelihood. After a while, the capitalist digests the cream, burps and tells them to resume their tasks.

VIRGIN FAIR SHARE

The New Democratic Party, Mr. Douglas concludes, wants to get its hand on the regulator of the skyline so it will produce homogenized milk and everyone will get a fair share.

Before he gets down to serious business, he will poke fun at himself. Invariably this gets roars of laughter with a story about meeting old Saskatchewan resident shortly after giving up the premiership.

"I said to him, 'I suppose there've been worse premiers than I've been,' fishing for a compliment. He gave no answer. I thought, perhaps he's hard of hearing so repeated in a louder voice, 'I suppose there've been worse premiers than I've been.'

"I heard you the first time," was the reply. 'I'm trying to remember.'"

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My husband lost his only brother this past year and at the wedding of my husband's niece, he was asked to give her away in marriage. We were overnight guests at their home. My questions are:

(1) Should my sister-in-law have arranged a ride for me to and from the church? My husband went with the wedding party. I ended up riding with neighbors who were strangers.

(2) Where was my position at the wedding dinner? Should I have sat with my husband or just with the other guests?

(3) Should my sister-in-law have introduced me along with my husband to her friends whom we did not know, at the reception?—AN ARDENT READER.

DEAR ARDENT:—Your sister-in-law was thoughtless. Probably rattled. Perhaps reading this will help others avoid a similar mistake.

Here's my opinion:

(1) Arrangement should have been made for you to ride with other family members—unless the neighbors were special friends.

(2) You should either have been placed beside your husband or with close family members.

(3) Was your husband in the reception line? It would have been best, in the circumstances, for him not to be in the reception line, but near it. Then you could have stood with him, helping to meet and greet guests.

I hope you make this inquiry merely for information —not to prolong any family argument. A wedding is a once-in-a-lifetime occasion and you should not feel there was any slight intended.

One more thought—a newly-widowed mother-of-three brides faces a wedding day with mixed feelings. For just that one day she badly needs someone to fill her husband's shoes. Don't begrudge her a temporary mortgage on his brother!

TALKS TO BAN NUCLEAR TESTS REOPEN

Fleming Unable To Obtain Facts From Macmillan

Common Mart Report Being Sought by Canada

LONDON (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming came away from a talk with Prime Minister Macmillan Monday still lacking the information on the European Common Market that Canada sought more than a month ago.

"He didn't say he would give it and he didn't say he wouldn't give it," Fleming said, referring to a Macmillan announcement which is of the "highest import-ance" to Canada.

Fleming told a press conference that at the half-hour meeting with the British leader he had renewed Canada's request for a full text of a statement made in Paris Oct. 10 outlining Britain's approach to membership in the six-nation European Economic Community—or Common Market.

The Canadian government, he said, has been trying its best to get the document, but all it has received so far is a "summary of a part" of the statement.

Fleming's remarks marked the first official confirmation of a split in the relations between Canada and Britain regarding the growing European Economic Consultation on the current negotiations for British entry into the Common Market.

PAPER CONFIDENTIAL

Britain, feels that the requested text is one of the confidence documents that the negotiating parties have agreed should be regarded as confidential, for circulation only in the closed group of interested participants.

Whitehall also says that all the essential points covered in the document have been communicated to the Canadian government.

But Canadian complaint about British reticence has been a subject of unofficial comment for some weeks. British newspapers accused the Ottawa administration of "unnecessary fuss."

Fleming said that in general his talk with Macmillan and his meeting with President de Gaulle in Paris Saturday indicate that "very great difficulties" are inherent in reconciling British membership in the Common Market with full protection of Commonwealth interests.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express in Britain Monday said publicly is "distressed by the bad feelings between Britain and Canada over the Common Market."

CANADA 'FOBBED OFF'

The Express, opposed to British entering the market, commented on Fleming's statement. Fleming is seeking.

"The statement was made to be put before the British people to the governments of the Commonwealth.

"Is it any wonder that there

PATON, COX GET 7 YEARS FOR FRAUDS

Sentences Will be Appealed--Counsel

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—Toronto businessmen Hugh Paton, 45, and D. Robert Barr, 47, were convicted Monday night on charges of conspiracy, theft and fraud against Brandon Packers Limited and sentenced to seven years in prison.

Defence counsel announced shortly after the 9½-day trial ended that the convictions and sentences will be appealed.

The two men, former heads of Great West Saddlery Company Limited, the parent firm of the Brandon Meat Packing Company, were taken to Brandon Jail after Mr. Justice A. W. Monnin passed sentence.

Defence counsel Harry Walsh for Paton and Henry Monk for Cox said they will seek release of their clients on bail pending disposition of their appeals. They had been free on $25,000 bail each since their arrest in Toronto Jan. 13.

The men were accused of: Conspiring to steal $460,000 from Brandon Packers; stealing $446,000 from the company; conspiring to defraud Brandon Packers of $460,000; actually defrauding the firm of $446,000; knowingly receiving, possessing, publishing and circulating a false prospectus for a $400,000 Brandon Packers bond issue in 1956.

Steel Riggers Back to Work With More Pay

TORONTO (CP)—A 10-week province - wide strike of steel riggers ended Monday, when structural erecting firms agreed to a 16-cent hourly increase—to $3.60.

The men who put up the framework of buildings and bridges also won a reduction in an-hour welfare benefit.

About 700 riggers, members of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers (CLC), struck when 15 firms refused to meet their demands for a 30-cent-an-hour increase.

Among projects affected were a shopping centre and university library in London, Toronto's airport construction, a bridge project in Sault Ste. Marie and a television tower in Hamilton.

Agreement on the 16-cent increase was reached last Wednesday but the union demanded a written ratification from the employers, which was given Monday.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Not much change is expected in the weather pattern today and Wednesday with a mainly cloudy conditions and no significant change in temperatures for Southern Ontario.

PRAIRIE GRAIN LOSSES DEPRESS FARM INCOME

Reaches Lowest Point in 12 Years

OTTAWA (CP)—Prairie grain losses from drought this year depressed net income of Canadian farmers to the lowest point in at least 12 years, the agriculture department reported today.

Grain growers cut deeply into stockpiles to maintain cash income, and it will take favorable weather to keep next year's farm cash income in 1961 levels.

These were among the key points in a report presented to a conference of federal and provincial agriculture ministers—a meeting held each year to take stock of the farm situation.

Cash income of Canadian farmers will rise to an estimated $2,826,000,000 this year from $2,783,000,000 in 1960, the department said.

Gross income—adding on supplementary payments by governments and what farmers use from their own land — would rise to $3,249,000,000 from $3,210,000,000.

But nearly $400,000,000 of this income came from eating into farm-held food stocks, mainly wheat and cattle.

INCOME WILL DROP

With operating costs also rising, net income of Canadian farmers is expected to drop to $986,000,000 this year from $1,358,000,000. This would be the lowest since the government started compiling net income figures in 1949.

The report noted trouble spots arising from surplus production

Blood All Over Death Yacht Story Told by Rescued Girl

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A little girl's narrative of bloodshed and death at sea was the basis for marks of mass murder by a man gone berserk, a U.S. Coast Guard officer said.

The officer who made that interpretation of 11-year-old Terry Jo Duppersall's account of a tragic night aboard the yacht Bluebelle said not to quote him officially. The coast guard said Monday night it will announce until its investigation is complete.

The bizarre story told by the 11-year-old Green Bay, Wis., girl was made public by the coast guard Monday.

Terry Jo and Julian A. Harvey, skipper of the Bluebelle, said all seven persons aboard the ketch were found in the Atlantic as the vessel burned and sank after a Bahamas squall snapped its mainmast. All except Harvey were presumed dead.

After learning that a freighter had picked up Terry Jo from a small life raft after floating in the ocean for more than 30 hours without food or water, Harvey committed suicide by slashing his veins.

Terry Jo said she saw her mother and brother lying on a bloody deck; that the mainmast was not the only thing she did not see or smell any fire.

And, she told the coast guard and FBI, Harvey slapped her once, came to her cabin later and told her she thought was a rifle, and then abandoned her on the sinking charter sailing craft.

The yacht went down near the Bahama Islands days ago.

The Bluebelle victims were Terry Jo's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Duppersall; their brother, Brian, 14; her sister, Renee, 7; and Harvey's wife, Mary, 34.

Renee's body was aboard a dinghy in which Harvey was picked up a day after the tragedy. He said he found the body in the ocean.

The FBI said "we are checking to see if any violation occurred within our jurisdiction." Crime, on high seas come under federal jurisdiction.

Hees Hints Govt. May Be Less Critical of Canadian Membership in Euromart

TORONTO (CP)—Trade Minister Hees hinted today the government may have adopted a less critical approach to the possibilities of Canadian membership in the European Common Market.

Speaking to a central Ontario trade promotion conference, he said, most Common Market industries sell at lower prices than competitive Canadian industries.

But Mr. Hees also said that these Canadian industries, making products which aren't competing with production within the Common Market countries, would do well if they could trade on the Common Market's tariff-free terms.

The government now was studying the gains and losses which it would reap from Canadian membership in the European trade bloc.

Once this study was finished "We will know whether joining the Common Market would be a net gain or a net loss in production and employment for Canada as a whole."

The statement, in a text prepared for delivery, was considerably less critical than the statement Mr. Hees used in a Toronto speech Oct. 20 on the same topic.

At that time he said that if Canadian manufacturing indus-

Make Razing Berlin Wall Price of Accord--Adenauer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Quallfied West German sources said Monday night that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer demands that the wall dividing East and West Berlin be torn down as a condition for settlement of the Berlin crisis but not as a condition for East-West negotiations.

The chancellor is not posing any ultimatums for enlisting these negotiations," the informant added in connection with the first day of talks between the 85-year-old German leader and President Kennedy to help unite the West and prepare for a possible conference with the Kremlin.

Canada Cement Strike

The chancellor, the informant said, insists that the Western powers make clear in talks with the Russians that the wall must come down in any agreement reached. There also must be a firm pledge to the political and economic "viability" of West Berlin with West Germany.

In turn, West Germany would agree to increase "technical" relations with the East German regime, but without stating that it recognizes the East German government either formally or informally.

Winnipeg Plant Will Strike But Hull Workers Stay On

MONTREAL (CP)—A strike deadline has been set for noon Nov. 27 at the Canada Cement Company's Winnipeg plant that has a contract agreement has been reached by then.

This would make the Winnipeg plant the fifth Canada Cement plants to be closed down by strikes. Others involved are Lauzon, Lime and Gypson Workers' International Union (CLC), at Hull, Que., which entered a strike.

George E. Murdoch of Montreal, district secretary of Local 10 of the union, said Monday the 200 Winnipeg union members already had walked out.

But John Meagher, Winnipeg plant superintendent, said Monday and said workers have been working "as usual."

Mozawhile, Noel Courchesne, president of the union local at the Hull, Que., plant, said workers there Monday night decided against setting a strike date for the moment.

There was no formal vote taken, he said, but the majority was against striking.

He said the workers would be on the job today and would leave the next move to the company and the international office of the union.

The strike has already stopped work at plants in Woodstock, Belleville, Port Colborne and Montreal; as well as in Winnipeg, and cement construction was still in progress at plants in Havelock, N.B., and Embury Lake, Man., it added.

The union is seeking a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase and various fringe benefits amounting to some 7% cents an hour over the 3½-year contract.

At Belleville, Mr. A. O. Dyrda, superintendent of the Canada Cement Company plant at Bath, said 200 company employees are already enjoying many of the major general plans of fringe benefits, including insurance, in Canadian industry. Fringe benefits now in effect for company employees total 56% cents per hour, he said.

The big percentage of the fringe benefits now paid by Point Company is made up of non-contributor pensions, annual vacation pay and paid holidays. After 25 years em-

POLICE AWAITING LUCKY BREAK TO PIN SUSPECT

Coroners Hold Closed Seminar

TORONTO (CP) — Police are waiting for a lucky break to pin a murder or manslaughter charge on a suspect in a mysterious death last year in Ontario, it was reported Tuesday.

A Metropolitan Toronto police inspector told a coroners' seminar attending a closed - door seminar last week that an inquest in the death is being postponed week by week while police work on the case.

"We know who did it," he said.

The officer later identified the dead man as Scott Pappas, whose body was found in his car after it was hit by a train at Bolton July 9, 1960.

An inquest would leave the coroner no alternative but to recommend laying of murder or manslaughter charges, said the inspector who was not identified.

LACK LITTLE BIT

"But we are lacking the one little bit of evidence that would get a conviction."

The officer said the dead man was extremely sad but not too quickly. We could probably have cracked the case if we had had an autopsy on the body sooner."

The coroners also heard that two men killed in car crashes were wrongly "maligned" as drunk through mistakes in blood tests.

Queen's Proctor Elliott Pepper said tests showed a high alcoholic content in the blood of both men dead now, and they were judged to have been drunk. But tests made by the police established that the test tubes used had previously been contaminated with alcohol.

Mr. Pepper later said both incidents took place in Kitchener.

SAYS TOO TALKATIVE

The Queen's proctor also rapped coroners in general for talking too much and for preferring jurors to bring in judgments to the press before trials.

Snow Triggers Air Raid Sirens

MONTREAL (CP) — Southwestern Quebec's first snowfall of the winter's season was blamed for setting off air raid sirens in two towns near Montreal Sunday night.

Said a switchboard operator in the Joliet police station: "We had more action this morning than we did during Toosis-B last week."

In Sorel, 40 miles northeast, they blew the minute later. Said a Sorel policeman: "I think everybody in the area telephoned to ask what was going on."

The unscheduled warnings were believed to have been set off by a short circuit caused by the heavy snowfall. In both areas the sirens screamed for 15 minutes.

Prosecute Stores

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) Eight city grocery stores that violated the city's 7 p.m. here last Friday are to be prosecuted under the grocery stores' hours of closing by-law.

City council agreed to this step Monday night.

Russia Agrees To West Request For Resumption

Talks Will Commence On November 28th

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia agreed today to a Western call for the resumption of talks on banning nuclear tests in Geneva Nov. 28.

The Soviet Union's acceptance of the Western suggestion was disclosed in notes handed over to the British and American embassies here.

But at the same time the note continued to press Russia's demands for broader talks on "general and complete" disarmament. The notes also declared that talks are of the Three nuclear powers resumed in Geneva will be taken up on "the other side would be ready to make corresponding conclusions."

The talks among the United States, Britain and Russia broke down in September after Moscow unilaterally ended a three-year moratorium on tests and carried out powerful explosions in the atmosphere.

At the time the talks broke down, Russia was pressing to have Albania, Poland and Rumania represented at the conference.

The United Nations General Assembly passed a resolution urging the resumption of the talks. The United States and British followed up their resolution with notes urging the Russians to agree to reopening the talks at about Nov. 28.

EXPRESSES WILLINGNESS

Today's Soviet reply, distributed to newspapermen and foreign ministry after being delivered to the U.S. and British Embassies, said Russia was ready to resume the talks if Britain and the United States removed the difference between the Soviet and Western points of view.

The Soviet reply continued, however, to press for negotiations on "general and complete disarmament and called for the establishment of a body to which such talks would be carried out.

The reply said Russia had agreed to the resumption of the talks keeping in mind that the Three powers had already announced a complete and general and complete disarmament.

WOULD TEST AGAIN

It was only a few days ago that Premier Khrushchev publicly carried out atomic tests during winter's coldest month. He promised he would be forced to make corresponding moves if those also concerning a u.c lear test ban.

Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan told visiting Finns last week that Russia planned to accept the Western proposals for a new conference of talks in Geneva.

The Soviet Union in its series of nuclear tests early this month. The tests included one of a nuclear bomb with explosive power greater than 50 megatons — equal to 50,000,000 tons of TNT.

KENSIGN LABOR POST

GENEVA (AP) — David A. Morse, 61, American director-general of the International Labor Organization, today announced his resignation. Morse has been heading the world labor organization for 14 years. He was elected for a 10-year term by the ILO's governing body in 1948 and unanimously re-elected in 1957 for another five years. Morse's resignation will take effect until next spring then return to the United States.

Farm Future Looks Brighter Than Year Ago Says Hamilton

OTTAWA (CP)—The immediate farm future looks generally brighter than it did a year ago, Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton said today.

With some energy, some luck, drought and $175,000,000 of federal credit, the cereal surplus that bothered us a few years ago is now a considerable asset," Mr. Hamilton told the federal-provincial agriculture conference.

Prices were higher because of sought.

FOUR CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH IN APT. BLAZE

40 to 50 Tenants Jump Out Windows

DETROIT (AP)—Four small children, trapped in their top-floor apartment, died in a sudden fire at a 12-tenant-room apartment building early today.

Fifty-two others of the Negro tenancy were rescued by firemen or escaped by safety from windows.

The parents of the children who died leaped to safety with their fifth child.

The fire was discovered about 1:15 a.m. in the building in the Linwood - Clairmount area, a largely Negro section. Near panic resulted.

Some took heroic measures, however, ran about corridors shouting warnings to others and pounding on doors. Within 20 minutes the 100 firemen on the scene had the blaze under control.

Fire Chief Lawrence J. Daly said the investigation was along the lads helped to limit the damage. The blaze broke about 150 tenants in its 17 apartments.

BREAKS MAN'S FALL

The building was only three of flames when we arrived," said Sgt. William Erickson of the fire department. "A man dropped from a window. I threw a shoulder into him as he came and knocked him against the building to break his fall."

The young boy jumped from a window into the arms of a citizen.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

MASS SAFETY RALLY WILL BE CONVENED

The Belleville-Trenton section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association is sponsoring a mass safety rally at Moira Secondary School Thursday night at eight o'clock.

Inspector Wilt of the Ontario Provincial Police will be the guest speaker. The rally is open to all persons over 16 years of age free of charge. There will be professional entertainment and door prizes.

CHRISTMAS EXAMS NOW COMPLETED

For the city and district secondary school students attending the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Bolton and Quinte Secondary Schools, the first part of Christmas is over with today's Christmas examinations, which started last Thursday, conclude this afternoon.

The next set of examinations for secondary schools will be starting around March 15, 1962.

Two Admitted After Car Hits Wrecked Truck

Ontario Provincial Police Constable R. Grieve was investigating an accident on Highway 401, approximately seven miles west of Belleville, Monday evening involving two tractor-trailer transports when a car owned and driven by Frederick W. Wills of Carleton Place, collided with one of the transports.

Mr. Wills was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital suffering from a fractured skull, a broken nose and face lacerations.

Police said a passenger in the Wills vehicle, Everett Donovan of Port Dalhousie, was also admitted to the Belleville General, suffering from lacerations.

Damage to the transport accident were not available but it is believed that one of the vehicles slid off the highway and the other transport jackknifed into it. The drivers were not injured.

Provincial Police reported 11 minor accidents between 8.30 a.m. Monday morning and 8.30 p.m. Monday night, due to the first fall of snow, and involved local residents.

They said many highways were left in a hazardous condition yesterday as the snow fell in the area. No injuries were reported as a result of Monday's incidents.

Minor Can Frequent Bowling Or Pool Halls Says Council

Belleville city council yesterday legalized a practice which has been general in the city for a number of years.

They made it legal for minors to frequent a bowling alley—or a poolroom.

Council amended the by-law governing the licensing of bowling alleys and poolrooms taking out the requirement that minors are not to be allowed on the premises.

Alderman William Jarvah pointed out that the city has had juveniles either playing in bowling alleys or working at bowling alleys for many years.

"Now they even have nurseries at bowling alleys," he said.

In reference to poolrooms, Ald. Jarvah said it was not necessary for city council to pass regulations to keep minors out of pool halls.

He said it was the responsibility of the parents to keep their sons out of pool halls if they did not want them there.

"We should not have to pass anything here," he said.

The by-law was voted without opposition to amend the by-law.

General Picture Taxation Branch Given Rotarians

A general picture of the taxation system of the Federal Department of National Revenue was given to 70 Rotary members and their guests by the Rotary club director of taxation, Bob Gill, a club member. Mr. Gill was giving his classification address to the club at its regular weekly dinner meeting at the Hotel Quinte.

"Last year $3,146,000,000 in taxes were realized from over six million individual tax returns at a cost of $1.00 for each $100 collected" the speaker said. This figure compared favorably with the 1940 figure of $435 and the 1950 figure of $3.16 for each hundred dollars collected. The drop in operating costs was due to the streamlining of methods and personnel followed since 1950, he stated. A further drop is anticipated with the introduction of electronic computing equipment in Ottawa, some of give work involved.

Besides handling the individual tax returns the taxation branch, which operates under the Minister of Finance, acts as Parliament, also is responsible for gift, non-resident and estate taxes.

In its work the department attempts to assist the taxpayer to determine whether the filer has been overpaid or underpaid on his income. It considers matter which way a case might fall. Mr. Gill explained, before the tax people are interested only in doing a good job to ensure that the right tax is paid.

The fact noting that recently the department, in the course of checking a year's tax returns from one district, found that one hand charged some corporations with $140,000 more in additional taxes and on the other hand rebated $35,000,000 to others.

There was a considerable amount of levity present during the seeming seriousness of the speaker's subject, especially when Gill advised his audience that directors of taxation were a group of men who, there being but 29 in Canada. Comment from the floor suggested that perhaps this was the one bird on its way to extinction. Club President Lowry, Mr. Gill replied, it would appear that the species was going to multiply and prosper.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Ted Wilson (Pat), whose ready humor and pleasant oratory reached heights of brilliance at the local club's meetings when the membership is favored with a conversation via the medium of the chair. A richly deserved standing ovation was tendered him when he stepped down.

Rotarian Vivian Greene conducted the meeting during which new member R. R. "Pillar" Mallory was introduced by Dr. Vas Biskakes.

Claims Industry Kept Away by Zoning Laws

City zoning regulations which call for a frontage of at least 100 feet and a lot area of 20,000 feet for industrial use are keeping smaller types of industry away from Belleville, members of city council were told last night.

Alderman Don Whalen said that he knew of at least one industry which wanted to set up Belleville because of the 100 foot frontage which Belleville while another had pulled up stakes and left the city.

Ald. Council took exception which may see the land area requirement eased to some extent.

Alderman Jack Ireland protested a motion asking the industrial commissioner to review industrial land requirements with the view that there be a proper minimum ceiling for 100 foot frontage and 20,000 square feet to be reduced to 75 feet and 15,000 square feet.

It was Ald. Alderman Whalen suggested the entire zoning regulations with respect to commercial and industry be reviewed, noting that he knew of one industry which had turned up Belleville because of the minimum frontage requirements.

Obituaries

MRS. VIOLET M. FULTON

The funeral of Mrs. Violet May Fulton was held from the Grant Funeral Home to St. Thomas' Church on Monday afternoon. Canon A. S. Mc-Kenzie officiated at the service and also the committal rites at Belleville cemetery.

The pall bearers were: Charles Sherry, Dean Wilson, Harper McIlrath, Kenneth Hall, Roy Downey and David White.

ANDREW LOWRY

Stricken with a heart attack at his home in Foxboro early on Monday evening, Andrew Lowry was rushed to Belleville General and Marine Hospital but died shortly after admittance. He was born in Ireland 61 years ago, being the son of Mrs. Rose Lowry and the late James Lowry. He came to Canada as a young man for the past five years and previously had resided at Perth. While in the city he had been employed as a bread salesman with the Dominion Stores Company. In both communities he was well liked by all who knew him and highly respected.

During the Second World War he served with the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers and was in action for Italy and many theatre of war and he served his country with distinction.

A member of St. Michael's Church, he is survived by his wife, the former Muriel Mc-Kinnon, and by his children, Joan, Judy, Karen, Paul and Martin, all at home; four brothers, Jack of Perth, Thomas of Perth, Thomas Lowry of St. Thomas, Ont., Robert Lowry of Smith Falls, and three sisters, Mrs. Vern (Agnes) McKeney of Perth, Mrs. Ross (Betty) McKinnon of Campbellford and Mrs. Gerald (Rose) Ryan of Perth.

Resting at the Funeral Residence of George F. O'Connor, 92 West Moira Street; the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. WM. NELSON BABCOCK

In failing health for some time, Mrs. Frances May Babcock, 170 Albert Street, died in Belleville General Hospital early this morning Sunday. She was born in this city 78 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson and had been a lifelong resident of Belleville.

She is survived by two sons, Russell and Ernest of Belleville, six daughters, Mrs. Curtis (Grace) Fox, Mrs. Ross (Edith) Addison and Mrs. Ivan George (Jean) Wallace and one brother Ernest Wilson, all of Belleville. Also surviving are 11 grandchildren. Her husband, William Nelson Babcock, and one son, Arthur Wilson, died some years ago.

Resting at the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home, 80 Victoria Ave. at Church St.; the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

PATON, COX

leged to have taken place between Jan. 1, 1956 and Nov. 30, 1961.

Mr. Justice Moonin sentenced them to seven years concurrent on each of the two charges, heard the sentence impassively, as did their wives, who were among the spectators.

Mr. Justice Moonin, in passing sentence, said the case likely will have an effect on small corporations, at least in Manitoba, which "peddled small takeovers" who put their money into Patons and Cox companies. Packers had to rely on the officers of companies, and in future must be more suspicious of such firms.

ARMS INVESTIGATION

Paton and Cox were arrested in the wake of a series of events that started with a six-month strike at Brandon Packers last year. A judicial inquiry into the strike by Mr. Justice G. E. Tritschler of the Manitoba Court of Appeal resulted in a preliminary recommendation that a broader investigation be made into Brandon Packers' financial operations.

The charges against the two men said they committed theft from Brandon Packers and from Brandon Packers with the means of $200,000 in stock and $200,000 in money. Brandon Packers is a meat packing firm itself had invested in Fropak Limited, another company controlled by Paton.

They also were charged with theft and fraud by Building Products Packers $200,000 for management services by Great West Equipment Limited of $4,000 contended never were provided, and $4,000 for rent of Toronto offices and other expenses the Crown said were not justified. $4,000 commission charged against Brandon Packers in the acquisition of Westgate Packers Limited of Fort Arthur, and loans made by Brandon Packers to other companies controlled by Paton and Cox.

Both defendants testified that they had no criminal intent and that the deals were considered in normal business practice.

Council Concludes Final Meeting Prior to Elections To Be Held December 4

Belleville city council yesterday held their final meeting prior to the municipal elections and the meeting was one of the shortest of the year lasting only about one hour.

There was little business of a contentious nature up for discussion.

Recommendations regarding the local industrial committee listed two weeks ago in a notice of motion by Alderman Jack Ireland, were formally adopted by council without discussion.

The recommendations called for council representation on the Industrial Commission and also that the city manager be a member.

Immediate steps were asked to be taken to plan and determine the cost of services or city-owned industrial lands and that a map of such lands to be established and that options be taken on privately-owned industrial land.

EXPENDITURE RECOMMENDED

Also recommended was expenditure by the city up to $1,000 annually to assist in the location of industry.

The city solicitor, though asked if the building could be rented to the Belleville Public Library for $50 per month. The present coffee shop operated by Mr. Wesley Evans will not be interfered.

Two weeks ago council were toying with the idea of demolishing the building as there was no further use for it as a fire hall and other buildings. It was learned that it would require $10,000 more money to have the building demolished and council accepted the offer of the parking authority to rent part of the structure.

Council approved of the installation of a modern fire hydrant at the corner of Byron and Centre Street in Thurlow Ward without delay.

Ald. Jarvah asked that the hydrant be changed until Tuesday morning.

Edna Luffman and James T. Wills were also charged on the same two counts.

'True Bill' Is Returned By Grand Jury

The Grand Jury returned a "true bill" last night in Mrs. Freda Evelyn Abrams of the Criminal Section of the Peace and Jury sittings for the county of Hastings, which commenced Monday morning before His Honor Judge J. C. Anderson.

Mrs. Abrams, represented by barrister Bernard W. Hurley, pleaded not guilty to a charge of being in possession of explosives and burglar tools, at trial Monday afternoon.

Crown Attorney Gordon Ellis conducted the case for the Crown.

The evidence of the grand jury witnesses will be heard by the court this morning.

WINNIPEG

Also included in fringe benefits listed by the company is group insurance, workman's compensation, severance pay and sometimes a bonus for long service.

Mayor A. M. Haig advised further investigation of the scheme, noting that he had been told that the boost was in that segment of the suggestion that "would not be popular."

"It could be a valuable addition to the bus service," he said.

An annexation settlement between the city and the county of Hastings, which would see the city receive a payment of $4,776, was approved by council.

However, due to certain aspects of the financial adjustments involving the county, the city of Belleville, council voted that the annexation settlement to be attended.

NOT ENOUGH MONEY

There is not enough money in the city's budget for enough to get to install traffic lights at the corner of Herchimer Ave. and Bridge Street. Lights for this corner would cost about $4,700, council was told.

In lieu of lights, however, council was asked by Alderman John Barlow to install Stop-way stop signs at the intersection.

Alderman Walter Elliott as chairman of the traffic committee said he would still like to see lights at the corner for the protection of school children.

Council voted for the stop signs to be erected.

The city police department still sat as curbsides for entry to the Quinte Sanatorium land fill area on the west side of Bay Bridge Road.

Two weeks ago council voted for the dump to be closed at 4.30 p.m. but then it has been learned that it is essential for certain parties to dispose of refuse, which would be hazardous to keep overnight around their premises.

The public works committee recommended that keys also should be provided for those of any responsible person wishing to use the dispatch area after closing hours.

Alderman Ben Corke questioned the recommendation stating that it was asking the police department to interpret to break the law. The alderman wondered if the public works department was ready to determine who were "responsible persons" in the city.

Alderman George Wishart noted that apparently the police department were to be allowed the privilege of discretionary powers.

And as a final note Mayor Haig expressed his disappointment that four of this year's council members had decided not to allow their names to stand for re-election. He asked that they reconsider the matter.

Aldermen John Barlow, Jack Deacon, Lorne McDougall and Leslie Reid have stated they will not run for re-election.

It is expected there will be a number of new faces on council next year.

IN MEMORIAM

LYON, Agnes Caroline — In loving memory of my dear wife, Sarah Anne Lyon, who passed away November 21st, 1960; also our daughter, Betty Ann, who died on March 30th, 1958.

Lord in Thy wisdom we must obey, Our loved ones have been called away.

Sadly missed in the Saviour's arms. We hope in heaven to meet again.

Husband, Thomas Lyon, granddaughters Carol and Linda and family.

BREEVE. — In loving memory of my dear mother, Agnes Florence Clayton, who passed away November 21st, 1940.

Mother dear, you left us so fast of sorrow could forget;

Your memory we will always cherish while life shall last.

She must be watching yet.

An angel face I cannot see,

But heard, missed and loved by me.

Daughter, Mrs. Ethel Breeve.

BREEVE. — In loving memory of my dear mother, Agnes Florence Clayton, who passed away November 21st, 1940.

A wonderful mother, woman and friend,

One who was better, God never knew;

A wonderful worker, loyal and kind,

Gone in a silence, most mother we find.

Just in a moment she was taken right,

Bound and liberal, ever understood by her friends and neighbours, a wonderful mother, that mother was to me.

Daughter, Mrs. Ethel Breeve, Mr. Grace Breeve, Brenda, Ronald and Cecil.

BREEVE. — In loving memory of my dear wife, Agnes Florence Clayton, who passed away November 21st, 1940.

The gift of sorrow I cannot tell,
Of the loss of one I loved so well;
A heart that's breaking, a home that's lonely,
Her memory I shall always keep.
Sadly missed by husband, Cecil.

CARDS OF THANKS

It is with the sincerest gratitude that we express to our many friends and neighbors our appreciation of the kindness, sympathy and words of sympathy shown us during the illness and passing away of our beloved son, Ernie. These tangible expressions of sympathy have helped to lighten our burden of sorrow. We especially thank Rev. L. A. Page.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Gaw and family.

Board Will Open Tenders For Addition, New School

A special meeting of the Belleville Public School Board will be held next Monday evening to open tenders for the construction of the addition to the Harry J. Clarke School and the proposed new Parkdale School in West Belleville.

At the meeting the board is also expected to award contracts subject to financing and department of education approval for grant purposes.

The regular monthly meeting of the board was held Monday evening at which little more than routine business was up for discussion.

Enrolments at the twelve schools stood at 4,484 pupils at October 31, the board was told. This is actually 16 children fewer in number than the same period in 1960. Average efficiency of attendance was high at 96.38 for the city.

Three teachers will be leaving the employ of the Board at December 31 and will be replaced by Miss Carolyn Neil as of January 2. Probationary staff are Mrs. Marilyn Graham and Mrs. Suzanne Sovereign as members of the temporary staff. The Board approved the employment of Mrs. Ruth Secombe of Leaside as supernumerary teacher on special contract.

GIVE public school children

In the year 1960 the Board gave tentative approval to the admission of five-year old children, whose birthdates occurred in January and February, to Kindergarten. Implementation was available and to comply with the requirements of the Public Schools Act. It was reported that six under-age children have been admitted at September 1960 and nineteen at September 1961. Anticipated difficulties have not been realized and, in the opinion of the inspectors, the plan was operating satisfactorily.

Three visitors from the Ontario Department of Education visited public school classrooms within the last two weeks:

D. W. Gordon, Inspector of Industrial Arts Classes, visited Queen Alexandra, Queen Mary and Harry Clarke centres.

D. L. Maiden, inspector of Auxiliary Classes, visited at Queen Alexandra School, and Miss C. Wilcox, Assistant Director of Music, assisted in an In-service program on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 17 and 18, to bring help to teachers of music in the classrooms.

In the Tenancies Committee, under the chairmanship of Morley Lovelace, the report of the committee was received to give consideration to time allocations and responsibilities of school principals, was given approval. Some additional time was allocated to principals of schools, principals, adjusted to the programs to be carried out in the various areas of the various schools.

TO REVIEW WAGES

In the Property Committee under the chairmanship of Frank Clarke a special committee of Messrs. Clarke, Lovelace and Townson with the Chairman, Secretary Board and the Superintendent named to meet with the school custodians to review present wage payments.

The appointment of the Harry J. Clarke School building will take place Tuesday, November 21 at 4 o'clock.

A revised fire insurance schedule was passed covering placing a total coverage of $5,113,213 on contents of schools and contents of the Board Office.

The Board refused a request of the Bowl-O-Drome to permit organization of a children's bowling league in the city schools.

At request of the Belleville and District Labor Council to hold classes Saturday and Sunday not granted.

Dr. J. Russell Scott was named to represent the Board at executive meetings of the Ontario Public District Home and School Council of the Canadian Education Association.

Dr. J. Russell Scott, M.D.; Mac Smith, Wm. Townson, Gordon Trill and W. A. VanTassel were named to the special committee to make plans for the Education Week activities of the Public School Association of Ontario, Inc.

Attending the meeting were: Chairman A. C. Hubbs, Trustees Frank Clarke, Gordon Lockhart, Morley Lovelace, Jas. Ritchie, Russell Scott, M.D., Mac Smith, John R. Sprague, Wm. Townson, Gordon H. Trill, Erwin ValCamp and W. A. VanTassel.

TRENTON — Earl C. Davey, a former resident of Trenton, died at Port Hope on Sunday. Mr. Davey operated a grocery store on Front Street in Trenton for a number of years and also worked as a shipper with the Quaker Oats Company in Canada. He had been living in Brighton.

Mr. Davey is survived by his wife and his son, James.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar was at a premium of 3 27-32 cents in terms of Canadian funds near noon today, Monday it was 4¾ and was $1.03⅛.

Pound sterling stood at $2.82 7-16, up 1-16.

Council Told Assessment Is $13,904,200

TRENTON — Reporting to the Richmond Council on the activities of the 1961 Court of Revision, Councillor D. R. Fraser, chairman of the board said that assessment for budget purposes for 1962 totalled $13,904,300. This includes supplementary assessment of $812,900.

Residential assessment was $8,228,290); commercial assessment $2,782,3300; industrial $1,971,-100 and business assessment at $761,220.

Councillor Fraser said that the property assessment figures were had been lowered by $78,-970 by the court findings. He said that a number of appeals came into adjustment of assessment figures as compiled by the assessment department, such as mechanical errors made by the department in the "use code sector" for commercial properties on the west side of the river and the comparison of values made by appellants.

The court will hold a final meeting today, following which, all appellants will be notified of court decisions by mail.

Councillor Fraser commended Assessment Commissioner J. Allan Smith for his work this year.

Stop Sign Out, Cars Collide

TRENTON — Around 10.15 Monday morning, Mrs. Adeline Gilchrist of Ottawa, was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital where she was examined for a possible injury following a two-car crash at the intersection of Sidney Street and Division Drive.

Police say that a stop sign which ordinarily warns motorists proceeding along Dixon Drive to stop at the through street intersection, had been removed by a repairman, and that the out-of-town car, driven by Orris H. Gilchrist, 65, of 36 Beverley Street, Ottawa, drove across the intersection into the path of a car driven by Gordon W. Strong, 49, of 37 Barbara Street in Trenton.

Damage to the two vehicles was estimated at around $875.

Mrs. Gilchrist was injured.

Seek to Settle Squabble About Building Lots

TRENTON — On December 11th, 1960, the Trenton public utilities commission held public hearing to consider an application to locate on the east side of Carrie Ave., and backing on the town's reservoir. This lot was said to be owned by a local contractor, Mr. Dey.

Commissioners feared the excavation work would undermine the stability of the town's water tank site. Commissioners also expressed concern about school children playing down the steep slope made by the excavation.

The Trenton Board of Parks Management also made enquiries as to whether the excavation work had been carried on with the knowledge of the town.

Meanwhile, Mr. Day had settled considerable land within town of land, also backing on the mountain, on the opposite side of the road to the first lot under discussion.

On December 20, 1960, council voted to return the purchase price for the nine feet of land.

On January 3, 1961, council passed a resolution authorizing the corporation to start court action against Mr. Day, because he had allegedly refused to comply with a council order to restore the eastside Lorne Ave. lot "to its original condition".

Last night, Mr. Day appeared before council to ask the query: "What have I done wrong?"

Mr. Day reminded council that he had received "a certain amount of publicity" in the newspaper, on radio and TV, concerning the excavation in the eastside Lorne Ave. lot. He said that the excavating was done at the request of other contractor, to whom he had sold the lot backing on the mountain.

Town solicitor Roderick Cassidy pointed out that it was that the land was still registered in Mr. Day's name and that a survey, hired by the town, had found that there was a 16-foot encroachment into town property made by the excavation.

He directed his certain councillors about this and "not about their actions are contradictory," said Mr. Day.

When asked to name the councillors to whom he had talked, Mr. Day said: "I talked to Claude (Graham) and he told me to go ahead and get your lot!" then he came over here and voted to take me up."

SUGGESTS COMMITTEE

"If Mr. Day has come here tonight to attack councillors, I think we should set up a committee to study the matter and come to some type of settlement," suggested Councillor Vern Lane.

"In regards to my lot on the west side of Lorne Avenue," said Mr. Day, "I required nine feet to satisfy the planning board, as I recall, as we use to the town; they cashed it, then this other lot business blew up on me all of a sudden, I'm in wrong on both sides of the street. After writing me a letter and saying they accepted my offer to buy the nine feet, I was notified that the deal was off."

Councillor Lange asked the solicitor to clarify council's position. Mr. Cassidy said that since the council had not passed a bylaw concerning the sale, the letter of notification and refund to the sale of the nine feet was not binding.

"Does that answer your question?" Councillor Lange asked Mr. Day.

"It does in a way," answered Mr. Day, "I don't know what kind of a hand you are."

"As far as I'm concerned, it's a closed affair," said Councillor Lange.

WANTS REVIEW

"I'm sure that there was a lot of correspondence and conversation with this affair," insisted Councillor D. R. Fraser. "I'd like to review the correspondence. I'm sure our position was made clear."

It was finally agreed that council would review the correspondence then meet with Mr. Day at the site of the excavation and also examine the land across the road on the west side of Lorne Avenue, in an attempt to reach an amicable settlement.

"What this matter first came up," said Mr. Day, "someone called me at the office one morning and told me to hurry up to the mountain because the water tank had overflowed and was rolling down the mountain."

"If time we got it settled," said Councillor McNair, "Get it settled this year."

Aid Santa Parade

TRENTON — In accordance with the general holiday spirit which is about by Christmas and snow fall, Trenton council voted last night to donate $25 to the Trenton Chamber of Commerce to be used for the Santa Claus parade, in addition to the $50 which has already been allocated to the public works' department for the use of vehicles in the Town of Trenton float for the parade.

Trying to Organize Fish and Game Club

TRENTON — There will be a formation meeting of the proposed Trenton Fish and Game Club in the Quennyway Hotel on Wednesday, November 22, at 8.30 p.m.

Guest speakers will be J. M. Taylor, district forester, of Tweed; Russ Whitfield, also of Tweed and area, fisheries supervisor of the Ontario Federation of Hunters and Anglers.

Several local businessmen have donated money to get this organization "on its feet," and the object of the association will be to further fishing, game restocking, pheasant hunting and conservation in this area. One plan being talked about is a trout pond for area children.

Films on deer and moose hunting and muskie fishing will be shown at Wednesday's meeting.

Senik, McNair Both Announce Candidatures

TRENTON — Mr. Dan Senik, 1961 chairman of the Community Centre Commission here, today announced his intention of running for a seat on the town council.

Mr. Senik has resided in Trenton for the past 16 years and is employed as a civilian at Trenton RCAF Station.

Mr. Monday Gardner, N. J. McNair told a reporter that he would set his name stand for re-election this year. Mr. McNair headed the town council's finance committee last year. In January, 1960, he was reminded to the public works department of council, following the death of Councillor William Bradshaw, Mr. McNair also served on council in the 1920s.

This brings to ten the number of town residents who have indicated they will run for council. Three of these, Councillor McNair, Councillor C. V. Graham and ex-councillor R. J. Whitley, have been service with the municipal body. Newcomers Elmer Bonter, Jim Brown, Ron Birkett, Jim Bradshaw and Mrs. Duncan McDonald will be seeking public office for the first time. Ed Todd, also a candidate, is for a seat on council, lost in a by-election by a narrow margin last year.

To date, no one has come forward and stated that he will contest the mayoralty against Mayor James MacDonald whose term expires this year. The mayor has said that he will stand for re-election.

Nomination night is Thursday, Nov. 23. Nominations for council, board of education and the public utilities commission will be received at town hall (over the police. station), between the hours of noon and 8 p.m. and 7 to 8 p.m. Nominations for mayor must be received between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Report Three Road Mishaps

TRENTON — Provincial police at Brighton report three accidents in the district.

Around noon on Monday, John Sobeszak, 34, of Weston, Ont., crashed into a car on No. 2 Highway, one mile west of Brighton and crashed into a telephone pole, resulting in extensive damage to the vehicle.

Around 5.15 p.m. last night, Mrs. Lillies Reid of Picton, proceeding south on the Dale Hill Road, west of Trenton, lost control of her car. The car overturned after coming to rest on its roof in the ditch. Mrs. Reid was not injured.

At 12.15 a.m. today, Harold Baddgey of Carrying Place, driving his tractor-trailer unit, slipped when he struck gravel rails on the north side of the Dead Creek crossing. The drive shaft dropped out of the truck as Mr. Baddgey crossed the railway tracks and the driver lost control of the vehicle.

Central Bridge Strike Settled

TRENTON — James Duncan, Bridge manager at Central Bridge Company, Trenton, said last night that 30 members of the local of the International Association of Bridge Ornamental Iron Workers have returned to work today, following a 10 weeks' strike.

Workers in 15 steel structural plants across Ontario were affected by the settlement of the strike. The workers had asked for a 30-cents-an-hour raise, plus new benefits of seven cents an hour. The companies had offered 16 cents an hour, plus welfare benefits to be decided by council, following the death of Councillor William Bradshaw, Mr. McNair also served on council in the 1920s.

This brings to ten the number of town residents who have indicated they will run for council. Three of these, Councillor McNair, Councillor C. V. Graham and ex-councillor R. J. Whitley, have been service with the municipal body. Newcomers Elmer Bonter, Jim Brown, Ron Birkett, Jim Bradshaw and Mrs. Duncan McDonald will be seeking public office for the first time. To date, no one has come forward and stated that he will contest the mayoralty against Mayor James MacDonald whose term expires this year. The mayor has said that he will stand for re-election.

Nomination night is Thursday, Nov. 23. Nominations for council, board of education and the public utilities commission will be received at town hall (over the police. station), between the hours of noon and 8 p.m. and 7 to 8 p.m. Nominations for mayor must be received between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Harold Blakely Heads Planning Appeal Group

TRENTON — At an organizational meeting of the Trenton Committee of Adjustment held Monday afternoon, Harold S. Blakely was elected chairman of the body.

The committee will deal with such things as minor deviations from the zoning and building restrictions as laid down by the official town plan.

Other committee members are Gerald Weaver and William Steenburg.

Prior to this time, would-be builders, whose requests to erect certain type of dwellings or commercial buildings, had been turned down by Trenton and Suburban Planning Board and town council, had recourse to the Ontario Municipal Board only. Now, the committee of adjustment will deal with such cases, although in cases where a radical deviation from the stipulations of the official plan are desired, the provincial body will continue to rule.

Rules of procedure for the new committee will now be drawn up and appointment of the committee members and rules must be approved by the minister of planning and development. The committee will meet with a member of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board, who will familiarize the members with duties expected them.

The members will also meet with a representative of the provincial department of planning and development.

Mrs. L. Hurst of the municipal office staff will act as secretary-treasurer and will keep records of action and handle money expenditures incurred by the committee. Mrs. Black and Mr. Blakely have been empowered to sign cheques.

Unexpected Ally

The pleasure derived from unexpected good fortune is generally out of all proportion to the material value of the windfall.

A dollar found on the sidewalk can brighten a whole afternoon.

Even greater pleasure can be derived from unanticipated support for a pet conviction or theory.

Thus we got a thrill out of Pierre Berton's column in the Toronto Star the other day. Berton actively campaigned for the expulsion of South Africa from the Commonwealth at the time of the Commonwealth ministers' conference last spring. Now he says that, in spite of this record, he is opposed to expelling South Africa from the United Nations, as some Afro-Asian lands are advocating. It is essential, he argues, that all countries should be members of the UN; the fact that we may regard some nations as "bad" makes it all the more essential that they should be members of the only body which might prove able to exercise some control over them.

We have stated the same conviction in this column on more than one occasion in the past. The logic of this stand seems to us so obvious that we cannot understand how any person could fail to grasp it.

The only legitimate objection to such a policy, it seems to us, is that it runs counter to the spirit of the United Nations charter. But this charter was drafted when the world was still at war, when the only threat to world peace appeared to come from the axis powers and when it was possible to dream of world-wide peace and progress once the forces of fascism were defeated. In those days the formation of a policing body composed only of peace-loving nations was not an unreasonable dream. But it is an unreasonable dream today, far removed from reality. Once recognize that fact and the only logical course is to work hard to get all the "bad" nations into the UN, where the "good" nations can talk to them and endeavor to control them.

Kennedy Takes His Stand

"There cannot be an American solution for every problem."

Not a very world-shaking pronouncement? True. But sometimes it is not so much what is said as who says it that is important. That statement was made by President John F. Kennedy of the United States.

Incidentally, he preceded it by the declaration that "the U.S. cannot impose its will on others," which serves to eliminate any possible controversy as to what he meant by the sentence first quoted above.

Speaking at Seattle, Kennedy declared that to preach either war or surrender does a disservice to the U.S.

He thus took his stand against both the warmongers and the appeasers. The political climate being what it is, it was the former, rather than the latter, stand which emerged as the more important.

More than one observer of the political scene has suggested in the past few months that we on this continent are being acclimatized to the idea of a nuclear war. The man on whose shoulders rests the major share of the awful responsibility for the West's policy at this time now asserts bluntly that the U.S. cannot expect always to get its way. Nothing could be a more straight-forward answer to those who have feared that too tough a policy might inevitably lead to war.

At the same time Kennedy carefully made certain that neither his own countrymen, nor any others who can understand the simplest language, will mistake this realism for timidity, this reasonableness for appeasement. What he said was not new, but it made news because it was said by precisely the one person whose words were important.

The search for truth is endless, but it can only go on in a society which sustains freedom of opinion, freedom to be wrong as well as right, freedom to be silly as well as wise, stubborn as well as tolerant, freedom to challenge and freedom to answer back. I am myself a man of strongly held convictions; but my right to express them is linked inseparably with the right of my opponents to express theirs.—Writer and journalist John Connell speaking about the value of the opposing view.

U Thant Tough, Tolerant

New York Times

A tough but tolerant Burmese who believes in keeping his "emotional equilibrium" has passed the last obstacles on his way to the United Nations' top position, left vacant by the death of Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold.

U Thant (pronounced Oo Thont) emerged a month ago as the leader candidate for the secretary generalship when both the Soviet Union and the United States found him acceptable. The rancing dispute over how many advisers or assistants the secretary general should have, called "the numbers game" by observers, settled but did not overstrain the Burmese diplomat's emotional equilibrium.

U Thant regards himself as a neutralist. He is the chief representative of Burma at the United Nations since 1957, his car emulated the Soviet Union for its intervention in Hungary, France for her Algerian policy and the U.S. for its conduct in Cuba.

Like many Burmese, U Thant has only one name. The "U" is a title of respect that has no exact English equivalent. Burmese is visited Thailand and Indonesia, and that he was a member of the Burmese delegation to the UN.

His career as a civil servant, his post as permanent head of the Burmese delegation here in 1957, thrust him a personal relationship to Premier Nu. He accompanied the premier to the conference in Asian and African nations at Bandung, Indonesia, in 1955.

An importunable citizen of the world, U Thant daily impresses the Occident and the Orient. When mingling with the citizens of Western countries in the soft-carpeted delegates' lounge, he is impeccably dressed, ed in a dark suit and conservative tie with a discreet glint of gold on his cuffs.

At home Thant wears the long garment known as the longyi. His daughter, a 22-year-old postgraduate student in sociology at Hunter College, was married here last year in a Buddhist ceremony. His 19-year-old son, Thamay, is also a student at Hunter.

Thant says the theory that world tensions arise from conflicts between different civilizations is a fallacy. "I feel strongly that conflicts between nations or individuals generally arise not out of viewpoints in the civilization but from uncivilized elements in their character," he said in a recent lecture.

Thant admits that his sudden promotion toward the office of the world stage affected his equilibrium.

"It sounds incredible," he said calmly. "Of course, there was a great deal of emotional excitement. But I have been trained in the Buddhist tradition of concentration and meditation to seek a certain detachment."

Letter To The Editor

Quotes From Bible On Sports Issue

Editor,

Ontario Intelligencer.

What about Sunday Sports?

It may not be so important what a person may say about Sunday sports, but how much more important to know what God says about it. God's Word declares "Heaven and Earth shall pass away, but My word shall not pass away."

The question is should we take the Lord's Day for our pleasures and sports?

The answer is clearly given in the Fourth Commandment. The Ten Commandments — "Remember the Sabbath Day to Keep it Holy".

God promises His blessings to those who remember the Sabbath.

"If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing my pleasure on My Holy Day; and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable, and shall honor Him, not doing thine own ways, nor seeking thine own pleasures, nor speaking thine own words.

"Then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord, and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father, for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.

Sacred Sabbath is his love upon Me, therefore will I delight in Him. He shall call upon Me and I will answer Him. I will be with him in trouble.

These promises are conditioned on our obedience to God. We live living in Canada, then, what even the leaders of our country fear the disastrous effect of people who have been trying to build bomb shelters. As we have lived in this section, can we expect our prayers to be answered?

If this town is a model thing to have our pleasure on Sunday — Sport, amusements, etc. Can even permit the children of Israel to gather their manna (food) on the Sabbath Day, but left explicit instructions. "Six days ye shall gather it, but on the seventh day, there shall be none".

"But it came to pass that there went out some of the people on the seventh day for to gather and they found none".

A word of warning. God says, "Behold, I set before you a blessing and a curse; a blessing, if ye obey the commandments of the Lord your God, which I command you this day:

"And a curse, if ye will not obey the commandments of the Lord your God, but turn aside out of the way which I command you this day, to go after other gods, which ye have not known."

Then shall they call upon Me, but I will not answer; they shall seek Me early, but they shall not find Me".

Think seriously before you vote for Sunday sports.

"An Interested citizen".

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TRUE RICHES

"Money is the root of all evil."

Who said so? Certainly not the Bible. The Bible says something vastly different. It declares that "the love of money is the root of all evil." That is something else again. Money is not evil in itself. It is the love of money which is evil.

The columns of the newspaper are full of tragic stories of what people do for money. Never have so many committed crimes as we need it today, because the overwhelming majority of us do not produce a single item of food we eat or a single thread of clothing we wear. So we have to have money to buy these things. In the past, most of the people raised their own food, made their own cloth, made their own cloth-ing. But not so today. Accordingly we have to have money to buy these things.

This puts upon us all the terrific pressure of money seeking a place of security. Down the previous generations have left us a great deal to say about this matter. There is much righteous wealth in the world. The most religious woman I ever knew was the richest woman I ever knew. Joseph of Arimathea, a rich and influential Jewish leader, with Nicodemus prepared the body of Jesus for burial and placed the sacred body in his own tomb.

Neither riches nor poverty make us evil if we can resist the love of riches and rise above the oppression of poverty.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

NOVEMBER 21 1941

Sixty-seven births were recorded in the city and district during the month of October, according to vital statistics released today by City Hall officials. Twenty-five couples paraded to the altar while twenty-seven deaths occurred, twenty of which were males.

Apparently adversely affected by the proposed introduction of the government to fix the ceiling on egg prices to that of prior to October 11th, egg prices on the local produce market fell to 30c per dozen for Grade 'A' stock, a five-cent drop from last week's quotation. Wholesale quotes of 48 cents the dozen and pullets at 43 cents. Fowl was plentiful, ranging from 21c to $1.25 each. Potatoes held steady and ranged from 80c to $1.40 per 75-lb. bag, with carrots, beets and turnips bringing the 2 cent to 30 cents the peck.

The heaviest frost of the season swept over the city and district last night, absorbing warmth, following a cold wave registered this autumn. In the north areas, blackened vines lay in the wake of the frost, but damage to a negligible amount. Tobacco and Plant crops are all harvested and any fall taken by the frost was upon flowers and plants still remaining outside.

Aid. Hall, Bridge O. Two, who has been a member of the city council since 1926, and chairman of the fire department for some years and up to the time the gas plant was purchased by the Shore Gas Co. has announced that he will not be a candidate for the office of mayor for the year 1932. Aid. George Reid has not yet decided to seek re-election; he will make an announcement shortly. Aid. Bateman is the intentions of the other members of the city council with regards to the coming elections; Aid. Harold Arm-strong will run; Aid. Griffin is undecided, but not inclined to run; Aid. Wills may be inclined to run; Aid. Marshall will run; Aid. Brackett will run; Aid. Woodley has not decided; Aid. Walker will not run; Aid. Wotten not decided. Charles Hanna has declined to run for reelection as hydro commissioner; his two-year term expired this fall.

NOVEMBER 21, 1911

The cold snap last night caused a thin layer of ice to form on the bay. This is exceptionally early.

An indoor game of baseball was played at the armouries last night between teams representing the Canada Foundry Works and the Cement Company. The result was a score of 24 to 16 in favor of the Cement Company. The following composed the team: Springer Lock Co.—Smith, Bell, Geyer, McDougall, Dusseberry, Lacombe; Cement Co.—Scott and Bawden. Cement Company: Pitcher, Bawden; catcher, Reddick, Croft, Ford, M. Reddick; Downie, French and Watkins. The umpire and bases was W. Gerow, and on balls, J. Cumming. There was a large number of spectators.

Telephone Co. Is Lacking in Imagination

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend who moved into town was given a new list of a new seven-digit telephone numbers, which, for convenience, number, including himself, I suppose in time we will get used to them, but right now it seems terribly sterile and dehumanizing to lose our identities.

Besides, I think that the telephone company could have used more fair and equitable in devising additional exchange names, there are dozens and dozens of letter combinations that have never been explored.

No doubt, all the simple and traditional combinations have been used up, but there is still a remote lots of lovely and exotic combinations that would stave off the ultimate mechanization for a few more years.

Why, I have just to mind immediately are ZYgmotic, ZYthe, Adzvark, ZYfrot, Bliang, PYramidal, MNemonic, RHodora, YQuem, PNeumatic AEgean, Thalassa, BOreal, Etc. — and any crossword puzzle devotee could add dozens more to such a list.

There is a broad liberal education already latent in exchanges. Not only do they provide new combinations of letters, but they could be used partners to widen their horizons in the fields of geology, mineralogy, geography, anthropology, Old Testament literature and French classics.

Most present exchanges are delightfully dull and literal — State, Madison, Hillcrest, Butterfield, Main. They achieve a certain clarity, it is true, but at the expense of all color, charm and individuality. It is true, also, that they are easily spelled — but I think that the new exchanges, even with more difficult spelling, would stick in the mind better than the present dull ones for four digits.

So there are at least three things that such new exchanges would do — increase our vocabulary, expand our knowledge and improve our spelling. Why, the Telephone Company could be a benefactor of the public if it took this bold and revolutionary step.

The action of the curve is moving in the opposite (and moral) human direction. In films, for instance, the saven digits on license plates, which no one could remember, were replaced this year by two letters and four digits, which is immensely pleasant to drive along and remark some that say "Ha," "He," "Hi," "Ho," "Hu," "Ah," "Eh," "Oh," "Ay," "Ee," "Ih," "Uh," "Oy" and "Yi."

A world of words — however truncated or unusual — is vastly preferable to a world of numbers. We live as individuals by words: we become a faceless collectivity by digits. Mrs. A. number has no true identity or personality — it is simply one of a series that continues to infinity. Orwell's "1984" may be upon us sooner than he thought.

Many Different Things Can Affect the Jawbone

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My dentist suspects that I have arthritis in the joints of the jawbone. I know nothing about this problem, except that it can be quite painful, but do not wish to waste my doctor's time if nothing can be done for it, as I have heard. — A.H."

I would say that you have not been correctly informed. While there is no "cure" for arthritis, there are a number of ways of relieving the discomfort, depending on exactly what type is involved.

First find out whether you have arthritis, or some other ailment that is causing the pain. If it is annoying enough to be a cause of concern, it warrants diagnosis.

Painful joints in the jaw can be the result of an abnormal "bite" — the teeth not coming together exactly as they should. This, of course, is in the province of the dentist, and should be ruled out first. It's time to look elsewhere.

Gout, for example, can affect effectively.

Rheumatoid arthritis may be causing the trouble (and probably, elsewhere in the body). In the cause, it most definitely should be under treatment during the active phase, to limit after-effects.

If it is osteo-arthritis, medication (and perhaps other measures of a simple but effective sort) can reduce the discomfort and help prevent worsening of the condition.

But guesswork is of no use. An expert diagnosis is required to know what to do next. Until you would not be wasting your doctor's time.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I read a magazine article about a new technique of restoring hearing. The operation is performed with what looked like a microscope. I was wondering if this method is established and if it is maricleconsiness. — W.S."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THINGS THAT BELONG TO YOU

I recall reading a sentence that ran like this: "The ignorance of man's country is every country, and each town, like mine. Why, then, do men remain ignorant?"

Poverty is vastly more marked in those who lack ambition than in those who have little in the way of goods.

We live in a very rich country. The fact has been with us for quite a few years. Yet there are those who have not begun to see their minds to get acquainted with the country.

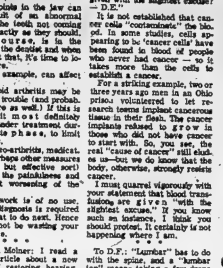
In summer, the bee goes to the flower and extracts sweetness. But it leaves the blossom intact so that beautiful as ever. It is our business to grow, to learn. We are to get something sweet and strong and to extract it for our own benefit and then leave it there open for profit and gain in the same manner.

Nothing is more thrilling than to see a tree. Why do we not take more when so much has been left around expressly for us?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Here I have been writing words for fifty years and never knew what a useful word that is.



It is a word built.

I have known the word intuition all my life. I can recall my old classics master, David Alexander Dissent, patiently trying to translate Xenophon by intuition instead of by studying my vocabulary and Greek grammar. Later, I served under editors who described that I covered news events by intuition rather than by digging out the facts. Intuition, I knew, meant the direct perception of truth, facts, and so on, independently of any reasoning process. It's a very handy faculty, if you can get away with it.

But here is this word built. It is pronounced exactly as it looks. It is not "in-tu-it" or "in-tew-it" or "in-tyu-it" or "in-chew-it", and a little Eskimoan it sounds.

The way I intuit it," you say, calmly, avoiding all statistics, and confounding your hearers, "is—"

We have needed this word for years, because

Some Thoughts on Music Week by a Member of R.M.T.A.

Editor's Note: As this is Music Week in Canada, The Ontario Intelligencer is publishing five articles written by city residents who are teachers or directors of music.

By Mrs. T. F. Townsend, R.M.T.

The object of Music Week in Canada is to challenge Canadians to make a large place in their lives for music. It will bring concerts, recitals "Music moulds the minds of men and ennobles the soul."

In Belleville there is now a flourishing branch of the organization known as the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association. These teachers of Belleville and the surrounding area are recognized by our government as capable instructors, men and women who are not only well-grounded in music but have the keen understanding of the human mind which makes for genuine teaching.

This official government recognition was granted in 1962. Members may submit the letters R.M.T. after their names. The use of these letters by non-members is illegal. Members must be at least 18 years of age, with six months residence in Ontario, and must hold a certificate from a recognized institution or have brought for a stated time under conditions satisfactory to the Association.

BRANCH OFFICERS

The the Belleville branch, the official members for 1961-1962 are past president — Mr. F. Wilbur; president — Mrs. Ruth Erion Boyce; vice-president — Sister Mary Avila; recording secretary — Mrs. G. H. Rennie; assistant secretary — Mrs. T. F. Townsend; treasurer — Mrs. E. Veley; press secretary — Mrs. Marion Simpson and social convener — Mrs. G. Martin.

Since the local branch was formed the following people have served as presidents: Mr. W. Connor, Miss B. Hamilton, Mrs. Dandeau, Mrs. Houston, Mr. J. Wilbur, Mrs. E. Veley and Mrs. E. Boyce.

There is plenty of work ahead for the O.R.M.T.A., but there is also much that has been achieved. The association's practice of bringing its members together for meetings and annual conventions has done more than one tired teacher out of his or her overcrowded time and helped to broaden their views. There are now organizations of the O.R.M.T.A. type in seven Canadian provinces. They are allied under what is known as the Canadian Federation of Music Teachers.

The members of the Belleville branch have had many interesting sessions during the recent past. There have been special meetings with the examiners sent down from the Royal Conservatory for the February and June examinations. These included the visits of David Cheetham, Earle Moss, Boris Berlin, Reginald Geen and others who discussed with the local teachers technique and examination problems.

Mr. Snake, immediate past president for the province brought two blind artists, who gave an interesting program. There was a visit to the local museum, where Mr. Gerald Boyce reviewed the development of music in Belleville during the last century.

STUDENTS' RECITALS

The branch members are providing a series of student recitals over the winter. Thus far the programs cover a period of ten weeks and are presented in students of the higher grades who are pupils of Associate Music Teachers of the area.

A summer school refresher course was held at Albert College in July, in charge of the Toronto Conservatory. Lecturers from the London Conservatory of Music also attended the school was well-attended and proved a satisfaction to all concerned. These visits and courses prove a stimulus to the wider view of the O.R.M.T.A. as a national organization.

The study and appreciation of good music is greatly hindered by the low standards which are frequently presented through T.V., radio and movies. Our registered teachers, as a group, seek to foster appreciation of good music in homes and schools. Artistic, who lived from 384 to 322 B.C. said: "Music within the power of music is to produce a certain condition of character by training the young in the facility of enjoying themselves in the right way." Training the youth in the faculty of enjoying themselves in the right way is a vital need in our chaotic times. Good music can bring a measure of peace and peace of mind, if it can provide satisfaction and enjoyment, if it can enhance our understanding and appreciation of the beautiful and help us spend our leisure hours more worthily, then those of us who are teaching music are indeed privileged.

NEED FOR IMPROVEMENT

Music, we are told, is the universal language understood and accepted by all peoples of all lands and circumstances. It is our duty as educators to try to change the intellectual climate of our province and of our nation so that the benefits of a fine training in music may be presented to all our young people. No high school, for example, should be without a first class choir or glee club, and a first class orchestra or band.

We want to take this opportunity to thank the general public who, aware of the effort to stress appreciation of music, have co-operated through many channels, including schools, the radio station, TV channels and churches.

Of the many special "weeks" that dot our calendar, we have a special affection for "Canada Music Week."

Those of us who have contributed in any way to this development is our community life are not content to say "thank you" to others who have done much for our profession but for the education of our youth. Aside from its own values music has been a strong uniting force in the community. Musical skill and talent are not confined to any race, any religion or any economic group. So to all our friends — best wishes for your musical future.

It forecast increased milk production, a new price policy into poster and said the current decline in farm prosperity is precipitous if prices remain at present levels.

"If this happens, it said, butter stocks at the end of 1962 could be as high as 227,000,000 pounds larger at some 200,000,000 pounds.

NOTICE HUNT

It noted this year's 36 - per cent jump in production of poultry-meat — most of it in broiler chickens. In September, farmers paid by processors at London, Ont., fell to a record low of 12 cents a pound.

It said certain that if broiler producers do not contain output within reasonable bounds, the industry will continue to be in a chaotic condition."

The report forecast slightly lower hog prices in the first half of 1962 though hog marketings may be higher.

Egg production is expected to rise, with resulting lower prices in the first half of next year. Export markets are also expected to decline.

Potato production this year declined three per cent despite a six-per-cent increase in acreage, but because of a large increase in U.S. production, prices next year aren't likely to rise.

Coroners were advised by Mr. Pepper that the jury system question witnesses at inquests. If they wish, coroners can prevent lawyers or anyone else from attending inquests, he said.

Commenting on a statement by Kingston coroner Dr. P. M. MacDonnell that suicides should never be made public, Mr. Pepper said: "A coroner has no more right to cover up a suicide than he has to cover up a murder.

Is it fair to the insurance companies?" he asked.

Officials of the attorney - general's department, which sponsored the conference, said although all 440 coroners in the province have been given a chance to attend.

Assistant Commissioner W. J. Franks of the provincial police told the meeting that fingerprints of persons who are acquitted of crimes are kept indefinitely in police records.

Deputy Justice Minister Elmer Driedger of Ottawa said there is no law preventing the court that prints be withdrawn from court.

All fingerprints are sent to RCMP headquarters, and can be withdrawn from the files there only by the police department that submits them.

Scouting activities

By CHIEF F. LEGGAT, CHIEF CHUKOR

"Once upon a time" a certain group of men took upon themselves the task of forming a Boy Scout Troop. They previously controlled almost exclusively by the Irish. They called this ambitious undertaking "Great Break" and to their surprise it met an outstanding success.

The first group committee planned this affair and elected Doug Phillips, chairman. He was assisted by Cecil Lear, Jack Hodgson, Roy Dafoe, George Phillips, Howard Rathbun, Phil Telen, Al. Wagner, Owen Gray and Rooney Ingram.

Seven well trained, smartly uniformed Boy Scouts provided a welcome that left everybody at ease. The services these boys performed gave that extra touch which assured the guests of a friendly reception. We were met at the door by Scout Ronnie Niles — "May I take your coat, Sir?" With Kenneth were Scouts Deakon McBride, Roger Cleaver, Tom Burchill, Steve Middleton, Peter Wheatstirk and Jim Dafoe. Feilie and Whitfield boys who took their duties seriously.

The hall was very gay, decorated in the group colors, Green and yellow streamers, Diplomat Jones, of the Canadian services, it had a pre-Christmas festive air. There was little delay with the serving, coffee and waiting and a gentleman at head table gave grace for supper — all kinds of pies. We suspect the ladies had a hand in this but, bless their hearts, they gave all the credit to the men. There was a door prize won by Mrs. Rogers.

Among the guests we met were Rev. and Mrs. Everett Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Lee, Lee Jones, Mrs. Raisbird, Mr. and Mrs. W. Kempton, Mrs. Les Hall, and many other good supporters. During our brief visit Area Scoutmaster Lieut. Ken Bleiker and Eleanor Bleiker who now reside in Peterborough — our loss.

The timing was important. 7.30 p.m. to 10.00 pm. last Friday. This enabled the Scouts to attend and of course shoppers could drop in on their way many a summer's reach satisfactory wealth countries are anxious to develop their secondary industries and this has brought increasing Com monwealth restrictions against imports of British manufactures.

Mr. Hees also called on both management and labor to adopt the "new and broader, practical thinking" and to co - operation which has helped to make Canada's industries highly competitive.

Mr. Hees said that Canadian business leaders "are very often unwilling to invest in the high overhead costs can be just as much a factor in pricing our goods out of the market as high labor costs."

He also said it would be unrealistic to expect existing Canadian industries and the new industries which Canada needed to provide new jobs — to prosper and expand under restricted competition from western Europe.

'Planning Canada's Capital' Topic at WCC Meeting

"Ottawa is a municipality in the Province of Ontario much like that of Belleville and there are many striking similarities between the two cities," so stated Mr. Peter H. Aykroyd B.A. Sc., P.Eng., Director of the Information Services Division of the National Capital Commission, in his opening remarks as he addressed a fully-seated gathering at the Women's Canadian Club meeting held last evening in the auditorium of the Canadian Legion.

Mr. Aykroyd is one of six senior officers of the National Capital Commission which consists of one permanent chairman, six senior officers, and a total staff of 750.

Ottawa, he stated was chosen as capital in 1857 by Queen Victoria on the advice of her ministers and named Ottawa capital of the Province of Canada, over the outraged protests of nearly every other locale and in 1867 became capital of the Dominion. He suggested to his audience that there is not only Ottawa, but three — the Ottawa of Government; Ottawa, the city and Ottawa, the symbol of the nation. This third Ottawa is that which the National Capital Commission is trying to make — in co-operation with the municipality — trying to make it into a symbol of the nation. "The microcosm of Canada's national spirit the mystical whip that one grasps when viewing the Gatineau Hills from the Peace Tower, or senses in the quietly treed driveways and beautifully landscaped parks."

This, the speaker stressed is the concern of the National Capital Commission.

TOTAL EXPENDITURES

A total of approximately $72 million has been spent in the past 61 years and this year the Commission has a budget which totals over $20 million — which indicates that the pace has quickened and members of the Commission are trying to show a capital everyone can be proud of.

PLANNNG

An account of the stewardship that has been made of these funds over the years was given by the speaker, and he primarily dealt with planning and stated that the study of the forces at work on a modern urban municipality is one of the most complicated known. It involves engineering, architecture, social science, economics, political science, geography, and many other disciplines with all the immense ramifications of each.

Upon the advice of Mr. Jacques Greber, French Planner emeritus, a master regional plan has been drafted for the 1,800 square miles which surround the city of Ottawa. The plan calls for a number of concepts to be developed and everyone of them is now under way and many are near completion. Planning bears fruit, he affirmed.

The projects envisaged by Mr. Greber when he presented his master plan for the development of Canada's capital in 1950 were all valid.

The National Capital Commission has endeavored to return much of the beautiful shoreline of the lakes and rivers in the area back to nature, and by doing so have added about 7,300 acres of landscaped ground by acquiring substandard shacks and houses along the rivers and planting and trimming the ground to give it the look it had before man arrived on the scene. This concept of open space is vital to understanding the developing beauty of Ottawa. The watercourse should be available to all the people. So often in a normal urban development they are the property of only a few.

RAILWAY RE-LOCATION

The re-locating of all the major rail lines from the centre of the city is in process. This involves lifting more than 30 miles of track, providing new freight, express and passenger facilities for the railways, demolition of the Union Station and reconstruction of over 400 acres of land to be abandoned by the railways, much of it in the downtown area. There have been 50 years of talking, planning and negotiating but this one facet of the work, and just this year, the Government approved the scheme which is now underway.

GREENBELT

As a planning measure, a "greenbelt" is being purchased around metropolitan Ottawa that will comprise 37,000 acres of land and will have an average width of two and a half miles. This urban rural zone will have the effect of limiting urban sprawl and stopping ribbon development, under complete government control. Ottawa is to be contained within the prescribed area, and a maximum population of 650,000 is anticipated in the next 15 years, from the present 268,000.

BUILDING DISPERSAL

Part of the Greiber plan was to see that the government buildings constructed in the decades that followed his plan would be spread out and not concentrated in the centre of the city. As steward of the crown lands in the National Capital Region, the Commission is responsible as well for the landscaping of the grounds of all government buildings and these number 141. Also there is the responsibility of approving the exterior appearance of all the federal government buildings that are constructed in the Capital.

NATURAL ENVIRONMENT

The natural environment of Canada's capital is that of forest, lakes and a few short miles up in the bush, primeval wilderness. Since so much of Canada is of this wilderness nature it was thought fitting do establish a wilderness park in the National Capital Region.

In conclusion the speaker expressed the hope that the splendid activity exercised in the Third Ottawa and which he illustrated on beautiful colored slides would be instructive and satisfactory.—ex. the National Capital Commission feel that their work is for everyone, in trying to do what the public wants.

Following the address, there was a brief question and answer period.

Mrs. D. Arnott, president of the Club, after welcoming the members, introduced the speaker and extended appreciative thanks on behalf of the members for a most informative talk and the colorful slides was expressed by Mrs. S. L. Ross.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served.

Contact Club Gives $25 for Yule Baskets

Monday evening the Contact Club met for a combined business and work meeting. President Jean Ford opened the meeting.

After some discussion it was decided not to send a Christmas parcel to Moose Factory Indian School this year, and instead to send a letter of explanation to Moose Factory, also that $25 be given to Rev. Smith for the parish Christmas baskets.

Doris Stewart gave a report from the Vanity Council meeting, and final arrangements for the Christmas Arcade were discussed.

The remainder of the evening was spent in finishing bazaar wares. Some girls were wrapping and decorating gay gift boxes which will be offered for sale to solve Christmas wrapping problems. Angels and wee Christmas trees for decorations were turned out. Doll clothes received last-minute touches.

At the close of the evening a tasty lunch was served by Mickey Lake, Shirley Ashley and Marion Grant.

In 23 Years of Log Bucking Woman Never Once Beaten

COURTENAY, B.C. (CP) — Mrs. Esther Forsyth-Rims is to recall the day when she was the fastest saw in the West-in the world, for that matter.

In 23 years of competition in log bucking, she never once was defeated.

"I just competed at Campbell River (B.C.) in 1950," said the attractive 50-year-old "but now I guess I'm too old."

She was a winner of every Canadian and United States event she entered from the time she was talked into a ladies' hand-bucking saw - off in 1937.

She won the world title in Tacoma, Wash., in 1938, when she sliced through a 2½-inch log in one minute, 17½ seconds. But her biggest thrills were coming within a second or two of champion men's times in training sessions.

Her toughest event was on stage in the Empress Hotel in Victoria at the 1940 Pacific Logging Congress. She defended her title successfully but the log skidded on the slippery floor of the stage with every stroke of her saw.

Her husband, Ung, a faller with Comox Logging and Railway Company for 36 years, was both her coach and saw-filler.

Her explanation for her skill, she says, was the experience of cutting firewood in her native Finland.

"Head bucking is becoming a lost art, I'm afraid," she said as she eyed her husband's power saw. "Everything's just too easy nowadays."

Col. P. Wills Legion Branch Keeps Officers

A regular meeting of the Col. Phay Wills Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion for executive Women was held on Thursday evening in the Legion hall.

President "Billy" Kirby announced that there is to be a zone meeting at Tweed, at which she will be presenting an annual report of Branch 587's activities. All members are requested to attend.

A gratifying profit from the rummage sale was reported by treasurer Kathy Smith.

To secretary Olive Schmidt went a vote of thanks for playing the piano for the singsong at the Remembrance Day celebration in the Legion hall.

The December meeting will be substituted by a potluck supper, followed by a gift exchange and carol singing led by Olive Schmidt. Everyone is invited to bring an ex-service woman as a guest.

The nominating committee, under the chairmanship of Dorothy Barriage, presented its slate of officers and called for nominations from the floor. As a result of which all those presently holding office will retain their post, with elections needed only for the executive body and the auditors.

COOKING LAMB

Almost all cuts of lamb are tender and adaptable to dry heat cooking, but a temperature of about 325 degrees is recommended for maximum flavor and minimum shrinkage.

Lyle Williams Leads YPU Church Service

FRANKFORD — Twenty-one-year-old Lyle Williams preached the sermon at Frankford United Church Sunday morning, to a capacity congregation which filled every pew and sat on chairs in the aisle. The occasion was the annual young people's service and this speaker's theme was "Youth and Christianity Today." His text "I Am The Door" and his message a challenge to open the door of Christianity to people, from the inside, by letting them see what it has done for you.

This speaker had little toleration for long faced Christians, with sour dispositions and exhorted young people to let their light so shine before men that they may be a door to the more abundant life.

Mr. Williams was supported by Sandra Morrow, co-president of the local unich, who conducted the service with charm in harmony with the theme.

Jean Bryant read the Scripture, and Dean Kemp offered the pastoral prayer and Marilyn Hall took the responsive reading. Anne Judd's children's story had a large junior congregation sitting on the edge of their seats.

Bonnie Rowe sang a solo and the special young people's choir rendered an anthem, directed by Mrs. Jean Austin, organist.

Serve Steaming, Aromatic Goblets of Mulled Wine

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Thinking about Christmas parties? Why not take a leaf from the 17th century English country squire and serve steaming, aromatic goblets of mulled wine?

The heating and spicing of wine did six years ago in Britain for hundreds of years before the 19th century, but only with the advent of Xmas-mulling did it reach the height of fashion as a Yuletide cup on frosty mornings.

Originally mulling was done by plunging a red - hot poker into the wine or ale. Nowadays it's performed more genteelly by boiling in a kitchen saucepan. But one can still add glamor to the proceedings by lading the hot wine out of a decorative punch bowl (ladled to keep the heat in).

A London society called The Friends of Wine greeted winter's first nip recently with a mulled-wine tasting in the city's ancient Vintners' Hall.

NOT COMPLICATED

None of their recommended methods served out of encrusted Edwardian silver tureens, would cost a host more than a shilling, elegance apiece or about 20 cents — probably cheaper in Canada, where the brandy and liqueurs cost less than in Britain.

Only red wine, the type of "vin ordinaire" that costs around $1 a bottle, is used for mulling.

A classic 18th century recipe called Dr. Johnson's Choice makes one of the richest mulls. To serve 10 people you need:

1 bottle cheap red wine, 1 wine glass orange curacao, 1 wine glass brandy, 12 lumps of sugar, 6 cloves, nutmeg, 1 pint boiling water.

Pour the wine into a saucepan, together with the sugar and cloves and bring to near boiling point. Add one pint of boiling water. Next add the curacao and brandy. Pour into glasses and grate nutmeg lightly on top.

A modern mull with plenty of kick is called rocket. For 10 people the ingredients are:

1 bottle red wine, 1 large measure dry sherry, 1 small wine glass port, 1 measure brandy, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 dozen cloves, sugar to taste, ½ pint water, 1 small tin strawberries without the juice.

Put all ingredients into the saucepan except the brandy, sugar and water. Bring to near boiling point, then add half-pint of boiling water, sugar and brandy and serve piping hot. The strawberries are used sparingly to add a touch of tartness to a sweet-ish mixture, and strained off before serving.

A word of warning: Mulled wine will crack fine glasses, so use sturdy goblets.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mr. H.V.—For girls, college is a waste of time and money.

Lenore V. — I'm sure college will make a big difference in my life.

* * *

Mr. H.V. — Our daughter is only 16 now, but she talks about college and seems to take it for granted that she's going. With two and a half years of high school still ahead, maybe I can convince her to prepare for a job instead. I'll put the college money into her bank account and she can make betty use of it than spending it on kidding around for four years.

Lenore is only an average student, so Marie Curie. Like most of her friends, she thinks of college as a place to wear campus fashions and meet a future husband. Well, she can do that around here and save about $10,000. Everyone knows that the average college girl gets married and never opens a serious book the rest of her life!

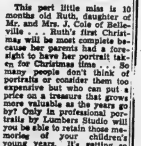
* * *

Lenore V. — My father is only looking at the money side of the matter. There's more to college than meet-hunting! I may be only a so-so student now, but that's because I'm not taking any courses that thrill me, particularly. But I bet I'll be good student when there a whole big fat catalogue of subjects to choose from.

It's a different world, college is and I'd like to try it. To prove to Daddy that I'm serious about it, I'll go to a free college and live at home, if he doesn't want to spend the money. And, if he thinks I should be working, I'll look for part-time jobs.

But I have a feeling that college is where I'll really find myself and decide what I want to do whether I marry or not.

* * *



The Council: Mr. V. doesn't find funny the old definition of college as a four-year "loaf made with Papa's dough. He's afraid it's bone true. Many college professors are — as one educator put it — too busy with babysitting to impart hard-core knowledge. But Lenore deserves a fair, open-minded hearing. Her thinking on the subject, her reasons, appear sound.

Certainly all girls, and all boys for a matter, need not attend college in order to find themselves, become productive citizens and achieve harmonious marriages. Many enter fields of endeavor where self-educating takes them far. If it can be arranged, however, a young person who is eager for higher learning can get it served more economically and with a host of extra's, in a good college.

Lenore's dad must catch up with the way things have changed for girls today. Nothing, but nothing — not even geometry, which bores them reason — is wasted! Even if Lenore doesn't become a chemist, the disciplines of the lab will have a bidden influence on her attitudes and reactions. And if she's ever to compete with men for her livelihood, she must try to know even more than they do just to stay in the running.

Aside from acquiring new facts, a new outlook and skills for supporting herself, Lenore may also prepare herself to match the sort of man she hopes to marry. In a University of Michigan survey, 900 women were asked what they thought most important in marriage and the majority picked "companionship." They wanted husbands who would talk to them on adult topics, introduce them to business associates and accompany them in community activities. A college girl Mr. V., feels ready to meet men on their own terms, and marry one on hers.

Yes, times have changed, Dad. The course for the gander's the course for the goose!

SUNBEAM M.B.

FRANKFORD—The Sunbeam Mission Band of Frankford United Church met on Tuesday afternoon at 4.15 p.m. in Rose Lower, Hall.

The meeting opened with the Mission Band Purpose followed by a game conducted by Mrs. Max Dafoe. There was a good attendance.

The children were asked to collect any kind of stamps to make purchase of milk for children in Korea possible. It was decided that each child bring one article of used clothing to the December meeting.

Mrs. Preston Chase read the second chapter of the story, "Timmy's Team," which was followed by a lively discussion led by Mrs. Hans Hoer.

The worship service opened with prayer. The Scripture reading was taken from St. John 6:9, Mrs. Max Dafoe led in a discussion based on the Scripture.

All enjoyed a number of action songs The members formed the Friendship Circle and the meeting closed with the Mission Band benediction.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

MAIL CALL

Question: I've been people eat French fried potatoes with their fingers on occasion and wonder if this is proper, or should they always be eaten with a fork?

— R.C., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: French fries may be eaten with the fingers at a picnic or if they're bought by the bag at a seaside resort. But if they are served as a vegetable at a meal, they must be broken into small pieces and eaten with a fork.

Question: I have been invited to a christening in a few weeks, but will be unable to attend. Should I send a present by the baby anyway? — I.V., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: There's no obligation to bring a present to a christening, although guests usually do. If the parents are close friends, it would be thoughtful to send a gift, especially if the baby is their first.

Something New, Something Old

By Mary Moore

Occasionally it becomes my pleasant task to try some new equipment. This time it is a new electromatic frying pan. In it I made some lovely pork chops with orange sauce and some meat balls in tomato sauce to be served with spaghetti. The extra dividend of this kind of broiling is that the pan in which the meat is cooked is also your serving dish for it is so good-looking it can go directly to the dining room table.

FORK CHOPS IN ORANGE SAUCE

2 or 3 tablespoons flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, 6 thick, lean pork chops, loin or shoulder, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 cup orange juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon flour. Mix 2 or 3 tablespoons flour and salt together. Coat both sides of the chops with the mixture. Preheat frying pan to 400 deg. Fahr. and melt butter. Add chops and brown on both sides. Drain off all fat, pour in ¼ cup orange juice, and reduce heat to to 250 deg Fahr. Cover frying pan and cook about 1 hour or until chops are tender. For Sauce: Mix grated orange rind, sugar, flour and remaining ¼ cup orange juice together smoothly in a saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring, until sauce thickens. Pour sauce over chops and cook several minutes longer.

MEAT BALLS IN TOMATO SAUCE WITH SPAGHETTI

Sauce: Two tablespoons cooking oil, ½ cup chopped celery stalks and leaves, ½ cup chopped onion, 1 garlic clove chopped, 1 8-oz. can tomato paste, 1½ cans water from tomato paste can, 1 20-oz. can tomato juice, 1 cup water, 1 teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, 1 teaspoon oregano, ¼ teaspoon allspice, 2 tablespoons sugar. Saute celery, onion, and garlic in oil until transparent but not brown. Add all remaining ingredients and allow to simmer while you prepare the Meat Balls: Two pounds ground beef (chuck), 2 eggs, 1 cup 1-day-old bread-crumbs, ½ cup grated Parmesan (or old Cheddar) cheese, 1 teaspoon dried onion flakes (or 1 tablespoon grated onion) 1 teaspoon oregano, 1 tablespoon chopped or dried parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper. Mix meat ball ingredients thoroughly and shape into balls. (I made 32 about 1½" in diameter.) Brown on all sides in 2 tablespoons fat and as they brown transfer to the sauce. When all are done simmer in sauce about 1 hour. If desired a little additional water may be added to sauce if it is needed. Note: These meat balls handle easily for the mixture clings and packs well.

Spaghetti: The amount of spaghetti you cook depends on the appetite of your family. I cooked one 8-oz. package to serve 6, in 6 cups salted water, stirring it frequently to keep strands separate. Cook only until it is tender, not mushy. Drain. To serve, pour sauce over spaghetti in large serving dish or on platter and arrange meat balls on top. Pass grated Parmesan or Romano or old Cheddar cheese for garnishing over. Serve with Italian breadsticks or French bread.

DON'T be discouraged if the first few spoon feedings of solids end up mostly on your baby's chin and bib. Remember that he's been moving his tongue forward to suck his bottle. He'll soon learn to move it the other way so food will go down instead of out.

Successful Living

Unsuccessful With Boy

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I have liked a certain boy at school for over a year now but am not sure that he likes me. I was introduced to him last year but it did not seem to work. He smiles at me sometimes but he just doesn't speak. I try not to think about him but every time I see him it starts all over again. — UNSUCCESSFUL.

DEAR UNSUCCESSFUL — This sort of thing can go on for years. You can suffer agonies—or you can let the boys do the worrying.

Be friendly with all of them. Dress your prettiest and take care of your clothes and your hair. Learn how to dance; how to carry on a conversation. When others get interested your pal will remember he met you, never fear!

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—A lady I have known for years lost her husband recently. I was sick at the time and could not do anything about it. Now I want to, as I feel indebted for a favor received.—GRATEFUL.

DEAR GRATEFUL—Write a letter. Explain that you were unable to be in touch before but were very sorry to hear of her loss. That she and her husband had been most kind to you and that if you could do anything now to help, you would like to. Could you suggest having lunch and a visit with her?

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I have an idea and I hope you can help me work it out.

Recently my husband and I bought a farm in the country. We have decided to move there and rent our home in the spring.

I would like to look after old age pensioners. I know there is a place in the city for our elderly citizens but perhaps some folk would prefer the country. This is a pleasant home with five bedrooms. I am a good cook and I also had nurse's training as student nurse before my marriage.

Would I have to have a license? How would I go about such a project?

We could take two couples or three or four single folks. I thought I would purchase a piano and we already have a TV for their enjoyment.—HOMEMAKER.

* * *

DEAR HOMEMAKER—A fine idea. Old people often prefer the atmosphere of a private home to living in an institution. You might find a special need in your area for a spot where couples can live together. Such places are scarce.

Your home would have to be inspected and approved by the Health Department. You might get your boarders through a county home for the aged. You can get help in getting started from your regional welfare administrator, Mr. F. A. Noble, 14 Bridge St., West, Belleville.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I read your column each a.m. with my second cup of coffee. Seems to start the day off real nice! I just read Kenny Canuck's problem re being clueless about presiding at meetings. I am about to take over as president, and find myself in the same position. So would you kindly send me the name of that book too.—MISS TURRY.

DEAR MISS TURRY:—It's a mystery to many!

There's a whole philosophy of leadership in being a good chairman. It can mean the difference in getting something done and in missing the boat with what could have been a good idea.

Basis is the need to let everyone have his say. But if you go to an extreme with this, the meeting will last all night. If you cut discussion short, too soon, you'll find yourself accused of railroading things through. It's a master chairman—and a real leader—who can steer the middle course.

I am sending you the name of a concise little handbook on conducting meetings which can help you to make a good job of it.

* * *

Ask Doris for help. She will talk it over and guide you to a Canadian resource if you need one.)

Horticultural Society Enjoys Bus Trip

STIRLING — Stirling Horticultural Society under the direction of their president enjoyed a delightful trip by chartered bus to the Royal Winter Fair held at the Coliseum, Toronto, on November 13th.

Thirty-seven people from Stirling, River Valley, Marsh Hill, Wooler, Belleville, Madoc Junction, Mount Pleasant, Burlington, Wellman's and Carmel enjoyed the trip which began from Stirling at 7.30

The group viewed the displays of vegetables, apples, potatoes, grain and other items, as well as the 200 attractions. They also enjoyed the "Tommy Hunter Show," and a demonstration by a florist on the arrangement of roses, and there were many new ideas given. The speaker stated that good displays could be achieved with from one to ten blooms. He demonstrated arrangements for corsages.

In the evening the group sat together on the grandstand and viewed the Horse Show and the homeward trip was through dense fog but all arrived home well satisfied with an enjoyable outing.

Those in attendance from Stirling in the group were: president Mrs. F. Armstrong; Mesdames J. Chambers, L. Payne, A. Herrington, R. Patterson, P. Craighead, S. Williams, M. Ayrhart, S. J. Elliott, D. Patterson, M. Armstrong, B. Bastedo, J. B. Thompson, E. Morrow, P. Bronson, B. Reid, and Messrs. R. Chambers and G. Reid. Others in attendance: Mrs. Harry Clarke, Madoc Junction; Mrs. Chris. Bateman, Springbrook; Mr. and Mrs. S. Mitchell, Wooler; Mr. and Mrs. E. Wylie, Belleville; Mrs. E. Morrow, River Valley; Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, Mrs. Bill Morgan, and daughter Suzzite, Mount Pleasant; Mrs. Carman Nix, Mrs. Everett Maybee and Mrs. John Carlisle, Wellman's; Ernest Carlisle, Mrs. Clifford Hubble, Mrs. Helen Neal and Mrs. R. Hagerman of Carmel; Mrs. C. Ross and Mrs. M. Bartindale of Marsh Hill.

Now you can have sophisticated style with collar comfort

New long wearing collar comes in 4 executive styles

Men prefer Arrow dress shirts better than 3 to 1. Small wonder. Because Arrow leads in fashion as well as value. For instance, the new extra white collar material outlasts even the body of the shirt. And Arrow's "Contour" tailoring fits the body to follow your figure. Result: a trim, flattering look.

Go to your Arrow men's wear store. They stock the finest array of executive collar styles available. Here are just four.

Glen... a soft, comfortable collar that can't wrinkle ever. Never loses its crisp good looks and solid comfort. Arrow's most popular soft collar shirt. $5.00

Glen Button Down... a conference room and campus favorite. Slightly more casual than the Glen, but just as correct and comfortable. In fine combed cotton. $5.00

Radnor... the round point looks so neat as the pin that holds it. Sophisticated styling for the young man-going places or the executive that has arrived. $5.00

Snap Tab... here's the fashionable formal new British Look made more convenient with Canadian ingenuity. A hidden dome fastener snaps the tabs in place. $5.00

Soloist was Mr. Sidney Hopping, P.P.

Officers installed were: Worthy Matron — Mrs. Helen Meyers; Worthy Patron — Mr. Don Meyers; Associate Matron — Mrs. Iva Carlaw; Associate Patron — Mr. Eldon Carlaw; secretary — Mrs. Catherine Pettit; treasurer — Mrs. Gladys Pettey; Conductress — Mrs. Helen Hall; Associate Conductress — Mrs. Maybell Peeling; Chaplain — Mrs. Thelma Kingston; Marshal — Mrs. Sarah Moore; Organist — Mrs. Frances Nicholls; Ada — Mrs. Muriel Dooher; Ruth — Mrs. Aileen Hazell; Esther — Mrs. Marian Bell; Martha — Mrs. Elva Hogle; Electa — Mrs. Greta Ames; Warden — Mrs. Rita Poulton; Sentinel — Mr. Presley Hall.

The Chapter room was decorated with baskets of 'mums in blue, yellow and white, the Matron's colors for the year. Her motto is Light, Faith and Joy.

Visitors were present from Belleville, Trenton, Cobourg, Port Hope, Peterborough, Bancroft, Marmora, Tweed, Havelock, Warkworth and Ottawa.

A social hour was enjoyed following the ceremonies.

Neighbors' Aid Holds Euchre

2ND THURLOW — Mrs. S. Ray, Mrs. Corah Howard were hostesses for the Aid euchre held at the hall on Friday night.

Fifteen tables were in play with prizes won by: ladies, Mrs. Charleon, Mrs. J. Thomson; consolation - Margaret Chumley, Men - Messrs. C. Yorke, A. Greatrix; consolation - Reginald Mitchell. Lucky draw prize, Mrs. Phyllis Higgins.

Lunch was served and social time spent.

Next euchre will be convened by Mrs. M. Mitchell with Mrs. Donald Mitchell replacing Mrs. B. Atkins, who is a patient in hospital.

Lakeside Chapter 81 OES Holds Striking Installation

WELLINGTON—The Masonic Hall, Wellington, was filled to capacity last Wednesday evening when members and guests from Belleville, Picton, Tweed, Trenton, Colborne, Cobourg, Napanee, Quinte and Picton assembled the installation ceremony.

An basket of beautiful yellow and white 'mums made a bright touch of color in the East.

On the east wall was a beautiful painting of the Three Wise Men and The Star in the East, below this was the motto for the year "You — For Others."

The Worthy Matron, Mrs. Alice Watt and Worthy Patron, Mr. Allan Anderson, graciously welcomed the P.D.D.G.M's Mesdames Ruby Fleming, Gladys McFaul, Helen Cross, Alma Morrow nee Cecelia Rawcliffe.

Also given a hearty welcome were the following presiding matrons and patrons: Mrs. Verna Young and Mr. Bruce Ferguson, Quinte; Mrs. Fidele Brown and Mr. Bud Chapman, Colborne; Mrs. Dorothy Tugnett, Mr. George Pound, Minerva; Mrs. Helen Brayden, Picton; Mrs. Jessie Gerow, Napanee. There were many Past Matrons and Past Patrons present from Lakeside and the visiting chapters.

The business was brief and included a card party in the Chapter room for December 15. Members are asked to donate the prizes. It was decided to have the usual Christmas party at the next meeting, exchange of gifts.

The trustees report was given by Mrs. Eva Hicks, P.M. and Mr. Walter Hood, P.P. gave the auditors report; two were initiated; two deceased, with 189 members including three honorary members. The members were sorry to hear of the accident suffered in Florida of Mrs. Mae Wheeler, P.D.D.G.M. of Peterborough. She was a treasured visitor at Lakeside. She will be greatly missed by every chapter in the district.

The retiring Matron and Patron, Mrs. Watt and Mr. Anderson each thanked the Chapter for giving them the privilege of serving in the East. Their year was rich in friendships and memories. It was most successful. They thanked each and everyone who helped in any way to make it so. They wished the best for the new officers and pledging their support to them.

INSTALLATION

Mrs. Ruby Fleming P.D.D.G.M. was the installing officer, assisted by Mr. Walter Hood P.P. installing patron; Mrs. Doris McFaul, P.M. installing marshal; Mrs. Carrol Davies, P.M. installing chaplain; Mr. Andrew Beattie, installing organist; Mrs. Violet Marvin, P.M. installing warden, and Mr. James Dick P. P. — installing sentinel.

BELLEVILLE CHAPTER SENTINEL

Also assisting in the East were; Mr. Gerald Gibson P.P.; Mr. Allan Anderson, I.P.P.; Mrs. Olive Channell, P.M.; Mrs. Alice Watt, I.P.P.; Mrs. Velma Matthews, P.M.; Mrs. Florence Dick, P.M.; Mrs. Ena Hicks, P. M.; Mrs. Helen Harris, P.M.; Mrs. Gladys McFaul, P.D.D.G. M.; Floral Marshal, Miss Norma Foster, P.M.; Mr. Hilton McCartney, P.P.

Mrs. Doris McFaul, P.M. and her mother, Mrs. Edith Fox, sang a lovely duet, "Star of the East". The organist chose his music to suit the occasion.

The officers elect stepped lively as they entered the Chapter room to "My Bonnie Lassie" in honor of the Worthy Matron elect's late Scottish father and later she marched to "The Road to the Isles".

FLORAL CEREMONY

A beautiful impressive floral ceremony for the Star Points was conducted by the floral Marshal, Miss Norma Foster, P.M. Each star point was given a little basket containing flowers in color appropriate to her station, and a tiny white Bible tied to the handle.

Following the ceremony, Mr. Reg Bishop pleased the whole audience by his solo, "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again."

The newly installed worthy matron, Mrs. Jean Way, thanked the chapter for the high honor just conferred upon her.

She hoped to be able to uphold the high esteem held by Lakeside; dedicated this year as all follow the Eastern Star. She closed her address with the prayer of St. Francis of Assisi (Installation 1933), given as hers by Mrs. Jean Hamel.

Mr. Arthur Moore, the new worthy patron, also thanked the chapter and pledged his best for the year.

Several visitors and members made short speeches.

Mrs. Watt was presented with her past matron's jewel by Miss Norma Foster; Mr. Gus Turple presented Mr. Anderson with his past patron's jewel. Both voiced their appreciation of the same. This is a privilege you cannot buy, you have to earn it.

Delicious refreshments were served by the November committee with Mrs. Sylvia East as convener.

The officers installed were: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Jean Way; Worthy Patron, Mr. Arthur Moore; Associate Matron, Mrs. Lottie Gibson; Associate Patron, Mr. Clare Campbell; secretary, Mrs. Ida McFaul, P.M.; treasurer, Mrs. Henrietta Archard, P.M; conductress, Mrs. Dorothy Brimley; asso. conductress, Mrs. Ruth Boyle; chaplain, Mrs. Susan Dowe, P.M.; marshal, Mrs. Reta Parks; organist, Mrs. Anne Foster; Adah, Mrs. Betty Bishop; Ruth, Mrs. Marjorie Rash (absent); Esther, Mrs. Elizabeth Nind; Martha, Mrs. Irene Trumpour; Electa, Mrs. Audrey Moore; warder, Mrs. Mary Taylor; sentinel, Mr. Ray Bishop.

Titov Had to Get Consent Of Wife to Make Flight

OTTAWA (CP)—Soviet astronaut Gherman Titov says he had to get the consent of his wife Tamara before his space flight which took him around the earth 17 times in the Vostok-2.

An article signed by Titov appears in the November issue of Soviet Union Today, published monthly by the Russian embassy here.

In it, Titov describes his takeoff and three orbits of the earth—but not his landing.

Titov says:

He shouted "Here goes!" when the rocket began to lift off. The deafening rumble penetrated the cabin and the rocket "shook as though in fever."

Weightlessness came "smoothly." The first impression was "rather odd — as though I somersaulted and was flying with my legs upward." "Now I had been orbited, flying through space in which there could be no rain or snow or thunderstorms or anything except vacancy."

SUN BLINDING

"Through the portholes the sun shone with a radiance intolerable for the human eye and in order to economize the energy of the batteries I switched off the light. But soon I had to put on the lamps again—the Vostok-2 passed into the shadow of the earth and pitch-dark night surrounded the ship."

He steered the spaceship "as calmly as a car on the earth or a jet plane in the sky."

After the "second dawn" that day "I saw big rivers and mountains, distinguishing ploughland and fallow fields by their color."

"The clouds were clearly visible. They could be distinguished from snow by the blue shadows which they threw onto the earth.

"All the continents of the globe differ from each other not only in their outlines but also in color.

"The chief color of Africa is yellow with the dark green spots of the jungles sprinkled over it. Its surface resembles the spotted skin of a leopard."

His food was contained in tubes which he squeezed into his mouth like "toothpaste onto a brush."

He drank currant juice, also out of a tube.

"Several drops of the juice got out and hung like berries in front of my face."

EXPAND TERMINAL

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—Plans for a new air terminal at Prestwick International Airport call for buildings costing $4,200,000 to be completed in 1963.

Stirling

STIRLING — St. James' C.W.L. convened in the recreation room with 18 members in attendance. A potluck supper was held first, followed by a business meeting to plan for a card party, a bake sale and a children's party.

The Rev. K. J. Rooney gave his farewell message on Sunday morning at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. At the close of the service, H. R. Tompkins made a presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Rooney of a purse of money, on behalf of the congregation. Eugene Burrell presented Robert and Richard with New Testaments and baby Lois with a silver locket. This presentation was made on behalf of the Sunday School session.

Mrs. Frank Smith was the delegate from Stirling Women's Institute, at the Trent Valley area convention.

Lieut. Carl Hubel of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Belleville was the guest speaker at Stirling Rotary Club and told of the urgent need of being prepared should a nuclear war take place. The South Hastings 4-H potato club members were also guests at this meeting and the assistant agricultural representative, Mr. Gibson Patterson presented the awards. Each Rotarian carried home a sample bag of potatoes that had been grown by the 4-H club members.

Mrs. Roy Duffin has returned home from the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Cooke spent a few days in Toronto and attended the Royal Winter Fair.

Reindeer Issue Back in Lap Of Government

EDMONTON (CP) — The problem of what to do with 3,000 Arctic reindeer has been dumped back into the federal government's lap.

Last year, except for 2,000 head managed by one Eskimo herder, the northern affairs department turned the animals over to Al Oeming, Edmonton biologist and game farm manager, and a partner, anthropologist John Teal of Vermont.

Research work under a five-year agreement between the men and the federal government bogged down. Mr. Oeming said Monday he has asked the partnership be dissolved.

The program was to make reindeer herding a profitable proposition by developing a superior caribou — reindeer cross, selling the meat as a luxury item and marketing the hides.

Mr. Oeming said he expects to go on an expedition next spring in search for caribou in the Northwest Territories — where the wild caribou population is about 200,000—to obtain suitable mates for reindeer.

WILL USE OWN DEER

Mr. Oeming said he will conduct the breeding experiments at his game farm near Edmonton, where he already has 30 reindeer. These, however, are not research animals. They were purchased from the northern affairs department for the farm.

The Arctic herd, near Aklavik on the Mackenzie River delta, are descendants of a herd driven east from Alaska.

Eskimo and Lapp herders left Alaska in 1929 with 3,000 head of reindeer imported from Europe to be used to give the Eskimos diverse food sources. The band with the animals reached the east side of the Mackenzie in 1933 and turned north to complete the 1,200 mile trek to the delta with 2,370 animals at first.

Since these animals were brought in the federal government has tried unsuccessfully to train Eskimos as herders, as an alternative to their nomadic life.

The training was complete with Lapland instructors. However, the Eskimos preferred to slaughter animals at their own discretion or desert their herds for the thrill of the hunt or the novelty of wage employment.

Canadian Crude Will Be Piped To Buffalo

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has issued an order-in-council granting International Pipe Lines Company the right to build a 64-mile pipeline capable of exporting up to 20,000 barrels of oil daily to the Buffalo, area.

Interprovincial carries western Canada crude oil on a route that leaves Canada at Gretna, Man., and re-enters at Sarnia. The new $3,000,000 line would tap the Sarnia-Toronto leg at Westover and cross the international boundary at Chippewa, passing under the Welland and Niagara rivers and the Welland Canal.

A National Energy Board spokesman said today that a public hearing will be held at St. Catharines Nov. 29 to hear recommendations and complaints concerning the proposed path the line will follow. It is due to be in operation by June.

RAISE UNION DUES

TORONTO (CP)—The Hotel and Club Employees Union (CLC) Local 299 at a membership meeting Sunday gave second reading to a measure increasing membership dues by $1 a month. Members were told the strike at the Royal York Hotel, which began in April, has exhausted the local's funds, including a $250,000 strike kitty. The increase would add $2,000 a month to the local's revenue.

Pedals Plane 180 Yards

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—In a self-propelled flying machine, a British test pilot has partially imitated the legendary flight of the daring Greek, Icarus.

He is James Phillips, 30.

Pedaling an aircraft called The Puffin, he flew 180 yards at about six feet off the ground.

Icarus came to a watery end, however. He flew too near the sun. The wax bindings melted and he fell into the Samos Sea and drowned.

In Greek legend, Icarus, the son of Daedalus, got off the ground in a pair of wax and feather wings attached to his arms and shoulders.

Icarus came to a watery end, however. He flew too near the sun. The wax bindings melted and he fell into the Samos Sea and drowned.

Phillips is a test pilot for the de Havilland Comet, one of Britain's most successful jet planes.

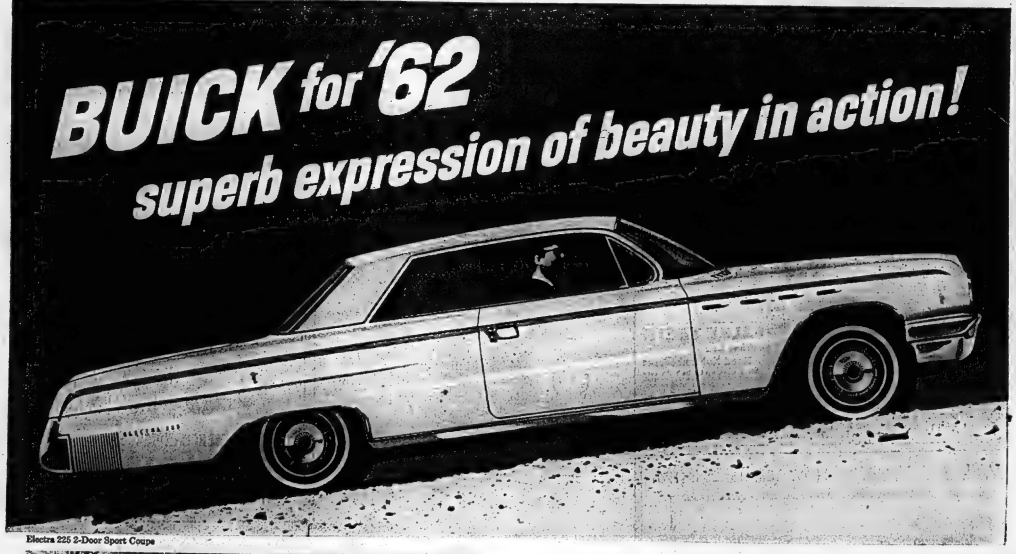
Members of the Hatfield Man - Powered Aircraft Club built the flying machine. They worked on it for 18 months.

Sunday, near London, they gave it a trial. It worked.

OFFERED MONEY

Two years ago, a London businessman, H. H. Kremel, offered £5,000 ($14,000) to anyone who could fly a man-propelled machine in a figure-of-eight circuit, for at least a mile without touching down.

Phillips didn't do this but his supporters say he made a brilliant beginning.



Two other British flying clubs are also in the race for the prize. They are a group at nearby Southend and another at Southampton.

The Southampton club has built a machine that a member has flown for about 50 yards.

Phillips flying machine has a wide wing span and is made of light, transparent material. It has a propeller which is pedal-operated.

BUICK for '62
superb expression of beauty in action!

Electra 225 2-Door Sport Coupe

Steadier Going
is all yours in Buick for '62—kind permission of Buick's exclusive Advanced Thrust design, which moves the engine forward. As a result, there's much less sway in the corners, reduced squat or nose-dive when starting or stopping, no highway wander even in strong winds at highway speeds. And Buick's road-levelling ride gives added smoothness.

Comfort with New Roominess is immediately apparent when you take a look at Buick's new, flatter floor. Because of Advanced Thrust, the transmission and driveline hump has been substantially lowered—providing a flatter floor for increased footroom, greater comfort. And the sheer elegance of Buick's interiors is designed to please those who demand the finest in luxury.

Once again, Buick has produced the car to set all the others back on their heels. Because, in the 1962 Buick, you'll find a dramatic new combination of sheer elegance and smooth, responsive performance that is so traditionally, so unmistakably Buick. Foley Foundry in Operation In City Over A Century Moving to New Home

What is possibly Belleville's oldest business, one which has been continuous operation under different ownership for well over a century is this week moving to a new home.

It is the Foley Foundry and Machine Company Ltd. which after suffering a disastrous fire at its Front St. location last December, has constructed a new building on Wallbridge Road just north of Moira Street, West.

The new concrete block structure with its floor area of 11,500 square feet was designed specifically for the type of business operated by the company. Pre-stressed concrete roof slabs provide a clear span throughout with 17 foot ceilings accommodating the largest of equipment.

The original building on Front Street was constructed back in 1834. In 1895 the foundry was established and later the building was equipped to manufacture agricultural machinery, subsequently winning world-wide fame for an efficient "side hill" plow.

BOUGHT IN 1917

For many years the business was known as the Walter Foundry. In 1917 it was purchased from J. C. McCarthy by Frank B. Foley and R. J. Graham to manufacture a line of evaporating and dehydrating machinery invented by Mr. Foley.

The business then became known as the Fruit Machinery Company Ltd.

Following World War I the nature of the business changed from straight manufacturing to a manufacture, sale and repair of foundry and the repair of machinery. As an outgrowth of the old blacksmith shop one of the first welding shops in the district was opened and this has developed today into an extensive operation of steel fabrication and portable welding.

In 1948 the name was again changed, this time to Foley Foundry and Machine Company Ltd., which was more descriptive of the type of business being conducted.

During the last war the Graham Interests were acquired by Mr. Frank Foley and following his death in 1947, his son Frank was elected president and general manager. The eldest son, Thomas L. Foley, vice-president of the firm, was killed in action while serving as a bomber pilot with the RCAF.

The firm now employs approximately 25 highly skilled welders, machinists and garage mechanics and also operates a supply business distributing the products of Canadian Liquid Air and automotive supplies.

This supply business is housed in a new two-color rug brick show room of about 1,000 square feet built at the front of the main plant.

Present officers of the company are Frank H. Foley, president; Mrs. Berna Sills, vice-president, and William Townson, secretary - treasurer.

Dismiss Suit Against Editor

BRANTFORD (CP) — A breach of contract suit against Peter M. Preston, managing editor and co-publisher of the Brantford Expositor, was dismissed Monday in the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Mr. Justice J. L. Wilson ordered cost of the action assessed against plaintiff Arthur J. Kelly, a former Brantford alderman.

Mr. Justice Wilson said he found no cause for action in any of the five items in Mr. Kelly's statement of claim.

The suit arose from a 1960 contract between the two men to produce and distribute documentary films. The project was abandoned by Mr. Preston following a dispute.

Mr. Kelly, acting as his own counsel, sought $50,000 damages and asked that the defendant be ordered to complete a film called "The Samaritans and Canadian Man.

During the three-day hearing court was told Mr. Preston had invested many thousands of dollars in the making of a film called "The Spirit of Monte Cassino and had realized gross returns of only $146.61.

Many Join Land, Air, Sea Search for Governor's Son

HOLLANDIA, New Guinea (Indonesian) — Dutchman, Australians and Papuans today joined in an air-land-sea search for Michael Rockefeller more than two days after he swam for shore from a capsized rafter 15 miles at sea.

R. W. Wassink, 36, Rockefeller's companion when the craft turned over, was picked up floating in the mouth Monday 26 miles off Southwest New Guinea.

He said the 20-year-old son of New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller started swimming Sunday in a "strong current" supported by two portable plastic cans. Wassink advised Rockefeller against trying it.

Wassink, a civil servant who was with Rockefeller on a two-month tour to collect objects for the Museum of Primitive Art in New York, said he did not know whether Rockefeller made shore.

The search was concentrated in the area where Rockefeller last the raft, at the northern tip of Dutch New Guinea about 250 miles northwest of Merauke and 150 miles southeast of Frederik Hendrik Island.

Two Dutch New Guinea patrol ships scoured coastal waters and a seaplane of the Dutch Civil Airlines patrolled overhead. Papuan patrols combed the coastline in areas where Rockefeller might have reached shore.

An Australian Catalina flying boat based at Port Moresby flew in to join the search. Wassink told of the battle against the elements that he, Rockefeller and two Papuans waged before the outboard-powered rubber craft capsized Saturday.

The Papuans made Rio shore and sounded an alarm that touched off the search.

Michael's father, now in Hawaii, arranged to fly to Biak, an island off the northern coast of Dutch New Guinea about 250 miles from the search area. From there he may be flown by sea. Again, starting point the raft's journey.

Dr. M. Chaput Won't Be Fired For Defiance

OTTAWA (CP)—Quebec separatist Dr. Marcel Chaput won't be fired for defying a ruling by the Defence Research Board —but he'll have to watch his step in future.

The 43-year - old biochemist was suspended Monday by DRB for two weeks without pay for taking leave without the board's authority to speak in Quebec City Friday on the aims of separatism.

Dr. John Keyston, acting chairman of the board, said Dr. Chaput, president of Le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale, was guilty of "wilful disobedience."

He told a press conference that the two-week suspension is designed as a "total punishment." It was "straight disciplinary action" and there was no intention of the matter being passed along to the federal cabinet.

It would require a cabinet order to fire a civil servant with the seniority of Dr. Chaput.

DOES NOT ENTER

Dr. Keyston said the question of Dr. Chaput's political activity did not enter into the board's decision.

There was no prescribed penalty for board regulations for Dr. Chaput's type of "offence." Political activity was not something which the board could interpret.

However, Dr. Keyston said that if Dr. Chaput repeats his "defiance" there is "no doubt" the cabinet will have to make a decision on the broad question of political activity by civil servants.

The main reason Dr. Chaput was fired special interest, he said, was that the scientist, who works for the Canadian Army operational research establishment, was behind in his work.

Dr. Keyston was asked why Dr. Chaput had been taken off his job for two weeks at a time when he was behind in his work.

HAS TO BALANCE

He replied that in reaching his decision he had to balance this against the need for maintenance of discipline.

Dr. Chaput told reporters that his suspension is "illegal" and that "they refused to give me a day off because I was indispensable but now they suspend me for two weeks."

Dr. Keyston said he had asked Dr. Chaput Monday whether there were any "extenuating circumstances" for being absent Friday. He said Dr. Chaput had "confirmed" that there were none and had accepted the "sentence" without question.

Dr. Keyston said he and Dr. Chaput talked dispassionately at their Monday meeting and "never got away from our standing each other's position."

Dr. Keyston left with the impression that he would return to work Dec. 4.

LEAVE DAKAR

DAKAR, Senegal (AP)—Portuguese Opposition Leader Henrique Galvao and six companions left Dakar today for Rio de Janeiro, Galvao and his friends were expelled from Mozambique last weekend after seizing of a Portuguese airliner. The airliner had been made to fly over Lisbon dropping opposition leaflets shortly before Portugal's parliamentary elections. The airliner put down in Tanganyika where Galvao awaited the hijackers.

'Wall Must Go' Youngsters Cry as They Storm Gate But Driven off by Tear Gas

BERLIN (AP) — West Berlin police brandishing night sticks Monday night rolled back hundreds of West zone youths who tried to storm the Communist-built border barrier with cries that "this wall must go."

East Berlin police also opened up on the angry demonstrators with water cannon and tear gas grenades and one tear gas fire in reply from the West Berlin police. Authorities estimated that about 200 grenades sailed over the wall during the exchange.

The demonstrations marked the 100th day since East Germany started erecting the wall which virtually sealed off the main escape route for residents fleeing the Communist regime.

There were no reports of serious injuries, but many were drenched by cold blasts from the Communists' water guns.

The flareup came as East Berlin labor forces strengthened the 25-mile wall into a concrete-and-steel tank trap. The work got under way Sunday and prompted speculation that the Communists were preparing for the official shutdown of the East-West border.

20,000 MARCH

The youths' charge on the wall followed a torchlight procession in which an estimated 20,000 marched from the drab-brown downtown West Berlin in an anniversary observance staged by Ernst Lemmer, West German minister for all-Berlin affairs, and Otto Bach, speaker of the West Berlin city parliament.

Lemmer, a Christian Democrat who gathered at the eternal flame in the Reichstag ruin — a memorial to the soldiers who died in World War I — condemned what he called the criminal actions of East German Communist boss Walter Ulbricht.

"Away with the Communist criminals! Away with Ulbricht," shouted Juergen Wohlrabe, chairman of the West Berlin Student Federation.

"Hang them," some shouted. Then a cry of "to the wall" swelled through one group which broke off and headed down the Kaiserdamm toward the historic Brandenburg Gate, where the Communists have erected a second concrete wall.

Reinforced police herded most into side streets but about 1,000 of the demonstrators surged past the Soviet war memorial and toward the Brandenburg Gate.

A solid line of 150 police blocked their advance and the youngsters sat down in the roadway. Police then drew their sticks and dispersed the crowd.

SUBPOENA ACTORS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Movie industry sources say Hollywood personalities who have been subpoenaed to appear before a special Senate grand jury exploring anti-trust matters for Attorney Francis Whalan said Monday the specific purpose of the probe cannot be revealed. However, they say the jury is studying possible violations of anti-trust laws in the production and representation in Hollywood.

Douglas Favors Canada Joining Common Marke

TIMMINS (CP) — Canada should immediately explore the possibility of associate membership in the European Common Market, T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party said Monday.

Obtaining the advantages of the trading arrangements of the Common Market would have a profound effect on the country's primary and manufacturing industries, he told a public affairs luncheon sponsored by the Timmins and District Junior Chamber of Commerce.

However, in seeking associate membership, Canada should insist on terms that would make it possible over a 10 - year period to make the economic adjustments that would be necessary.

At the same time, Canadians would have to make up their minds that the economic adjustments would not be borne by only one segment of the economy or by a particular group of industries but would have to be borne by the nation as a whole.

Mr. Douglas devoted his entire 50 - minute speech to the Common Market and the prospect of British membership in it. It was his fullest statement of the New Democratic Party attitude toward the Market which groups 300,000,000 people behind a common tariff barrier against non - member imports and has been progressively reducing tariffs on trade between member countries.

MUST EXPLORE

Canada, Mr. Douglas said, can't afford to wait any longer in exploring the possibilities of joining. ECM's are great trading areas were developing in the world — the Soviet block, EFTA and the American trading area.

The danger was that Canada would be left out in the cold and not become part of any one of the three.

By 1970, it was estimated that Europe would be a have not area with regard to resources materials. The European industrial machine represented an enormous market for hundreds of years to come.

Replying to questions from the floor later, Mr. Douglas said membership in ECM would improve their price on gold, an important question in this community where the mine - company depends on gold mines.

Gold was important in settling international trade balances. Greater demand for gold would mean a better price for gold.

Fleming Reiterates Canadian Plea for Consultations

By DAVID GANGA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Finance Minister Fleming used his London press conference Monday to reiterate Canada's plea for fuller Commonwealth consultations as Britain negotiates to join the European Common Market.

"You have the mother country," he said, in effect to the British government through the assembled reporters.

"We trust and believe you when you say you'll look after our interests. But we do wish you'd tell us what you're doing."

The trouble between the mother country and the family's senior member arose over Britain's opening statement at the beginning of negotiations with the six-nation continental trading bloc.

Britain maintains this is a conference document and hence confidential — even Commonwealth members can't see it.

The Canadians with equal force insist they should be given the full statement to keep them in the picture on a matter that is of vital interest to them.

Fleming's attempt Monday to induce Prime Minister Macmillan to provide the details proved fruitless.

"We place full reliance on the statement by the prime minister that Britain will protect Commonwealth interests in her negotiations to join the Common Market," the finance minister said.

"But we are not able to assess the position of the British government without access to the full texts."

Fleming's remarks—and those of British spokesmen recently—indicate British is acting on behalf of the entire Commonwealth without necessarily keeping members fully informed.

While, she's doing this, she is also looking after her own vital interests. This has led to the current conflict with Canada.

As one veteran observer said: "It is no more than the honest pursuit of national interest by two governments which are close to each other."

He added, however, that this happening at a critical time in the Commonwealth's development. The outcome of the current negotiations could permanently alter the concept of Commonwealth of equal and sovereign nations if Britain sacrifices some of her freedom of action in return for a place in the European community.

Parents Killed, Four Children Hurt in Crash

CHATHAM (CP) — A husband and wife were killed and six other persons — including the couple's four children—were injured Monday night in a head-on car - truck crash on Highway 2.

Dead are Helmut Wahl, 40, of Windsor, and his wife, Elke, 35.

In satisfactory condition in hospital are Heidi Wahl, 7, Ronald Wahl, 5, and Evelyn Wahl, 19 months. The sixth member of the family, Rolfe, 3, escaped with minor cuts.

Mrs. Willy Miller, 31, of Warren, Mich., a passenger in the Wahl car, and Americo Mastiloi, 26, of RR 4 St. Catharines, driver of the truck, are also in satisfactory condition.

Police said the Wahls were westbound on Highway 2, on the way home from a wedding in Toronto. The utility truck driven by Mastiloi, an employee of Antiel Construction Company, was eastbound. The trucks and car were welded together by the force of impact.

A third vehicle, a bread truck driven by Lawrence Chauvin of Thamesville, crashed into the other two. The collision occurred on the outskirts of Thamesville, 15 miles east of here.

Reds Protest Alleged Use Of Tourists for Espionage

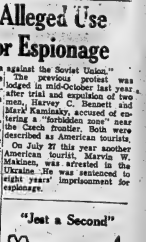
LONDON (Reuters) — Russia against the Soviet Union."

today again protested to the United States against the alleged use of tourists in Russia for espionage.

The Soviet news agency Tass said a Russian foreign ministry statement was sent over to the U.S. embassy in Moscow. It stated that the American government take measures to prevent spying activities.

Russia's protest followed an announcement in Moscow earlier today that two West Germans will go on trial Wednesday on charges of spying for United States intelligence while on a tourist trip.

The announcement said the two West Germans, Walter Naumann and Peter Sonntag, were recruited in West Berlin by agents of the American intelligence service.



HELPED BY U.S.?

According to Naumann and Sonntag, who were arrested in September, they travelled to Russia on means provided by American intelligence.

The protest recalled that Russia previously drawed attention to the impermissible actions of the American intelligence service trying to use tourism for spying activities.

The previous protest was lodged in mid-October last year, after trial and conviction of two men, Harvey C. Bennett and Meryl Kaminsky, accused of entering a "forbidden zone" on the Czech frontier. Both were described as American tourists.

On July 27 this year another American tourist, Marvin W. Makinen, was arrested in the Ukraine. He was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment for espionage.

"I think I'll have another drink — it makes you so witty."

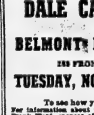
Will Probe BC Lions Affairs



VANCOUVER (CP) — A veteran football official and an industrialist have been appointed to a committee to investigate the affairs of British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference.

They are Don McPherson of Regina, past president of the Canadian Football League, the Western Conference and Saskatchewan Roughriders, and industrialist Frank McMahon.

Don Lanskail and Al McEacher, co-chairmen of an eight-man committee charged with choosing a committee of investigation, said a third member will be announced shortly.

The committee will investigate all affairs of the team but not talk to the players. Decision to have the investigation came after the Lions won only one game this season.

Tessier Moves Up In EP Test

OTTAWA (CP) — Orval Tessier of Kingston Frontenacs went on a six-point spree last week to move within one point of Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers' Dave Balon in the Eastern Professional Hockey League scoring race.

Statistics released by league headquarters today with Balon 22 points on 10 goals and 13 assists. He collected one assist last week while Tessier moved up from fourth spot on four goals and two assists.

Tessier leads goal - scorers with 12. Ed Hoekstra of the Beavers, scoring leader earlier in the season, dropped to third place on a 21 points on nine goals and 12 assists.

Cleland Morison of Sudbury Wolves jumped all the way from 12th to fourth spot. He scored three goals and assisted on four to boost his point total to 20.

Merv Kuryluk of Sault Ste. Marie and Mel Pearson of the Blackhawks are tied for fifth place with 18 points.

The Beavers' Jack McCartan, who has two shutouts, still leads goalkeepers with a 2.50 goals-against average. Cesare Maniago of Hull-Ottawa has allowed the same number of goals—45—but played one game fewer.

Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds picked up a pair of miscounts and leads the league with 322 minutes in penalties. The Thunderbirds' Dino Robazza was the chief thunderer with 77 minutes.

More Doping On British Race Tracks

LONDON (AP) — Two new cases of racehorse doping sent the British racing world into a flurry of excitement Monday.

Caca Dora, favorite to win the Scarpas Hill Handicap steeplechase at Plumpton, was pulled out of the race after her trainer heard her swaying in her box. A veterinary surgeon said the mare had been doped.

Scotland Yard announced tests had proved that Scarron, defeated favorite in the Anglo-Challenge Cup at Fontwell Park two weeks ago, was doped. Scarron, an 11 - to - 4 choice, finished last.

The doping gangs struck as the Jockey Club, ruling body of British racing, prepared a new plan to screen horses and strangers. Numerous doping cases have been reported in the last two years.

The dope used on Scarron was chloroform, one of the most difficult to detect. Scotland Yard told the horse's trainer, Harry Ryan Price, that the drug was probably administered between midnight and 1 a.m. Nov. 7.

A spokesman at Price's Stable at Chedworth, Gloucestershire, England, said they were trying to figure how anyone could get the horse at 2 a.m. The dope was discovered when Scarron's next race was at 2 p.m.

Services Dart League Results

The Hobby Shop and Dover's Men's Wear gained the most ground in Belleville Senior Darts League action last night.

Sport Snapshots

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One of the difficulties of trying to talk to Doug Harvey about reasons for the early season success of New York Rangers is that he's a player as well as coach of the National Hockey League club.

Modesty prevents the 37-year-old defenceman from mentioning a big factor in the club's surprisingly strong showing to date. It's Harvey.

With Montreal Canadiens he earned a reputation as an artistic ice general, a man with a superb knack of getting the puck out of his own end and into scoring position.

By hockey standards he's an old man now, not as great as he used to be, but, for brief periods at least, one of the best at his trade.

There are other reasons, of course, for the team's fast start, and Harvey was quick to point them out himself. One day by John Wallace and George Z. Van of the Detroit News.

"I've been trying hard to change their style," he said. "Doug said: "In the past they did a lot of short passing and scrambled all over the ice. I've been trying to pattern their play after the style Montreal uses.

"Throwing the puck in, or better yet, carrying it in. Also long, sharp passing."

NO MAGICIAN

Can the Rangers keep it up?

"I'm no magician. I just trust the fellows will keep working, I'm working."

That last remark was no exaggeration, Harvey and partner Junior Langlois have been on the ice as much as 33 minutes a game and that's a lot of hockey for a guy of 37.

"You've got to. Sure, my legs get tired. They always did. But so do everybody's."

Aside from Harvey and Langlois, Rangers haven't much in the way of prospective all-stars behind the blue line. They lost Bill Gadsby to Detroit and that leaves such defencemen as Larry Cahan, Harry Howell, Irv Spencer and Red Bownass. That raised the question of whether the team has anything special up front. Dean Prentice and Andy Bathgate would be welcomed by any club in the league.

Bathgate is almost always to the fore for the NHL scoring title but, whatever he says, Harvey isn't throwing bouquets in his direction.

NO DIFFERENT

"He's a fair enough player and he's doing all right," Harvey said. Asked about the apparent lack of enthusiasm he added: "Bathgate's no different than anyone else on the Rangers."

Pressed further on whether his feelings about Bathgate were influenced by Andy's magazine article last year describing Harvey and Gordie Howe as the dirtiest players in hockey, Doug said never so emphatically: "We're getting along okay."

Perhaps there's another factor in the team's play. Rangers have been known as a tough team for their coach in recent years, as anyone who recalls how they got rid of Phil Watson can testify.

But there's no doubt the players have considerable respect for Harvey. And he's treating them in an adult manner.

"They're men and I trust them like men," he declared. "I don't want to run a kindergarten class."

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Monday's featured fifth race at Old Woodbine, the Rising Rock Purse, provided the most stirring finish of the day as four horses charged neck and neck to the wire. After a short deliberation, the placing judges gave the decision to Ponder On.

Ponder On, a fan favorite in the five - horse field, raced home over All Cash, Mrs. Comfort Child and Sailor Man fourth.

Ponder On, which paid $3.60 to win, was claimed by the Fort Erie Stable this summer at Fort Erie and since then has won three of his nine starts.

In the co - featured seventh, Popsey-mo defeated Count Jose Change to pay $7.90.

Willies Warrior, who won the sixth, paid the longest price of the day, $41.40 straight.

The daily double of Rascality and Reminster, winners of the first two races, paid $120.50.

Despite the chilly 36 - degree temperature 6,570 fans were on hand to wager $384,491.

Bathgate Sweeps Into Six-Point Lead

Seven In Two Games

MONTREAL (CP) — Veteran right winger Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers has swept into a commanding six - point lead atop the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Official statistics released today show Bathgate with nine goals and 32 assists, tops in the league, for 41 points. He has played in all 18 Rangers games.

Bathgate, 29, never an NHL scoring champion though he's come close several times, picked up seven points on two goals and five assists in two outings last week. He's been in on 13 of the 17 goals New York has scored in its last four games.

Claude Provost of Montreal Canadiens was held to one goal and one assist in four games last week but held on to second place. He has a league-leading 14 goals and 11 assists for 25 points. He also has played in 18 games.

Montreal's Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, last season's champ, had one goal and two assists and moved into sole possession of third place with eight goals and 13 assists for 21 points.

INGARFIELD MOVES

Earl Ingarfield of the Rangers had five points, four on three goals—and waited into a tie for fourth place with Don McKenney of Boston Bruins. He is second to Provost in goals with 11 and has nine assists for 20 points.

Veteran Johnny Bower of Toronto continues to lead the race for the Vezina Trophy, awarded annually to the goalie who plays the most games for the team that allows the fewest goals, with a 2.47 goals-against average. Glenn Hall of Chicago is second with 2.59. Jacques Plante of Montreal and Lorne (Gump) Worsley of New York are tied for third with 2.63.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit and Hall lead in shutouts with two each.

Montreal continues as the most penalized team with 89 minutes—60 minutes more than Detroit and Toronto who are second.

Defenceman Lou Fontinato of Canadiens is the most penalized player with 74 minutes. That's 42 minutes more than his closest rivals—Montreal's Marcel Bonin and Chicago's Eric Nesterenko.

Pepsi's-Uxbridge Opener

Hole in Ice Halts Game

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

UXBRIDGE — The Belleville Pepsi's and Uxbridge Black Hawks had a thirty-minute workout here last night —which availed them nothing league-wise.

The game, the opener here of the Lakeshore Intermediate Hockey League, was called off after a period of play by the OHA through referee Bob Simcoe of Oshawa.

A twelve-by-six inch bare spot which developed about six inches in front of a goal-mouth red line was the reason.

Between quarter and one-half inch of ice covered the cement floor of the arena where the hole developed.

Hot water treatment was given the hole, but the ice-making machinery was not functioning and it was impossible to cover the spot.

Arena officials worked for over a half hour attempting to "freeze" repairs. Later it was learned electric power had been cut off since five o'clock.

The game will be replayed at a future date.

About the only thing that was "frozen" in the arena was the official clock. This was not functioning and the teams agreed to play 25 minutes straight time.

The Pepsi's were on the short end of a 2-1 score when the first period — and the game — ended. The ice was rough and cut up. Unfrozen pucks bounced over the surface like rubber balls.

The Pepsi's, short the services of "Wiener" Brown and Floyd Crawford, were slow in getting untracked. The Hawks finished a two-goal lead midway through the period before the city crew started to find their skates and whittle the margin to one.

The Hawks are strictly a home-district club, the only "outsider" being playing-coach Freddie Kucher, former Whitby-Dunlop. They are big and tough and check hard and closely.

Uxbridge's McLean scored at the 4.35 mark and Rennick added the second minutes later when MacDonald was serving a penalty. Gary Goyer drove home Ronnie Hull's peanut near period-end when the Pepsi's started to click.

The teams.

Uxbridge: Goal, Carpenter; defence, Vipond, Forfar; centre, Rennick; wings, McLean, Tennessee; subs: Reddaw, McCarthy, Ferguson, Etcher, Gibson, Todd, Millar, Haynes, C. Todd.

Referee: Bob Simcoe, Oshawa. Timers, George Kidd, D. Morden, Uxbridge.

Napanee Shades Flyers 3-1

NAPANEE (Special) — Napanee Comets raced to their first win in Senior Intermediate Hockey League victory here last night, defeating the Trenton RCAF Flyers 3-1 before a mediocre crowd.

Terry Connell scored the only first-period goal and led 2-1 going into the third frame. They added the clincher late in the session.

The Globetrotters outshot the Comets 33-28 in a game that saw six penalties dirvided.

Ter Grady scored the first Comet goal from Pat Gilmour and Bellringer at 2:58 of the first period. Bob Mulholland, assisted by Bellringer, gave the Comets a 2-0 lead in the second frame before the Trotters' MacDonald whittled the margin on assists from Paterson and Stewer.

Gilmor scored the third Comet marker in the final period on assists from Mulholland and Brady.

The Comets meet the Belleville Pepsi's here tomorrow night starting at 8.30.

CBC To Telecast Western Final

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC announced Monday it has decided to carry the second game of the Western Football Conference final on its eastern television network.

The Wednesday game between Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers will be shown in its entirety on the eastern football network starting at 10 p.m., a half-hour after the game begins.

The first half - hour of the game won't be telecast in the east because of previous commitments on the eastern network, a CBC spokesman said.

He added that the CBC is still considering whether it will carry the third game Saturday afternoon, if one is necessary, on its eastern network.

The publicly-owned corporation has the TV rights to the western games but required permission of Eastern Conference to telecast them in the east.

John Rassell, president of CFTO - TV Toronto, a private station which holds Eastern Conference TV rights, announced Monday that the CBC is free to televise the Calgary-Winnipeg second playoff game Wednesday night. He said the CBC could also pick up the CFTO telecast of the Saturday eastern final for broadcast on the CBC's western network.

Possibility, Says Report

'Rifle' Back in Canada?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sam Etcheverry to a Canadian football uniform again?

Don't discount the possibility, says Doug Smith, Montreal radio and television personality and personal friend of the former Montreal Alouette quarterback now playing with St. Louis Cardinals.

Province sports editor Eric Whitehead, who reported Smith's remarks in an Islington, Ont., area newspaper interview, said a most interested listener was Herb Capozzi of British Columbia Lions, whose Western Football Conference team won one game this season.

Etcheverry was traded by the Eastern Conference Alouettes to Hamilton Tiger Cats. Etcheverry refused to report and went to the New York Giants of the National Football League. St. Louis Cardinals purchased their top passing rights to him and now, troubled by an ailing throwing arm, he is having a hard time hoking down the first-string quarterback job there.

Etcheverry was quoted in the Montreal Nouveau Journal recently as saying he would quit the NFL and return to Canada rather than sit on the bench.

"Canada includes Vancouver," said Smith. "What about it? Are the Lions interested?"

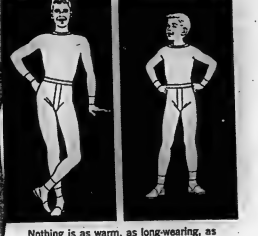
Capozzi replied the Lions are interested but added that Etcheverry is on the Montreal suspension list and would be Alouette property if he returned.

If the Alouettes did not want Etcheverry?

"It's very interesting," replied Capozzi. "We'll certainly keep in touch with the situation."

Marshall Leads AH League

NEW YORK (AP) — Hershey Bears' Willie Marshall, who picked up nine points last week, today became the American Hockey League's sixth scoring leader in as many weeks.



The 30-year-old veteran centre, in his 10th AHL campaign, has a league-leading 26 points on 10 goals and 16 assists. That gives Marshall, in sixth place last year, a four-point lead over Springfield Indians' Brian Kilrea.

Paul Larivee of Providence Reds and Rochester Americans' Alex Delvecchio tied for third with 20 points, according to league statistics released today. Delvecchio is the assists leader with 17 while Marshall is tied with Barry Cullen of Buffalo Bisons and Providence's Pierre Brillant for the goals lead with 10.

Hershey's Bobby Perreault is the No. 1 goalie with a low of 2.21 goals allowed a game.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

It is all over but the eating—and the re-telling of the big moments (if any) of the hunt.

The deer-hunting season closed over the weekend, and indications are moose populations have been reduced considerably.

The season, generally speaking, was a little above that of last year, according to checks made by Lands and Forests Department officials. The deer kill ran about a point higher among hunters while the moose count has yet to be checked. It is the belief, however, of officials that the moose were more plentiful than a year ago.

The first week ending November 12th and 13th, according to conservation officers stationed at check points at Kaladar and Eldorado, saw 1,207 hunters checked with a kill of 442 or a 33.8 per cent hunter success.

The second week ending November 18th and 19th, saw 1,941 hunters checked who had a kill of 186 deer, or a hunter success percentage of 13.2. The overall check was 2,348 hunters who brought out 628 deer, a success percentage of 27.2. This is about a percentage point above that of last year.

The deer population was much heavier than a year ago, according to hunters, but poor shooting in some cases, was the reason for no deer. One told conservation officers: "I had a buck at my gun muzzle, so to speak, and I missed him by a mile." Others tell similar stories but the deer were not quite as close to death.

Generally speaking, a Tweed district Lands and Forests department official said today, the hunting was "fair." The first week there was no snow and the woods were dry, in some places almost like tinder.

The second week saw the rain come, wetting the forest floor and offsetting the fire hazard. This made for better tracking conditions for those who used dogs.

Despite warnings there were those hunters who did not observe the rules of safety and fire hazard. There were 26 fires started during the first week of the hunt, practically all caused by hunter carelessness. The biggest fire, officials state, was one that burned some 800 acres. The fires were under control the second week, rain helping to reduce the hazard.

The district was not free of accidents. One fatality occurred in the six accidents reported in the area. All were caused by hunters mistaking fellow nimrods for game or the careless handling of firearms.

There was a noted increase in the sale of moose and bear licences, according to department officials. This is due, they said, to the reduction in price from $35 to $10.00.

A number of local hunters were successful in their quest for moose. The big fellows came south in greater numbers than they did last year and the result was a bigger kill. Officials said the population may have increased somewhat but the fact they were spread out more in the southern district resulted in the better kill.

The first week was the better week for moose with the woods dry and the weather the same way. The second week, however, saw the bighorns staying close to the northern potholes and swamps instead of coming south to the lakes.

In other phases of hunting the partridge shoots have indicated a scarcity of birds. The Coe Hill district was one of the better productive areas and when the word got around, it was heavily hunted.

The bear "kill" was said to be good in some districts but so far there are only two or three bears reported. bruin kills. One was a 500-pounder killed in the Apsley district.

Those who like rabbit stew had no trouble in getting their meat. The hop-and-jumpers were plentiful in the district, particularly around the Tweed and Campbellford areas as well as in parts of Prince Edward County.

Major Leagues

Trading Might Be Brisk

NEW YORK (AP) — The three-week inter-league trading period opened among major league baseball clubs today with indications the exchange of players would be brisk.

Both new National League teams, New York Mets and Houston Colts, are reported ready to jump into the market in an attempt to strengthen the rosters they formed during the special draft in Cincinnati the day after the world series ended.

Among the players considered possible bait are Roy Hovers, power-hitting first baseman of Chicago White Sox; infielder Harvey Kuenn of the Giants, who went to San Francisco from Cleveland Indians in an inter-league deal last year; and such veteran pitchers as Don Drysdale of Los Angeles Dodgers, Jim Maloney of Cincinnati Reds and Bob Buhl of Milwaukee Braves.

This is the third year of inter-league trading. In previous years only a handful of major deals have been made.

HAWKS HIRE COACH

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Rusty Lavne, who coached the club before it moved to St. Louis, was named coach of St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Association Monday. A former coach of New York Knickerbockers who has been out of the game since the middle of the 1959-60 season, the 41-year-old New York insurance man replaced Paul Seymour, who was fired Friday.

Forest Hills Scene

Big Tennis Spectacular

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States next year plans to turn the national lawn tennis championships at Forest Hills into a giant international spectacle like Wimbledon.

George E. Barnes of Chicago, president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association, announced plans Monday to have 48 foreign players, including representatives of the Soviet Union, flown here for the annual event. The tournament would be extended to two weeks from the usual 10 days.

The international meet will be made possible through the cooperation of the People-to-People Sports Committee, headed by Col. Edward Egan. This is a government - supported committee aimed at bettering goodwill among countries through sports.

The committee would help raise funds for transporting and paying the expenses of the invited players.

Besides Russia, countries which will be invited to send representatives include Canada, Sweden, Germany, Germany, Spain, England, Denmark, Ireland, Hungary, France, Italy, Yugoslavia, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, India, Japan, Malaya, Austria, Poland, Czechoslovaks, Switzerland, South America and Mexico.

Junior A Score Race

TORONTO (CP) — Hubert (Pit) Martin's sudden ability to score goals — he is 11 games — has put the Hamilton Red Wings forward only six sky of his total of last season in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

He collected 20 during the 1960-61 season and 13 in his rookie campaign two years ago.

Official statistics released Monday, which included Saturday's games, show Martin in second place in the scoring race with 24 points, one back of teammate Lowell MacDonald who has 11 goals and 14 assists.

Borden Smith of Guelph Regals maintained his third-place standing with six goals and 10 assists for 16 points but Montreal Junior Canadiens' Andre Boudrias moved up from seventh to sixth in the Smith. The Seaby playmaker added a goal and three assists in Canadiens' two games to give him a total of three goals and 13 assists.

Phil Esposito of St. Catharines Teepees and Ron Schock of Niagara Falls Flyers are tied for fifth place with 15 points each, two more than Howie Dietrich and Riky Knibbs of the Flyers.

Bud Blom of the Red Wings lowered his league-leading goal-tending average to 2.00 from 2.11 goals a game. Bob Champoux of Montreal didn't see any action during the week and held his second-place position with a 2.37 average.

In the OHA's Metropolitan Toronto Junior A Series, Red Setting of Toronto St. Michael's and Jon Westbrooke of Brampton share first place in scoring with 10 points each. Setting has seven goals and three assists and Westbrooke three goals and seven assists.

Robinson TKO's Al Hauser

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)— Sugar Ray Robinson, the 45-year-old boxing master, floored Hauser four times Monday night and won a six-round technical knockout. Robinson weighed 162½, Hauser 165¾.

Hauser, from Philadelphia, went down for the mandatory eight count three times at the start of the sixth. Robinson then dropped him with a left hook and referee Sharkey Bonano stopped it at 1:39 of the round.

Hauser, 30, had the experience and seasoning but not the class. He was a tough target for Robinson until the sixth.

'Can't Pass, We're Dead'

Stampeders Pray For Windless Day

WINNIPEG (CP) — If the weather man obliges, a lot of footballs are likely to be thrown Wednesday night when Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers clash in the second game of the Western Football Conference final.

The passing attack of both teams was practically nullified Saturday at Calgary as a vicious 35- to 40-mile-an-hour wind swept McMahon Stadium while Winnipeg won the opener in the best-of-three series 14-1.

Calgary coach Bob Dobbs made his sentiments clear as his team started preparing for the return bout.

"If we can't pass, we're dead," Dobbs said. "We know we aren't going to run the Bombers out of the park—they've got linebackers bigger than our tackles."

Bombers' coach Bud Grant made it clear that Calgary wasn't the only victim of the wind, even though Winnipeg won.

"We have a passing attack too, you know," he said.

MADE ONLY FOUR

Saturday, with each passer having like success throwing ball in a wind tunnel, Winnipeg quarterbacks Ken Ploen and Hal Ledyard threw only four passes, completing two for 25 yards.

Calgary quarterback Eagle Day completed seven of 19 for 72 yards. But with the Stampeders using the spread formation—five receivers basically for passing — Dobbs says his club will need more and better throwing to win.

Grant is the first to admit that Winnipeg is essentially a running team, but it needs its passing to keep the opposition's defence "honest." This was obvious Saturday when, with the pass virtually cancelled, the Stampeders rushed their linebackers and gained a number of the Bombers' marches.

The Bombs made most of their mileage up the middle but Calgary's shooting linebackers, led by interior man Wayne Harris, managed to bottle even this attack up on most occasions before it got too dangerous.

Grant said Harris was especially effective because he was "shunting" continually, switching his position to confuse his blockers. To combat this, the Bombers could pass into his area to force him back from the line, or deliberately run ground plays into his zone.

Charnley Retains Title

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — Dave Charnley of Britain retained his European and British Empire light-welterweight title by knocking out Darkie Hughes of Wales in 40 seconds of the first round Monday night. It was the fastest knockout in a British championship fight.

Charnley weighed 134½ pounds, Hughes 130½.

Charnley came out with a rush and within seconds had Hughes halfway through the ropes. Hughes got back into the ring with difficulty and was battered around the ring before a tremendous punch put him down in his own corner. He fell heavily on his face and did not move until long after the count.

Charnley, as far as observers could tell, did not take a single blow.

BEATS CHAMP

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Seventh - ranked lightweight Lee Mathews punched his way to a unanimous 10 - round decision Monday night over eighth-ranked Alfredo Urbina, the weighed 135 pounds. The victory earned Mathews a return match with Carlos Hernandez, the Venezuelan champion who won his beaten both Mathews and Urbina.

Million Is in The Bank

BOSTON (AP)—A cheque for $1,000,000 was placed in escrow Monday to guarantee a heavyweight boxing champion Floyd Patterson will get a rematch should he lose his title to Tom McNeeley in their Dec. 4 fight in Toronto.

McNeeley's manager, millionaire Peter Fuller, deposited the cheque in the National Shawmut Bank.

If McNeeley wins, he must give Patterson a rematch within 120 days or forfeit the money. Should McNeeley win and then retire, Fuller gets his money back. Should McNeeley decided to come out of retirement, he would owe Patterson $1,000,000.

Ottawa Gives Ticket Sale Cold Shoulder

OTTAWA (CP)—Opening sale of Grey Cup tickets here got the Grey Cup Committee Monday from football fans. The 70,000 tickets went on at 10 a.m. There were only 15 fans in the lineup in contrast to hundreds in other years, especially last year, when a line-up queueing the previous night.

Ottawa Rough Riders, who won the Grey Cup last season, were knocked out in the Eastern Conference semi-final this year by Toronto Argonauts.

REVISE FIGURES

A club spokesman said the official scorer made a mistake in tallying the Browns' total yardage in Cleveland's 45-21 victory over Philadelphia Eagles. He said a check of the day-by-day records revealed the discrepancy.

Brown carried the ball 34 times and gained 237 yards, tying the mark set against Los Angeles Rams in 1957.

Gymnastics Clinic Success

The gymnastics clinic held at Moira Secondary School Saturday, sponsored by the Bay of Quinte COSSA and conducted by the Army Physical Training Centre from Camp Borden, proved to be a large success.

During the afternoon session, several gymnasts from Belleville and district schools participated in gymnastics movements while the army team pointed out faults in their technique and showed how to correct them.

The clinic was convened by Mr. Gordon McGaughey of Moira.

Each member of the army team was presented with a momento of the occasion and thanked by Mr. Gord Mutter of Quinte.

Letter To The Sports Editor

LIKES MINOR HOCKEY

I am writing you this letter in regards to the Belleville Minor Hockey Leagues.

On Tuesday last I had my first look at the squirts in action and I must say I was pleasantly surprised. The orderly way that everything functions is indeed a credit to the men in charge of this league.

In closing I would like to say that the President, coaches, referees and anyone else connected with this league deserve praise for spending their time to provide our children with such fine recreation and leadership.

Charlton Heston Will Read Parts of Bible in Special

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Charlton Heston's career in recent years has involved so many period and costume movies that his fans almost expect him to appear on the streets dressed like a character out of The Ten Commandments or Ben Hur.

Heston will show up in a business suit tonight when he appears on ABC's U.S. Thanksgiving Day special. But his specialty will be related to his involvement in big Biblical motion pictures: He will read from the New Testament.

While properly grateful for the enormous boost to his career (and bank account) Heston does feel it's about time for him to get out of the costume-drama rut.

"I'd like to do a comedy or a modern drama — and right about now," Heston remarked. "A lot of people—including directors and producers — have forgotten that I got into motion pictures because I was doing a lot of live television in the days of Studio One and Kraft Theatre and Philco Playhouse.

Although the big-money quiz shows were dramatic, disreputable departures from the U.S. TV scene, they are still flourishing Down Under. Australia's top-rated show is Cole's £3,000 Question which recently raised a show in New York. Big winners pick up the equivalent of $8,700. Come to think of it, that's routine loot for winners on The price is Right.

Cross-Canada Survey

Complexity of Provincial Business Forcing a Trend To Longer House Sessions

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The growing complexity of provincial business is forcing a trend toward longer legislature sessions in most Canadian provinces.

Most notable among the 10 are British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario and Quebec, with steadily increasing length of sessions since the end of World War.

Among the other six provinces, only Newfoundland has been able to shorten the time needed to complete its law-making business.

Legislators questioned in a Cross-Canada Survey by the Canadian Press could see no end to the trend of sessions getting any shorter.

Some seem to like the idea of longer sessions. Premier Robert Strachan, CCF opposition leader in British Columbia, says he thinks legislatures should sit all year with only a 30-day summer recess.

Others suggest divided sessions should be considered, possibly in late fall and early spring. Manitoba CCF Leader Russ Paulley says "we could start in November and work until Christmas, then return after Christmas to clean up the work."

HOLD THE LINE

Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island have managed to hold the length of their sessions. But while they haven't grown much longer, they're not likely to grow shorter either.

George L. Keith, Progressive Conservative member of the New Brunswick legislature, says "it would be helpful if the usual seven-week session could be shortened but the only way of doing that would be working day and night."

In British Columbia sessions have steadily increased since 1956 to 60 days from an average 44. The longest session ever in B.C., however, was 106 days in 1932.

Alberta last year had 40 sitting days. Since 1956, the length of sessions has grown from about six weeks to nine. Ray Crevolin, clerk of the legislature, says the small opposition—four members in the 63-seat house—has tended to ease pressure on the government but there is little chance of shorter sessions.

NEED THE TIME

Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba says: "I feel the members should have full opportunity to deal with the business before the house. I don't think the government will take any measures to shorten sessions." The Manitoba house sits now on an average of eight to 10 weeks.

Saskatchewan sits an average 36 to 42 days with the longest session on record 53 days in 1944.

Last year Ontario's record 66-day session was broken into two sittings for the first time since the Second World War. CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald says "Ontario now has reached the stage where we should be sitting four months a year."

When Leslie Frost was Ontario's premier he said he favored longer sessions so that all matters could speak in budget and throne speech debates. Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer also favors longer sessions, past the traditional Easter prorogation date.

Quebec's Liberal Premier Jean Lesage started his term of office a year with a 107-day session, longest in the province's history. He said it was so long because of "systematic obstruction on the part of the opposition." Union Nationale opposition leader Antonio Talbot said it was "because of inefficiency on the part of the government."

Deborah Walley Takes Along Toy Poodle on Interviews

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Deborah Walley brought Pierre Cheri—"sheri" as in sherry—along so I wouldn't be nervous.

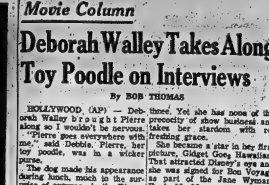
"Pierre goes everywhere with me," said Debbie. Pierre, her toy poodle, was in a wicker carriage.

The dog made his appearance during lunch, much to the surprise of everyone in the Disney dining room. Pierre sat up for strips of chicken from Debbie's salad.

"That your dog?" asked hoseman Walt across the room.

"Yes, I was hoping you'd give him a job," said Debbie, who was off salary herself.

"Every poodle will sit up for food," Walt said negatively. "Even mice does."

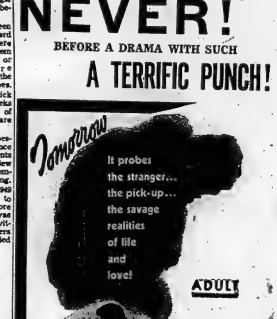


But he didn't object as Pierre wandered around the room for scraps. How could he, after what dogs (not Yeller, Old Yeller, Lady, Tramp, Dalmations, Shaggy and Greyfriars Bobby) have done for the studio?

"Pierre always goes with me on airplanes, to movies, on interviews," Debbie explained.

TAKES DOG ALONG

"He's especially good to have along on television interviews. The interviewer can be a little nervous, you know, so I bring out Pierre. That usually loosens things up."



At 20 years old, Deborah Walley is a self-assured girl. That's only natural for someone who danced several successful movie pictures in Hollywood.

HITCHCOCK PARTNER

Joan Harrison, co - producer since 1954 of the Hitchcock television dramas, is an Oxford University graduate who produced several successful movie pictures in Hollywood.

Astrological Forecast

By CAROLL RICHTER

Wednesday, November 22, 1961

General Tendencies: The very early morning is fine for what-ever has to do with, startling new ideas for public relations, inventions, travelling, etc. But then the aspects make a sud-den change for the worse and it is necessary that you double-check whatever is occurring and use the utmost tact not to have any arguments or accidents.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Contact that influential person early so that you get the favors you need. However, don't make any radical changes at this time, and be sure in the even-ing that you attend social affairs where you can make a fine impression. Grow.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — The morning is fine for im-pressing favorably some power-ful individual. Then get busy paying bills, doing all the con-fidential tasks that require con-centration and thought. Have little to do with gossips — in-crease prestige.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Be sure you study your paper well for information you need in a.m. and get a brighter perspective than you have had in some time. Take care in p.m. that an overly-bright indi-vidual does not take you away from trusted ones.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — By quietly confer-ring with experts this morning, you can hit on far better me-thods of operation in the future. Be careful later not to follow your intuition which could lead you to big loss or gamble un-wisely. Be steady.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Learn what your true position is with associates this morn-ing and how loyal friends are to you. If later you meet with opposition from others at so-cial affairs, be at heroic ease, since they are apt to be wor-ried. Don't get upset.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Get the mechanical devices that make your work easier and also buy articles of wardrobe that give you poise during a.m. However, avoid arguments lat-ter with co-workers and be very careful in the handling of valu-ables.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — During early morning you are apt to get one good idea after another, whether it concerns business or personal life. Fol-low up on them P.M. others are upset — it is up to you to remain calm.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) — Most ideas and data you require can be obtained from closest of kin today. However, don't ju-pardize security that has taken so long in the building. Be very kind with loved one in the even-ing — think before you speak.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — Fine morning for con-ferences that is truly im-portant. Be careful in the after-noon that you listen rather than talk, since you are not apt to be thinking as clearly as you should. Follow ideas of trusted persons instead.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — By stopping yourself you can get monetary affairs handled wisely this morning. Later, look into new ideas and study all pertinent information. Be alert, clever.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — By getting appearances improved early, you can have a wonderful time later, but you must set up appointments in time with friends. Remember that social affairs are pretty much what you make them. Be charming, friendly yourself first.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Spend morning getting gadgets you need for greater efficiency as well as looking into new ideas. Do whatever you can to get credit rating higher and in-creasing prestige. A good will. Take it easy at home in p.m. Retire early.

If your child is born today — he, or she, will be one of those very dynamic youngsters who is very strong at something and shirking big thoughts. So be very sure the finest education is given in scientific and philo-sophical lines, since there is every promise of a tremendous success during adult life, espe-cially where government work is concerned, troubleshooting, etc.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this new healing substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And what most gratifying pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem." And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid con-ditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of nar-cotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new heal-ing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a famous scientific in-stitute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is given in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H. Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Five Byelections Likely to Be Held in January

TORONTO (CP)—The cabinet met at Queen's Park at 10 a.m. today, all but confirming speculation that Premier Roberts plans to call byelections in five vacant Ontario ridings.

If Mr. Roberts wants to fill the vacancies before next summer, the cabinet must appoint returning officers and set nomination date before mid-night tonight.

Published reports said Jan. 18 seemed a likely date for the byelections, although one informed source indicated early February.

The election setup in Ontario provides, during the winter months, for a minimum of 30 days and a maximum of 60 days between announcement and nomination day, with a further 14 days between nomination and voting. Byelections cannot be called once the legislature is in session.

Vacant are the former Conservative ridings of Beaches-Woodbine and Renfrew South, the Liberal riding of Brant and the Liberal-Labor riding of Kenora.

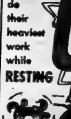
Queen, Prince Leave Ghana For Liberia

TAKORADI, Ghana (Reuters) The Queen and Prince Philip left here for Liberia Monday aboard the royal yacht Britannia after an 11-day visit to Ghana that came off without incident.

In a farewell speech before they left, Ghana Premier Kwame Nkrumah said Ghanaians hope the visit will done much in strengthen the relations between Ghana and Britain as well as the Commonwealth.

He said their reception in Ghana was "a sincere manifestation of the affection in which you are held."

The Queen met a 10,000-strong crowd at a final durbar of chiefs her visit had been a "wonderful experience."



She said she and her husband had been "deeply touched by the warmth of the welcome." Her speech was frequently punctuated by applause and cheering.

The Queen's reception during the 11-day visit drew wide-spread tears for her safety following bomb explosions in Accra earlier this month. Police precautions were simple, although alleged "troublemakers" were rounded up before the royal couple arrived.

TO PROBE ILLEGAL GAIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators are looking into the Bobby Baker inquiry to determine whether journalists connected with the government have used inside information for private financial gain. An armed services subcommittee of the house of representatives plans public hearings on the subject early next year. Among other things, it plans to study records of stock market operations by the scientists and other consultants.

COMPLETES NCO COURSE

Lance Corporal Harry Labrash of Belleville has successfully completed the Western Command junior non-commissioned officers' course at Camp Wainwright, Alta. The course, which is designed to qualify soldiers to promotion to senior NCO rank, emphasized leadership training. He is a member of The Canadian Provost Corps, stationed at Rivers, Man. (National Defence Photo).

Charge Effort To Make Jobless Take CD Course

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A letter charging that pressure is being used to force unemployed men to enlist in the national survival training course has been made public by county Conservatives.

A charge by Carl Sigsworth, president of Local 524 of the United Electrical Workers (ind.) was read to council Monday night and formed over to the welfare committee for study.

Mr. Sigsworth's letter referred to instances in which he said men were required by welfare authorities to show proof that they had tried to sign up for the course.

Council, at the same time, voted that no welfare payments will be made to persons taking part in the course.

FIRE DIRECTOR

WASHINGTON AP) — Personnel director Maurice Klein, of the United States National Security Agency, has been fired on grounds that he falsified parts of his own government employment application it was disclosed Monday. The House of Representatives committee on un - American activities, which disclosed Klein's forced resignation, effective Nov. 10, asked Attorney-General Robert Kennedy to prosecute Klein for perjury, falsifying a government document and concealment and removal of a document from an official file.

GETS RAIN AT LAST

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rain came to parched southern California Monday. More than an inch hit Los Angeles. Mudslides blocked roads and damaged homes in the Bel-Air and Brentwood districts, where brush fires had left the hills scorched and barren.

Mayor of N.S. Town 40 Years Is Acclaimed

HALIFAX (CP)—Dr. H. B. Havey, a stocky, snowy-haired physician who can't remember for sure how long he has been mayor of the central Nova Scotia town of Stewiacke, was endorsed by acclamation Tuesday.

And the news probably wasn't a surprise. For he predicted earlier that he wouldn't have any opposition.

He was opposed only four times since he first was elected, somewhere about 40 years ago. Each time he won.

"You've got to like people and give them a square deal," he said.

"Keep in with the people. I never turned a patient away because he didn't have the money." For most of his practising life he was the only physician in the 1,000-family centre of 1,000.

Dr. Havey has diabetes, a side effect of teh caused him to have his left leg amputated above the knee in 1957.

EVENSCOPE DEMS

About any necessities ago his eyesight began to get dim and then today he sees only a little. But, in his mayor's district this hinders him only a little.

By memory he can "take a report and give them all you want out of it."

Dr. Havey is in hospital here to give his good foot a rest. But he is anxious to get back to Stewiacke to tackle some of his work.

Dr. Havey is also a county medical health officer and a county coroner. He can be driven around to attend his duties these days because he can't see well enough to drive.

Dr. Havey won't say exactly how old he is, but admits he's in his 70s. He said he joined civic life first because he needed some to . . . A good good fight is good for you."

One of Four Arrested Has Attack in Cell

COOKSVILLE (CP)—One of four Guelph persons charged with the attempted robbery of a service station attendant was taken to hospital Tuesday after suffering a convulsion in his cell.

Arnold Straise, 26, is in satisfactory condition with a fractured over his eye. Police said he bit his head on the cell bars when he suffered the attack.

Also charged with the robbery attempt are Mary Boyd, 18, Ronald Gallagher, 21, and Thomas Bellet.

Attendant James McAlpine, 16, said a car with four occupants stopped for gas at his station on Highway 10 Monday night. Two men got out on the pretext of buying potato chips and slugged McAlpine on the head with a bottle when the other quartet drove off.

Watson OPP later arrested four persons in a car.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A series of weather disturbances will move across the Great Lakes area during today and Thursday. The snow now falling in the north country will continue into Thursday and rain will be spreading into the rest of the province during today.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Dr. Fleming Van Allen and seven other University of Iowa physicists take issue with Dr. Willard Libby's syndicated series of articles on how to survive atomic attack. They call it "extremely dangerous."

Dr. Van Allen, who detected the radiation belts circling the earth through satellite studies, heads the Iowa physics department.

The Iowa physicists, in a letter to the editor of the Iowa City Press-Citizen, said of the Chicago Dr. Libby, a Nobel Prize chemist.

"It is extremely dangerous to give the impression to the public that the building of fallout shelters will enable the average citizen to survive a nuclear war.

COULD MEAN END

"This gives a false sense of security. The perceptage-wise benefit gained from fallout shelters is no way detracts from the very real catastrophe that an atomic war will mean the end for the civilizations of both opponents.

Dr. Libby, asked by The Associated Press for a telephone for his comments, replied:

"I agree that anybody who interprets my advocacy as saying that fallout shelters make it inside war feasible should be outraged.

"I did not intend to say anything like that. What I intended to say was that fallout shelters greatly increase the chances of survival for those who were not hit directly by blast or thermal blast.

"What is my message."

The Iowa group particularly criticized Dr. Libby's estimate that 90 to 95 per cent of U.S. residents could survive an atomic attack with proper protection.

OTHER ESTIMATES LOWER

They said other estimates are much lower than Dr. Libby's and added that survival figures depend largely upon the length of a future war, the number, size and distribution of bombs, the height of burst, and many unforeseeable circumstances."

Dr. Van Allen and Dr. Libby estimated that a 10-megaton bomb would flatten buildings 5½ miles away. Libby said he did not add that fires from such a bomb would have started 50 miles away, and that a 20-megaton bomb might cause 100 per cent destruction out to 25 miles away, Basement shelters,

TO MEET EDITOR

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy plans to meet and talk with Soviet editor Aleksei I. Adzhubei, editor of Izvestia, government newspaper Izvestia, the White House said Tuesday.

Suspension of Separatist Called Act of 'Unpardonable Pettiness'

QUEBEC (CP) — Separatism — the movement for an independent Quebec state — has become the principal topic of political discussion in the old province.

Currently the wave of discussion of nationalist ideas is regarded in Quebec political circles as responsible for the suspension for five years of Pierre Bourgault for his recent federal election.

At the Laval conference last week, Dr. Marcel Rioux of Ottawa's Gill University, national president of the new Democratic Party, said the board's refusal to give Dr. Chaput permission to run in the election discussion was an act of "unpardonable pettiness."

Reaction in French Quebec to the Chaput incident might accentuate factors which have kept the separatist idea alive over the years.

The issue between the French-language scientist and his English - language superiors might be looked at only as an example of conflict between a French-Canadian affairiste, at which

5 BYELECTIONS WILL BE HELD ON JANUARY 18

Nomination Day Will Be Jan. 4

TORONTO (CP) — Voters in five Ontario ridings will cast ballots Jan. 18 in a "little general election" that should provide some political wind-testing.

Premier Robarts and his cabinet set the polling date Tuesday at a 3½-hour meeting on the eve of the opening of Ontario's legislature.

Nomination day will be Jan. 4 in the ridings of Beaches-Eglinton, Brant, Kenora and Renfrew South, all vacant through the deaths of members.

There will be a sobering reminder of those deaths today when Lieutenant - Governor J. Keiller Mackay reads the speech from the throne at about 3 p.m.

Three of the 98 members' seats in the legislature will be hooded in black cloaks trimmed with purple, and black cloth facings will cover the front of their desks.

HONORS MEMBERS

The gesture honors the late Premier Leslie Frost, Mahoney of Renfrew South, Liberal Harry Nixon of Brant, and Liberal-Labor member Albert Hall of Kenora, who died during recess. Also the death of Conservatives William H. Collings of Beaches and William Dunlop of Eglinton earlier the end of the previous session were similarly marked at the time.

Mr. Robarts said it was the three most recent deaths which effect a change in government attitude toward byelections. Former premier Leslie Frost had refused to hold byelections in Beaches and Eglinton because of the economic-and-fiscal-stabilization study scheduled for this year.

"I think it is an entirely different situation now," Mr. Robarts said.

Two Killed In Collision

GUELPH (CP) — A teen-age mother and 22-year-old man were fatally injured Tuesday night when a car and a sheep-truck collided.

The dead are Mrs. Marlene McGladrey, 18, and Leslie Deacon, 22.

The car, driven by Deacon, was taking the youngsters and Mrs. McGladrey to a hockey game at Fergus near here when the collision occurred on Highway 6.

Mrs. McGladrey died at the scene and Deacon died early today in hospital of severe injuries.

Three other persons were injured and taken to hospital. Diane Kane, 18, suffered fractures; Judy Aiken, 18, head injuries, and Norma Southcote, 17, minor bruises.

Five of the sheep also were killed.

Throne Speech Highlights

TORONTO (CP)—Highlights of the speech from the throne, read today at the opening of the Ontario Legislature by Lieutenant-Governor J. Keiller Mackay:

Ontario police commission to be created.

Increased assistance pledged for local and university education.

Expansion of industrial research under new department of economics and development.

Northern and southern hydro-electric systems to be consolidated.

Agricultural research institute to be created.

Revisions in driver demerit system and provision of mobile vehicle inspection units.

Expanded welfare aid for children, including possible community children's villages.

Increased provincial contributions in some municipal highway projects.

Advisory sub-committee on economic development planned for Northern Ontario.

Farm Leader Urges Canada Back British Market Move

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's basic attitude should be one of support for Britain's negotiations to join the six - nation European Common Market, the national farm group said Tuesday.

Dangers exist from the market itself and from Britain's possible entry, President H. H. Hannam of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture told the Commons - provincial agriculture conference.

But the smart move appears to be to assist such a development, Dr. Hannam said in submission received as the result of one of the elements of the economy most vulnerable to trade discrimination.

The National Farmers' Union, representing farm groups in Western Canada and Ontario, took a more muted line by asking the federal government to attempt to maintain trade links with Britain and the Common Market countries and to give some serious consideration to the possibilities of becoming a partner in an Atlantic free trade area.

Said Dr. Hannam, in a statement at odds with the federal government's lack of enthusiasm for Britain's application to join the Common Market:

"The Canadian Federation of Agriculture is not opposed to the development of the European Common Market as a trading bloc in principle. But in the statesmanship and wisdom," Agriculture surely there were grave dangers, particularly in the possibility that Britain, biggest purchaser of Canadian wheat plus other farm produce, would join the Common Market on terms so much shorn and heightened by the possibility a protectionist policy by the Common Market in the tariff structure it was working out.

"But it is believed that the only right answer to these problems lies in fully acknowledging the rightness of the Common Market concept and bending our energies, through consultation, agreement and enlightened trade policy on our part, toward turning the basic split the trade potential which should be created by an economically united, prosperous and expanding Europe."

Dr. Hannam said it is true that a loss looms of considerable significance in the matter of Commonwealth preference.

"But here again we are strongly inclined to believe that as far as Canada is concerned, the best attitude should be one of support for this new proposed move to widening of the Common Market group."

FLEMING SAYS CANADA CANNOT JOIN MARKET

No Welcome Signs Minister Declares

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada "wouldn't be welcome" in the European Common Market even if it wanted to join, Finance Minister Fleming said Tuesday.

He also told a press conference he is "very much interested" in United States government proposals which he said are aimed at freer trade — but not free trade — between western Europe and North America.

Mr. Fleming, who returned late Monday from talks in Europe and London, said Canada "couldn't join the Common Market even if she wanted to."

For one thing, the organization trade bloc was essentially a European group. Besides, the Common Market was constituted at the present time, and its policies are such, that it's quite clear to me from my discussions that Canada wouldn't be welcome."

There were difficulties of "real importance" to Canada, he said. Another was the Common Market idea of political unification which existed in the European Economic Common Market membership in the Common Market.

Mr. Fleming said Mr. Heeg was referring to the political question of Canadian trade access to the European Common Market.

The finance minister, who had talks in London Monday with Prime Minister Macmillan and Commonwealth Relations Secretary Duncan Sandys, emphas-

Million Dollar Fire in Quebec

GRANDE RIVIERE, Que. (CP)—Mayor Bertin Lauder of Grande Riviere said Tuesday night the community was "wiped out" by an early morning fire which destroyed downtown general storage plant holding wholesale food stocks for most of the population.

Damage was estimated at more than $1,000,000.

The mayor said about 90 per cent of the town's 6,000 inhabitants were affected.

"This thing comes at a very bad time," Mr. Lauder said.

Just recently, our area was declared a chronic unemployment zone."

Wenner-Gren Profit Is $2,900,000 On BC Peace River Power Deal

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says the interests of Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren have achieved a profit of $2,900,000 on investment of $2,700,000 in property development in British Columbia's Rocky Mountain trench.

It says the profits break down to $2,000,000 to provincial government and $2,000,000 from sale of shares of the Peace River Power Development Company which Wenner-Gren interests formed to build a multi-million dollar hydro-electric development on the Peace River.

The $800,000 announcement Tuesday when Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton, Supreme Court of Canada, Court a resolution passed by an extraordinary meeting of Peace Power shareholders last week.

The resolution recommended reduction on the basis of 50 cents a share of 36,472,000, part of 37,200,000 shares the government is to pay Peace Power after expropriation its plans and surveys for the hydro project.

The Sun says the remaining money is to be used to fight the terms of the government's expropriation bill. The government has taken over the plans and surveys and compensated Mr. Wenner-Gren's company as a special payment of Steps Against Crime Will Be Taken Says Govt.

Ont. Legislature Opens Under Premier Robarts

TORONTO (CP) — Steps aimed at tighter control of crime in Ontario were outlined today by the government of Premier Robarts in the speech from the throne.

The 3,500-word speech, read by Lieutenant-Governor J. Keiller Mackay at the opening of the third session of the provincial 26th legislature, also pledged increased spending on education and industrial development.

The speech said the government will introduce legislation providing for the creation of an Ontario police commission vested with considerable powers relating to the maintenance of law and order in Ontario.

No outline was given of the commission's functions. But the Liberal and New Democratic Party leaders have accused Attorney-General Wishart Spence of himself has contended that his department is keeping a watchful eye on criminals and that the situation is not out of hand.

TO AID INDUSTRY

Dealing with industrial problems, the speech emphasized the need for expansion, adding: "A comprehensive plan is being developed to assist the province in achieving a satisfactory rate of economic growth."

With regard to the existence of a "magic formula" it added: "Increased emphasis on industrial research and expansion of the work of the Ontario Research Foundation."

The broad economic picture suggests a continuance of growth and expansion throughout the coming year," legislature members were told.

The speech promised a "major increase in the provincial assistance to education," adding that "not only will grants to local school boards be increased, but larger contributions will be made to universities."

Amendments would be introduced to six separate acts dealing with education. No details were given.

The throne speech dealt in brief fashion with almost every government department. Only a few exceptions neither the extent of proposed financial programs nor the, exact nature of legislation to be introduced was given in detail.

INDUSTRY MAIN THEME

Industry was the main theme of the speech. It stressed that "as in past years, the government's policies will be directed

Woman Given Vicious Beating Before Found

HAMILTON (CP)—A roomer who found housekeeper Rita Hall, 39, in a pool of blood Tuesday, four hours after she died, said today he was told to "mind your own business."

Henry Trombley, 37, an unemployed ironworker, said he found the woman lying at the foot of the stairs while a man sat beside her, drinking whisky.

Trombley, a roomer in the house, owned by Joseph Lebano, 39, said he asked the man in calm manner and was told: "What the hell—it's still breathing, isn't she?"

Mrs. Caron, 36, died in hospital with a fractured skull and face and head cuts.

Police said no charges were laid.

Trombley said he awoke Tuesday morning and came downstairs about 8 a.m. He said he had to step over Mrs. Caron who was lying at the foot of the stairs in the hallway.

When Trombley was unable to get a doctor, he called police.

Mrs. Caron, separated from her husband, had recently been released from hospital after treatment for cancer.

Lucy Trombley died seven months ago, another brother-in-law's husband. Lives in Iroquois Falls with an 18-year-old daughter.

Says Joyceville Security Prison Costly Mistake

TORONTO (CP) — Joyceville minimum security prison was an expensive mistake, a criminologist told the Canadian Council of Women Tuesday.

Norman Borins said a minimum security institution should only be considered for first offenders. He was answering a question concerning the Joyceville in recent months.

Joyceville has since been returned to medium security status following an order from the Supreme Court of Justice that 40 acres of the 640-acre farm, 4½ miles north of Kingston, be returned by a 12-foot fence.

SMALL AMOUNT OF CASH TAKEN

The Kilkenny Esso service station next door to the Roland's Steak House on Highway No. 37 near Cortyville, was broken into by thieves some time Tuesday night and a small amount of petty cash was taken.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville are investigating.

History Dept. Head Speaker At Meeting

Mr. T. Ransom chaired the November 13th meeting of the Hastings County Historical Society which was held in the Corby Library auditorium.

The speaker of the evening was Mr F. Bradley, head of the history department, BCIVS. His background of the rebellion of 1837, the response of the militia to the local danger and later to the Van Rensselaer invaders, the rounding up of "furious revolutionists," local retaliatory actions on "patriots" and suspected sympathizers, and local claims put forward under the terms of the Rebellion Losses Bill were presented in an interesting talk on "The Rebellion of 1837 and the Belleville Area " Mr. Bradley, in preparing his talk, used documents presented to the society by Mr. E. Denyes.

Police Chiefs May Organize Monthly Meets

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—An attempt will be made to organize a district crime conference for the Peterborough area "to keep abreast of the latest trends of criminals," Police Chief Jack Shields said today.

Two city officers are today attending a crime conference in Ancaster designed mainly for the law enforcing agencies in the Niagara Peninsula area, Chief Shields said.

Among the crimes to be proposed for discussion by the two delegates from the Peterborough force will be a fraudulent system of cheques cashed in the city last week. Cheques drawn on the same firm and bearing the same amounts were also cashed in the Sault Ste. Marie area earlier this week, Chief Shields said.

He stated that the peninsular conference was organized in April after a meeting of the chief constables from various municipalities. Buffalo and New York state police, representatives of the FBI and border patrol police have also attended the conference.

The area embracing the Peterborough force from which delegates will attend, when the new conference schedule is completed, will probably include Metropolitan Toronto, Orillia, Bracebridge, Lindsay to Campbellford, and the Lakeshore towns east to Belleville, Chief Shields said.

signed to achieve an economic climate conducive to industrial expansion and employment."

If noted an increase in economic growth during 1961 and reduced unemployment, it cannot be complacent, however.

The possible entry of the United Kingdom and other countries into the European Economic Community will introduce new stresses and strains. The price of progress must be unceasing attention to ways and means of improving quality and cutting costs."

As part of an already-established advisory committee for economic development, a sub-committee will be set up "to study the special problems of Northern Ontario."

CONSOLIDATE HYDRO

Hydro - electric power systems in Northern and Southern Ontario will be consolidated, the speech said, to "provide for the financial integration of all systems and permit a more economical development and operation of electric power plants throughout the whole province."

"The residents of Northern Ontario can be assured of a greater stability of supplies of power at a reasonable cost."

Ontario's farm industry was promised the creation of an agricultural development board, administrative changes in controlling boards, a Ontario Agricultural and Veterinary College and the MacDonald Institute at Guelph.

"The Co-operative Association Act will be introduced to provide means to assist agricultural co-operatives in the fields of marketing and incorporation."

Increased spending is to be requested in the estimates for research in forest management, fish and wild life.

While the meeting continued highway safety measures, the speech said, the Ontario department system introduced two years ago will be amended "to further increase its safe effectiveness and to eliminate apparent inequities in the present system."

ENLARGE INSPECTION

In addition, mobile inspection units will be made available for the first time outside Metropolitan Toronto "to provide inspection facilities in support of community safety programs."

The legislature will be asked to amend the establishment of community children's villages to provide that municipalities will be served by new legislation.

In connection with highways, the speech said legislation will be introduced to set up part of the province's contribution towards bridges and culverts on highways through municipalities or more than 2,500.

Provision was also a basis of reporting forecast for consideration by the legislature.

The speech said a departmental study of both adult and child welfare services, representatives of the PEI and border patrol police have also attended the conference.

The area embracing the Peterborough force from which delegates will attend, when the new conference schedule is completed, will probably include Metropolitan Toronto, Orillia, Bracebridge, Lindsay to Campbellford, and the Lakeshore towns east to Belleville, Chief Shields said.

Pupils Collect $1,516 for UNICEF

The name of some lucky Belleville primary school student may be chosen by the Belleville Committee on Toronto to make a trip to New York City to present the Canadian Children's contributions for this year's UNICEF drive.

The names of representative students from all schools in Belleville have been forwarded to Toronto and along with the names of others from all across Canada will go into the big pumpkin for the national draw.

Pat Carr of Sidney in Belleville this year totalled $1,516.57, this being mainly the result of Halowe'en candy shared by children to help millions of hungry and sick children.

At the last assembly of the school year in May, Mrs. A. Mallett received a cheque for $288 from BCI students for UNICEF. The idea of weekly contribution: at the school was suggested to the student council by Mr. Cunningham and received an enthusiastic response.

Evidence Adduced in Charge Against Woman of Having Possession of Explosives

Freda Evelyn Abrams of 321 Moira St. west, Belleville, went on trial Tuesday morning at the General Sessions of the Peace and Jury Sittings, for the County of Hastings on a charge of having explosives in her possession and a further charge of having and breaking instruments in her possession by which she pleaded "not guilty". She is represented by Bernard W. Hurley.

Evidence heard at the sittings was that during the early hours of Monday morning, July 17, city police officers were answering a complaint received by two residents on West Moira St., Albert Smith and L. E. Vickers, about a stink bomb which had been thrown into their homes.

While in the vicinity their attention was drawn to a green car vehicle which had been kept under police observation, he said, by Constable Sharpe and Det. of West Moira St. As a result of investigations by these and the two police cruisers, one driven by Const. W. H. Warrender and Const. Cecil Mc-Lindon, they took up pursuit of the Hill vehicle at an intersection in the city. In the course of the chase, the Hill car reached speeds of around 80 miles per hour.

The occupants of the car were recognized by the officers as being Sharpe, Edna Luftman and Freda Abrams. The latter, who was seen trying to dispose of a box and another package which Const. Sharpe said he could see clearly at the time. This box was later taken into custody by the police as were the occupants of the car.

The box and the bag which was not found until a later time were sent to the Attorney General's office in Toronto for examination.

Const. Sharpe testified that he was on duty on July 17 and that he received a call in connection with three matters but that he had received a call just previous to this, and as a result he went to the home of Mr. Vickers, who lives at 323 Moira St. west, after receiving a complaint from him.

STINK BOMB THROWN

He said he left Const. McLindon in a police cruiser and went over to the residence of Albert Smith and had also reported that a stink bomb had been thrown into the house.

Const. Morgan said one window and found a bottle of broken glass and noticed something on the floor and that it had been thrown through the window in the door leading into the house.

Const. S. D. Morgan stated that he and Const. McLindon were on duty in the early morning hours of July 17 when they received word from Moira St. west. They proceeded to the area and came to rest facing the Smith residence. The witness said he noticed two women and a man on the front lawn of the house. Const. Morgan stated that when he arrived the two men got out of the car and Edna Luftman whom he recognized was carrying a package, which he could not identify at that time. He said they threw them into the car and left the north side of the road. Const. Morgan stated that when he arrived the two men got out from in the police cruiser. Const. Morgan stated that when he arrived the two men got out of the car and Edna Luftman whom he recognized was carrying a cardboard box and Freda Abrams

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—A new high on the western oils index, industrial weakness and speculative strength highlighted heavy morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

The western oils' index, a compilation of 15 leaders in the oils market, touched 106.35, ahead 97, highest point since January, 1958. The rise came on sharp gains by Home A and B, both a new high, and Dome, Hudson's Bay and Pacific Petroleum, all ahead fractionally.

Industrials fell on losses among steels, utilities and refining oils. Banks and financial institutions were strong. Specialtieswas advanced behind Lake Dufault's 53-cent rise to 10¼.

On index, industrials fell 1.56 to 604.42, golds .01 to 88.70 and base metals .86 to 207.89. Western oils rose 97 to 106.35, and the 11 a.m. volume was 1,468,000 shares compared with 1,640,000 at the same time Thursday.

The senior base metals list was down with International-Nickel, Labrador and Denison off to a point. Ventures rose a point to a new high of 70. Gold trade was weak and sporadic with Dome and Giant Yellowknife off ¼ and ⅛ respectively.

Lake Dufault issued a further assay report on hole N-127 which revealed 11.2 per cent copper, 2.2 per cent zinc, 3.3 ounces of silver and 0.05 ounces of gold in the 1,114-to-1,270-foot level for a core length of 156 feet.

Industrials fell but speculatives made sharp advances.

Lake Dufault gained 45 cents to $9.50 on 39,200 shares, while Willsey-Coghlan, with property adjacent to Dufault in the Rouyn-Noranda area, rose a cent to 46 on 371,350 shares.

Industrials fell on the basis of widespread fractional losses among steels, utilities and papers. But Oshawa Wholesale A and Traders Finance B both reached highs of 31¾ and 36, ahead 1½ and a point respectively. Industrial Acceptance Corporation also reached a new high of 37½, up ¾.

Western oil trading was heavy in the senior list amid rising prices. Home A and B, Bailey A, Central Del Rio and Hudson's Bay all advanced to ⅝.

Municipal Board Approves Water Supply System for Wellington in P.E. County

The Ontario Municipal Board at Toronto yesterday announced approval for a municipal water supply system for the village of Wellington to replace the community's infection - prone wells.

Cost of the water system is estimated in the neighborhood of $250,000.

The system will be built by the Ontario Water Resources Commission, but village officials today stated they had no idea when tenders would be called or when it was planned for work to commence.

Wellington is about 30 miles south of Belleville and has an assessment of $1,344,600.

The Municipal Board noted that tests taken in August and September showed that only 14.5 per cent of the wells in the village were satisfactory.

The proposed construction of a municipal water supply at Wellington has been a contentious matter for several years with many residents of the village claiming the expenditure was not needed.

HALT LANDFILL

Construction of the water supply system had been advocated by the village council, and last summer the Ontario Municipal Board held a public hearing on the question. The village hall was jammed to capacity for the hearing.

Dr. William Turpel, county medical officer of health, said he feared the whole water table was infected. The Municipal Board found there was evidence of a definite health hazard and that chlorination of the wells would not be a satisfactory solution.

Wellington Reeve A. C. Platt said this morning he had not been officially notified of the Municipal Board finding but expected the notification would be in the morning mail.

BCIVS Army Cadet Corps Permanently Disbanded

Temporarily suspended a year ago, the cadet corps at Belleville Collegiate has now been permanently disbanded and army headquarters in Kingston will be notified to this effect.

Last night at the regular monthly meeting of the Boy of Quinte High School Board, members authorized a letter to be forwarded to Kingston officially notifying them of the permanent disbanding of B.C.I. cadets.

But if the cadet corps at the Collegiate is no more, the new army cadet corps at Moira Secondary School came in for commendation during the first year of operation. Last night the board was told that the corps enrolment was 95 per cent during its first year of operation and the board will officially commend the corps members by way of letter.

Last year's retired cadet corps instructor at the school, Mr. E. C. Milliken, has resigned his position with the corps and teacher Gordon McGaugher will be the new chief instructor.

NO SUPERINTENDENT

Members of the high school board have approved the recommendation from the board planning committee calling for the appointment of a superintendent of secondary education in the Bay of Quinte high school district September. The board appreciated the merits of the recommendation but felt the time of appointment as yet for another year.

Members of the BCI Senior basketball team, which this year won the COSSA championship for the first time in nearly three decades, will hold a banquet in appreciation of their achievement. Last night the board members authorized a financial contribution toward the dinner.

A member of the high school board in the future will sit in on executive meetings of the Belleville Home and School Association council. The board suggested the attendance of a board member at their executive meetings and Arnold C. Campbell was named representative.

The offer of the Belleville Kiwanis Club to assist any matters of education in which its services could fit in was accepted by the board.

TEACHERS RESIGN

The resignation of Mr. Charles Leppan, shop director at Moira Secondary School, was accepted by the board. Mr. Leppan will leave Moira at the end of December to take a position in South Peel at the beginning of the new year. He had been

Rev. A. Laverty Will Be Cheese Banquet Speaker

Chaplain at Queen's University since 1947 and well known in the Belleville and Stirling areas, Rev. A. E. Laverty will be the guest speaker at the annual Central Ontario Cheese Makers' banquet at the Masonic Temple next week.

The banquet is being held at the Masonic Temple on Thursday evening. Nominations to conclude the cheese makers' convention and the annual British Empire Dairy Show being held on Wednesday and Thursday at the former Dickens Tea room on Front Street.

Mr. Laverty is born in Toronto and is a graduate of Victoria College and Emmanuel College and was ordained to the ministry of the United Church in 1927.

He was minister at Stirling before going overseas as chaplain with the Canadian Army during World War II.

Secretary of the cheese makers' convention will be held Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 29-30 at the Quinte Hotel.

Increased entries for the cheese show at its new location on Front Street are reported this year by the secretary Mrs. William Matthews. Cheese will be sold both days of the cheese show.

Nomination Meeting for Civic Offices to Be Held Tonight

Nomination for 1962 city council, public and Separate school boards and utility commission member, will be received tonight at city hall when the annual nomination meeting scheduled to get underway at 7.30.

Seven seats on the 14-member city council are slated for acclaim, a race for the mayoralty is also indicated this year.

So far only three men have definitely indicated their intention of running for municipal office. They are: Mayor A. C. Haig, and former aldermen Bert Gaudin and Allen Bell who have announced they will contest their old seats, and Alderman Ben Corke who has stated he will stand for re-election.

Four aldermen, whose two year terms are up this year, have stated they will not run. They are: Alderman John Denlow, Jack Deacon, Lorne McDougall and Leslie Reid.

The two-year term of Utility Commissioner John Weese is up this year.

Nominations will be held for public and Separate school boards in each of the seven city wards.

Tonight at city hall nominations will be received from 7.30 to 8.30 and candidates will be required to sign a petition at 9 o'clock to qualify. The election date is December 4th.

Three of the city's polling stations will be changed this year with changes in all instances being made for convenience sake.

The former polling booth at Bayview School will be held at the St. Columba Church, just north of Bridge Street East on Ivy Avenue, while the one formerly held at St. Joseph's Church will be held in the basement of Eastminster United Church. The third change will be in the Avondale district where the polling booth this year will be held in the vacant house owned by Lyle Jones on the south side of Dundas St. West, opposite Selena Ave.

Four Speakers Give Addresses To Toastmasters

TRENTON — Speakers at this week's meeting of the Quinte Toastmasters' Club were introduced by Douglas Tufford, toastmaster for the evening. "Your success is not measured by what you have done but by what you should have done with your ability."

The four speakers chosen to address the group went on to deliver four excellent speeches, demonstrating that they were making use of their abilities along the line of public speaking.

Lorne Johnson of the Trenton club gave the toastmasters an insight into the gentle art of boxing, illustrated by the use of boxing training gloves.

Mr. Johnson said that while wrestling matches were "fixed" as a great extent, with everyone in the game except the paying spectators knowing exactly what was going to happen, boxing matches were as near on the level as could be that boxers were dedicated men, fighting to earn a living.

Ray Dignum, president of the Limestone City Toastmasters' Club, (Kingston), spoke on "the happy, carefree state of bachelorhood."

The speaker issued grave warnings to all the single men in the club. He said that he was most concerned about the future of his fellowmen because, according to statistics, 50 per cent of all married people were men. He said that he hoped to lower this percentage by 5 per cent by means of a relentless campaign against marriage.

Les McKenna of the Trenton (Quinte) Toastmasters, urged his listeners to "stop killing themselves," by eating the wrong foods and indulging in wrong habits. "To be healthy," said Mr. McKenna, "you should avoid taking such things as aspirins, and vitamin pills. Freak diets should also be avoided, and vitamins in wholesome foods, cooked in such a way that their nutritional value was retained, was recommended."

SPEAKERS JUDGED

Eric Lang, of the Kingston club, said that he had joined the club for purely selfish reasons. He said that in Toastmasters, one learned to express oneself clearly and to think and give constructive criticism.

A judging committee rises to give back to the club what they felt he gets from the association with the group.

Evaluators Ken Lawson, (Trenton), John Gayton (Kingston), Tom Minogian (Trenton) and Neil Milner (Kingston), advised the speakers to use their hands for more expression, to make use of strong quotations and famous authorities; to change the vocal level for more effective speaking and to make "eye contact" with the audience.

The grammarians report was given by Fred Holmes of Kingston, and parliamentarian Jim Rombough pointed out errors in procedure committed in the business portion of the meeting.

Damage Slight In Drying Room Of Big Plant

TRENTON — Around 3.30 a.m. on Tuesday, the Trenton fire department was called to the Hinde and Dauch plant in east-Trenton, where fire had broken out in the drying room. By the time the fire department arrived, plant workers had the fire under control. The flash fire bridged the plant sprinkling system. A plant official said that damage to the machinery had been slight.

AWARD PRESENTED

Recently, Group Captain C. R. Thompson, Commanding Officer at No. 6 Repair Depot, presented the annual award for the highest participation in the Canada Savings Bond Drive to Cpl. H. C. Roy and LAC M.P. Therien, representing the Mobile Support Equipment section of the depot. The section which is commanded by Flt. Lt. A. R. Heich, chalked up a 76.2 per cent sales record.

All personnel buying bonds had their names placed in a box and at the end of the drive, Group Captain Thompson drew the lucky ticket. . . . winner: WO2 G. C. Clarke, 8 RD detachment at Mountain. Pte. F.J.-W. B. Calver was chairman of the bond drive.

BAD OWN GAME

In 1955, RCAF personnel stationed at Trenton learned that since they couldn't see the Grey Cup game, they would have to make up their own. That year, the Big Game was played at RCAF 1 Air Division, Metz, France, on Nov. 18, before a crowd of 5,000 cheering Airforce and Army personnel. Some travelled more than 200 miles to see the game and attend the dance that followed. Reigning over the day's activity was Miss Grey Cup Europe, LAW Clare Bell of Metz-sur-Aita.

The captain of the "western" team was F/L Paul Manson of Deep River, Ont., and of the "eastern" (and victorious) team was Cpl. Bob Woodward of Ottawa. The final score was Bad, 32; West, 12.

Ray Dignum, Fred Holmes, Henry Sundaleer, and Eric Lang were introduced to the Trenton members Mr. Holmes is the lieutenant-governor Area 1, District 61, of Toastmasters' International.

Leo Seguin presented membership pins to Con Palm and Gene Frederickson of Belleville.

The meeting was conducted by president Jerry Bennett and the thought for the week was provided by Peter Dale.

Careless Driving Charge Laid, Case Remanded

TRENTON — In magistrate's court in Trenton yesterday, Councillor N. J. McNair, who at 82 may well be Canada's oldest councillor, pleaded not guilty to a charge of careless driving on the night of Nov. 1. While enlarged the case for two weeks, the accused did not have witnesses at the hearing.

Russell Ramsay of Trenton charged with being the owner of a malicious dog, said that he was in possession of a dog, but that it was not vicious". His formal plea was "not guilty". The case was adjourned until Friday.

An out-of-town case, 39 years old, charged with assault, involving a teen-aged district girl, was remanded in custody, one week for mental examination.

Sidney Van Meer, of Wall Street in Trenton, pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving 65 miles an hour in a 30-mile an hour zone in the village of Frankford.

Mr. Van Meer was represented by K. Bruce Reynolds of Picton, and the prosecuting attorney was P. L. Vet on the part of Picton.

William Reynolds a municipal police officer at Frankford and Mr. Van Meer both followed a truck driven by Van Meer through a radar trap that according to the speedometer of his (Reynold's) car, the truck was travelling at 80 miles an hour in the 30-mile zone.

Mr. Van Meer said that he had decreased his speed to the 30-mile an hour limit, while driving in the restricted zone.

Both called in support to testify as to the reliability of the speedometer in the two vehicles involved.

Mr. Reynolds said that he was initially forced the Van Meer truck to a stop to issue his own car across a bridge in the village.

Magistrate Wilkie found Van Meer guilty as charged and imposed a fine of $30 and $27.40 costs, payable in one week.

James Duncan To Seek Seat

TRENTON — James Duncan, works manager at Central Bridge Company at Trenton, said today that he would again be Trenton council this year.

Mr. Duncan has been a Trenton resident for 40 years. He has served as the president of the Community Concert Association and a year as vice president of the Trenton branch of the Canadian Corps Reserve and the Trenton Country Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan have one son, attending high school.

The First Snow

Monday was a miserable day.

It brought the first snow of the approaching winter, yet it was not a winter day.

It brought the temptation to declare that there is no day in the whole year as worthless as the day the first snow falls.

But that is not true. That is the reaction of age. When one is young, one welcomes changes, the changes of the seasons no less than others.

Surely even the oldest of us can dimly remember the glad cries with which we once greeted a world buried beneath a soft white blanket. Our thoughts were not of snow shovelling and wet feet, but of snowball fights and tobogganing, of crisp, sunny days and bright moonlight, of burning the pedals of snowdrifts into diamonds of dancing dazzle.

If the truth be told, though, the first snows we remember with fondness did not come like that of Monday, slowly, dampily, almost reluctantly, out of a dull grey sky. Instead they stole over the countryside during the night and lay waiting to greet us at sunrising with the sight of a thick, pure-white frosting, under a bright blue sky, first glimpsed on arising after some sixth sense had drawn us hurrying to the window. Even lying in bed, one could sense that something had changed. Was it the sudden silence, every sound now muffled, or perhaps sunbeams reflected off the laden branches of nearby cedars onto the bedroom ceiling — or was it only the sudden chilly bite to the breeze that was whipping in the window and searching out all the little places which alone emerged from the humps of bedding?

No matter—those snows which made us rejoice were different. But even the old folk will admit that there is something to be said for the first snow of winter when compared with the last. One wonders whether it will stay, knowing that if it does the winter will be long and wearying, while if it does not the sloppy ordeal that waits one throughout the day ahead will have to be faced again, and perhaps again and again and again, before the winter truly sets in.

One's mind goes wandering around outdoors, making the circuit of the house, trying to remember whether all the fall chores have been completed—the leaves raked and disposed of, the perennials safely bedded down under mounds of leaves or earth. But all this is almost as nothing to the misgivings which rush to greet us on the winter's last snow. Will it stay long? How about the plants and flowers already above ground, betrayed by the warmth of the mid-day sun this past week or so? Will the winter rubbers still keep out the water—does one's wife's little damp at the toes the last few days they were worn? Is this really the last snow, or are there other ordeals to be faced?

Once there have been so many winters that their coming and going is tangled in an inextricable confusion of memory, once we cannot remember how snow came last year, the only thing that makes the first snow of this winter bearable is the mental picture of all the accumulated last snows of other years.

One wonders, though, what to hope—whether for this snow to stay and spare us a repetition of this sloppy ordeal or whether for it to go in the hope that the repetition may be long, even up to the day before Christmas. That is the day for snow to arrive, the only day on which the first snow is really welcomed by old as well as young. Either then or much, much earlier, in the first part of October, when we can tell ourselves that there is sure to be not usher in winter but is only the preparation for those glorious days of Indian summer.

But snow on Nov. 20—who needs it more than a month before Christmas and who is still so foolishly optimistic as to believe that, at this late date, Indian summer has not long since come and gone, without any introductory snowfall!

We've mastered the air a little with clothing and heating. We don't melt in the Sahara Desert and we don't turn to eternal ice at the Arctic Pole. But still from one minute to the next air is dictating our life; because our life, after all, is the way we feel, and it's a pathetic truth that our moods are more responsive to the vagaries of the air than any barometer.—Ted Hughes, the seat.

It would be easy for each side to produce 500 airplanes and burn them in a public bonfire. That, as I understand the Russian attitude, could be inspected. But how is one to know that 500 replacements are not coming off the supply lines the next day?—Earl of Home, British foreign secretary.

Not All Wish to Be Young

Montreal Gazette.

It is a mistake to believe that those who grow old must all wish they were young again. It may not be so. For with the passing of the years new satisfactions grow, and the life of years of youth may appear quite thin and foolish.

The novelist, Sheila Kaye-Smith, writes of her feeling in "All the Books of My Life." For her there was no nostalgia in the contemplation of the past. It is true that she said what everyone would call a happy childhood. Hers was a comfortable home, with kind parents and many friends.

"But I would never want to be a child again—ignorant and dependent," she writes. "Nor would I live forever, the aches and pains and sufferings of my early years simply for the sake of their brief ecstasies. Even my first literary successes—thrilling as they were to me—bear no comparison—had about them that same foolishness."

"As a child I was less happy than I am now, and sometimes as a young woman less happy than when middle age, which to my youth had seemed the end, revealed itself instead as a beginning."

* * *

There is a radiance to the early years that banishes many anxieties and torments also. In after years something of radiance may be recaptured with greater peace. Young people feel experiences and enjoy their anxities because they believe that no evil that befalls them can be permanent. Even when are older have had time to learn that there is a come and go in life, many have a dread of the stately and inevitable rhythm of the seasons.

But the deepening satisfaction of the years is not simply negative. Actually it is far more than the softening of pain through acceptance. It is, rather, that life for life grows richer.

* * *

Very like the words of Sheila Kaye-Smith are those of England's playwright, Enid Bagnold. She was at a loss to say when she suddenly became aware that the young people were envious with quiet respect—a respect that was almost reverential, that realized that she had moved into the older generation. The mysterious respect being offered to her was as it were, the "forerunner of the peerage." She should be "Dame Enid" by the grace of the House of Lords of Age.

If the revelation was a little disconcerting, the compensations were realized too. As Enid Bagnold wrote:

"When the invading habits and the cobweb anxieties lose their importance, there is a recish returns (as at 16, before the world) to the quality experiencey, free from envy, without haste, without plans, a delightful taste of the very moment as it passes."

* * *

Not everyone who grows older enters into this experience of deepening satisfaction. The years may seem only as thieves and robbers, stealing all that is worth having.

Theirs is the bitterness of the unquiet mind. Yet those who have the passing of years as but as a natural progression, may find themselves entering into a happiness quite unexpected.

The New England preacher, Wilbur Fisk Tillett, writing, felt that the later years were his happiest. As child, when near his life's end, he wrote:

"I ought to say, that I find life a gift of rich and rare value. I have not found it a cup foaming and sparkling on top, and growing vapid at the bottom. In truth, I dislike altogether this old-fashioned simile.

"Life is not a little cup dipped from the stream of time. It is itself a stream; and though at its birth it may dance and send forth cheerful murmurs as it does not afterwards still it is intended to flow, as it advances, through more beautiful regions, and to fulness of power, and to richer volume and more abundant harvests.

"The not say that this old is fruitless. I do believe there are multitudes who have not found their best youth as happy as later years."

* * *

Were this not the experience of multitudes, life could be only the closing in at a relentless circle. Yet it is not so.

A century after these words were written by Channing in Boston, Dr. W. R. Inge, the former Dean of St. Paul's, was summing up the experience of his life in his little book "Vale."

He asked and answered the question: "What should I feel, in entering upon the last lap of my race?

"I think, as we grow old, we realize more and more the truth, in Wordsworth's words in a letter to a friend, 'Death does not count.'"

Pallbearers Get Relief

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Clothes pegs, which used to be made of wood, can now be bought in the plastic version, with a choice of colors. A good many items which used to be packaged in boxes of fibrical cans, now appear in plastic form. Even milk bottles would once have been cut from bone, are now molded from plastic.

The plastic invasion of traditional merchandise fields is approaching the point where, to read in a Toronto newspaper that before the end of 1961 plastic coffins will be on the market. When it is lined with a satin finish, the developers are quoted as saying, it will look like a conventional oak or mahogany coffin.

Pallbearers are the people who may be most inclined to welcome the plastic coffin, because the most notable difference will be in weight. A conventional coffin, 6 inches by 28 inches by 84 inches, weight up to 350 pounds. The plastic coffin will weigh about 45 pounds. The saving in weight is expected also to be a boon to elderly or infirm pallbearers who have a hearse at no cost. Shipping charges on crated caskets are an element in the cost which Wooden or bronze caskets are shipped in wooden crates, the light-weight plastic ones will be shipped in corrugated cardboard containers, thus a double reduction in shipping weight.

The Toronto firm which is developing the plastic casket is not the first to do something about weight and shipping difficulties. Lightweight fibreglass caskets have been made for some years in the United States and a few have been imported to Canada, but the demand for fibreglass, is relatively high.

Mahogany caskets sell in the price range of $700 to $1,000. Imported fibreglass caskets cost $240 landed in Canada, with shipping and in Canadian and trade markups to be added on that figure. One U.S. manufacturers of the new plastic casket say that the price to the funeral director will be about $120, a figure which is not much less than that of the metal-plated wood casket. The plastic caskets may have some influence in the cremation boom of a simple funeral, but they are likely to be promoted on grounds of weight saving, rather than money saving.

All we need now is plastic crib for infants, to have complete cradle-to-grave plasticity for the Plastic Age.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

DENOMINATIONS

Are denominations helpful? They have their advantage, the chief disadvantage being that they are somewhat divisive. Most people speak of the two hundred denominations. As a matter of fact, there are only forty denominations which have any considerable membership. It cannot be denied that if all these Christians were gathered together into one body, a great effectiveness would be accomplished. But there would also be serious problems, and division, we can be sure, would still continue.

Each denomination emphasizes some special aspect of Christian truth. The idea of God as revealed to us in the Bible is so big that He can hardly hope to do is to regard these different aspects from different points of view. Each denomination emphasizes some great religious truth. This does not mean that its members believe only that truth and the members of other denominations don't believe them. There is almost complete unity of belief among the denominations as regards basic Christian doctrine. They differ on theological details, on emphases, on forms of government, on the manner and time of performing ordinances.

We shall be most unwise if we plunge without thinking into some scheme for church union, the implications of which have not been carefully thought out. The United States would not be a better country if we erased the state lines. The cause of Christ will not be furthered simply by wiping out the denominational lines. The denominations still have a helpful part to play in the life of faith.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 22nd, 1941.

Evidence that the navigation season in the Bay of Quinte is about concluded for another year, is the announcement from the steamer that both the Glen Allen and the molasses barges, which regularly make trips up the bay, are now on their last trips of the year.

On Friday the Glen Allen left for Montreal loaded with cheese on its last trip of the season, while this morning the molasses barges proceeded down the bay and doubt was expressed that there would be time for another trip before the bay became shashed in ice.

An estimated $1,300 worth of goods were stolen from the Belleville home of F. N. Marett and Company at Marmora, sometime during Monday night when robbers jimmied the front door of the premises and made their getaway without leaving trace of their identity. Ladies silk stockings, men's wear and cigarettes were the major items of merchandise taken from the store.

Under the auspices of Minerva Chapter, No. 138, O.E.S., the Comedy Theatre players of Toronto, presented "Cold Storage" in the Collegiate Auditorium to a large audience of Belleville and district citizens. The play was given to augment the funds for the Chapter's extensive benevolent work, and the results were very satisfactory. The officers and members of the chapter, of which Mrs. Reginald Bolton is Worthy Matron, Mr. Richard Sargent is Worthy Patron, expressed grateful appreciation to all those in the community who gave such generous support to the project, and assisted its success in any way.

Plenty of Exercise Burns Up Unwanted Calories

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What are your views on 'spot reducing'? There is so much said about reducing with exercises, but I have never met anyone who showed proof of losing weight that way.

"I recently had a checkup and am in good health, but my muscles and legs are too flabby. —Miss A.K."

It depends on what you mean by "spot reducing". Some people think the term means reducing quite a lot of pounds all of a sudden, like "Presto, chango, abracadabra, diet!" Which is erroneous, of course.

Others take the term to mean that you reduce in one part of the body and not the rest. This also is erroneous. But that's what I think you mean.

Speaking medically, the shape of the human body depends on over - walking importance. Maybe it is important in fashion, but not in health.

Yogi Berra, star baseball player, is a famous example, and Frank Gifford of football fame is another. Both athletes, but he happens to be a baseball player with the looks of a film actor, Walter Dukes and Bob Pettit are seven-foot basketball stars as well. But all of them are healthy individuals.

Exercise — meaning sheer physical work — will help to burn some calories; however, it takes many, many calories from any particular portion.

So, therefore some fancy exercise isn't going to reduce that part of the body and leave all the rest the same.

Certain, definite materials fat deposits: Abdomen, breasts, hips, thighs, fingers and toes. A gallon of exercise fat will be lost in these areas gradually, but not in any one alone — much as we might like this to happen.

There is so much about reducing," I don't think it will work. I don't think we can change our physical configuration crosswise any more than we can make ourselves shorter or taller by exercise.

But we can do three things: We can keep our weight normal. We can improve our posture. We can get enough exercise to keep our muscles and other tissues healthy toned up.

But we can't decide that we want to 'reduce' in one spot and then or elsewhere be are all over the rest of us.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I was troubled with soreness in my legs and my doctor prescribed calcium capsules which helped. I noticed that the day after taking the quinine my hearing was affected. Could that happen? —J.C."

Yes, in some people who are sensitive to quinine hearing may be temporarily dulled, or there may be ringing in the ears. The trouble is not serious. The medicine is discontinued. Quinine is rarely prescribed in very good for leg spasms. My answer to you is wrong about any permanent harm. Tell your doctor about the ear trouble — there's a good chance that he will prescribe another drug which will help the legs and not bother the ears.

Aside to K.B.: I suspect that the Kidney Foundation in Toronto and elsewhere are one of the great strides forward in medical science, but it's only the beginning of a vast new field of study. Don't ask me what we don't know. The first automobile was crude, but it moved. Same with rockets and cars.

Strictly Personal

Mourning Color Varies With Country

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Although it was a lovely warm fall day, I wore a dark and heavy suit to a funeral the other morning, and Henrietta Bergen, where I was going "looking so underdressed."

We in the West so naturally associate mourning with black that it never occurs to us to question the universality of the custom. Yet, only a minority among the world's nations have ever adopted the color as a symbol of mourning for the dead.

Only in Europe and America, following Greece and the Roman Empire, is black the funeral shade. In Persia, for instance, it is pale brown — the color of withered leaves. In Ethiopia it is grayish brown, the color of the earth, to which the dead return.

The mourning of the South Sea Islanders is, most imaginatively, black and white striped, to express the combination of fear and hope — an extremely sensible and civilized notion.

In Syria, Armenia and Armenia, it is sky-blue, to express the sacred hope that the departed has gone to heaven; while deep blue is the color of mourning in Persia. In Egypt, Japan in the Republic also wore dark blue.

In Turkey, at least until the modern dispensation, the color has been yellow; in parts of Egypt and Burma. In Britanny, widows' caps among the peasantry are purple; in Siam they wore yellow mourning for a period of 5 days. King Edward VIII, however, decided to wear white for Anne Boleyn.

As the symbolism of "white-handed hope," the color white has been for thousands of years the mourning color of China; and was so in Spain until the fifteenth century. The Aztec kings of ancient Rome and Sparta wore white for mourning. In Russia, land until the nineteenth century it was customary to wear white mourning because the unexpected dead — a testimony to (presumed) virginity, I suppose.

Modern funeral customs in the West seem barbarous to the new generation, and I am inclined to agree with their view. The last chance of tragedy is removed, and of gruesome vulgarity that I think is opposed to any true religious feelings.

In his fascinating book, "It's Against Death" (which I do not recommend to the general reader), Norman Brown suggests that cooling to terms with the fact of death is the only way to rid ourselves of basic anxiety. A great deal of mourning is not so much for those who are dead as an expression of sorrow for our own looming and inevitable expiration.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of my prosperous friends claims to understand and appreciate modern painting and non-representational art. He goes to all the exhibitions, reads the art columns, buys the slick magazines full of reproductions of bizarre arrangements of color, and to top it all, buys quite a number of the paintings and curious geometrical forms offered by the practitioners.

"The only trouble is," he says, "you have to keep disposing of the former ones to make way for the new ones, and your appreciation and understanding keeps on increasing, and the contract is not worth a much as a fresh one. In fact, it is sometimes hard to get rid of one you've had two years. It's sort of like the need for a new market."

I suggested that perhaps these contemporary works were not so much art as merchandise.

"Well not exactly," he figured. "They are, you might say, performances. Many of these contemporary painters and sculptors are performers rather than artists. They are, you actually do the performing arts."

Not a bad rationalization.

Bright Side

Kincardine News

The majority of retailers in Ontario have now had their first taste of registration and remission of the provincial sales tax. And, the majority say, it has not been pleasant.

If there is a bright side to the picture, it is that there is going to develop a host of competent bookkeepers, a condition which in many quarters has been sadly missing.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE BOOK OF MEN AND WOMEN

Everything we see leaves its impression on our minds. And most of what we see creeps into our minds and lies down there unknown to us. That is, the unconscious mind is never caught napping.

I have read books and "between the lines" I have often seen, or rather read with my mind's eye, things that the authors omitted though with subtle art included.

That is not other all the things we think. Two people in silence may listen intelligently to understanding that needs no words.

Men and women are books. We read them from the life of the world. We see in every face something of the weakness or the strength of all struggle, aspiration, failure or success.

Of course some of these books of men and women are simpler and easier to read than others.

In any one alone — much as we might like this to happen.

Aside to K.B.: I suspect that the Kidney Foundation in Toronto and elsewhere are one of the great strides forward in medical science, but it's only the beginning of a vast new field of study. Don't ask me what we don't know. The first automobile was crude, but it moved. Same with rockets and cars.

Euromart Participation Absolute Necessity Says Sales and Ad Club Speaker

Program Aimed At Promoting Art of Speaking

A program aimed at promoting the art of public speaking has been initiated by the Lions Club of Belleville, which at its last meeting heard the first of a series of five-minute talks in a series which ultimately will see all members address the club.

The first member speaker in the talks series was given last week at the club meeting by Joe O'Neil who spoke on his work in retail credit reporting and of the abuses uncovered.

One example cited was that of a workman who could complain of a back ailment that before an extended lay-off with result that he might draw workman's compensation as well as health and accident benefits during the lay-off period. The talk proved most interesting and informative.

All club members will take part in the "talks" program. Not only will all members be called upon to prepare and give a five-minute talk but also during the series each member will also be called upon to both introduce and thank a speaker.

103 Paintings Are Selected For Exhibition

Kildare Dobbs, noted Toronto, writer and broadcaster, and chief editor of the Saskatchewan Company of Canada in Toronto, will open the 36th annual exhibition of the Canadian Society of Painters in Water Color on Friday evening at the Art Gallery of Toronto.

The exhibition will be on view to the public from November 26 to January 1.

This year the Society's jury selected 103 water colors from the 286 submitted. The paintings range from non-objective to more traditional styles and have come from Victoria, Vancouver, Edmonton, Regina, Belleville, Ottawa and Montreal.

Among the members of the Society whose work is represented are Jack Bush, Tom Bayerlick, Jack Bush, Tom Hodgson, Will Ogilvie and Goodridge Roberts.

On opening night, D. Mac-Kay Houstoun, president of the Society, and himself a noted Canadian painter, will present the C.S.P.W.C. annual honor award (value $100) to the artist whose painting has been judged best in the show by the jury.

24 Cases Listed To Be Heard At Sittings

A total of 24 cases are listed for trial at the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario scheduled to commence at the Hastings county courthouse next Monday afternoon, Nov. 27. The sessions will be held before Mr. Justice E. G. Moorhouse.

Six of the cases listed for trial are claims arising out actions of motor vehicle accidents. There are 11 divorce actions listed for action for assault and one for alimony.

"Participation in a common market is an absolute necessity for this country. We will be damned if we are not part of a substantial Common Market," Malcolm Robb, DFC, QC, told an overflowing audience of members and guests of the Sales and Advertising Club yesterday evening at the Columbus Hall.

Mr. Robb, a former Belleville barrister and a noted speaker, was speaking on the topic "Reality of the Common Market for Canadians".

Although Canada is basically a trading nation, foreign trade constituting some 27 per cent of the Canadian national income as compared to but five per cent of the United States' national income, he noted. Foreign trade supplies jobs for three out of every eight Canadians workers and when our trade slows then it is a complex national collapse of trade and employment," he suggested.

Mr. Robb then pointed out that shortly after the current government was elected "we were offered complete free trade with the United States with a market of fifty millions and they refused this offer."

"If the Common Market now presents itself, it behooves every Canadian, as it chooses, in effect and in substance, can have full access to the markets of the six countries," he said, adding "it seems to me especially since exporting is to be passed by and remain static."

The reason for this is that Canadians cannot compete, not even with the United Kingdom, which is not an efficient producer and which has raw materials and is burdened with heavy socialistic measures, much less with Germany, Holland, Belgium, France or Italy, the speaker declared.

He suggested that this was due to four factors that compound the high cost of living. Canada "is blessed with more natural resources per million than any country in the world." These are that our competitive industrialists Canadians are failures; that for 15 years there has been no cooperation of governments, which have been defeating the Canadian economy; that the same period of time has seen an "idiotic" wage and tariff policy in effect; and that Canada suffers from "chronic" bad government, he emphasized.

THE UP CARGOES

In support of the first factor, Mr. Robb said that "in spite though industry invested over $12,000,000 in new and improved plants and equipment the production increase per capita did not increase." Then he proved four successive rounds of wage increases and a series of price stoppages.

Lengthy strikes in Toronto, which tied up cargoes and lost business and trade offset the Canadian gain, will prevent the C.S.P.W.C. annual honor award (value $100) to the artist whose painting has been judged best in the show by the jury.

there were 115,908 civil servants with a payroll of $180,148,000. In 1960 there were almost three times as many civil servants but the cost of their payroll had increased over seven and a half times.

"Is it any wonder," he queried, "that industry finds it corporate tax of 50 per cent on profits even undistributed, while attempting to compete with English corporations taxed on such at not more than 15 per cent? And is it any wonder, that the price of the Canadian product is affected?"

The third factor which makes it impossible for Canada to compete in foreign trade is her trade and tariff policy which, Mr. Robb suggested, is used for little more than revenue purposes. Much land, Belgium, France or Italy, the speaker declared.

He suggested that this was due to four factors that compound the high cost of living. Canada "is blessed with more natural resources per million than any country in the world." These are that our competitive industrialists Canadians are failures; that for 15 years there has been no cooperation of governments, which have been defeating the Canadian economy; that the same period of time has seen an "idiotic" wage and tariff policy in effect; and that Canada suffers from "chronic" bad government, he emphasized.

Dr. Libby replied:

"To estimate how many may be saved by decisions means having to estimate what the attack is. I chose to estimate a particular kind of attack which was considered most probable. But one could make an attack with no fallout at all, which was the case in the Japanese bombings, or an attack where all casualties were due to fallout and there was no blast damage at all.

"All kinds of extremes can be imagined, between no casualties due to fallout, to all casualties due to fallout.

MATTER OF JUDGMENT

"It is a matter of judgment as to what the most probable attack would be. My personal belief is that it is well to have insurance against fallout because it is a great potential killer in case of nuclear war."

(Dr. Libby's series did state a 20-megaton bomb might cause second degree burns at distances up to 25 miles if persons were not protected, and one article dealt with the medical problem of firestorms.)

Mayor Van Alles next associating said: "We are not prophets of doom or gloom. We do not believe that Belleville will be a 'Red dr dead.'

"We do believe that, were such means exist to resolve the clash between communism and freedom. And these must be done to involve atomic war."

Signing the letter with Dr. Van Allen were Profs. Stanley Saltzman, Richard Carlson, Max Dresden, Scott Forbes, Carl McIlwain, Edwin Marbeck, and Fred Morelich.

Dr. Libby's articles are on hand. You Can Survive Atomic Attack, and were written for The Associated Press.

Former Premier Named to Board Of University

TORONTO (CP)—Leslie M. Frost, former premier of Ontario, was appointed Tuesday to a five-year term as member of the board of governors of the University of Toronto.

Announcing the appointment at a press conference, Premier Roberts said Mr. Frost "knows about as much about education in this province as anyone can think of."

"He has taken a great interest in the past in York University. Other appointments will be announced on the board, he will be able to assist York," he said.

York was set up less than two years ago as a second university in Metropolitan Toronto. For the next few years, it will receive support from the Ac. U. of T.

ited that the discussions were "most cordial."

There was no grounds what ever for suggestions of anything to the contrary."

Mr. Fleming in particular denied there had been any "reluctance" in the British refusal of Canada's request for a full copy of the speech by Edward Heath, Britain's chief privy seal, in opening talks at Paris Oct. 10 on Britain's application to join the Common Market.

He said the importance of this was perhaps exaggerated by "the number of questions about it at a press conference in London Monday.

There had been no "demand" by Canada for the text.

TRUSTS BRITAIN

He said there should be no suggestion that Canada is suspicious or mistrustful of what Britain is saying in its negotiations on Common Market membership.

The Canadian government was relying completely on the British government's assurances that it will do all in its power in the negotiations to seek protection for Commonwealth trade interests in Britain. He added however:

"I think it's going to be extremely difficult for the British to carry through their objectives."

He said that presumably there will be a commonwealth prime ministers' confer e'e before Britain makes its final decision.

Canadian College of Organists Established 52 Years Ago

◆ Editor's Note: As this is Music Week in Canada, The Ontario Intelligencer is publishing five articles written by city residents who are teachers or directors of music.

By S. ALEC GORDON
(Member Canadian College of Organists)

The Royal Canadian College of Organists celebrated the 50th anniversary of its founding two years ago at a large convention in Toronto. At that time, delegates from all the provinces of Canada and many visiting organists from the United States heard the announcement that Her Majesty, the Queen, had graciously granted the College the privilege of using the prefix "Royal" to its name.

This organization is composed of people who are interested in the organ as active performers, choir directors, listeners, and students who are interested in church music generally. The aims and objects of the College are (1) to hold examinations in organ playing, the theory and general knowledge of music, and to grant diplomas to members of the College who pass such examinations; (2) to encourage and promote a higher standard of organ playing, church music, and musical composition; (3) to afford opportunities annually for social intercourse and discussion of topics of musical interest.

Music, being non-denominational, was served all communities. The College works in close co-operation with the ministers of the churches (many of whom are also members) and if desires to strengthen this bond so that music, which is the handmaid of worship, may continue to enrich the life of the church. The Bay of Quinte Branch of the Royal Canadian College of Organists is a small one, but it does quite a service since it was organized a few years ago. It has sponsored many lovely festivals at which the public has enjoyed singing both old and less familiar hymns. At the present time, members of the local branch are being assisted by radio station CJBQ in a series of half-hour recitals every other Sunday afternoon.

Canadian and representatives of Canada's English-speaking majority.

Many intellectuals in Quebec have in separatism the extreme manifestation of the dissatisfaction which French provinces has felt for years over its relations with the federal authorities.

Quebec political parties appear agreed on the need for progress and change in federal - provincial relations.

They expect the trend among national political parties may be study to see what revised national policies can be for French - speaking Canadians to give them a better situation and greater participation in the life and activity of the country.

Fundamentally, the separatists' idea stems from the premise that French - Canadians are a nonconformist people, that Englishspeaking Canadians have kept them in a position of economic submission and that there is no hope for real progress except within a separate French Quebec state.

FIVE DIE IN FIRE

DARIEN CENTER, N.Y. (AP)—A family of five died Tuesday night in a fire that swept through their two-storey frame farm house on a rural highway. Dead were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Comstock, two other persons and two children they were rescued. The victims were John Amedick, 46; his wife, Margaret Mary, 45, and their children, Jo-anne, 7, and Patricia Ann, 5, and Jacqueline, 10 months.

Station Master Is Overcome At Bamockburn

Mr. Lloyd Blatherwick, 64, C.P.R. station master at the village of Bamockburn, was overcome by smoke and admitted to Belleville General Hospital late Monday evening following a fire in the bedroom of his home.

The fire, believed caused from an electric bed blanket, was confined to the bedroom of the station house in which Mr. and Mrs. Blatherwick lived. Mrs. Blatherwick was not affected by the smoke. The fire occurred about 10.30.

Mr. Blatherwick was taken to hospital by Bush's Ambulance from Tweed.

IER BIRTHDAY

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle was 71 today, but his birthday called for no celebration. De Gaulle's program, included a cabinet meeting, lunch with Premier Michel Debre and President Filbert Youlou of the Congo Republic, a news conference at the Comedie Francaise in honor of Youlou and dinner at a special hotel for Strasbourg, where de Gaulle will speak to the army Thursday.

Marathon Bridge Held by University WC

The opening party for the University Women's Club bridge marathon convened on Monday at L. Acton and Mrs. J. E. Pugh, who was held Monday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. A. S. Lewis, 29 Queen Street.

Despite the first heavy snowfall of the season, seven tables were in play. The high winners were Mrs. J. D. Rae, Mrs. P. T. Siebert; hidden score went to Mrs. Ruth Bellhouse.

Mrs. J. L. Acton announced that 20 couples would be playing in the marathon.

'New Home Economic Fields Opening' Topic at BPW Meet

The November meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club was held on Monday at the Belmont Club Rooms, with the president, Mrs. Norma Haig, presiding.

Speaker of the evening was Mrs. Dorothy MacKinnon, known professionally as Dorothy Bachtler, home economist of the Poultry Products Institute of Canada. Mrs. MacKinnon was introduced to the meeting by Mrs. Enid Richards.

The speaker outlined for her listeners the many new fields which were opening up for young women who specialize in home economics, which were indeed offering many more opportunities than in the past when the field was confined mainly to teaching and dietetics.

Citing her own case as an example, she presented an interesting picture of her activities as home economist with the Poultry Institute, which included the testing of recipes and publishing and encouraging wider use of all types of poultry products.

The duty of the small farmers' flocks appear to be over with poultry farming entering the class of big industry. The products are marketed co-operatively, and the formation of the Institute has been largely due to this development.

In modern supermarkets, Mrs. MacKinnon said, there are approximately 5-10,000 separate items on the shelves, so that an attractive package has become important in the sale of a product, and in the case of poultry, the partly drawn chicken complete with head and feet, has become a thing of the past.

She further explained the process of egg-grading where by the consumer is actually paying the price per pound for of food purchased, rather than by the dozen or half dozen, with larger grade A eggs representing a heavier weight than the medium or small grades.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. MacKinnon closed with her listeners a number of amusing experiences she had encountered in her years of travel in her position, and at the conclusion of her talk graciously answered questions from her audience. Club appreciation was expressed by Mrs. Annie Arnott.

During the business session which preceded the speaker, Mrs. Doroth Brown presented her report as a member of the committee sent from the club to meet with representatives of the University Women's Club with the purpose of submitting names of capable women who were willing to have their names suggested as nominations to standing boards, and elective positions. A good deal had been accomplished and names will be submitted for the consideration of council, and two women had consented to stand for election to the two school boards. Members were asked to assist in a telephone campaign to help if necessary.

NEW MEMBERS INTRODUCED

Two new members were introduced to the club and installed by membership chairman, Hilda Collier, being Miss Dorothy Grant, of the Credit Bureau of Belleville, and Mrs. Kay Shannon, a former Pembroke resident, now credit manageress of the Georgia Shop.

Prior to their being installed, the Club was surprised to be visited by a member of the International Federation, one "Charlotte". However, it was July, Idaho, who claimed to be a sister of Charlie Weaver, well known television personality.

Miss Weaver, in rather outlandish dress, brought greetings from the B P Club in Mount Idy, and a letter of greeting from her "Mama" which she graciously shared with the club before departing rather hurriedly in the direction of the C.N.R. freight yards. She indicated there is a possibility she may return for the conference in May.

CHRISTMAS PARTY PLANS

Plans were finalized for the Christmas party and the December meeting will be held on December 11th, so that as many members as possible may join in the festivities.

A collection was taken up to provide the traditional Christmas basket which Mrs. Dorothy Ellis faithfully conducted to look after for another year.

Mrs. R. Griffith Heads Avondale Neighbors' Aid

The hostess for the November meeting of Avondale Neighbor's Aid was Mrs. E. Bush, who welcomed 21 members, three children and one guest into her home.

The president, Mrs. E. Hall welcomed everyone and opened the meeting with prayer. The program committee, Mrs. C. Holmes and Mrs. Jones, presented a devotional which they had prepared.

A slate of officers for the new year was presented by the nominating committee, Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. Auger. Mrs. M. McLean installed the new officers, the president for 1962 is Mrs. R. Griffith.

The lunch committee, Mrs. Frank Reid, Mrs. P. Burgess and Mrs. E. Bush, served a delicious assortment of doughnuts and coffee.

Miss A. Speers Only Woman On Productivity Council

WINNIPEG (CP) — As the only woman on the National Productivity Council, Anne Speers of Winnipeg brings wide experience in business and public life as well as an innate curiosity to her job.

The 25-member council represents industry, labor, farm and professional interests and government. Its purpose is to look for ways to improve the competitive position of Canadian products on both domestic and foreign markets.

Miss Speers has no particular interest in simply representing the women's point of view in the council's deliberations. Her background has equipped her for more than that narrow approach.

During the Second World War she spent several months in Washington as a liaison officer between Canada's food administration and the United States. She was also director of food requirements in Canada during the rationing years.

She was director of food requirements in Canada during the rationing years.

STUDIED IN LONDON

Miss Speers won her master's degree in economics and consumption at the University of London, and continued her studies at the highly respected London School of Economics.

Her first job as out-patient nutritionist at Children's Hospital in Winnipeg in the 1930s, brought her into contact with the problems of the poor.

"It was pioneering welfare work," she recalls, but it gave her an understanding of why purchases are made in a poor home.

During this time she also worked with Dr. Harry Medroy to establish a diabetic clinic for children.

Miss Speers later became supervisor of homemaking for the department of education, concentrating on organization and supervision of youth training programs throughout rural Manitoba.

She then spent a short time with the department of public welfare, was director of Wartime Prices Board as a consultant to foods administration and was supervisor of food requirements.

HEADS FAMILY FIRM

She was a consultant on family economics for the department of agricultural health and welfare when the family allowance system was set up, but found this frustrating because, she said, the pattern of spending the allowance was not followed up.

They backed down for political reasons, but it was never given us a tremendous insight into the spending patterns of families."

Miss Speers also runs the family firm of Sir John Conscription Level loggery of the United States, United Kingdom and Canada.

She is president of R. James Speers Corporation Limited in Winnipeg, a livestock dealer firm founded by her father.

Miss Speers is president of the Canadian Girls in Training, Scouted Children and Adults, and vice-president of the society's Canadian branch serves on the boards of the Victorian Order of Nurses, the Red Cross, Greater Winnipeg Welfare Council, and holds membership in the Canadian Institute of International Affairs and the University Women's Club.

RUSSIANS ARRIVE

MONTREAL (CP)—Two Russian university students arrived in Montreal Tuesday to attend a McGill University conference on world affairs. The two, Boris Pankin and Alexander Tobochnikov, both 20, had been selected by the union of the student council of Sir George Williams and Loyola to attend Russian students to attend that university's world affairs conference last month.

STUDIES PRODUCIVITY

Anne Speers of Winnipeg, president of a livestock dealers' firm founded by her father, is the only woman on the 25-member national productivity council. The council's aim is to study ways of improving sales of Canadian products on domestic and foreign markets. Women's Institute

QUINTE W.I.

AND THURLOW—The November meeting of Quinte W.I. was held at the W.I. Hall on last Tuesday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. Bennett, the first vice-president, Mrs. Charles Woods was in charge. She welcomed everyone and read Mrs. E. Avery, acting secretary for Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, read the minutes and correspondence.

A most interesting letter was from Gwyn Davis, who was a escort which told of the many places which they have visited in Ontario. A letter was also received from Mr. Sidney MacDonald, agriculture representative which expressed thanks for the wonderful co-operation and help of the W.I. during the plowing match. Mrs. Woods also expressed sincere thanks to the ladies who had helped at this time.

It was moved that a remuneration be given to Mr. and Mrs. Vivian and Mrs. D. Atkins for the delivery and processing of meat and other help given, but this was declined. Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, and Mrs. J. Garbutt will prepare for the Remembrance prayer. Mrs. Redmerville and Tyendinaga W.I.'s are to be invited to this meeting.

Delegates for the convention were: Mrs. Butterill and Mrs. Ken Marian. Various other items were discussed. A card of sympathy will be sent to Mrs. Farnsworth in the death of her daughter.

Mrs. Cook and Mrs. S. Fitzgerald were in charge of the program. A paper on F.W.I.C. concerning Agriculture at time was given by Mrs. Fitzgerald. The motto, "It won't help your crops to sit on the fence and count your neighbor's weeds", was given by Mrs. Cook. The prize was given to the one whose birthday was closest to the date of the meeting, which was won by Mrs. Lenny.

Mrs. Woods extended thanks to the conveners and to those who baked for the meeting, which lunch was served and a social time was enjoyed.

County Home LA Holds Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Hastings County Home for the Aged was held Monday at the Home. Mrs. McLean, president, presided, opened with prayer and welcomed the 15 ladies, including one new member.

Mrs. W. Kempston, treasurer, gave her report and mentioned the continued popularity of the travelling tray.

Mrs. Day, corresponding secretary, had sent 17 birthday cards for this month, also notices of the meeting. Mrs. E. Hay, visiting convener, reported on visiting calls to the Home since last meeting.

Plans were discussed for the New Year's party for the residents.

Four members invited seven residents for the birthday party in the dining room. Mrs. Prentice was pianist for singing the birthday song and other well-known selections. Mrs. Warren sang, "It's My Talk," enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Buchanan, oldest guest, cut the birthday cake. Miss Latham and Mrs. R. Wallbridge assisted while the ladies served sandwiches and cookies.

The Auxiliary needs new members for the coming year. Anyone should feel well rewarded for their time and effort spent with the residents at the Home.

Women Will Hold Class in Management

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's first management training course aimed solely at women is to be held here early next year.

It was announced Tuesday that 60 women executives and supervisors from across Ontario will attend the two-part course, Arts of Management, sponsored by Toronto branch of the Professional Women's Club.

A similar session will begin Feb. 11 and another session will be held March 16 to 18.

Designed to develop women's potential to tackle policy-making jobs, the course will stress management "arts" such as the ability to handle responsibility, make quick decisions, use experts, organize, delegate authority and supervise.

Main emphasis of study will be management organization, corporate structure, planning, marketing, human relations, communication and formulation of policy.

The conference will include lectures by prominent business industry and labor leaders. Group seminars and classroom discussions will be held.

Conference chairman is Margaret P. Hyndman, past president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Charles Grass, Mrs. C. Reid, Mrs. D. Leeming and Mrs. A. Dench.

Mrs. Tucker, the district president will give a talk on her recent trip to Vancouver, at the December meeting.

The meeting closed after which lunch was served and a social time was enjoyed.

Lois Marshall Delights Capacity BCI Audience

By EUGENE LANG

Since her appearance here seven years ago, Lois Marshall, renowned Canadian soprano, has gained in international stature and one of today's great vocalists. Ever since winning the Naumburg Award and her New York debut in 1952 she has consistently won plaudits from both critics and audiences wherever she has performed. Such conclusions as Arthur Tolchard and Eric Sinclair have often been hailed her as one of the finest singers to have appeared with them and her recent tours of Russia and Australia brought sold-out houses at every appearance. Whether she sings with orchestra, at leading festivals, on television or as she has recently appeared in opera, the result is always the same as to her popularity and proficiency. Not one of today's finest sopranos.

Last evening Miss Marshall appeared in a capacity community Concert audience at the B.C.I. with a program of selections that demonstrated every facet of her beautiful voice, be it in operatic arias or colorful songs expressions demanded by the poems chosen.

In the opening group of songs from the pages of English and Canadian composers, Henry Purcell, the voice of Miss Marshall showed digitally and warmth combined with a lucid clarity in her sensitive singing of "Nine ditties" based upon Shakespearean texts.

The eight songs from the realm of German Lieder proved to be the high point of the recital noteworthy for carefully chosen vocal fare throughout. In these songs from the pens of Schuman, Brahms and Richard Strauss Miss Marshall displayed an intensity of expression and eloquence of approach that glorified each with server, facility and finesse. From dramatic lieder Brahms' "Botschaft" through the lilting "Wiegenlied" and Schumann's "Widmung" and the fluent delineation of Strauss' "Staendchen" Miss Marshall heaped nothing but rich praise upon her interpretation as one of the finest Lieder singers of this generation. Thunderous applause and insistences for many decades but none more than when sung by Lois Marshall.

Two excerpts from the operas of Handel served as the finale. Listeners that this artist is also comfortably enhanced in these in the field of opera. Both selections were realized with a consistency of excellence that exhibited a voice with rare qualities that embraced both itself and the numbers that it sang.

A group of five American and English vocal numbers compulsively conceived, whether their color or their tender lyricism as in "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" or humorous as in Thomas Arne's Waltz from Puccini's "La Boheme".

The accompanist of the recital, Mr. Weldon Kilburn, covered the keyboard into background stylings that demanded nothing from the soloist's vocal grandeur and added immeasurably to nearly every number. Following intermission Mr. Kilburn played the suite set of thirteen delightful romantic cameos that make up Schumann's "Kinderszenen" (Scenes from Childhood). In some of these he excelled and in others he was only acceptable because of pedal blurrings and rumblings.

And so, Lois Marshall has now conquered Belleville audiences twice with her vocal magic that continues to thrill thousands wherever and when ever she appears. It is to be hoped that she will come back to Belleville again — she will always be welcome.

A.N.A.F. Ladies' Aux. Plans Events

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Army Navy and Airforce Veterans in Canada held its monthly meeting Monday evening in the auditorium of 301 Front St. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Ann Perry, with two minutes silence for fallen comrades. The roll call showed a good attendance.

Comrade Charlotte Clark, a life member of the Auxiliary, was presented with a corsage and a hearty song of "Happy Birthday" on her 87th year.

It was decided to hold the potluck supper on Friday at 6.30. The Christmas party after the meeting on the third Monday in December.

The evening drew and the sick collection brought adjournment.

A social hour was enjoyed by all.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Natalie H. — I think we should keep Leon out of school this year.

Philip H. — That's just what he wants. I say make him stick it out.

• • •

Natalie H.—We have a 7-year-old son who is in the second grade. He came through first grade with flying colors. He was one of the best readers in the class, and even read to the others when the teacher was occupied.

This year, however, he's a changed boy. We've been hearing such unbelievable things about him. The new teacher says that, although he's very bright, he can't read at all! She discovered he used to fake his reading. He simply remembered the words, didn't read them. And now that he isn't singled out, he's lost interest and spells.

At home he's fine. We have a 4-year-old daughter, and Leon is her devoted slave. Maybe we should keep him home and teach him ourselves.

• • •

Philip H. — My wife is simply playing into the child's hands. It's clear that he's trying to be kicked out of the class. He's smart enough to figure it out, because he saw it happen to a boy last year. The school decided one of the kids should be kept out for a year because he couldn't keep up. Leon has it all figured out. He won't even try to do the work, they'll ask him to leave, and then he can play home with his mother and the daddy.

Well, what good would come of that? He has to learn some time that things get tough and you can't quit. I was quite shocked as Natalie to find out that he can't even read, that he is held on his wits. But the answer is — let's teach him, and fast.

• • •

The Council: There's a three letter word that belongs on the tip of every parent's tongue, for it's the key word to understanding a child's behavior. The word is WHY. It follows immediately on the heels of WHAT. Mr. and Mrs. H. have succumbed WHAT Leon did. Let's move on to the WHY — and see where it leads.

Why would a bright child fake his reading?s Was it to shine unduly before teacher and class, mates? Then, why did he have such an inordinate need for distinction? Can it be that he'd been dethroned at home, was no longer a big shot now that a baby sister had arrived?

Continuing the WHY-line: Why does a 7-year-old resist wearing an undershirt? Has he been unduly cuddled? Does he feel threatened by his schoolmates, unable to hold his own?

Legion Branch LA Sponsors Social Evening

WELLINGTON — The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Legion held a social evening on November 17th in the Legion Hall. Their husbands and the Picton Auxiliary and husbands were their guests. A pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

Euchre was played and prizes were presented at the end of the games to: ladies — high, Mrs. Florence Howard of Picton; Mrs. Clarence Way won low on a tie with Mrs. L. Dodge; men's high went to Clarence Way and low to Mrs. Mead, who played on a man's ticket.

Lunch was then served by the ladies.

A lucky plate prize was won by Mrs. George Wright of Picton and the draw on a large box of groceries was won by Mrs. W. Mitchell, also of Picton.

During the evening, Mr. Hilton Reynolds, Wellington's fine old fiddler, gave several selections on his violin, accompanied at the piano by his sister, Mrs. W. Callow. The music was much enjoyed by all present.

The Experts Say

Cosmetic Consultant Tells How to Keep Your Skin Fresh

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Even in ordinarily humid climates, dry skin is a problem for many women as winter approaches.

Marjorie Kent, a Toronto cosmetic consultant, says the solution is fire-fold and relatively simple.

Most important, she says, the treatment should be carried out regularly and not just occasionally.

Cleanliness is the first essential. To achieve this, Miss Kent advises using damp absorbent cotton to wipe away liquid cleanser. Rinse the cotton with cold water, squeeze it until damp and then wipe gently.

Skin freshener should be applied the same way. The damp cotton not only keeps too much liquid from being carried on the cotton but also reduces waste through absorption in the cloth.

Miss Kent suggests using only small amounts of cream for lubrication as the skin will only absorb so much. Any more is wasted on pillows and sheets.

For stimulating, she suggests a non - drying, non - hardening mask applied about twice a week. Many women apply the mask immediately before taking a bath because the warmth opens pores and makes the treatment more effective.

Massage is suggested for erasing tiny tired lines from around the mouth and eyes.

Finally the application of a thin liquid before applying the final makeup will help keep the skin lubricated.

PROTECT ROSES

Prof. J. C. Taylor of the horticulture department at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, says now is the time to protect your roses against winter injury.

Start by drawing up the soil around the base of the bush to a height of several inches. Then, after the ground is frozen, add an additional covering of straw or leaves. On top of this, place some cedar brush, twigs or branches. To avoid invasion by mice, be sure the ground is frozen before adding these.

Prof. Taylor says the covering catches the snow which drifts in among the brush and protects against frost.

If you live in an area where winters are severe, try completely covering the bushes with soil, he says.

Climbing or rambling roses offer a problem. Tie the canes together and bend them as close to the ground as possible without damaging them. Then fasten to a stake and carefully cover with soil. If you can't do this, wrap the canes with straw and burlap and leave them attached to their support.

YPU Holds Interesting Panel Debate

FRANKFORD — Due to examinations at high school, attendance was down to about 30 at the regular meeting of the Frankford United Church YPU on Sunday evening in Rose Lowery Hall, but the meeting was one of the highlights of the season so far.

Eleanor Beach, in charge, arranged a great panel including a Christian Scientist, Roman Catholic, Jehovah's Witness, Communist and a Quaker. Lyle Williams Roy Patrick, Sandra Morrow, John Beach and Dean Kemp opened the discussion and after a lively session the meeting divided into two groups under the leadership of the Reverend H. M. Beach and the Reverend C. R. Judd, for more concentrated discussion.

What teenagers think about religion, evolution, fall-out shelters, faith healing and revelation kept the pot boiling rapidly until the chairman was obliged to call time.

Bonnie Rowe led in a sing-song with wonderful harmony. Eleanor Beach was at the piano.

Sandra Morrow introduced the guests and John Beach favored with a piano solo. The closing devotional by Eleanor Beach was from the "Sermon On the Mount" and ended with the Mizpah benediction.

NEIGHBORS' AID

2ND THUELON — The November meeting of the Neighbor's Aid was held on Wednesday afternoon with over 30 adults and children present with Mrs. S. Ray as hostess for the meeting.

The new president, Mrs. E. Jeffery presided and opened the meeting in the usual manner and extended thanks to the ladies for the meeting.

The new president, Mrs. E. Jeffery presided and opened the meeting in the usual manner and extended thanks to the hostess, also Sarah Stickney acted as pianist in the absence of Mrs. J. Mitchell. Minutes and correspondence were read by the secretary, Mrs. M. Dent, also Mrs. A. Mitchell reported on finances and a surprise which was held recently. Miss Sarah Stickney donated ten pounds of sugar and the tea bags to the Aid.

The December meeting is to be held on December 13th, with Mrs. A. Mitchell and Mrs. O. Sirston, in charge of the program, with Mrs. J. Chancellor as hostess. There will be an exchange of Christmas gifts with the price of each not to exceed 50 cents. Boxes are to be sent to shut-ins at Christmas. Mrs. Douglas Aikins reported in regards to covering for tables. The 20th Belleville Cub and Scout Mothers' Auxiliary will hold a euchre at the Hall on November 22nd.

Mrs. A. Greatrix arranged a fine program and opened with a reading, "Common Days". Mrs. M. Dent and Mrs. Donald Leeming demonstrated and explained the methods of preserving various kinds of flowers such as milkweed and chickory, and how these are painted which was most interesting. Two guitar selections were rendered by Margaret Chumley and a paper on "Christmas Changes Are Everywhere", was given by Mrs. Greatrix. A contest on scrambled words was conducted by Mrs. Gerald Stratton and another contest based on "Where Their Hats bands Spend Their Money", with several ladies taking part, with each to remember what the other had said. Mrs. Harry Thomson was the winner.

Mesdames H. Thomson, William Lazaruk, O. Stretton, J. Chumbley are to bake for the December meeting.

Lunch was served by Mesdames F. Mitchell, E. Jeffery, Gene Stretton and D. Aitkins.

Bride-to-Be Feted by Linen Shower

WELLINGTON — Mrs. William Gaestra and Mrs. Eugene Silder were co-hostesses at a linen shower held at the former's home on Saturday evening, in honor of Miss Joan Archard of Brantford, formerly of Wellington. Joan is to be married in the near future.

Twenty-two guests were present. Games and contests and the making of a bride's recipe book formed the evening's amusement.

Joan was later seated in a nicely decorated chair and Mrs. Silder voiced a few appropriate words on behalf of those present after which, Mrs. Gaestra read. Mrs. R. Bailey presented her with many lovely gifts of linen from her old Wellington friends. Joan expressed her sincere thanks to them all for their kindness.

A dainty lunch was then served by the hostesses.

Out-of-town guests were; Mrs. Roe Jeffery, Trenton; Mrs. H. J. McFarland Jr., of Picton; Mrs. Ronald Bailey, Belleville; Mrs. Percy Archard mother of the bride-to-be was guest of honor.

COOPER - REMINGTON W.I.

The November meeting of Cooper-Remington W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Holmes.

The program was in charge of the public relations committee. The convener, Mrs. Maurice Reynolds, gave the motto, "Three things come not back the spoken word; time past and the neglected opportunity." Current events were given by Mrs. William Canniff.

The guest speaker for the meeting was Mrs. Clarence Holmes of Belleville, who gave an excellent talk on "Public Relations" Although public relations is new in W.I., it is not altogether new as all have always tried to be good members of the W.I., of the church and of the community. Public relations can be practiced by businessmen, teachers, factory workers, farmers and housewives.

Mrs. Ken Rollins thanked Mrs. Holmes for coming and for the thoughts she had given.

The exhibit at this meeting was the largest potato. Some fine specimens were brought and measured by the president, Mrs. Georg. Graham.

Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a social time was enjoyed.

TABERNACLE UNITED WMS

The regular monthly meeting of Tabernacle United Church W.M.S. was held in the church parlor on the afternoon of November 14. The president, Mrs. F. Osland, opened the meeting with prayer.

It was decided that the Xmas World dinner will be one of the year's almost all active members present for group banquet in honor of the groups of W.M.S. at the end of the year. Some groups will be invited in from organization "United Church Women of Tabernacle United Church".

In December there will be a joint meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary and W.M.S. in the evening of December 14. The speaker will be Mrs. MacKinnon, of Picton.

Mrs. Davidson had charge of devotional. Scripture lesson was read from Romans 12 by Mrs. Davidson, who was a delegate back to Kentucky Conference for United Church Women stated that Keswick Conference emphasized "ascension" of members of church rededicating their lives to Christ's service.

Literature secretary, Mrs. Slavin, displayed some of the books on the book shelf and urged members to read the books. Several of the books contain information about World Conference of Church Third Assembly of World Council meets in New Delhi, India, from November 18 to December 6. The Assembly theme is "Jesus Christ — The Light of the World".

Mrs. McKinnon, spoke on "Christian Stewardship" thanked should be thought about more worthy.

The Church needs prayers and money. No one can measure his duty by the duty of some one else. Some stewards help by giving scholarships to help worthy students from other countries.

SUNDAY OBSERVANCE

Mrs. Lockyer spoke on Christian Citizenship" thanked for Sunday. She read a pamphlet written by Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa entitled, "The Meaning of Sunday". In this pamphlet it stated "The Christian faith set first, and as above all, holy, Sunday, the first day of the week in commemoration of the fundamental and transcending fact of Christianity — the Deity of Christ — triumphant in the Resurrection. Any scale which makes of Sunday just another day of the secular week destroys its property designated as Christian. One of the first governmental decrees produced Sunday to just a secular day in the working week.

"Decrease of deterioration where Sunday is destroyed."

FAMILY LIFE

Topic from study book was taken by Miss S. Mingay. Subject was "Family Life, Collapse or Recovery". The speaker mentioned many things which keep family together; love of parents for children; They do not love them just when they are ideal children but even when they seem unworthy of love. The psalmist says, "God setteth the solitary in families. History gives some reassurance there is toughness in the family relationship that lives on in spite of many forces and influences that one might think would destroy it.

The Church works to keep the family together. "The families that pray together, stay together."

"In the church we find a place for all members of the family. In the community we have many agencies working to keep the family together, for example, the Children's Aid Society. Young communities and parents are helped in understanding their children when they consult a counsellor. Much of the core of living; society is built on family life. Because it is a living thing, home requires care and attention. Community as well as parents are to blame for break-up of homes.

"Although many influences are at work to keep families together, divorces seem to be on the increase. Is alcohol a factor in home disintegration? No doubt unemployment leads to make trouble for the family. It is difficult to arouse public concern about serious welfare problems. Aid to education and training will help in the unemployment situation. The church should lead in keeping the family together."

Three members of the group, Mrs. Slavin, Mrs. Osland and Mrs. May, were asked their views on "Collapse of Family Life." All the members questioned felt that, although there were many difficulties in keeping families together, the family was still not about to crumble as some sociologists and welfare workers claim.

Mrs. H. C. Barlow read an article depicting the problem of the rural church today.

Sterling Completes Your Table

If you're looking for a Christmas gift that is both elegant and durable, something luxurious, yet practical — you may well find yourself thinking of Sterling.

In buying Sterling, the facts in this article point your careful forethought can help you give more satisfaction (and make a better buy). Unless you are buying the first set of silver for a newly married couple, for example, forethought should make you find out what pattern of silver the family has.

In Grandma's day, it was popular to give a dozen forks or spoons as a gift. Today in our more practical world—the appropriate thing is to give one or more place settings. This way, the gift can be put to use immediately, rather than put accumulated in the silver chest until enough pieces of the right kinds can be put to work.

The popular place setting consists of a place knife and fork in luncheon or dinner size, teaspoon, soup spoon, salad fork and butter spreader. Each of these is an essential. But among the very useful additions to each place setting is, for example, the second teaspoon. Two teaspoons are needed for fruit and coffee at breakfast, for dessert and a hot beverage at luncheon.

If the family likes to serve oysters or shrimp or seafood cocktails, a very desirable addition would be a cocktail fork. A place spoon is one of the most all-purpose pieces you can have because it is the cereal spoon, and perfect for soups as well as desserts. Other happy supplements are a set of coffee spoons. A table or serving spoon is a desirable addition if you don't want to spend too much. All of these will last for the life of the family and probably be passed on as an heirloom.

Almost everybody every pattern you are likely to find many delightful additions — a better serving knife, a sugar spoon, a cold meat fork, a gravy ladle, a pie server, a salad set consisting of a large serving spoon and fork. Be assured your solid silver gift will be very welcome whatever it may be.

If you're a clever shopper and have some experience with serving and dining arrangements, you'll soon discover a very valuable piece of information. Sterling flat silver often leads a double life. The salad fork may be used as a fish fork, and the first dessert like pie and cake. A gravy ladle can be used for spooning creamed dishes such as chicken a la king, also for serving dessert sauces.

The petite coffee spoon is useful for feeding baby, for stirring old-fashioneds, for serving such things as horseradish, mustard and other condiments.

The flat server is practical for any food hard to balance on a regular tablespoon — like sliced tomatoes, fishcakes, fried eggs, waffles, jellied salads.

The butter serving knife is ideal on the pantry, for relishes, jams and jellies, for serving hors d'oeuvres; while the pickle fork may also serve lemons, butter pats and the like.

Here are a few more doubleuse flat silver items: the sugar tongs are at home on the dining table or the pantry server also serves aspics and frozen desserts; the soup spoon can be used for serving squash; the cold meat fork serves chops and food served on toast, as well, and a variety of platter salads; the iced beverage spoon is fine for milk shakes, mint juleps, fruit drinks.

If you're going to spend a little more and want to make a really valuable contribution to the family silverware treasure, many pieces of hollowware also have extra usage. For example, pepper and salts double charmingly for small flower arrangements on trays or sidetables; sugar bowls can serve as cigarette containers or hold violets or other small flowers; sauce boats may serve candy, nuts, olives, hot tidbits.

Serving dishes look magnificent holding fruits and shallow flower arrangements. They're nice for sandwiches, ice cream and cold meats, too. Water pitchers are impressive cocktail servers, or serve as vases for full arrangements of long-stemmed flowers.

Sandwich trays are an everuseful commodity. They serve pastries gracefully, hors d'oeuvres and cold cuts, too. Truly, a pair of servers can be a pleasure and a joy long after baby's cereal as a thing of the past. It holds nuts, olives, jelly, candy.

The mark "Sterling" distinguishes the piece from coin silver, silver plate, nickel silver —none of which are solid silver at all. The first words in silver contest according to the composition of each country's colors. Silver plate, on the other hand, is an electrolytically deposited coating of silver on a base metal. It is made in numerous grades and a light coating of silver can wear through in a short time, revealing the base metal, while a heavier plating might last for many years; Nickel silver contains no real silver at all, but is used as a base metal for plated flat silver.

The maker's mark is especially important when purchasing silver marked "weighted." Weighted items, such as candlesticks are filled with cement or pitch. Your best guide to the quality of the piece and the thickness of the gauge of the silver shell is your confidence in the manufacturer.

Just one last point — the matter of engraving. On patterns that are basically simple, a three-letter monogram will add to the beauty. But if the design of the silver will not permit it, one letter will do. The current fancies leans toward the bold hand, is an electrolytically deposited coating of silver on a base metal. It is made in numerous grades and a light coating of silver can wear through initial. If you use two initials, both the wife's and the husband's may be used together, separated slightly by a small engraved star.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I have a weekly date with a young woman for dinner. One evening, as we were waiting in the station for our train, another man she knows happened along and joined us. Each of us had a commutation ticket, in a case like this, should the other fellow have had his ticket punched for the three of us? Meeting him at the station was not pre-arranged. My ticket called for a shorter distance than theirs. — E.M.D., Chicago Ill.

Answer: Seems to me you're completely off the track on several counts, in the first place, I'm the man who joined you at the station and under no obligation to give anyone a free ride. If my date did not have a commutation ticket, then, as a gentleman, you would have had to pay her fare. Even if a whole battery of U.S. Marines showed up and offered to buy her a series of tickets, I still would have been your obligation and the three of us would have had to see it worked out you each had a ticket and she correctly used hers.

More important, though, is a gentleman's obligation to see a young lady right to her door after a date, even if it takes him out of his way. From what you said about your ticket being for a "shorter distance than there," I got the distinct impression you were getting off the train before your date each week and letting her see herself home. If this is your S.O.P. (Standard Operating Procedure) you're being quite cocky discourteous but downright foolhardy. Probably, when you step into the other fellow to pay your fare, you also expected him to see the young woman home, since they got off at the same station. This of course, is equally incorrect. Your knowledge of how a man should conduct himself on a date seems pretty sketchy, so I think you should bolster it a bit in order to set yourself on the right track.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

Is a Strapless Shocking?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Your answer to First Formal really provoked us. Why tell a young girl of 16 that a strapless gown is quite all right and that we go by what is being done? Strapless dresses, chiffon stole or no chiffon stole, are never modest and you know it unless your conscience is so warped already that you no longer recognize sin or temptation.

You have probably caused this girl's mother a great deal of anguish. She will even bring too lenient about letting the dress be sleeveless. What is pretty about a sleeveless dress? Nothing!

I am a mother of four children and I don't want people who should know better making the raising of our children more difficult.—MRS. L. B.

DEAR MRS. L. B.—My reply to First Formal was only written after consultation with several mothers of teen-agers. I am sorry it bothered you.

Don't you think that what shocks us most is that first realization that our little ones are becoming young ladies. There is a time when we should be helping them grow up. Modesty is a thing of bearing, isn't it?

What is being done counts a great deal with girls and boys in their teens. There will never be another time in their lives when it will matter so desperately that they have things like their peers and pals.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I have met a boy who has taken me out twice. Now I want to know what to buy him for Christmas. I think he is getting me a dresser set.

Would gold cuff links, about six dollars, be all right? —NOT A STEADY.

* * *

DEAR NOT A STEADY.—Not unless you want to scare him off. And if he is thinking of an expensive dresser set, you should change his mind.

Personalize personal gifts may pass between engaged couples, if they can afford it. But for casual friends, impersonal gifts are best. Candies, home-made cookies, a book—these are safest. The important thing is the friendliness that a gift expresses.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I had a baby two months ago. I'm married but separated from my husband. I gave him to a childless couple because I cannot care for him financially. He will have everything he will want or need, including love.

They have tried to adopt a child but were unable. She had rheumatic fever which left her with a slight heart condition.

What worries me now, can this child be taken away from this couple since he is not legally adopted, and also can I get into any kind of trouble for giving him up to a couple I know?—WORRIED.

* * *

DEAR WORRIED.—Your baby is yours to give away. But later he may have trouble if he has no status.

The concern of the child caring agency is for his care. They will only interfere if there is neglect. Consult your agency or a lawyer; you will be wise to do what is right for the child, as far as status is concerned.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—How much do you think a 16-year-old girl should receive as her allowance? The money from baby sitting pays for my clothes, all of which I buy myself.—ANNE.

* * *

DEAR ANNE:—The allowance should be enough to manage on, and with a little leeway for special things. Do you need money for bus fares, haircuts, school supplies? What about church collection and birthday or Christmas gifts? An occasional show?

This is very personal—so I cannot set your amount. Add up likely expenses and get your mother to help you decide. Realize that when the allowance is gone, that's all there is until next week. And learn to manage on it. That's the whole idea.

* * *

(Talk it over with Doris. There is a right and a wrong way to handle your difficulties.)

Three Great Religions Topic At WMS Meet

FRANKFORD — The regular meeting of Frankford United Church W.M.S. was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss Phyllis Sine.

The meeting was opened with quiet music played by Mrs. Gordon Morrow. The president, Mrs. George McLay, took charge and welcomed everyone who attended despite the rain.

The hymn, "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun," was sung. This hymn was composed by Dr. Isaac Watt and has been a favorite missionary hymn for many years.

Mrs. J. M. Dafoe gave the secretarial report and roll call showed a good attendance.

The treasurer, Mrs. W. Morrow, gave the financial report.

A business period followed in which plans were made for a Christmas "Come and Go Tea" to be held on Thursday afternoon, December 8th, in the parlours.

Each Christmas season the W.M.S. and the Sewing Auxiliary join in a donation to the Mission for the Christmas treat. This will be furnished again this year.

USED CLOTHING FOR BALE

A bale will be packed and shipped before Christmas, if possible. Anyone having clothing to donate please leave your articles at the home of Mrs. George Spencer.

Miss Phyllis Sine took charge of the program. She told of the three great religions of the world, namely Buddhism, Hinduism and Moslems.

Mrs. Dillabough read a story of Mrs. Wyatt who carried on a wonderful Christian work in Hong Kong. She was made a life member of the W.M.S. in recognition of her work.

Mrs. Arnold Stickle gave a reading on "India."

Next year, Miss Phyllis Sine travelled to Australia, New Zealand and New Guinea, also to Hong Kong, Hawaii and other countries. She showed many interesting slides which had been taken on her trip. Also a record was played of Christmas songs, sung by children in New Zealand.

An interesting program was brought to a close with prayer by Mrs. G. McLay, followed by lunch. All enjoyed a time of fellowship together.

Beginning Christmas Cookies

By Mary Moore

We are nearing November's end and I've been making Christmas cookies. Are you ready to start making them soon?

If so, I have some beauties. The present one was given me by some I ate at our new manse Open House and by some my Hungarian doctor friend, Lucy Lantos.

The cookie dough is similar to our well-known shortbread but lighter in texture. I have added two different kinds of nuts, and have suggested the way to shape the dough fingers, shaped cones in chocolate — European style. These keep well.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Meat Balls in Tomato Sauce with Spaghetti (see Tuesday); Italian Bread-sticks; Caesar Salad; Pineapple Sherbet; Coffee.

LITTLE LOGS

(Butter-fingers with nuts and seeds.) ½ pound butter (do not use margarine for shortening), 1 cup sifted icing sugar (I use granulated sugar), 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2½ cups sifted flour (preferably bread flour), 1 cup finely chopped nuts (for one-half of dough - preferably almonds or walnuts or pecans) ½ cup sesame seeds (for second half of dough).

Beat butter until light and fluffy, then beat in icing sugar, add lighter and fluffier. Remove from beater and add vanilla and flour, and mix well. Divide dough in half. To one half add the finely chopped nuts, to the second half add the sesame seeds. Roll pieces of dough into long sausage shape into logs or crescents about 3" long by ¾" wide (about the size of your little finger — down to a second nuckle) or smaller. Bake 15 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr., turning pans around twice at least to bake. Bake only until tinged a slightly color — not quite dark brown. Cool on cake racks.

If desired dip the ends of the log-shaped ones in melted semi-sweet chocolate. To do this melt 2 squares chocolate in a shallow small bowl (like an individual custard cup) by standing it in hot water. Carefully dip cookie log in finger tips (or tongs) at centre and quickly dip each end in chocolate. Allow to drip a moment and set cool on rack.

Note 1: The last few cookies may be cooled on bottoms with chocolate to use it up when it becomes too shallow for dipping.

Note 2: If you do not care to chocolate-dip your cookies, roll them while warm in icing sugar. This amounts make 80 logs or crescents.

Note 3: The sesame cookies are a lovely change (and my favorite) and are less expensive to make.

Watch for more Christmas cookies later.

Many Enjoy H-S Club Social Event

CENTENARY — On Wednesday evening the members of Centenary Home and School Club; also a number from the community enjoyed a social evening at Centenary School.

Mrs. Ross Dutton, president of the Club conducted the business after which cards and dancing were enjoyed. Mrs. Clifford Gerry and Lee Hart and Laverne Founder supplied the music and Mrs. Burton Hubble capably called for the squares dances.

The prize winners for cards were: ladies first — Mrs. A. Partridge; gentlemen — Mrs. C. Skinkle; gentlemen's first — Joe W. Hilsher; consolation — Mr. Ross Windsor. There were two spot dances which were won by Mr. and Mrs. C. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Regensburg.

Refreshments were served.

Sidney South WI Elects 1961-2 Officers

The Sidney South Women's Institute held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. H. Mumby.

As this was the first meeting of the year, an election of officers was held and the following were installed in office by Mrs. F. Wallbridge, past president: — Mrs. H. Hollonby; 1st vice-president — Mrs. M. McNeil; 2nd vice-president — Mrs. H. McMonnies; secretary-treasurer — Mrs. R. Mumby; assistant secretary-treasurer — Mrs. C. Moore; district director — Mrs. H. Regensburg; alternate district director — Mrs. C. Dafoe; public relations officer — Mrs. K. Kerr; directors — Mrs. W. Shortt, Mrs. C. Hart, Mrs. M. Mywaart, Mrs. F. Berkenshaw; auditor — Mrs. J. Murray and Mrs. D. Plumpton; A.C.W.W. — Mrs. R. Cunningham; standing committees: agriculture and Canadian — Mrs. Wilkinson; citizenship and education — Mrs. R. Windsor; historical research and current events and Dresden-muir Book — Mrs. J. W. Sargent; home economics and health — Mrs. D. Douglas; resolutions — Mrs. R. Postma.

Mrs. Hollonby took the chair and the members chose "Sidney South," as the branch name.

It was decided that charter members would be accepted for the next five days. The branch has a total of 49 members.

Appreciation was shown Mrs. MacMullin and Mrs. Holmes for their assistance in the formation of the new Institute and to Mrs. E. Phillips who brought greetings from the District Institute.

Everyone enjoyed lunch served by the hostess and the lunch committee.

After-Five Costume

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

A small self collar slips under the black-dyed seal collar of this extremely elegant evening suit. The fabric is black peau de sole, the silk buttressed by a padded lining.

A matching sleeveless overblouse makes this a smart dinner and theatre costume and a black lace blouse would make it even dressier.

WOMEN'S COLLEGE

Although Vassar College for women opened at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., in 1865, its first woman president was Sarah Blanding in 1946.

Nobel Peace Prize Winner, Albert Luthuli, Has Always Been a Devout Christian

Brian Barrow is a South African journalist long experienced in reporting on the problems of his country. In this story he discusses the characteristics of Nobel Peace Prize winner Albert Luthuli.

By BRIAN BARROW

CAPE TOWN (CP) — The great characteristic of Nobel Peace Prize winner Albert Luthuli is his Christian patience.

This remarkable African leader stands out preeminently as a man of peace, not only in the larger world struggle against racialism but within the limits of his own lone struggle in South Africa.

There have been many occasions in the last 10 years when the president of the outlawed African National Congress could have been forgiven for losing his patience.

Had he done so he might have unleashed waves of violence in which there could have been enormous loss of life in South Africa with world - wide reverberations.

The steadiness and good sense of South African non-whites during crisis after crisis may be attributed to his influence.

AFRICAN NOBEL WINNER — Albert John Luthuli, 62, president of the outlawed African National Congress — in South Africa, was awarded the 1961 Nobel Peace Prize for his patient promotion of, non violent opposition to racialism. (CP from AP).

SHUNNED WEALTH

Son of a missionary, Albert John Luthuli has always been a devout Christian. After qualifying as a teacher at Adams College in Natal, he devoted himself to the moral and spiritual uplift of his people.

In the 1930s he gave up a big salary and bright prospects to rescue his little tribe the Amakholwas, from poverty and ignorance. Almost single-handed he achieved for his people one of the most impressive tribal transformations in southern Africa. Today the sugar farms in the coastal mission reserves in Natal are a living monument to his spirit of service.

In recognition of his outstanding mission work he was asked to represent South African Christian Council at the World Conference of Churches in Tambaram, India, in 1946. When he returned he was asked on a lecture tour to the United States as a guest of the Congregational churches.

He returned to South Africa at the end of 1946. The Nationalist government was firmly in the saddle and Luthuli was called on by his people to take part in the battle against apartheid, the government's policy of race segregation. This he saw almost as a sacred duty, but from the first moment he dedicated himself to a policy of non-violence.

He became president of the African National Congress in 1953. The government deposed him from his chieftainship when he refused to resign.

Banishment orders, arrests, trials, physical assaults, insults and humiliations followed but Luthuli was still able to say: "The white people of South Africa are our brothers and sisters; we need them and they need us."

Never once has he departed from this conviction that the black man in South Africa must set his face absolutely against any kind of violence.

The result is that his moral authority among his own people and even among the whites has grown into something the government of Dr. Hendrik Verwoerd fears.

How does Luthuli compare with other leaders on the African continent? He has a dignity and personal authority second to none. Nkrumah? Tom Mboya of Kenya would seem like a rather brash young man. Haile Selassie of Ethiopia would appear pompous and theatrical. Julius Nyerere of Tanganyika would seem efficient and a trifle inhuman. And Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana would appear arrogant and empty.

What makes the 62-year-old Luthuli outstanding is that he possesses all their virtues without sharing any of their vices. He hasn't the power of oratory of any of the other African leaders, but he has a sort of penetrating personal charisma that he uses quite unconsciously to draw his audience into a state of trust. His own people are of him: "Even if his hearers number countless thousands, when he speaks, there is silence."

Albert Luthuli been a citizen of any other country he would have certainly received the congratulations of the head of state and possibly some gesture of recognition from the government for earning the Nobel Peace Prize. But not in South Africa. The non-whites were shocked that the award was given to an exiled Zulu chief, a black man.

In some quarters Luthuli was ridiculed; in others he was slammed with faint praise. There was an outcry in the Nationalist press and even some English - language newspapers questioned the wisdom of the award.

The government - controlled broadcasting corporation didn't bother to broadcast the news when it was received from Oslo. A few days later Luthuli was attacked in a broadcast.

The government would not allow him to leave his place of banishment in Zululand to attend a multi-racial gathering held in his honor a few miles away.

Fortunately history will be able to point to some notable exceptions to the lack of generosity and meanness of spirit. The Johannesburg town council by resolution welcomed the award "with pride and pleasure." Many influential people and some newspapers also welcomed the award and seem it in its proper perspective, namely, that no man is greater than the pressures and circumstances of his times.

In his time and place Luthuli has done more than anyone else to keep down the sum of violence and bloodshed and bitterness at the very heart of the struggle against racial discrimination. That is why the world has honored him today and why South Africans will honor him in the future.

Car Parts Firms Strongly Oppose Bladen Report

OTTAWA (CP)—A brief protesting certain recommendations by the royal commission on the automotive industry is to be presented next month to the Bladen commission.

The Canadian Automotive Wholesalers and Manufacturers' Association said in a statement that it takes strong exception to portions of the report dealing with changes in import duty regulations on auto replacement parts.

No date has been set for the meeting.

The commission report prepared by Dean Vincent Bladen of the University of Toronto economics faculty suggested among other things that auto manufacturers be eligible to import parts duty-free by meeting standards asserting Canadian content of their products.

President A. L. Gray of the parts association said today this means a unfair advantage for the manufacturers over the parts industry in selling replacement parts because the wholesaler then never has to achieve this duty-free status on imported parts."

The result would be serious dislocation and unemployment, Mr. Gray said about 19,000 Canadians are employed in the auto parts manufacturers and another 12,000 by wholesalers.

The Bladen report was made public in June, the government has asked for the views of various groups on the report.

3rd Hillier

3RD OF HILLIER — The pot-luck supper, given in the town hall on Saturday night, was well attended, the report a grand supper and good entertainment.

SIGHTLESS SOLICITOR — Charles Stewart McCormack of Toronto is one of four blind lawyers practising in Canada. He lost his sight at the age of nine when he was struck by a baseball and became totally blind after an operation six years later. Mr. McCormack, 32, uses a braille stylus and desk slate (lower photo) that allows him to take notes at longhand speed. (CP Photo).

Lawyer, Totally Blind, Makes Progress in Court

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Stewart McCormack is a 32-year-old lawyer who knows his clients only by the sound of their voices. He's totally blind.

Yet in two years of practice he cannot recall turning down a case because of his handicap, and he has confidently tackled real estate, company law, civil litigation and divorce suits as well as criminal cases.

He readily admits there are problems in being a sightless lawyer but he seems to have solved most of them.

During a five - week commission trial here in which he was defence lawyer, he used a braille stylus and desk slate to record notes at longhand speed.

He makes the Braille impressions from right to left on a sheet of paper, then turns it over to read by touch from the underside.

"In my research I do in connection with a case, friends or employees read law reports or transcripts aloud to me and I make notes in braille," he said. "But the facts I obtain personally from my client, and there is no breach of confidence."

In the conspiracy trial, Mr. McCormack coped with 176 witnesses and more than 200 exhibits, most of them documents.

"That sort of trial presents as many problems as any lawyer is likely to come up against."

As for the documents, he says:

"Most of them are read into the record, and I have found my colleagues particularly helpful in court, even when they represent the other side."

He doesn't regard it as important to be able to see the witness.

"In many cases you can tell from the tone of a witness's voice whether he is unsure of what he's saying and I have the satisfaction of knowing the judge and jury are watching him and they are the ones who must decide whether he's telling the truth."

The young lawyer lost most of his sight after being struck in the eye by a baseball at nine and became totally blind after an unsuccessful operation six years later.

From the Ontario School for the Blind at Brantford he went to McMaster University in Hamilton, then got his law degree from Osgoode Hall in Toronto.

He's active in other fields as well as law—as a member of the Canadian Blind Golfers' Association and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind chess club here. He plays bridge with cards marked in Braille, and is interested in sports, an eager listener to hockey and football broadcasts.

40,000 Gallons Of Gas Burn On Quebec Road

MONTREAL (CP)—A violent highway collision near Cascades, Que., 15 miles west of Montreal, late Monday night set more than 40,000 gallons of gasoline ablaze on Highway No. 2.

Witnesses said the sheets of flame lit up the sky for miles. Traffic was held up for almost three hours.

The collision between the oil tanker and a car-carrier sent a new car from the latter's load over a 50-foot-high bridge into three feet of water.

No one was injured.

Dr. C. Jack Mackenzie at 73 Cannot Find Time to Retire

By JOHN F. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — The man who guided Canada into adulthood in 20th century scientific research cannot find time to retire.

After a university and government career spanning 43 of the most exciting years in Canadian history, Dr. Chalmers Jack Mackenzie says he has too many things to do.

"I'm much too busy to retire," the 73-year-old former head of the National Research Council, Atomic Energy of Canada Limited and the Atomic Energy Control Board said in an interview.

"Besides, being busy keeps you alive and happy."

In his capacity as president of NRC and Atomic Energy of Canada, Dr. Mackenzie played a major role in Canada's emergence during the Second World War and the post-war period as a world leader in many aspects of scientific research.

Dr. Mackenzie says he acted mainly as an administrator in this Canadian development. He was in a position to know what government and university scientists wanted to do and to be able to help them achieve their objectives.

CAME OF AGE

"This was the most satisfying experience of my career," he said. "This was the period when Canadian science came of age and started the march that has brought it world recognition in recent years."

After leaving his last official government post — the presidency of the Atomic Energy Control Board — Dr. Mackenzie found he didn't want to drop other activities in which he is involved.

While he served on the control board in an honorary position without salary, he became a director of several Canadian companies, chancellor of Carleton University, Ottawa, and acted in a consulting capacity for a number of industries interested in scientific research.

These responsibilities alone are enough to keep Dr. Mackenzie fully occupied. But since leaving the control board he has found that his scientific colleagues are calling on his background and experience for guidance and advice.

"I'm busy all the time," he said.

Mrs. Mackenzie said her husband was supposed to have retired in 1953 when he left the presidency of Atomic Energy of Canada.

"He's still as busy as in previous years. I've never noticed any difference."

WON 39C

A native of St. Stephen, N.B., Dr. Mackenzie practised as a consulting engineer in Alberta from 1910 to 1915 following graduation from Dalhousie University, Halifax. He served overseas during the First World War, winning the Military Cross in 1918.

After the war he joined the staff of the University of Saskatchewan as professor of engineering, becoming dean of the faculty in 1921.

Dr. Mackenzie's biggest personal thrill came in 1939 when he was appointed president of NRC, succeeding Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, now chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, who at that time was named general officer commanding the 1st Canadian Division overseas.

"The appointment was entirely unexpected," Dr. Mackenzie said. "Overnight I was introduced to an exciting new experience."

During the years of war that followed, Canadian scientists with NRC and other government agencies demonstrated their ability in the development of weapons and other equipment necessary in the war effort.

WON BRITISH AWARD

"Canada's entire scientific community had the satisfaction of knowing they were making a real contribution in the fight for freedom," Dr. Mackenzie said.

STILL ACTIVE — Dr. Chalmers J. Mackenzie, 73-year-old former head of the National Research Council, Atomic Energy of Canada Limited and the Atomic Energy Control Board, still hasn't found time to retire. He now serves as a director of several Canadian companies, chancellor of Carleton University and acts as a consultant to scientific research industries. (CP Photo).

West Has More Men Under Arms Than Reds

LONDON (Reuters) — The West has more men under arms than the Communist bloc and is at least its equal in most key weapons including missiles, the Institute of Strategic Studies estimated in a report published here Tuesday.

However, the report showed that the West's forces are strung out across the world with no centralized military command while the Communist powers are concentrated in one mass unit.

The institute in an unofficial body with Western military leaders, politicians and international affairs experts among its members.

The report estimated that in early 1962 the West will have 4,125,253 men under arms and the Communist bloc 7,994,300.

The report said that the West has 63 intercontinental ballistic missiles against an estimate of about 50 in the Communist bloc, and 186 medium - range ballistic missiles compared with an estimated 300.

Will Be Miracle If Rockefeller Is Found Alive

THE HAGUE (AP) — It will be a miracle if Michael Rockefeller is found alive, a New Guinea expert said Tuesday.

A. Boendermaker, 51 - year - old deputy governor of Dutch New Guinea, was interviewed by telephone at Hilversum, near Amsterdam, where he is on vacation.

Boendermaker has had many years experience in the jungle, including several years in the area where Rockefeller is missing.

"No one ever dreams of making this trip by sea," he said. "The coast here is virtually unreachable. The sea is infested with crocodiles and there are impenetrable marshes and dense thickets of mangrove bushes and roots.

"It will be very difficult to spot him if he has reached the coast. Meanwhile he has little to live on. There is a little bit of raw fish and shrimps."

Leaner Prairie Farm Income And Big Dairy Surpluses Key Topics in Farm Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Leaner Prairie farm incomes and bulging dairy surpluses emerged Tuesday as key topics at concluding sessions of the annual two-day conference of federal and provincial agriculture ministers.

Aid in both fields was indicated.

In an apples-to-eggs survey, it was concluded generally that Canadian farm folk still suffer—as they have for 10 years or more—from the financial blight caused by costs rising more quickly than returns on produce.

"One may sum up by saying that in addition to the basic lag in farm returns, instability remains a major feature of the agricultural industry and a great deal still needs to be done by way of producer marketing organizations, support policies and crop insurance to reduce it," said the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

TOO STRICT PRODUCTIVITY

Increased productivity hasn't paid off for the large majority of Canadian farmers, said the national farm union, asking for more orders working out the future of farming.

"Generally speaking, the immediate future looks brighter than it did a year ago," said Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton.

Canadian wheat board marketing chairman Jean Martel said final payments on wheat and coarse grains to pay Prairie farmers, he said.

An acreage payment, made in 1958 and again last year, was not under consideration to recompense prairie farmers for drought losses but none could be made for at least five or six weeks whatever the decision, Mr. Hamilton said.

It is understood that such a payment, amounting to a total $41,000,000 or a maximum $200 per farmer, will be paid but it is just a matter of timing. It would supplement farm income which is expected to drop off after Christmas as grain deliveries on smaller farms are exhausted.

Mr. Hamilton also indicated that the dairy problem, chiefly a butter surplus which may reach the all-time high of 201,000,000 pounds by the end of the year, has to be solved quickly.

PROPOSE SUBSIDY

The Dairy Farmers of Canada have proposed a federal subsidy of 16 cents a pound on butter. This would lower the price to retailers, making butter more competitive with margarine.

Next year the cream producers would start taking reduced returns, perhaps two cents a pound initially. The program has been suggested to the federal and provincial governments.

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture backed the proposal Tuesday and President Frank Leiser of the Dairy Farmers said he anticipates 90 to 95 per cent support from dairy producers organizations across Canada.

It envisages efforts by trade-boosting boards and fluid-milk producers to curb excess production, which might otherwise push a record 18,000,000,000 pounds next year.

BC Premier and Kennedy Believed to Have Conferred On Columbia River Project

WASHINGTON (CP)—Well-informed sources said Tuesday President Kennedy conferred with Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia on the Columbia River power controversy last week and may consider meeting with Prime Minister Diefenbaker on the same issues later.

They said the question of whether Kennedy should take the initiative and invite Diefenbaker to a meeting on the Columbia and other matters will be weighed by the state department next week.

These informants said the U.S. government will do everything it can to get construction of the Columbia River power development under way. They emphasized, however, that the matter is of extreme sensitivity because the president does not want to be portrayed as intruding in Canada's domestic affairs.

Canadian ratification of the joint convention treaty has been delayed by a federal-provincial clash on power export policy and construction financing.

U.S. authorities involved in the Columbia program have tentatively agreed that if Canada does not ratify the treaty by next March the U.S. will have to consider some alternative proposals to provide more power for the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

However, since the Kennedy-Bennett talks conversation took place at Seattle last Thursday, authorities here said prospects for a new Columbia construction have brightened. They said possibilities have increased for resolving federal-British Columbia differences through some form of arbitration.

On his return to Victoria from Seattle, Bennett was quoted as saying he was more enthusiastic than ever that the Columbia project will go ahead.

Just how Bennett came to talk to Kennedy on the issue still unclear. Officially, the White House declined to confirm or deny that the talks took place. Bennett was invited to Seattle for a Democratic testimonial dinner for Washington Senator Warren Magnuson and sat at the head table where Kennedy delivered the main speech.

Kennedy had nothing to do with planning the talks.

Judge Quashes Absolute Decree In Divorce Case

TORONTO (CP) — For the first time in Ontario's legal history, an absolute decree of divorce has been quashed.

Mr. Justice J. C. Spence Tuesday set aside a divorce obtained early in 1960 by Max Frovovitz of Toronto against Rebecca Frovovitz.

In a second trial, after the divorce action, Mr. Justice Spence said in a written judgment he cannot find that the decree had been obtained on perjured evidence of two private investigators.

Mrs. Frovovitz testified she knew nothing of the divorce until February, 1960, when she received a letter from her husband's solicitor informing her of absolute judgment. She said she married Frovovitz in December, 1958, but they separated three months later and hadn't lived together since.

Mr. Justice Spence held that Mrs. Frovovitz had not been served with the writ, the notice of trial or a copy of the judgment. She had not been served in the original proceeding.

"I am ready to hold that any evidence given at the trial which was to the effect that she was served, therefore, was perjured evidence," he said.

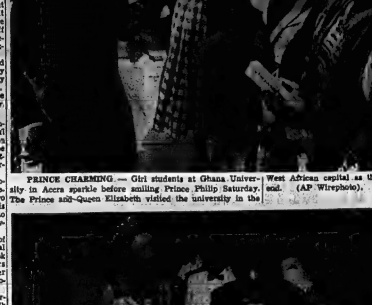
Counsel for Frovovitz, Herbert James Driscoll, a Toronto sheriff's officer, had served the proper papers to someone, they were not served to Mrs. Frovovitz.

All Driscoll could depend on in establishing the identity of the person with the writ was a photograph produced "under circumstances and which Mrs. Frovovitz admitted was a picture of herself," Mr. Justice Spence said.

He said Jack Ashure, a private investigator hired by the plaintiff, could easily have substituted another woman for Mrs. Frovovitz left her home, then have Driscoll serve that woman.

"A mere superficial resemblance would be sufficient to delude Driscoll," he said.

At the second trial, Mrs. Frovovitz said the evidence given by Ashure and his assistant, Lorna Campbell, was false and that no attempt was made to serve her with the papers.



Ashure disappeared before the trial. Mr. Frovovitz said he paid the investigator $4,000 to get evidence.

The co-defendant in the original action, John Scringeris, also disappeared before the second trial.

Mr. Justice Spence said he placed no blame on Frovovitz.

Dedication Is Not Enough, Africa's Showplace Nation Is Obviously Facing Trouble

ACCRA (AP)—His High Dedication, President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, is in big trouble.

Something has gone wrong in the little West African nation born with so much promise and so much good will nearly five years ago.

The showplace of African independence is still a bustling, developing nation and most people. But danger signals are flying.

A fat treasury balance of $750,000,000, left by the last British colonial government for the new nation in 1957, has practically vanished. The nation is on an austerity budget. Prices are up and take-home wages are reduced.

Hundreds of Nkrumah's political opponents are in jail. There are reported to be 6,000 exiles in neighboring Togoland. The opposition has disappeared from Parliament and there is a distinct odor of totalitarianism in the humid air.

PEOPLE UNHAPPY

Nkrumah is a world figure, known in the capitals of East and West and hailed by his controlled press as the redeemer, messiah and saviour. But the people are unhappy and there is no mistaking it.

Although trade unions are government - controlled, there have been strikes. They have been suppressed and their leaders jailed. There is a growing murmur of discontent among the poorly - paid middle- and lower-class workers. Even the relatively well-paid civil servants, smartly trained by the British, are complaining about Nkrumah's high-handed methods.

He has fired the moderate, mostly pro-Western members of his cabinet and is increasingly inspired by such radical anti-Western members as Interior Minister Kwaku Boateng and Information Minister Tawia Adamafio. John Tettegah, secretary-general of the government-backed Trades Union Congress, is another influential member of the group close to Nkrumah.

Arrests and surveillance of his political secretaries continue and the government has established special courts to try political opponents, with no right of appeal.

TURNED TO REDS

Nkrumah has advocated a socialist form of government for Ghana from the beginning of independence. But a good many Ghanaians are unhappy about his 10-week junket to the Soviet Union and other Soviet bloc states this summer.

On top of this, a trade mission has just returned after concluding trade agreements with the Soviet bloc. The bulk of Ghana's trade always has been with the West, especially its former colonial masters, who dominate a quarter of the world's production.

More than 300 Russian and Soviet-bloc technicians already are in the country and scores more are expected under the new trade agreements. Without a strute leadership, Ghana could slip under Soviet domination. And double blood is the leadership are beginning to trouble many of the 7,000,000 Ghanaians.

MAY MEAN ORDERS

MONTREAL (CP) — President Arturo Frondizi and 27 Argentine industrialists will hold talks here and in Toronto next week "which will be of great importance to the future of Canada and Argentina," Ambassador Angel Ernesto Peiullo said Tuesday. Argentina needed 1,000 diesel locomotives, and was embarking on a program of highway construction, he told a press conference some 500 trucks were needed.

Unions Warned Against Joining Political Party

HAMILTON (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester Pearson told unions Tuesday night that by associating themselves with one political party they may make themselves less effective in advancing the rights of their members.

Unions should be specially interested in politics, Mr. Pearson told a Liberal rally in this industrial centre. But the practical interests of the rank-and-file members could be best served, he said, by unions working with, putting pressure on and educating the major parties rather than by tying themselves to a single, minority party.

Mr. Pearson emphasized the need for a strong trade unions movement for effective bargaining, including the right to strike. Striking, however, should be a weapon of last resort.

"Our industrial system is growing more complex and a last resort ever have to be used frequently."

Mr. Pearson condemned the Progressive Conservative government for "behaving like a scared rabbit" in the face of great trade developments taking place in the U.S. and D. Hubert Cox, the former principal owner of the Eaton's.

Paton, 42, and Cox, 47, who also controlled companies, with assets of $200,000 in Canada, were convicted Saturday in Court of Queen's Bench jury, Mr. Justice A. E. Moonin sentenced them to concurrent three-year prison terms on each of five charges they had pleaded.

An appeal was filed in the Manitoba Court of Appeal Tuesday and the prisoners will be argued before Chief Justice Miller. Defence counsel special cites more than 10 complaints against the judge's charge to the jury, including that if a new trial is granted it will be by a judge alone without a jury.

BLAMES BOOTH

The Toronto Telegram report, completed some months ago and withheld on the ground that it might prejudice the trial of Paton and Cox, blamed both lawyers and management for the strike and its aftermath. It contended the strike should never have taken place.

The Brandon Packers strike was called originally in a dispute over wages between the Local 395 of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CLC) on Feb. 20 last year.

The strike finally was settled by an agreement with the Swift-Trutcher report says was no factor in the company's last offer before the strike.

Since the strike the company has closed down its Brandon plants. A group of minority shareholders in Brandon petitioned for the legal winding up of the company's affairs, but a move to this also was put on ice about once pending the trial.

INVESTIGATOR

The Trutcher report, relating to the former principal owners, found "shocking behavior of management, as represented by Paton and Cox, and . . . shabby performance of the union and several labor organizations."

"Paton and Cox were guilty of conduct which deserves to be condemned in the strongest

Douglas Sees New Democracy In New Govt.

TORONTO (CP)—T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said Tuesday night his party-hasn't money such as is available to other political groups, but it has members who believe in social democracy and socialism.

"There is no force in the world can stand against them when they are aroused," he declared.

There is a day coming in Canada when the people who are going to say we are tired of working so that others may grow fat, live in fancy houses that they don't need, possess and have luxuries when we haven't even the necessities.

"They will join hands and go marching forward to form a government and to build a new democracy."

Mr. Douglas, on an Ontario speaking tour, addressed the nominating convention in Toronto Davenport constituency at which William Sefton, a Steelworker's union official and vice-president of the Ontario New Democratic Party, was unanimously chosen to contest the next federal election.

PICKET MEETING

The meeting was picketed by six men carrying signs. Their leader identified them as a student group fighting the new party under the title Young Canadians for Freedom.

The placards included one depicting two donkeys labelled "socialism" hauling a cart labelled "communism" and bearing the legend "a peaceful way to world domination."

The picketers marched peacefully outside the movie theatre where the 1,000 seats were filled by members attended from all over Metropolitan Toronto, of Peckinghouse, Bricklayer, Steelworker and Carpenters' unions.

Mr. Douglas said the new party would put the unemployed to work, give them a decent wage and farming, a decent price, and put part of the annual increase in production into social security.

India's Communist Experts Believe Soviet Union Having Bad Time in Middle East

BOMBAY (CP) — Experts in Communist affairs in India believe the Soviet Union is having a bad time in the Middle East.

The recent shake-up in the politburo of the central committee of the Soviet Communist party is being cited in this connection. The dropping of Nureddin Muhkitdinov from the presidium is regarded as a sign of Soviet set-backs in the area.

Muhkitdinov, with his Moslem name and central Asian background, was a key official, perhaps the most important, in the formation of Moscow's strategy in the Middle East. He was entrusted with the task of selling the Soviet brand of communism goodwill to the Moslem nations.

In the initial stages Muhkitdinov succeeded to an extent that not only impressed his bosses in the Kremlin but caused distinct disquiet in western capitals. He made a sizable impact in Egypt, Iraq and Afghanistan.

RECEIVED FRIENDS

At one time there were rumors that Muhkitdinov was being groomed by Khrushchev for a high ministerial post in Moscow. Middle East newspapers spoke of him warmly and praise came even from some religious leaders.

Then the reverse started.

In the last 18 months, Soviet policy in the Middle East has encountered a series of defeats.

Earlier this year there was a sharp debate between Moscow and Cairo with much name-calling. Work on the Aswan high dam is about a year behind schedule and the Egyptians are known to be annoyed with the Russians for the delay in funnelling much-needed aid to the crucial project.

The split between Egypt and Syria and the consequent breakup of the United Arab Republic has been hailed by Syria's Communists. This is again held to be symptomatic of a cooling off in the relations between the Kremlin and Nasser.

The Soviet Union also has been fairly well in Iraq. At the height of Muhkitdinov's influence it appeared that Iraq would go behind the Iron Curtain. Today, Iraqi Communists are on the defensive.

PRESERVE HOTEL

MONTREAL (CP) — One of Montreal's oldest historical buildings, Sulpice Lambert's most fashionable hotel, the Rasco, has been saved from the wrecker's ball by a hair. The city announced Tuesday that the five-storey building on Dorchester St., Paul street, doomed for demolition to ease a traffic problem, will be preserved. Charles Dickens was once a guest at the hotel.

Say Union and Management Did Best to Destroy Firm

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Manitoba government report, made public here less than 24 hours after the conviction in Brandon of two Toronto businessmen on charges of conspiracy to defraud, said that in connection with the tangled affairs of a Brandon meat packing firm, both have denounced both union and management for having done their best to destroy an important Manitoba industry."

The report, written by Mr. Justice G. E. Tritschler of the Manitoba Court of Appeal after a month-long judicial inquiry last November into a 42-month strike at Brandon Packers Ltd. filed in 1960, had been withheld pending a verdict by a jury in the trial of Paton and D. Hubert Cox, the former principal owners of the firm.

Paton, 42, and Cox, 47, who also controlled companies, with assets of $200,000 in Canada and Western Canada, were convicted Saturday in Court of Queen's Bench jury, Mr. Justice A. E. Moonin sentenced them to concurrent three-year prison terms on each of five charges they had pleaded.

An appeal was filed in the Manitoba Court of Appeal Tuesday and the prisoners will be argued before Chief Justice Miller. Defence counsel special cites more than 10 complaints against the judge's charge to the jury, including that if a new trial is granted it will be by a judge alone without a jury.

6th Sidney

6th SIDNEY—Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Sine and Brian and Mrs. Morley Sine called on Mr. and Mrs. George Clare, Thurlow, on Saturday.

Mrs. Chester Mallejohn, of Ryerson, spent Monday with Mrs. Morley Sine.

Mrs. S. Lloyd, 4th line, has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ross Defoe, and Mr. Defoe.

The snowfall which blanketed the roads and fields on Sunday is a sure sign of oncoming winter and that 1961 is drawing to a close.

Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Frost, Mrs. A. Martyn and Mrs. M. Sine attended the provincial committee meeting for the new United Church Women at the parsonage, 4th Sidney, on Friday evening.

This meeting was attended by representatives from the four points on the charge. Arrangements were made for an inaugural service to be held at Stone Church the second Sunday in January at 11 o'clock with Mr. J. Cooper, the minister in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Edison Sine and girls were Friday evening callers of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cherry, Belleville.

Average Business Meeting Has Better Acting, Far More Drama Than East Lynne

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of These conferences are usthe great rituals of life is the ally held behind closed doors, business conference. to give them an air of secrecy, prove his points. Halfway through his presentation, he discovers he has hung the charts upside down. This makes no real difference to Syd. His figures read the same forward, backward, upside down, or sideways.

Bulldozer Bert—"What this firm needs is some real down-to-earth aggressive thinking!" he cries, thumping the table. Riverbed Nods. They're all in favor of aggressive thinking, whatever that is. They are also in favor of motherhood. Gilbert the Gambler — "We're losing money on 6545 p winks," he argues. "Let's di versify. Why not start making bowling balls?" Hem- for Hem, there's a lot bigger profit po tential in bowling balls than in diddlywinks."

Procrastinating Phil — When his turn comes he looks myserious and says, "I pass for now. I'm working on something I think will solve all our problems, but I haven't got it in final form." Phil has used this same line so many times he is beginning to believe it himself.

Whereas Wilbur — The company lawyer never makes a suggestion himself. He is there for only one purpose: To arise and announce why the suggestions anyone else in the firm makes are legally impossible, plus being against public policy.

Doodling Dan — The boss's nephew sits and silently draws pictures or pretty girls on the pad before him. His pleas are all-male. As soon as he inherits the business, he intends to fire everybody and sell the firm to its biggest competitor.

Omnipotent Oliver — "This conclave got us exactly nowhere," says the boss, winding it all up. "The next time I call you boys in, you'd better show up with some real ideas—or there'll be some new faces at this conference table."

The session is over. The executives march out, firm confidence showing in every face. Industry marches on!

JET HITS VILLAGE

TOKYO (AP)—The U.S. Air Force said Monday one of its B-57 jet bombers accidentally fired 16 non-explosive cannon shells into a village north of Tokyo. Four buildings were hit but no casualties were reported. Officials called the accident a "one-in-a - million" malfunction of electrical equipment that triggered the plane's guns.

India's Communist Party Sharply Attacks Red China

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — ...context of the dispute already...dia's Communist party went on existing, cannot but heighten record with a sharp new ... tension," the party said... against Communist China Tues... Observers said the In... day over Peking's reported new Communists were taking a... incursions on Indian territory, much stronger line of the state... "Such acts, especially in the mated Sino-India border dis... pute is as apparent move to sol... ten criticism in advance of In... dia's general elections next spring.

Tuesday's statement from party headquarters followed an Indian government charge Monday that Communist China was responsible for further border incursions and had violated past agreements by setting up three checkposts in areas claimed by India.

The strongly-worded Communist statement caused surprise in political circles. Observers called it the strongest indictment of the Chinese by Indian Communists since the border dispute began in 1959.

The Communist statement was issued by Ajoy Ghosh, the party's general secretary and a participant at the congress of the Soviet Communist party in Moscow last month.

Ghosh said he read the Indian government statement about the new Chinese incursions "with surprise and regret."

Such acts by China, he declared, can only "create deep resentment among the Indian people and further embitter relations between the two countries."

"We demand that the government of the Peoples' Republic of China . . . immediately put an end to such acts," he said. "We demand also that effective measures . . . be taken by them to ensure that such things do not occur again."

The Indian Communist party has been divided since Chinese troops first moved into border territory claimed by India. The rift between the party's pro-Moscow and pro-Peking wings is reported to have widened still more since Moscow's current "de - Stalinization" campaign.

In a note to China on Oct. 21, disclosed in Parliament Monday, India listed 11 alleged Chinese incursions into Indian territory between April of 1960 and September of this year. Six were said to be in the Ladakh area of Kashmir.

The note said three others were along India's border with Tibet and two on the northeast frontier.

18-Year-Olds Joining Navy Have Keener Minds, More Mature Than in Past Years

HALIFAX (CP)—Perhaps the graduation is whether to go on to university or get a job. school student must make before

Trying to help these 17- and 18-year-olds make up their minds are the proponents of higher education, industry and the armed services who, with pamphlet, poster and panel discussion, enlist the benefits to be accumulated in their respective fields.

Representing the navy is its bid to lure bright young men and women of high academic background into the service are the "flesh hunters," the navy's jargon for its recruiting officers.

One of the flesh hunters, who travel thousands of miles each year seeking recruits in high schools and universities, is Cmdr. G. L. Amyot.

Taking a moment out from his safari, hunter Amyot, offered the following navy viewpoint on youth.

"Since the ceiling (on the navy's complement) was raised by about 1,800 in September we have doubled the intake to 300 a month. One of the remarkable things is the youth—the average age is 18. Men of 25 and 30 are rarely seen in recruiting offices. Another change is the improved academic standard. In the last few years the average school grade has risen to Grade X (from Grade VIII). Education level is the first point we note."

STACK UP WELL

"The 18-year-old — and many cases is his first job—stacks up pretty well with other age brackets," adds Lt.-Cmdr. Alan T. Love, navy recruiting officer for the Maritimes. "Today's young lad has a keener mind and is often more mature than in past years."

Cmdr. Amyot, whose career has been search for intelligent man-power has convinced him that an 18-year-old is often more acceptable than men in their early 20s, said the navy hopes to have only university graduates for officers by 1970, apart from the 15 per cent who will have worked their way up through the ranks and have specialized training and experience to fit them into the limited duty list.

"We get between 1,500 and 2,000 applicants a year in the Maritimes, of whom about 150 are accepted," Lt.-Cmdr. Love said. "Between 65 and 70 per cent are in the 18-to-19-year old age group.

"When the Berlin crisis came about we had quite a run on the recruiting offices by young people. The run died out when they found that our standards had not been lowered."

Lt. - Cmdr. Love suggested that unemployment "reflects to a certain extent the number of kids who come into our offices."

"The market just can't take care of all those kids leaving school."

He believed the enticements of adventure and security "are still the big reasons that young lads join up. The kid from the Prairies still wants to join because it's something altogether new to him, but then we still get them from the fishing ports down here in the Maritimes."

INVITE STUDENTS

PRAGUE (AP)—Communist Czechoslovakia, following Russia's lead, soon will open a university here for foreign students especially from Latin America, Africa and Asia. A university for foreign students was established last year in Moscow.

Writers See Melancholy Behind Scenes in Ghana

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Beneath the joy and affection with which the tumultuous throngs greeted the Queen in Ghana British correspondents detect an alien sound of melancholy.

One question they have been seriously asking themselves is whether the spontaneous demonstrations and tributes were a political hail of farewell.

Some pessimistic Britons believe that despite the tour—on the surface probably the most successful in post-war history—Ghana may leave the Commonwealth in a few months.

Others submit that the future of Ghana's relations with Britain and the West still hangs dangerously in the balance.

The pivot on which these decisions rest still remains the unpredictable and enigmatic figure of President Nkrumah himself.

Most correspondents agree that politically speaking one of the few positive results of the tour was to raise Nkrumah's ragging prestige.

Among the chief points raised by observers are the clear rifts in the foreign policy between Britain and Ghana, evidence of economic crisis behind Ghana's prestige window-dressing, signs of a visible struggle for power in Nkrumah's government and the seeds of suspicion sown by press criticism on both sides.

Patrick O'Donovan, writing in the London Observer, says the royal tour has failed to provide a basis of understanding between a Ghana that sees everything in terms of African ambitions and grievances and a Britain still concerned with long-term history.

SEEN LEFTIST MOVES

O'Donovan and others say Ghana moving towards a more centralized and directed socialism sought by the militant left-wing ministers around Nkrumah.

Britain's failure to see this policy in the correct light and her resultant criticism has "bitterly, personally and profoundly upset" the power elite in Ghana, O'Donovan says.

Another view is that the tour has demonstrated one principal advantage British has over Russia's friendship and support for the drastic measures in Ghana.

The Times of London correspondent says the Russian presence held which Britain and the Queen have on the people's affections, a hold which gives the government-controlled press around from crude abuse to recognition of the Queen as the greatest socialist monarch.

Department of Continuing Medicine Under Dr. Williams 12th in UBC's Faculty

By BOB TIMBERS

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new dimension in medical education is unfolding at the University of British Columbia.

It is the department of continuing medicine under Dr. Donald H. Williams, the 12th full department in UBC's faculty of medicine.

Its scope and influence sweep the entire medical field in B.C., from the practising physician to dentists, from nurses to paramedical technical groups. It has been established on the premise that the education of the physician and all allied professions and groups in the health team doesn't stop with graduation but is a lifelong project.

Underscoring its establishment, says Dr. Williams, is the explosive increase in new scientific and medical knowledge during the last two decades and the impending breakthrough in all fields.

"Our department differs from others on this continent in that it has a broader base," said Dr. Williams. "Because we are venturing into so vast a field we have no pattern to follow and must work out our own salvation."

THREE GOALS

It was formed in July, 1960, and its first pilot project will begin next February. By next fall the groundwork will be laid to inaugurate the first full academic year course.

The project has a three-fold purpose, Dr. Williams said in an interview. It will assist hospitals in intern-residency education; integrate and expand the current program of post-graduate education of practising physicians; and coordinate medical post - graduate education with those of allied professional and technical groups in the health field.

"The modern hospitals in centres throughout B.C. will be the centre where teaching can be done and where continuing medical education programs can be located."

The cost, especially in regional and rural programming will be high, "but we expect the course will be of such quality it will attract large participation, and the fees paid by doctors attending will underwrite the expense."

"Deficits of regional and rural projects will be balanced by surpluses from metropolitan programs."

The courses, to be conducted by members of the UBC faculty, will be given in all areas, in the metropolitan districts they will be conducted as night school projects twice a month. Regional programs for such areas as the Okanagan and the Kootenays will last one week each month, while a community hospital day will be held three times a year to service rural districts such as Dawson Creek.

Associated with this will be an extensive preparatory reading program, in metropolitan areas, noted speakers will be brought in to lecture the specialised subjects.

Additional areas will include recruitment of university students for the faculty of medicine and a study of ways to bury mailing service.

Rules Women Need Not Act As Jurors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court with a bow to women who feel their place is in the home, ruled unanimously Monday that states may relieve women of jury duty unless they volunteer to serve.

Justice Harlan, delivering the decision, said there has been an "enlightened emancipation" of women over the years. "But still, he said, woman is considered to be the centre of home and family life.

"We cannot say," he continued, "that it is constitutionally impermissible for a state, acting in pursuit of the general welfare, to conclude that a woman should be relieved from the civic duty of jury service unless she herself determines that such service is consistent with her own special responsibilities."

keep graduates in Canada at the completion of university training.

Financial assistance from the federal and provincial governments and a $60,000 grant from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich., will help support the department during its formative years.

Doctors themselves took a giant step in assisting the program by voting at the recent CMA general convention to increase their annual dues by $25 to finance a medical library.

Moments in History

In 1856 — On October 27 — the Grand Trunk Railway made its first scheduled trip from Montreal to Toronto, passing through Belleville on this historic journey. Great crowds were on hand to meet the train as it puffed slowly into the station.

Some forty years later, the predecessors of the Schuster company first began supplying Belleville homes with wood and coal for winter heating.

Today, Mofrs - Schuster Limited continues this important community service with fast, modern delivery trucks . . . delivering fuel oil for use in modern, economical heating units . . . Throughout the Winter season, Moirs-Schuster maintains a highly efficient service department, on call for your heating needs 24 hours every day. Call WO 2-4504 for all your heating needs—fuel oil, coal, new furnace installation — or drop in next time you're downtown.

Foresees Patterson-Liston Title Fight If Both Win Dec. 4

NEW YORK AP) — Fight promoter Tom Bolan expressed confidence Tuesday that heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson will defend his title against Sonny Liston if both win their Dec. 4 fights but Liston was sceptical.

"There's nothing I'd like better," said Liston, the No. 1 contender. "But it will be a surprise to me if I get in with him."

Bolan, head of Championships Sports, Incorporated, which is promoting the unique closed circuit doubleheader of Patterson against Tom McNeeley at Toronto and Liston against Germany's Albert Westphal at Philadelphia, said:

"If both Patterson and Liston win there's no question about it. Patterson will meet him in the late spring next year. You know Patterson only goes one fight at a time. But I've spent an awful lot of time with him and I know his frame of mind. He wants the Liston fight.

WESTPHAL ARRIVES

Westphal, a stocky, 30-year-old blond who has been a pro 5½ years, arrived from Germany Tuesday. He won the German heavyweight crown last June from Hans Kalbfell and lost it in September to Erich Schoeppner, world ranking light-—heavyweight contender. Westphal's record is 34-8-2. He leaves for Philadelphia today to end up his training.

Did Liston consider Patterson a soft touch?

"I can't say until I get in with him," said Liston. "The way I've seen some guys drop kind I'd like to drop him. If he keeps getting up like he did against Ingemar Johansson I'd quit myself."

Johansson floored Patterson seven times in the third round of their first title fight winning on a technical knockout when the referee stopped the 1959 fight. He also floored him last March 13, Johansson dropped Patterson twice in the first round before Patterson exposed the husky Swede in the sixth round.

Bolan said the ticket sales at Toronto and Philadelphia are going well and that the closed circuit TV advance for about 170 outlets in Canada and the United States also is good.

CURLING COMMENTS

By Joe MacKay

With the first week of the men's curling completed, "wicks" and "rubs", "biters" and "runners", and "takeouts" and "draws" are once again familiar terms heard in the curlers cutlers household.

The novice has been introduced to the mysteries of the game and we understand that basement floors have never looked cleaner as all and sundry attempt improve their sweeping techniques. Competition on the ice has been keen and favourites have been dethroned and "unknowns" have emerged to improve the curling in the club. Experienced new-comers are a welcome asset to curling.

In the attempt to improve the curling and make competition keener, many flights have been drawn for the first competition. Ben Corke, Lloyd Sheppard and Ken Williamson are at present tied for first place in "A" flight, while Ashley reigns supreme in "B" flight while in "C" flight the laurel wreath is at present being worn by Ron Bean and his foursome.

Bonspiels no doubt lend colour, competition, cunning and craftsmanship to curling. The "social mens' bonspiel will be run off on Saturday next in been rinks will compete with prizes and awards going to the victors.

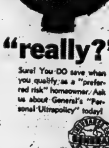
Plans are now underway for a Bay of Quinte bonspiel with Trenton Curling Club, the R.C.A.F. Curling Club and the Quinte Curling Club are pooling their efforts and their ice facilities to offer the best in curling to all comers. In all, 64 rinks will be admitted to the bonspiel the date for which have not as yet been announced. It promises to be one of the outstanding sporting events in the district this season.

It is expected that rinks of high calibre will represent many of the curling fraternities southern Ontario. In the meantime our advice is that "you can on the broom—but good curling".

Whip Royals 11-2

Rockets Lead League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS



An 11-2 victory over St. Thomas Royals Tuesday night gave Stratford Rockets a two-point edge over the idle Windsor Bulldogs at the top of the Ontario Hockey Association's senior loop.

In other league action, Galt Terriers breezed to their fourth straight victory when they whipped the visiting Stratford Indians 8-0.

Don Emms and Bob Geddes each fired in three goals for Stratfroy, while Art Sullivan, Jack McCreight, George Coulter, Willie Hass and Paul Oliver had singles.

Ted Goldup and Darby Moore scored for St. Thomas.

Meet Stampeders Tonight

Bombers Rated Heavy Favorites

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Calgary Stampeders clash for the fifth time this season at 8:30 p.m. CST tonight and if the oddsmakers are right, it'll be their last encounter.

The Bombers, who won the first game of the best-of-three Western Football Conference final 14-1 last Saturday, are rated 13½-point favorites to take tonight's second contest.

The Stampeders, of course, have other ideas. Calgary coach Bobby Dobbs said his players packed their bags for a five-day stay in Winnipeg. That means they expect to be around for a third game next Saturday.

The Stampeders don't believe the Bombers can take five straight victories from them. Before the playoffs, Winnipeg beat Calgary 18-17, 25-6 and 42-7. They rolled to a first-place finish.

Calgary finished third but upset the second-place Edmonton Eskimos 27-26 in the two-game, total-points semi-final.

WEATHER A FACTOR

The question most prominent in the minds of Dobbs and Winnipeg coach Grant was: What will the weather be?

The weatherman's reply early today was: Cloudy with temperatures about 25 degrees; a southerly wind at about 15 miles an hour. There was no immediate prospect of snow.

Dobbs said he had, but relatively fast field. With the wind at their backs the 27-to-40-mile-an-hour gale blowing at Calgary during the game, passing was expected to be an important part of each team's attack. Accordingly the speed of the wind was pretty well taken away by the weather.

The Stampeders were hurting. Dobbs said rookie Ed Buchanan will play in place of wingback Lovell Coleman, the dangerous pass receiver who suffered a groin injury and will see limited action, as will inside George Hansen, the team's place-kicking expert, who suffered an ankle.

Quarterback Eagle Day and corner linebacker John McMurtry will take regular shifts with the Stampeders.

The Bombers were healthy. Coach Grant announced he will make two lineup changes—replacing line backer Dave Burkholder with Ken Warren and substituting Ron Mead-more for Jack Brusell.

QUOTES PRESIDENT

NEW YORK (AP)—"Almost criminal," President Kennedy was quoted Monday as saying of the failure of the government to provide the U.S. with fall-out shelters. A Look magazine article says Kennedy expressed his opinion at a secret White House meeting last summer when he and Vice-President Johnson heard scientists describe the horrors that would result from a Russian hydrogen-bomb attack.

Police Seek Pretty Blonde In Dope Probe

LONDON (AP — Police are looking for an attractive blonde who they suspect is mixed up in a race-horse doping syndicate operating in Britain.

The woman, who speaks with a foreign accent, has visited several training stables in Britain recently visits soon followed by new outbreaks of doping.

Police and track officials cooperated in a new bid to break the gang after two horses were doped recently.

Police warnings have gone out to all tracks calling for information about the mysterious blonde.

Track officials said the woman always waited until the race was almost from the seal. Then she would visit the stables on the pretense of sending horses to be trained. In this way she gained information where certain horses were stabled.

Trappers Zero Hull

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

North Bay Trappers pulled within two points of the fourth-place Quebec Wolves Tuesday night by turning back Hull-Ottawa Canadiens 2-0 in the night's only Eastern Professional Hockey League game.

Goalkeeper Claude Dufour's first shoutout of the season stopped a three-game winning streak by the Canadiens.

Rookie winger Bill Isbell opened the scoring late in the first period and Norm Waslowski scored in the third.

Defenceman Barclay Plager was in the penalty box for tripping North Bay playing coach Bob Sabourin on a breakaway when Sleaver blasted a shot from the point and Waslowski deflected the rebound into the net to clinch the game.

Dufour turned aside 32 Hull-Ottawa shots in an outstanding performance while rival netminder Cesare Maniago blocked 22.

Grey Cup Parade Stamps Won't Enter Float

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary will not enter a float in this year's Grey Cup parade in Toronto Dec. 2.

W. R. Graves, chairman of the Calgary Grey Cup Parade Committee, said Tuesday that commercialism and the unreasonable demands of the Musicians' union in Toronto are the major reasons for the decision.

Graves said the committee received an application form last month from parade officials and would probably enter the parade.

Following a second letter from Harvey J. Trimble of Toronto, chairman of the out-of-town float sales, the Calgary committee decided not to enter the parade, Graves said.

He added that the committee's decision was based partly on the demand of the Musicians' union that if any union bands were used in the parade, it must use all bands that will to play.

TERMED IMPRACTICAL

Graves said it is impractical to have more than three or four bands in the parade. However, seven additional bands want to take part, they must either be used, or if they are not used, their musicians must be paid, he added.

Graves estimated it cost Calgary anywhere from $3,500 to $4,000 to enter a float in the parade. In addition, he said, there are many "hidden costs."

He said the Calgary committee has doubts, too, about the validity of the $200 entry fee which must be paid for each float entered.

"Why should we pay an entry fee simply to help provide a show for the public and to help make this show a success?" he asked.

He said his committee's decision to stay out of the parade was doubly difficult because it was Calgary that "initiated the Grey Cup parade in the beginning and made it popular."

BELLEVILLE PEPSI'S

ADM. GENERAL $1.00 — CHILDREN 50c

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Napanee Comets are the visiting firemen in tonight's Lakeshore Intermediate Hockey League opener here and from all reports the initial clash between these intermediate "A" teams should be a dilly dooger.

The Comets showed good form Monday night in turning back the Trenton RCAF Globetrotters' bid for inaugural victory and although they were outshot 38-28 on the night's play showed a little more finish and finesse around the enemy net.

The Comets will be a tough nut to crack. Coach Lou Douglas has Sam Mailhollard, Pat Gilmour and Taz Brady on his first line; Frank Griffin, Tom McAllister and "Toad" Calnan, all of Napanee; Don Senior, Bud Aylesworth and Garnet Bell, second and third lines. Bob Senior, ex-McFarland, is between the pipes.

The Pepsi's, as the man on the bus said, "travelled a helluva long way to get a workout," the other night when they trekked to Uxbridge.

The ice was rough and bad and that's no alibi for being down 2-1 when the fantastic first period (and the only period) ended. The ice-making machinery had not been working for hours and no floods were put on the ice surface. It had been well racked by either teams or skaters prior to the game and to add to the Pepsi misery the referee net frozen and bounced all over the surface like rubber balls.

However, the Pepsi's have not lost their stride. That was evident in the first fifteen minutes of the Uxbridge session. They could not be checked and their timing was bad. What shots they did get away in the early part of the period were handled safely by Carpenter in the Memorial net.

At that they proved dangerous on not a few occasions. Dave Jones skated in on a clear cut drive Hawk club only to miss the goalpost by a whisker.

With about five minutes to go they seemed to hit at least a semblance of stride. They started to click with their passing and were finding their skating legs. Tony ripped in a goal with seconds to go on a nice passing play by Ronnie Hull and Gary Goyer.

At that they were short "Wiener" Brown, who could not make the trip due to working commitments, and Cecil Crawford, who went along with the club but was not dressed. It seems playing coach Fred Lamirande is having trouble getting the defenceman's release from the Imperial Club. It is hoped Crawford will be available for tonight's tilt.

Lamirande used Gary Goyer in centre with Keith MacDonald and Ronnie Hull flanking him in his first line in Uxbridge. "Shaker" Baker skated well as did Rowbotham, Irwin and O'Meara, but it seems to me Lammy needs some more offensive strength. He hopes to have "Wiener" and Ike Hildebrand out for tonight's tussle with Napanee.

The playing coach was not disappointed at the club's showing in Uxbridge. "After all," he said, "we met a team that has had at least four exhibition games under its belt and have been practising daily for the past three weeks. The Pepsi's haven't had too much practice and haven't found proper skating legs yet. They will round into shape in time and when they do they'll be as good as any team in the league."

He said there will be opening ceremonies prior to tonight's game with, it is expected, Mayor A. M. Haig dropping the first puck. The Hastings and Prince Edward Band might be in attendance.

So Napanee will be the team to beat in the league. After seeing Uxbridge in action and with the Trenton Globetrotters holding the Comets to a 3-1 score it doesn't look as though there will be any pushovers in the league. Of course the quality of the Bowmanville and Port Hope squads is as yet unknown.

However tonight's tussle should tell part of the story with the Comets in better condition than the Pepsi's but not beating them in doubt. It should be a humdinger and a large crowd should turn out to watch the first battle between these district rivals.

Ingarfield Emerges as Star

Rangers Have Powerful Front Line

By LAURENT CHABSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Earl Ingarfield seriously considered giving up hockey last summer.

The 27 - year - old centre figured he wasn't getting anywhere. He only had 12 goals in 121 games with New York Rangers.

But things have changed.

Placed between Andy Bathgate and Dean Prentice, a pair of crafty wingers, Ingarfield suddenly has emerged into a big scorer.

The trio itself is the most productive in the National Hockey League so far this season. It is collecting scoring points—70 in 18 games — at a rate that would eclipse several 96 points.

Bathgate leads the way with nine goals and 23 assists. Ingarfield has 11 goals, one on the club and second best in the league, and nine assists while Prentice boasts goals and 13 assists.

WOULD NET 373

That's a clip that would net the line a whopping 373 points over the NHL's 70 - game schedule. The record of 226 points was set in 1955-57 by Detroit's Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay and Norm Ullman.

What's the key to Ingarfield's success?

"When you play between players like Bathgate and Prentice, it's easy," says Ingarfield modestly. "They make all the big plays."

The unit has provided the big offensive spark for the surging Rangers, who tonight could move into first place in the NHL with a win over Detroit. The game is in New York and it's the only one scheduled.

Thursday night the Rangers move on to Boston for a game against the Bruins. All other teams also will be in action Thursday with Detroit visiting Montreal and Toronto going to Chicago.

Ingarfield, Bathgate and Prentice have accumulated 15 more points than the NHL's next best unit — Henri Richard, Claude Provost and Marcel Bonin of Canadiens.

OFTEN OVERSHADOWED

Bathgate, 26, always considered a scorer right winger but often overshadowed by the heroics of Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and Howe, would wind up with 130 pints — 20 goals and 60 assists — if he maintained his present pace.

The odds, however, are against him. Other players have started strongly in recent seasons but tapered off towards the end and failed to break the 100-point barrier. Geoffrion appeared to have a good chance last season, but finished with 95 points.

The record is 96. It was set by left winger Dickie Moore of the Canadiens in 1958-59.

The team mark ever accumulated by a player was 58 by Bellevue of Montreal last season. The record for most assists by a right winger is 64. Howe established this mark last season.

Bathgate gives New York playing - coach Doug Harvey a lot of credit for his fast start.

TREATED LIKE PROS

"Harvey lets you play your own game, correcting your faults," he says. "He treats us like pros, not amateurs."

Prentice, a 30 - year - old veteranwinger, is one of the few players who ever made the jump to the NHL from junior ranks. He is in his 10th season with Rangers and has 137 goals.

New York has yet to win a game from Detroit this season. A team Harvey says the Rangers must beat to make the playoffs.

In three previous outings, Detroit has won 5-0 on home ice and 5-4 at New York. The other game at Detroit, ended in a 4-4 draw.

The Rangers also haven't beaten front - running Montreal. Their eight wins have come against Toronto, Chicago and Boston. The Maple Leafs and Black Hawks each were victims three times.

Ref: Knee Sunday

Argos Martinello Out?

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts' offensive middle guard, Marty Martinello, is not sure to watch from the sidelines this Saturday when his teammates meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the second game of the Eastern Football Conference total-points final.

Argos took a 36-7 lead in the home-and-home series by winning at home on Sunday. Game time is Hamilton Saturday is 2 p.m.

Coach Lou Agase said Tuesday night he is making his plans on the assumption the hard-rock Martinello will not recover from a knee injury in time to play.

"If he is ready, okay," said Agase. "If not, we have to be prepared."

Martinello's knee was twisted in the first game of the final when a Hamilton blocker, knocked down by another Argo lineman, fell against him.

LEFT AT POINT

Agase recalled that the last time this season he assumed a man would be able to play he was left at the post.

"It put 'em in a jam and I don't want to happen again."

The reference was to Cookie Gilchrist, who had to be taken out of a game which Argos lost 29-10 to Ottawa Rough Riders.

Martinello is a Canadian and so Argos would like to replace him with a man in the import category and save their 13 imports for other positions. They would make tackles Walt Radzick or Billy Shipp logical candidates. Dene Mattson, a Calgary Titan, also is being considered.

Import Dick Fouts, who has been out of action for three weeks with a shoulder injury, is ready to play, but middle guard is one of the numerous positions at which he is a star. Hat to use him would mean benching another American.

Martinello's injury is another in a long Argo list this year. Seventeen first-stringers have been hurt and 13 have missed one or more games as a result.

Moose Hunt Good Here

FORT FRANCES — Checked at the Red Lake road checking station of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests during the first 16 days of the moose season were 555 moose, 273 deer, 14 bear, seven wolves and a bobcat. The largest moose weighed 877 pounds, field dressed weight, after it was removed. It was an 8-year-old bull. Largest buck deer weighed 298 pounds, aged 5½ years. Firing only five shots, one nonresident hunter got a deer and four of a pack of 12 or 14 wolves.

Ed Marineau Back in City

Belleville Fopot's playing coach Jean Paul Lamirande said today that Eddie Marineau, ex-member of the Belleville McFarlands has arrived in the city from the hockey wars.

Marineau, it was stated, will remain in the city if certain employment arrangements can be made.

He played with the Knoxville, Tennessee team in the southern division of the United States Eastern Hockey League.

Meanwhile, Lamirande stated, has his release and if he remains here will make a welcome addition to the Fopot's squad.

Robinson Named MVP Nat. League

BOSTON (AP) — Frank Robinson, Cincinnati Reds' carefree, lusty-hitting outfielder who helped the Redlegs to their first pennant in 21 years last season, today was named the National League's most valuable player of 1961.

Robinson gained all but one of the first - place votes. One member of a special committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America put the 26-year-old right fielder in second place.

Robinson polled 319 of a possible 340 points in the voting. He received 18 votes for first place with 117 points while San Francisco Giants' Orlando Cepeda, who paced the National League in home runs and runs batted in.

Cincinnati outfielder Vada Pinson, Robinson's roommate, nailed down third place with 104 points.

"Wow!" exclaimed Robinson when notified of his victory. "This is a wonderful wedding present for me."

Robinson, disclosed that he had married three weeks ago. His bride is the former Barbara Cole of Los Angeles.

Robinson, the league's, outstanding rookie when he broke in with the Redlegs in 1956, batted .328 over the 1961 season, hitting 37 homers, driving in 124 runs and stealing 22 bases.

RECORD WITH DEBATE

Wheeler, a 165-pounder from Ada, Okla., was injured when he tackled Tech halfback Jim Zanios late in the third quarter of the game which Tech won 20-6.

HORSE GETS AWARD

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Admiral Butler was given the Headliner Award for 1961 Tuesday in a vote of the United States Harness Writers' Association. Arden Butler, fastest pacer in the history of the sport, also won the award a year ago.

Mary Tyler Moore Given Role After 'Sam' Gimmick

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Diamond, one of TV's earlier private eyes, was the first of the TV-over-the-shoulder, woman - chasing, villain-fighting monster - solvers to use a car telephone.

The show is largely responsible for the current career of Mary Tyler Moore, who plays the young wife to CBS' The Dick van Dyke Show.

The producers added the role of Sam, the telephone operator, to the show. When the hero checked his answering service, it was Sam, a gabby - voiced, leggy female operator who gave him the messages. You never saw Sam's face.

"It was murder for an actress," conceded Miss Moore, "particularly since I was working for scale and my name never was listed in the credits. But even if my face was never shown, I was getting as much mail as the star. At least, I heard I was getting as much mail—they never let me see a line of it."

At any rate, after the demise of the series, Mary Tyler Moore was able to disclose her identity. Because of the success of the Sam gimmick, she started getting better acting jobs.

Television apparently is taking to heart the sweeping criticism of the quality of children's programs.

Robert Saudek, once the producer of Omnibus, obviously believes there is a market opening up for better children's shows: He has acquired TV rights to three series of children's books which deal with history, biography and current affairs.

As if the toothpaste commercials haven't drummed in all you want to know about dental care—and how can one escape? —CBS will present an hour-long special 7-8:30 p.m. EST Thursday to observe Dental Care Week.

Personally, I'm getting more bored with commercials full of dental advice these days, than with watching happy, happy fellows shave.

Will Video Curling Matches

HALIFAX (CP)—The CBC has announced televising plans for a seven-week series of curling competitions beginning Saturday, Dec. 9.

A spokesman here said the competition, to be known as Cross-Canada Curling, will be videotaped in three Canadian cities. Provincial entries will in most cases be those who participated in the 1960 Canadian curling championships including Rec Gervais' winning Alberta rink.

The television series, unlike the actual Canadian championship bonspiel which is based on the best won - lost record, will consist of into playoff matches, all to be staged at Toronto.

First and second round matches will be filmed in Dartmouth, N.S., Toronto and Winnipeg.

The Newfoundland - Nova Scotia winner will meet Northern Ontario in a second round match. All three matches are to be videotaped Dec. 3 for presentation the following week.

The two area teams still "alive" will travel to Toronto to participate in further single knockout draws. The final championship match will be shown on Jan. 20.

Wings Win Eleven, Royals Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Red Wings and Montreal Junior Canadiens seem intent upon leaving the rest of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series far behind.

Tuesday night the league-leading Wings, who have yet to lose, won their 11th game, 5-2 over Peterborough Petes for Interlocrough. The Canadiens shut out Guelph Royals 5-0 in Montreal for their fifth straight victory after losing four of their first five games.

Yvan Cournoyer, Andre Boudrias and Bill Inglis each got two goals and an assist for Montreal. Jacques Laperriere, Bob Charlebois and Rejean Richer also scored.

The Canadiens had only 12 minutes to get their first shot on Mario Lessard goalie George Holmes, duplicating the feat only 12 other times in the 60 minutes.

The Petes allowed Hamilton to one goal in the first period and matched it in the second before the Wings took off.

Jim McLellan, Pit Martin, Brian Campbell, Howie Menard and Earl Heiskala scored for Hamilton and Keith Wright and Mike Grace for the losers.

In OHA Minor League action Whitby trimmed Toronto Marlboros 6-3 as Whitby Centre Ice Kowalski scored three goals for the winners, Bill Collins, Elmer Trees and Bill Smith adding the others. Gary Milroy and Arnie Brown scored for Marlboros.

Minor Hockey

The Untouchables, the Rinke Boys and the Buzzers chalked up victories in the midget section of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association last night.

The Untouchables defeated the Destin-ee Kiddo 6-3 with Meese scoring two of the winning goals. Bob Boyle and Lentini, Laurie and Hallam also scored while Shadrow, Hall and Hilbert drew assists. Bob Boyle scored two of the losers' goals and assisted on the other. Stinson also scored while Farrell and Hubbard had assists.

The Rinke Boys whipped Bishop Six 9-3. Don Carson and Brian Pauls, who scored two goals while the others went to Chesselman, Bennett, Flindall, Poste and Legere. Chesselman drew two assists as did Follwell, with others getting Stinson, Carson, Hall and Wilbey, Babcock potted two Bishop goals and Bennett got the other. Dowsett had one helper.

The Buzzers kept the Rovers 5-3 on goals by Lancaster, Mott, Bastwell, Decarie and Almonte. Lancaster, Bastwell and Richards had assists. Sadar and Mallory scored for the Rovers, with Welsh assisting on both goals.

The last slate of games was also played in the senior division.

The Rangers rea wild to whip the Browns 18-0, Cronkright getting the shut-out. T. Meaghar led the scorers with a seven-point night, single performance. Buchanan scored four times and R. Meagher twice while the other goals went to Coates, Jamieson, Parks and Nance.

Royals and Canadians tied 4-4. Darryl Demerv potted 3 Canadian goals and Pete Calvert had one. The Royal goals were scored by Adams, Ellis, McLean and Prudden.

Maple Leafs stopped the Black Hawks 5-1. Lee Jones was held to Pearce, S. Middleton, Bellamy and Lynch. McKenzie scored for the Hawks.

The Mics shaded the Bruins 3-2 on goals by Smith, Beach and Dower. Lattimore and Coombs potted the Bruin goals.

Wilson scored four goals and Cousins got the shutout as the Red Wings blanked the Montreal Y.M. Dennis, Reeves and McDonald added single Wing goals. The wings have yet to be scored on in two games against them in three games.

The Flyers and Bacons tied 4-4. Skibkik fired three goals and Lucas one for the Barons. McCormack scored three for Flyers and Bleekman had the other.

J. McCrea, Randolph Scott Join Hands to Make Western

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Two giants of the west are fighting it out yonder in Culver City—bank accounts, not pistols.

Joel McCrea and Randolph Scott, who have starred in more westerns than all other world cars, remember, have finally bobbed horses in a film. Going in the afternoon, Al reporter could hope that there might be a shootout between the two.

Instead, they're dancing cheek to cheek. Actually, they're dancing with the Texas millionaires and in the locker room afterwards, they say, Handy, we're drilling a new field—like to let you in on it."

Hope and Crosby do the same thing; they get in on the ground floor and make a mint. I just happened to be looking into a natural gas investment and a broker told me, 'There's a guy in your business who knows as much about it as anybody—Randolph Scott.'"

I trumped up Scott's dressing room and tried to fire him up.

"McCrea says you're the richest gun in the west," I said.

"Look who's talking," scott said with a tight-lipped smile.

"Why, McCrea is one of the really big cattle dealers. He got in it early and made a fortune.

"And look at the land he's got. I bought up 2,500 acres for a song, and now they're worth a fortune. He just sold off part of his. I'm not a few acres—and he made something like $1,300,000. Just a few acres!"

Confronted with such intelligence, McCrea confessed: "I have been lucky. I made some dough because I invested in the only thing I know about—land."

So it was a standoff. I couldn't even get them mad over billing. Scott's name goes on top, and he won it fair and square.

"We flipped a coin," said Scott.

BOOB HOT YEAR

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates announced Tuesday the purchase of pitcher Orville (Cook) Veal from Washington Senators for an undisclosed amount. Veal, 29, batted .208 with the Senators in 60 appearances.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

GENERAL TENDENCIES—This is certainly the day and evening when you have an unexpected and unique chance to show that you are grateful to the country under whose Flag you live, as well as the family into which you were born and the friends and other blessings that are yours. Be sure you do not just travel away today and tonight. Show true appreciation. State aims plainly for future, too.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Be sure you attend that family function or civic dinner where you can be with those persons who can give you the greatest sense of well-being and good tidings for the future. Get into the spirit of things and get closer to God.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Today's contracts can very well lead to genuine optimism in the future, provided you are alert to those opportunities and synchronize the experience of the past with new-found wisdom and ideas. Get chief friendly discussions with others.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Indeed the right day to take that little trip, make that call, etc. that will bring you close to the ones that are so important to your life. Think of some unusual way in which you can bring joy and happiness to them. Have fun.

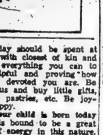
Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Strive for a better standing within your community, be more confident of yourself, and your country, add strength to personal character. Understand the full meaning of this day, P.M. plan better how to reach cherished personal goals.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) This day gives you an ideal opportunity to impress influential friends with your talents and ability informally so that they willingly give unusual support. Have a wonderful time too, as you go about socially making new contacts, etc.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Every opportunity is yours now to participate in some important civic affair that gives far greater prestige and will be of immeasurable help to the multitudes. Have private talks with key people, but dress in good taste. Grow.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) By studying your paper and other printed media well, you uncover many methods by which to operate in the future and thereby increase abundance and happiness.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are highly inspired today just what it is you want to accomplish in the future as well as the best methods to use in order to attain goals. Truly something to be thankful about P.M. Be happy with loved one.



Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you listen more closely to what associates have to say today at a dinner party, they will co-operate far more in the future. Also, give evidence of your loyal support and thoughtfully make up any differences between you.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be of service to others on this memorable day and give proof you are truly devoted to close ties. You will find that they will reciprocate in kind and the future may become far more happy and harmonious. Grow.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) One of the happiest days in some time can be yours now. If you get together with persons you truly admire and like. Set down in interesting talks about the future and exchange ideas. Impress them with your alert, courteous attitude.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) This day should be spent at home with closest of kin and doing everything you can to be helpful and proving how deeply devoted you are. Be generous and buy little gifts, special pastries, etc. Be joyful, happy.

If your child is born today there is bound to be a great deal of energy in this nature, and it behooves you to early give the benefit of sports in order to channel this dynamism properly. Also, see that the finest education possible is accorded your youngster, since the mentality here is very fine and the force is inventiveness. Greatest success comes from work in foreign countries.

Frost to Sit
In Front Row
On Govt. Side

TORONTO (CP) — Former premier Frost will still be in a front-row seat on the government side of the House during the legislature session opening today.

Premier Robarts said Tuesday Mr. Frost has been assigned seat No. 1, the first seat in the front row immediately to the right of the Speaker's chair.

Mr. Frost, now an ordinary member for Victoria for the first time since 1943, will be in the seat held last session by C. S. Lyons of Sault Ste. Marie, who moves into the second row.

Mr. Frost's new seat is the one used in former times by premiers. It wasn't until the mid-1930s, under Liberal Premier Mitchell Hepburn, that the premier began sitting in the middle of the government's benches to be in the best position to be in the Russian Church Admitted to World Council

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Russia's Orthodox Church was admitted to the World Council of Churches Monday in a major ecumenical triumph that touched off speculation over Russia's official policy of atheism.

The envoy of the Russian church was approved along with the admission of 32 other churches at the second session of the council's 18-day assembly, the biggest non-Roman Catholic Christian gathering ever held.

Other new members included the Orthodox churches of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Bulgaria and Rumania; 16 churches from Africa and Asia; small island churches of the South Pacific, Samoa, New Hebrides and New Caledonia.

The admission of the Russian church, with a membership estimated at 50,000,000 displaced the 30,000,000-strong Methodist Church of the United States, is the largest single grouping within the council.

The Russian application received Jan. 1 and a press conference his church was completely free of state interference. Moscow denied this statement in its inner life.

He said that the church needed Kremlin permission to join the council, which with 192 member churches in 90 lands, is today's biggest organized body outside the Roman Catholic Church.

Niuzkin said the Soviet Constitution had an addition that freedom of worship of Western Ontario on the rule of law in international affairs.

He said fear of total destruction by driving people to consider formation of a single world government as the only solution.

"Today, only a few nations have nuclear weapons, but how many will there be in 30 years? When smaller bombs get into the $20 class, that international disorder would be without one?"

Even peaceful use of atomic energy represented a disturbing problem in the disposal of radioactive waste. He estimated that by 1980 the U.S. will have 300,000,000 gallons of this waste in storage and failure to control what is stored may lead to disastrous contamination in coming years.

Gore

GORE — The rain on Thursday was welcomed by all. Wells and cisterns need still more before the freeze-up.

The many friends of Mrs. Sidney Fox are sorry to know that she is again a patient in the Belleville hospital. All join in wishing her a complete recovery.

The ladies of the community are busy planning and preparing a turkey dinner to be served at Tobe's County Gardens, Rossmore on Wednesday evening, when Warden and Mrs. Harmon Montgomery will be "At Home" to many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pretty, Neguac and Mrs. Frank Townsend were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Townsend and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Winston Pulver, before nothing in her new home on the bay shore.

Mrs. Edward Price has returned to her home in Napanee after visiting with Mrs. Melvin Pulver. Mrs. A. H. Pulver was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Pulver on Tuesday.

U.S. Judge Says Policy Against China Wrong

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Mr. Justice W. O. Douglas of the United States Supreme Court said Tuesday that American policies aimed at keeping Red China out of the United Nations were wrong.

"Cold practicalities demand that Red China should be admitted," he said.

Because the Chinese Communist government is not a member of the UN, India can not go ahead in an address to the University of Western Ontario on the role of law in international affairs.

He said fear of total destruction by driving people to consider formation of a single world government as the only solution.

"Today, only a few nations have nuclear weapons, but how many will there be in 30 years? When smaller bombs get into the $20 class, that international disorder would be without one?"

Even peaceful use of atomic energy represented a disturbing problem in the disposal of radioactive waste. He estimated that by 1980 the U.S. will have 300,000,000 gallons of this waste in storage and failure to control what is stored may lead to disastrous contamination in coming years.

THREE-WAY FIGHT FOR MAYOR LOOMS

Soviet Troops Hold U.S. Train For Half A Day

East German Stowaway Turned Over to Reds

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet troops held up an American military train for 14½ hours today and released it after a stowaway from East Germany was turned over to the Russians.

The U.S. command in Berlin announced the stowaway was turned over by the chief of the U.S. mission to the Soviet headquarters, who went to investigate the holding of the train.

The Soviets had refused to let the train pass through their control point at Marienborn into West Germany because they said an East German stowaway was aboard. There was deadlock when the train commander carried out standing orders to refuse to let the Soviets search the train.

The Russians finally allowed the train to proceed on its journey into West Germany at 1:15 p.m. (7:15 a.m. EST).

The train resumed its interrupted journey from West Berlin to Frankfurt. It had been stopped at Marienborn, Soviet checkpoint at the border, and those aboard had only unsatisfactory radiotelephone and overnight trains serve no meals.

The Army said 74 American and Allied troops and family members were aboard, including 11 children two to 15 years old. Also aboard were four West German attachés and a three-man East German train crew operating the locomotive that had pulled the train to the border.

U.S. officials speculated that the Russians were trying to establish a precedent for searching the U.S. military trains that frequently travel the 110-mile autobahn between West Germany and West Berlin.

U.S. INVESTIGATES

The army said that in accordance with standing instructions the train commander refused to allow anyone to board or leave the train.

A U.S. officer was sent from West Berlin to investigate this morning.

While the Berlin - Frankfurt train was held at Marienborn, three other U.S. military trains passed through the checkpoint without interference.

U.S. army trains between Berlin and West Germany normally are operated across East Germany by locomotives and crews of the Communist East German railway system.

The stalled train was the regular overnight duty train between Berlin and Frankfurt, consisting mostly of sleeping cars.

The French and British forces in West Berlin also operate such trains.

Last time the Russians held up an American train, they said it was because a West German was on one car. The U.S. Army said it was a child's funny-face drawn in the dust.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A complex weather system is moving through the Great Lakes area. Skies are overcast across the province with occasional rain in south and snow mixed with freezing rain in the north country. The prospects for Friday are for mainly cloudy skies over the province with some showers or snowflurries in the north.

BERLIN (Reuters)—Although the worst spotlight in recent weeks has been on the wall dividing Berlin, the Western air lifts still regard the vital air corridors into the city as the most vulnerable points in the West Berlin lifeline.

The West has repeatedly stated that it is determined to maintain uncontrolled air access for military personnel and civilians.

But Communist leaders recently made clear that limiting Western air access could be used as a weapon for forcing a change in the status of West Berlin.

All civilian road, rail and waterway transport now is subject to East German control. Allied military movements by rail and road to West Berlin are subject to Soviet control. But air access still is under four-power jurisdiction.

The four-power air safety centre is one of the only two four-power installations still operating. The other is the Allied war crimes prison at Spandau.

TRAIL EACH OTHER

At the air centre, American, British, French and Soviet officers inform each other daily of planned flights in the three air corridors.

The 20 - mile wide corridors link West Berlin with Hamburg in the north, Hanover in the west and Frankfurt in the southwest.

The Russians claim a 10,000-foot ceiling in the corridors but the Western allies dispute this.

The Russians maintain that it has been customary for Allied aircraft to fly below this ceiling. Despite the West's opposing view, all aircraft flying in the corridors do adhere to the ceiling.

The Soviet Union in recent notes to the Western powers has declared all commercial flights illegal, claiming the corridors were set up only to supply Western allied garrisons in Berlin.

WHOLESALE RATE FOR POWER TO BE INCREASED

Southern Ontario To Be Affected

TORONTO (CP) — Consolidation of northern and southern Ontario electric systems in Ontario will mean an increase in wholesale rates of power to Southern Ontario and smaller decreases in Northern Ontario, Robert Saunderson said Wednesday.

Mr. Macaulay, vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and Ontario resources minister, explained in a lengthy memorandum the background to Wednesday's announcement by the speech from the throne that the systems will be financially integrated.

Basing calculations on 1960 rates, Mr. Macaulay said the effects on the wholesale cost of power would be an increase of 77 cents a kilowatt in Southern Ontario, a decrease of $2.01 in northeastern Ontario and a decrease of $5 in northwestern Ontario.

When taken in terms of delivery to municipalities — who distribute to home owners — the memorandum said:

The combined effect of the change in wholesale costs of the two systems is an increase of $1,735,000 which represents .918 per cent cost of municipal retail revenues in Ontario.

"As these revenues exceed costs by 12 per cent in 1960, consolidation will not bring about an increase in retail rates except in those cases which are operating at marginal levels. These will be few in number."
